PRESIDENT SAYS G.O.P. SHOULDN'T PIN ALL HOPES IN '56 ON ONE MAN

Advice Gives Some State Chairmen Pause But Only Strengthens Hall's Conviction He Will Run.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

DENVER, Sept. 10 — President Eisenhower told Republican leaders today he is prouder than ever of his party, but Republicans should not pin all their hopes for 1956 on one man.

"We don't believe for a minute that the Republican party is so lacking in inspiration, high quality personnel and leadership that we are dependent on one man," the President told a breakfast of the 48 Republican state chairmen.

"We don't believe it for a minute."

Mr. Eisenhower expressed himself emphatically on this point after thanking the chairmen for the telegram they sent him yesterday from their "campaign school" in Washington.

"I just want to point out that I greatly appreciate your telegram, particularly where you said 'I like Ike more than ever,'" Mr. Eisenhower said.

"May I return the compliment and say that when I see these faces before me, I like the Republican party more than ever," he added.

'Humans Are Frail,' He Says.

Then he expressed his belief about the party's dependency on one man, and said:

"Now as long as we have a man in the leadership position why of course as a party we are going to be loyal, we are going to help in the fight.

"But humans are frail—and they are mortal. Finally—you never pin your flag so tightly to one mast that if a ship sinks you cannot rip it off and nail it to another. It is sometimes good to remember that."

Those familiar with Mr. Eisenhower's previous non-committal comments about his candidacy said this was the strongest statement he has yet made in opposition to the indispensible man theory, which, he is known to believe, too many of his party followers continue to espouse.

Leonard W. Hall, national Republican chairman, said the President's speech "strengthened my conviction that he will be the candidate."

Nixon Again, Hall Says.

Hall said also he expects next year's ticket to be like that of 1952—with Richard M. Nixon as the vice-presidential candidate.

Some of the state chairmen, who arrived in Denver from Washington aboard a chartered airplane early this morning in an exuberant Ike-is-sure-to-run-again mood, appeared at first to be a bit baffled by the unexpected brevity of their breakfast session with the President and by his possible suggestion that he might not run.

For the first time in weeks some of them dared to talk openly—but not for quotation—about the possibility that they should be looking around for an alternate candidate.

Within an hour after the breakfast had ended, however, practically all of them appeared to have resumed their supreme confidence.

They laughed, instead of shuddering, when they repeated Hall's quotation of an unnamed Republican leader.

Crossing-the-Bridge Story.

Hall said, while introducing the President at the breakfast, that occasionally when he is asked for comment on stories Mr. Eisenhower might not seek re-election, he says, "I'll reach that bridge when I get to it, then I'll jump off."

Among state chairmen whose buoyant confidence that Mr. Eisenhower would run was

ATTORNEY BARS IMMEDIATE USE OF MALINE FUNDS

Sewer District Lawyer Says Money in Escrow Can't Be Used for Start on Sewer.

Escrow funds totaling $178,000, representing deposits of $200 per lot in the Maline creek watershed, cannot be used for an immediate start on construction of a large sewer in the watershed, John P. McCammon, Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District general counsel, said yesterday.

The money, which is held by the district, represents deposits for the benefit of lots in widely separated areas of the watershed and could not legally be spent for a sewer along a relatively small section of the creek channel, McCammon pointed out. A nine-mile sewer costing well over $1,000,000 is needed for the channel.

His statement was in response to a question raised by the St. Louis county grand jury Friday in a critical report which said the sewer district board had made "no final determination" as to the feasibility of using the escrow funds for sewer construction.

Used to Make Start.

County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews in a statement yesterday also urged the district board to consider using the escrow funds to make a start on solution of the Maline pollution problem, "even if they might not prove enough to finish the job."

"Members of the district board are trustees in connection with the escrow funds and could not use the money in any way which would violate their agreements with the property owners," McCammon asserted.

Terms of the agreements include the following provisions, McCammon said:

If a trunk sewer for the watershed should be built by a general obligation bond issue, the $200 escrow deposits will be returned to property owners. However, if the total of escrow deposits should reach an amount sufficient to build either a trunk sewer or a complete treatment plant, the money then could be spent for that purpose. If facilities should be built by special tax bill rather than by bond issue, the funds on deposit with the sewer district could be applied against tax bills.

Established Policy.

These escrow fund arrangements, usually made with subdivision promoters, are in line with a policy first established by the county planning commission and health department and adopted by the sewer district after its establishment last year, McCammon said.

Under the agreements with the county agencies, some escrow money was deposited with banks or surety bonds were filed. McCammon said he understood an additional $700,-

COOLING RAIN ENDS HOTTEST SPELL OF YEAR

Relief from the hottest weather of the year came with yesterday's moderate to heavy rain, which fell in scattered areas of St. Louis and St. Louis county. A high this afternoon of 75 following a low this morning of 52 was forecast.

Heaviest rainfall was recorded in the southwest part of the county, where floods stranded automobiles, made driving difficult and invaded basements. Readings taken in Webster Groves ranged from 1.95 inches, the official record, to Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren's unofficial report, made from his home, of 1.48 inches.

Limbs were blown off trees in south St. Louis, where precipitation totaled .59 of an inch. Other rainfall readings were .43 in University City and .42 at St. Louis University. Heavy rain in Ferguson and other areas was accompanied by hail.

In Webster Groves the temperature dropped from 95 to 64 in two hours, compared with a 91-to-71 drop in St. Louis in two and half hours. The year's high for St. Louis, 97.8, was recorded Friday.

WOULD LEGALIZE WHIPPINGS FOR PENAL INMATES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 10 (AP)—Gov. Raymond Gary has called for a law to permit supervised whipping of inmates at state correctional institutions.

The recommendation followed the firing of several staff members at the Negro boys school at Boley, resulting from whippings administered to youths. Gary supported the firings because corporal punishment has been outlawed since 1951.

"I'll probably get a lot of letters on it," Gary said yesterday. "But we just can't allow a boy to spit in a guard's face or curse him. They just can't do as they please."

Meanwhile, Okfuskee County Attorney John Lacy said criminal charges will be filed Monday in connection with the beatings at Boley.

6 HURT AS PLANE BOUNCES OFF TOP OF AUTO ON ROAD

PRICE, Utah, Sept. 10 (INS)—Six persons were injured, one of them critically, when a light plane carrying four persons attempted a crash landing today on a busy highway and pancaked onto an automobile.

Mrs. Patricia Rigby, Centerville, Utah, a passenger in the car driven by her husband, Seymour, was reported in critical condition in a hospital at Provo. Her husband suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

The plane, a four-place Stinson, was piloted by Max W. Nichols of Provo, an instructor at Brigham Young University. He told officers the plane's engine failed, forcing him to attempt an emergency landing on the busy Canyon highway.

The plane bounced off the top of the automobile and landed upright on the highway. The automobile was demolished but only the plane's landing gear and propeller were damaged. Nichols and his passengers suffered only minor injuries.

ALL OF RANSOM BILLS HALL USED FOUND BUT ONE

28 Others Recovered Are Part of $303,720 Missing Since Kidnapers' Capture.

All but one of the Greenlease ransom $20 bills which Carl Austin Hall spent or gave away while he was in St. Louis have been recovered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Post-Dispatch was told yesterday.

The recovery of ransom money distributed by Hall, kidnaper-killer of Bobby Greenlease, is significant in view of the recent finding of at least 28 other $20 ransom bills in various parts of the country.

These other bills consequently represent part of the missing $303,720 and not money that Hall distributed here before his capture Oct. 6, 1953, the FBI believes.

Delivered in Duffel Bag.

The original $600,000 ransom was given to Hall and his accomplice, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, in a duffel bag containing 400 packets of 100 bills each. When Hall was arrested, less than half of the $600,000 was found.

Before his execution in Missouri's gas chamber, the kidnaper told FBI agents he took six packets of bills for his own use, the Post-Dispatch was told. Four of the packets consisted of $20 bills and two were of $10s.

FBI agents made an all-out effort to trace the bills Hall and Mrs. Heady spent in taverns and other establishments, ransom money used for taxi fares. The federal men recovered the bills with which the kidnaper purchased a used car.

They got back the money Hall gave to Sandra June O'Day, his companion at a St. Louis county motel, and to John O. Hager, Ace taxicab driver who escorted the kidnaper about St. Louis during his two-day stay.

Authorities knew the serial numbers of bills in each packet. Analyzing money recovered from the packets Hall said he used, they found that only one $20 bill was missing.

Therefore, the FBI concluded, if more than one $20 ransom bill were found, it would be evident that the missing money was being put into circulation.

169 Packets Missing.

The $303,720 originally reported as missing included 134 packets each containing 100 $20 bills and 35 packets each holding 100 $10 notes. The remaining $720 represented the one unrecovered $20 bill and a number of $10s spent by Hall.

Bills used for the ransom payment were obtained from each of the 12 Federal Reserve Districts in the United States. Each packet of 100 contained only bills issued by one reserve district.

While the notes were not in exact numerical sequence, they were packaged in such a way that the bill with the lowest serial number was on top of the packet and the highest on the bottom.

Ransom bills have turned up in St. Louis, East St. Louis, Chicago, Quincy, Ill.; Minot, N.D.; Salt Lake City, Utah, and Jacksonville, Fla. Most of the notes, all $20s, have been found at the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago.

The East St. Louis bill was discovered by a man who cashed a payroll check at the Southern Illinois National Bank. At home, he checked money he received at the bank with a list of serial numbers of the ransom bills.

When he found the $20 with a number corresponding to a missing bill, he returned to the bank and gave the bill to a teller. The note was then turned over to the FBI in St. Louis.

FIREMEN WANT THEIR BOOTS

WALES, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP)—Fire Chief Raymond Allen requested today that all persons who borrowed raincoats and rubber boots from the fire department during the recent flood "return them at once."

He said that at two fires since the flood firemen had no coats and boots to wear.

Veiled Prophet Floats to Offer Occupation Hints for Youngsters

Seventeen floats in this year's Veiled Prophet parade, designed with the most youthful of parade-watchers in mind, will suggest for youngsters future occupations that range from cowboy to President, and include Davy Crockett, who apparently can't be left out of anything nowadays.

The floats are intended to provide children with a variety of answers to the question perpetually posed by adults: "What do you want to be when you grow up?"

Members of the Mystic Order of His Mysterious Majesty will ride on the floats, wearing masks and costumes, when the parade proceeds over a seven-mile route in St. Louis on Oct. 5, the night after the Prophet opens the social season by crowning a new Queen of Love and Beauty at the ball at Kiel Auditorium.

The first three floats in the parade will be occupied by the Veiled Prophet and members of his court.

Titles of the remaining floats and their order are: (4) Storekeeper; (5) Teacher; (6) Fireman and Policeman; (7) Farmer; (8) Nurse and Doctor; (9) Cowboy; (10) Artist and Sculptor; (11) Musician, Actress, Ballet Dancer, Magician, Clown; (12) Lawyer, Judge; (13) Mother; (14) Scientist, Chemist, Physicist, Botanist; (15) Soldier, Sailor, Marine, Aviator; (16) Architect, Engineer, Builder; (17) Banker; (18) Athlete, Ball Player, Golfer, Diver; (19) Clergyman; (20) President of the United States.

The final float will carry the figures of Washington, Lincoln and President Eisenhower.

TUESDAY FINAL DAY FOR COUNTY TOWNS TO LOWER THEIR TAX RATE

Clerk Says Only One of 14 on Council Group's 'Too High' List Has Reduced Municipal Levy.

Residents of 13 municipalities in St. Louis county will have to pay higher taxes than appear to be necessary, on the basis of figures furnished the County Council's "watchdog" committee, unless the rates are reduced by Tuesday, County Clerk Leo E. Sievers said yesterday.

Two weeks ago the committee received a report showing that 14 municipalities had set their tax rates to yield more than they apparently were entitled to after assessments were increased recently by 60 per cent.

Vinita Terrace Responds.

In the meantime only one—Vinita Terrace—has made a further cut in its rate, this time from 40 to 35 cents for each $100 of assessed value.

Officials of Valley Park and St. Ann have written to Sievers in defense of the rates set, maintaining that they are not too high. He has not heard from the 11 others. They are Berkeley, Cool Valley, Crystal Lake Park, Frontenac, Glendale, Kinloch, Meadow Brook Downs, Overland, Sycamore Hills, Town and Country and Wilbur Park.

The last Legislature passed a law requiring that when a taxing agency increases assessments 10 per cent or more there must be a rate reduction to keep the amount of revenue at about the existing levels.

St. Ann's Mayor Explains.

Mayor John P. Brown of St. Ann, which reduced its rate from 60 to 45 cents, said that would produce about the same revenue as before, since assessments of personal property were not increased and they would be subject to the lower rate, with a consequent loss of revenue there.

Sievers has received notice that two municipalities intend to bring their rates down — Huntleigh Village from 50 to 34 cents, and Manchester from 20 to 15.

The clerk said he could not accept rate changes after Tuesday because it would require refiguring some appliction of rates already under way.

DELAYED SIGNAL IN ONE EAR SAID TO IMPROVE HEARING

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 10 (AP) — Researchers at Ohio State University's speech and hearing clinic report that a person hears better if one ear hears a sound about one six-hundredth of a second before the other. This principle, called "monaural delay" results in listeners doing about 22 per cent better in receiving messages transmitted under noisy conditions.

Airplane pilots will be the chief beneficiaries of the discovery.

Experimental equipment at Ohio State splits a radio signal in a headset. One earpiece gets the signal a fraction of a second later than the other. It is posible, researchers report, to develop a mechanical unit in the cord of a pilot's headset to delay the signal to one ear.

Dr. Henry M. Moser, clinic director, and Dr. John J. Dreher, chief project investigator, report a delay in the signal to one ear makes it sound "louder, fuller and farther away." The result: repeat messages are reduced.

BRAZILIANS GULP AT PRICE OF CUP OF COFFEE IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—A farm delegation from Brazil, where there's an awful lot of coffee, expressed restrained horror today at the price of a cup of it in the United States.

"Five cents a cup. Ten cents a cup," they muttered, shaking their heads sadly. They said that's high by Brazilian standards.

Still, they added, "It's the cheapest thing you have here."

They took delight in the fact that coffee is the favorite drink of United States citizens, even though the coffee they found here was "weak, very weak."

The five-man delegation, representing Brazilian farm organizations, is nearing the end of a six-week tour of the United States under State Department auspices.

BURGLARY ON TV SCHEDULE

LONDON, Sept. 10 (UP)—Chief Constable John Simpson of Surrey county police said today that Britain's burglars consult the television program before planning a night's housebreaking.

Most of the break-ins, he said, take place when a particularly interesting program is showing on TV and the family is gathered around the set.

RED CHINA PROMISES TO RELEASE ALL 41 U.S. CIVILIANS IT HOLDS

ADENAUER, SOVIET LEADERS CLASH ON WAR ATROCITIES

Sharp Words Follow West German Chancellor's Demand That Reich Prisoners Be Returned.

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

MOSCOW, Sept. 10 (AP)—West German Chancellor Adenauer and Soviet leaders clashed in a stormy session today over blame for war guilt and atrocities after Adenauer insisted on return of German war prisoners as a first step toward normal Soviet-German relations.

Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Comunist party chief, termed "offensive" one statement by Adenauer. After acknowledging that Nazi troops had committed atrocities in Soviet Russia, Adenauer said Soviet troops had perpetrated "certain acts" on German soil.

Khrushchev said he categorily denied that and felt compelled to make his statement because an "offensive" remark had been made about Soviet troops.

If 9626 Germans who the Russians say were convicted as war criminals had not been able to return home "who is to blame?" Khrushchev asked. "We didn't cross the border," he said. "It was not we who started the war."

(Adolf Hitler breached the 1939 peace pact between the Soviet Union and Germany by ordering his troops to invade from Poland in 1941).

The Soviet party boss also restated the Soviet argument that West Germany's entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Western European Union were obstacles to German reunification "in the nearest future."

Details of the turbulent session were revealed at a press conference held afterward by Soviet Press Chief Leonid Ilyichev.

German observers at the press conference attached significance to Khrushchev's use of the word "nearest." Previously the Soviet leaders had never injected a time element but had insisted Germany's entry into the Western alliance was an automatic bar to reunification.

The Russians have insisted reunification was a problem for the German people to settle. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov repeated that position in a brief statement to the meeting, echoing a similar allu-

10 TO BE FREED 'WITHIN A FEW DAYS,' GENEVA STATEMENT SAYS

Machinery Set Up So 19 Others Can 'Expeditiously Exercise Right' to Go Home—Eisenhower's View.

GENEVA, Sept. 10 (AP) — Red China promised today to release all of the 41 American civilians detained by that country—10 of them "within a few days."

A communique said machinery has been set up so that 19 others can "expeditiously exercise their right" to go home.

Last Tuesday, the Chinese Reds announced that 12 other Americans who have no charges against them were free to leave. So far none of the 12 has appeared outside China.

There was no hint here as to how soon "expeditiously" might mean, but the State Department in Washington interpreted it to mean "promptly."

14 Meetings Held.

United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan, who have been negotiating since Aug. 1 on getting their nationals repatriated, issued a joint announcement today after their fourteenth meeting.

It said the two countries had agree "to announce the measures which their respective governments have adopted concerning the return of civilians to their respective countries." The announcement said Britain will be asked to assist with the repatriation of Americans from China, while India will be asked to aid in repatriating Chinese from America.

In Denver, President Eisenhower said "all of us can thank God" that more Americans will be released by the Red Chinese. Referring to the Geneva announcement near the end of his talk to Republican state chairmen visiting the President's vacation spot, Mr. Eisenhower expressed hope that even more Americans will be freed soon.

Washington's Expectations.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the United States expects all 41 of the American civilians known to be detained in Red China will be released promptly. Henry Suydam, the department's press officer, told reporters the Communists now have made a "public commitment" and "we have no reason to doubt" it will be carried out.

Chinese here refused to say how soon the last group of Americans will be freed. Despite the statement in the joint announcement that "appropriate measures" would be adopted by Peiping so that all Americans detained could "expeditiously exercise their right to return" home, the Chinese and American delegations apparently were deliberately vague on when this will be implemented. This seemed to leave up to the Chinese what is "appropriate" and what is "expeditious."

'No Definite Information.'

Ambassador Johnson said he had "no definite information" on the release of Americans other than the 10. Neither Johnson nor any member of the American or Chinese delegation would say whether any period was stipulated for the further releases. It appeared the Chinese now could commute heavy prison sentences they have imposed on some of the Americans without losing face.

Imminent release of the 10 Americans was announced in a special joint communique. Wang told Johnson the Americans will be sent to Hong Kong within a few days. A United States delegation member further identified them as seven Americans who have been imprisoned in Red China and three others, all Roman Catholic missionaries, who have been under house arrest.

Those to Be Freed.

They are:

Lawrence R. Buol, of Stockton, Calif. He was operations officer for the Civil Air Transport line which retired United States Maj. Gen. Clair L. Chennault owns and was captured in January 1950, at the Mengtze airstrip 140 miles south of Kunming. A former Marine transport pilot in World War II, Buol was accused by a Chinese spokesman in May 1954, of "assisting Chiang Kai-shek's brigands to wage civil war against the Chinese people."

Dilmus T. Kanady, a cotton man from New Orleans and Houston, Tex. Head of the Shanghai office of E. T. Robertson & Sons, Boston cotton controllers, he was imprisoned in October 1950, on espionage.

WRONG ANSWER WINS NEW AUTO ON RADIO QUIZ

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10 (AP)—A San Diego man today won a new automobile with a wrong answer on a radio quiz program.

"What city is Signal Hill in?" the quizmaster asked.

"Long Beach," J. Reed Thompson answered by telephone.

"Correct!" cried the quizmaster. But soon the KNX switchboard was swamped with calls. They were all to the effect that for several months Signal Hill has been an incorporated California city in its own right.

Thompson, a civilian employe at the Navy's Coronado Amphibious Base, nevertheless will come to Hollywood next week to pick up his car. But his eyesight was impaired during service in World War II, so he can't get a driver's license and a friend will drive him home, a KNX spokesman said.

SEVERAL SCHOOLS BAR BLUE JEANS FOR GIRL PUPILS

LOGAN, W.Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—Several high schools in the Logan coal field of southwestern West Virginia have forbidden girls to wear blue-jeans to classes.

A Logan high school spokesman said that after graduation the girls will be expected to wear dresses. The bar on jeans will help them "become accustomed to proper attire," he said.

Aracoma, Sharples and Mann high schools and Logan junior high share the sentiment. Buffalo high will allow jeans "when it's extremely cold."

Chapmanville high is the only dissenter in Logan county. An official explained that it will permit the wearing of jeans because many of the girls have to walk several miles to reach the school.

932 CRIMINAL CASES PENDING IN COURTS HERE

When St. Louis criminal courts begin the September term tomorrow there will be 932 cases pending—46 more than at this time last year and 174 more than in September, 1953.

Ninety-eight defendants are scheduled for trial tomorrow on 119 charges. The number in jail is 424, about the same as last year.

The circuit attorney's office has issued 1321 felony charges so far this year, only 176 less than were issued in all of 1954.

At the general term meeting of circuit judges in June they ordered an unused courtroom on the first floor of the Municipal Courts Building cleared and made ready for use, but this has not been done and there is no place for an additional judge in the criminal division.

SAARLANDERS DUE TO OPPOSE EUROPE STATUS

Adverse Ballot Would Mean Vote Against France and Premier Hoffmann.

By PAUL GHALI

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

SAARBRUCKEN, Sept. 10—There is a strong possibility that Saarlanders will repeat their 1935 gesture and vote once more in favor of their German fatherland Oct. 23.

On that date 630,000 voters in Europe's smallest but richest mine areas, will decide whether they want a European status or not for their 900 square miles of territory.

This statute, supervised by the newly-established Western European Union, would make Saarlanders the first real citizens of this continent, and their country the nucleus of a future united Europe.

But to these magnificent prospects the Saar's 870,000 emotional and pro-German inhabitants are expected quietly to turn their backs.

They will say "no" at a far smaller majority than the 92 per cent they gave Hitler's Germany in 1935, but to all appearances today they will say it just the same.

Adverse for French.

How has the situation developed in such an adverse way for the French and for the supporters of European unity?

It is the old story of ignoring your closest neighbor's feelings.

In the Saar the French have once again overlooked the strength of sentiment for fatherland.

They had hoped that the fabulous prosperity that would inevitably befall the Saar, if it became the center of Europe's new international organizations, would prove a sufficient incentive to make Saarlanders vote yes.

But most people with whom I have talked here say that the European statute, magnificent on paper, would primarily mean their detachment from Germany.

And this is exactly what the majority of Saarlanders do not want.

Meanwhile, the fact that France and the pro-French government of Premier Hoffmann favor the European statute has gradually narrowed down the October plebiscite to the single issue of for or against France.

It is a false and confusing issue. For the French-German agreement of Oct. 27, 1954, which called the referendum,

A NEW RECORD—260 PAGES

Today's Sunday Post-Dispatch contains 260 pages and approximately 370,000 lines of paid advertising, a record for a St. Louis newspaper.

There are 160 pages of black and white, 48 pages of rotogravure, 12 pages of rotogravure color comics and 40 pages in Parade Magazine.

The previous high record for advertising linage in a single issue was established by the Post-Dispatch on Sunday, December 7, 1952.

FRENCH REACH ACCORD WITH EXILED SULTAN ON NEW MOROCCO

Two Top Aids Flying to Paris With Signed Document Aiming at Creating Independent Protectorate.

PARIS, Sept. 10 (AP) — France and the pro-nationalist former Sultan of Morocco, Mohammed Ben Youssef, today agreed on a general outline of the protectorate's future in a step which may end an era of bloodshed in North Africa.

Two special French envoys were flying to Paris from distant Madagascar with the exiled former sovereign's signature on the terms of this agreement. The two, Gen. Georges Catroux and Henri Yrissou of the Foreign Ministry, exchanged letters embodying this accord with Ben Youssef yesterday.

Independent Morocco.

The understanding aims at the creation of an independent Morocco, governed by a constitutional monarchy linked to France politically, economically, militarily and culturally. It will be submitted to the French cabinet for approval as quickly as possible.

Catroux and Yrissou are to report directly to Premier Faure and his "committee of five" tomorrow afternoon in Faure's offices in the Matignon mansion. Other members of the committee are Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, Justice Minister Robert Schuman, Defense Minister Gen. Pierre Koenig and Pierre July, minister for Tunisian and Moroccan affairs.

Faure bolstered his position further today by adding Overseas Minister Pierre-Henri Teitgen and Reconstruction Minister Roger Duchet to the five-man committee for tomorrow's crucial meeting. Teitgen is national chairman of the Popular Republican Movement (M.R.P.), a slightly left of center Catholic party, while Duchet is an important figure among the moderates and independent Republicans.

As part of the deal, Ben Youssef will send his former subjects a message caling for an end to the terrorism which has afflicted Morocco for months. His appeal is expected to be broadcast Monday, Sept. 12, the day which Faure set as his own deadline for a definite move toward a new status for Morocco.

Salient Points.

Other portions of the deal follow closely the lines of French policy as laid down last month at Aix-Les-Bains in conferences with Moroccan Nationalists, including the dominant Istiqlal party. The three salient points are:

1. The present Sultan, Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafa, who has been supported by French colonists, French investment firms, right-wing politicians and some Berber chieftains, will be removed and replaced by a three-man regency or "council of the throne."

2. A new Moroccan government, embracing the main political movements, will be named by this council.

3. The new government will begin negotiating a new political link between France and Morocco, and make a start on drafting a Moroccan constitution.

The agreement also provides that Ben Youssef will move from exile on Madagascar to a "dignified" residence in France, but refrain from political activity.

The government still faced another hurdle — the refusal, thus far, of the present Sultan to give up his post. Most observers in Morocco thought, however, that this could be "arranged" without too much difficulty.

Nationalists leaders gave the agreement a modified welcome, pending publication and study of the text.

Abderrahim Bouhabib, one of the Istiqual leaders here, said his party's first impression was "pretty good."

Bouhabib hinted that if Ben Youssef is satisfied then the Istiqlal would be, too.

Bouhabib and Hadj Omar Abdeljalil, another member of the Istiqlal executive board, will leave by plane tomorrow morning for Madagascar to confer with Ben Youssef. A two-man delegation representing the Democratic Independence party, another national movement, arrived on a similar mission today.

Statement Discounted.

Neither the French nor the Nationalists appeared to attach much importance to the Cairo statement by Emir Abd El Krim, 73-year-old Moroccan exile, attacking the regency council compromise and demanding the complete evacuation of French troops from the protectorate. The bearded old warrior, who led his tribesmen against the armies of France and Spain in the Riff wars of the early 1920s, has been in exile in Egypt since 1947.

Krim charged the Istiqlal leadership with selling out to the French and asserted any agreement would put their country completely in the hands of Frenchmen.

There was one sour note in the Moroccan situation as reported from Madagascar. This was that the exiled Sultan and his family will be brought back to France on a ship sailing around the Cape of Good Hope instead of via the Suez Canal.

This implied France does not completely trust him to go through with the bargain once he got in Egyptian waters, where he might be free to land and set himself up in exile under Arab tutelage.

This is what Krim did when the French were moving him to France from an Indian ocean island where he had been kept for many years.

The Catroux-Ben Youssef agreement, as reported here, aims at an "independent" Morocco linked to France under a "treaty of interdependence" similar to the recent French-Tunisian accords. These leave defense and foreign relations in French hands and give France a privileged position in economic and cultural fields. Catroux told pewspapermen that Ben Youssef recognized that France should have a special position in Morocco.

Jet Fighter Crashes in Canal

Two British pilots narrowly escaped injury when their Vampire jet aircraft overshot runway at Hong Kong airport and crashed into the canal bordering the field. Both men, one the commanding officer of the Royal Air Force in Hong Kong, walked away from the crash unhurt.

9 RUSSIAN FARM LEADERS IN NEW YORK FROM CANADA

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (UP) —Nine members of the Soviet agricultural delegation touring the United States and Canada arrived by plane from Ottawa tonight. They were met by some members of the Russian delegation to the United Nations at LaGuardia field.

The group checked a small mountain of luggage through customs. They have been buying up household goods and clothing, probably for family and friends back home.

Vladimir Matskevitch, delegation spokesman and leader, had arrived in New York earlier and was not at the airport tonight. The delegation was driven to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in three Soviet cars. They are scheduled to start the flight home Monday night.

BOMB EXPLODES ON PORCH, SIX JOPLIN CHILDREN UNHURT

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 10 (AP)— A bomb exploded on the back porch of a residence here early today but six children sleeping a few feet away were uninjured. The blast tore a hole two feet square in the rear wall at the home of G. L. Gray.

Police Chief Roy Isgrigg said he believed the bomb was intended for the home, next door, of William Tinney a non-striking employe at the Missouri Farmers Association's fertilizer plant here.

Tinney told police he had received threats that his home or his car would be bombed if he continued to cross the picket 601 of the International Chemical workers has been on strike for a month.

1940 FORECAST OF FAR EAST EVENTS IS RELEASED BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP) —Confidential diplomatic reports for 1940 released by the State Department today, forewarned of the ultimate Communist victory in China and Japan's World War II drive into Southeast Asia.

Nelson T. Johnson, then ambassador to Chungking in a series of dispatches to the late Secretary of State Cordell Hull outlined how the Chinese Communists were taking advantage of the war against Japan to "consolidate their position to the greatest possible extent."

He predicted that failure of the United States and Britain to give "timely aid" to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would result eventually in Communist victory. He also reported to Hull and President Roosevelt his conviction that the Chinese Communists and Nationalists "must eventually come to grips in a military struggle for military and political supremacy."

PATIENCE PAYS—YOUNGSTER SHAKES EISENHOWER'S HAND

DENVER, Sept. 10 (UP) — Patience paid off today for 11-year-old Layton Humphrey Jr. of Dallas, Tex. He got to shake hands with President Eisenhower.

The boy stood in the street for two hours outside the Brown Palace Hotel, in the hope of seeing the President emerge after a breakfast meeting with Republican leaders. When Mr. Eisenhower entered the car, young Humphrey walked over and asked if he could shake hands.

The President held the car for a moment and greeted the youngster.

Afterward his mother asked the boy what the President said. "I don't know," he replied. "I was too excited."

SAYS F.D.R. DIDN'T RECALL SIGNING YALTA TREATIES

SANTA FE, N.M., Sept. 10 (AP)—Patrick Hurley, former Ambassador to China, said today President Roosevelt did not remember signing any agreements at Yalta when Hurley talked with him later.

The peppery former Ambassador defended the late President from what he called the condemnation Roosevelt has received "because of the secret agreements at Yalta."

Hurley said "the hand of death was already on the President when he went to Yalta.

"And when I hurried back from China upon learning of the Yalta agreements," he declared, "I found the President didn't even know he had signed any agreements."

Speaking to a banquet of the 20-30 Clubs International, in convention here, Hurley said it was diplomats "on our side" who "surrendered in secret at Yalta all the principles the United States had fought for through World War II."

POLISH PREMIER IN EXILE REPORTED BACK IN WARSAW

LONDON, Sept. 10 (UP)— The Communist Warsaw radio said today that Hugon Hanke, "prime minister' 'of an anti-Communist Polish government-in-exile, had returned to Poland.

A spokesman for the exile organization said that the last heard here of Hanke was that he was to board a Paris-bound plane from Rome last Monday.

"We have no idea why he might have decided to go home," the spokesman said. "Perhaps he was worried about his wife and children there."

3 HOUSES BLOWN TO BITS IN SIMULATED ATOM ATTACK

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 10 (UP)—Three frame houses were blown to splinters and several automobiles shattered in a simulated nuclear weapon attack today, climaxing the national civil defense college's week-long program.

Governors of five states, civil defense officials, and top Air Force officers witnessed the spectacle as the mushroom-shaped explosion pushed skyward toward several circling jet planes. Ketchup-smeared "victims," concealed in nearby trenches at municipal stadium, were whisked from the flaming ruins by rescue workers, and city firemen rushed to battle the blaze.

Radiation monitor teams followed the rescue workers in search of areas contaminated with "radioactivity" from the blast, while bulldozers cleared away wreckage. Radio-equipped trucks stood by in contact with emergency stations.

U.S. AID TO ITALIAN TOWN 24 HOURS AFTER CLOUDBURST

ROME, Sept. 10 (AP)—Less than 24 hours after a cloudburst struck the Italian town of San Sebastiano Monday, tons of American food and clothing were distributed to the victims.

A report by the relief services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference released today said enough spaghetti, oil, butter, milk and cocoa for 15 days was distributed.

Four persons were killed in the disaster, which destroyed 35 homes and badly damaged 120 others. The N.C.W.C. report said possibly hundreds escaped death because nearly everybody in town dashed out to protect newly-husked corn when the first drops of rain fell.

LANDY APPEARS AT NAVY INQUIRY INTO REJECTION

Another Session Today on Petition by Ex-Red's Son Who Was Denied Commission.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)— Eugene Landy, denied a navy commission because his mother had been a communist, went before a special navy board today to ask for reconsideration of his case.

The board, headed by a rear admiral, met behind closed doors at Brooklyn navy yard. It convened at 5 p.m. and adjourned at 6:30 p.m. Another session was set for tomorrow.

The board had nothing to say afterwards other than that this was a preliminary hearing.

Confident of Acceptance.

"I'm sure that justice will triumph and I will get a commission," Landy told reporters after the brief preliminary hearing. He said the three-man board was "friendly and cooperative."

The first session was concerned only with verifying various documents. Landy did not testify, although he plans to make a statement in his own behalf later.

The board is considering Landy's application for a reserve commission from scratch. The proceeding is not an appeal of the earlier turn-down.

Landy, at sea aboard an oil tanker, had hoped to reach port in time for the 10 a.m. time set for the hearing.

But low tide, a mud bank and a heavy cargo of fuel forced his ship to anchor only 10 feet from its dock, at Marcus Hook, Pa., and await the rising tide.

Expressed Confidence.

Landy got ashore at 1 p.m. and hurriedly boarded a train for Newark, arriving shortly before 4 p.m. In a brief interview in his lawyer's office there before leaving by auto for Brooklyn, Landy repeated previous statements that he is "reasonably confident" the board will find in his favor, and that he knows of nothing in his record which would reflect on his qualifications as a naval officer.

Landy was refused a reserve commission last month when he graduated with top honors from the United States Merchant Marine Academy because of his mother's former membership in the oCmmunist party. No question of Landy's loyalty was raised.

Landy signed on as a crew member of a tanker amid public protests on his behalf.

Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas, promising "justice," appointed a special board to review the case. The three-man board will report to Thomas who will make the final decision.

Landy's mother, Mrs. Deborah Landy of Bradley Beach, N.J., said she had quit the Communist party in 1947 after 10 years at the insistence of her son.

Board Has Her Testimony.

She testified before a closed session of the House un-American Activities committee Aug. 29. A transcript of her testimony was supplied to the Navy board.

Committee Chairman Francis Walter (Dem.), Pennsylvania, commented that Mrs. Landy's subscription to the Communist Daily Worker, until the day before the hearing, indicated to him "she still has a very lively interest in Communist activities."

Asked if she were still a Red sympathizer, she replied, "I wouldn't say that. I certainly am not a reactionary. I consider myself a progressive."

Senator Clifford P. Case (Rep.), New Jersey, demanded in Washington today that the Navy overhaul its security screening system and give all rejected applicants for reserve commissions the same review given Landy.

He said the Landy case "raises an important question of procedure and fairness."

Americans Face Full Korea Tax Until U.S. Signs Trade Treaty

Ambassador Says Pact Is Ready and Probably Will Include Special Reciprocal Assessment Privileges.

SEOUL (Sunday) Sept. 11 (AP)—Dr. You Chan Yang, South Korean ambassador to the United States, served notice last night that until a United States Korean commercial treaty is signed, his nation will tax American business men in Korea just as it taxes Koreans.

In the latest development in the bitter argument with American business men here over the way they are being taxed, Yang said that a commercial treaty is ready for signing with the United States and that it probably will include special reciprocal tax privileges.

Until that time, he said, South Korea is going to tax foreign business men on exactly the same principles that it is taxing South Koreans.

To a charge by the American Chamber of Commerce here that its members are being taxed retroactively, Yang snapped that the Seoul government is not trying to collect retroactive taxes.

"But we are determined to collect delinquent taxes," he said.

Three Choices for Americans.

Yang told a press conference that American business men have three choices: (1) pay taxes as assessed; (2) negotiate compromise settlements individually, or (3) refuse to pay past assessments, but get out and not come back.

These alternatives were rejected immediately by the American Chamber of Commerce.

A spokesman said the Chamber's members are united and will not negotiate individually until Korean tax laws are cleared up and it is known how they apply to the type of American business man who predominates here—a sales agent who merely arranges transactions completed elsewhere.

He said present assessments are ruinous, arbitrary, and retroactively and illegally assessed.

He said business men who have tried to leave have been refused exit permits.

'Not Satellites of U.S.'

Yang accussed the Chamber, which Friday asked the United States Congress to withhold aid funds for Korea until the tax dispute is settled, of "high handed pressure methods to which the Government will refuse to accede.

"We are very appreciative of the generous aid which the American people and Government have given so full-heartedly to our war-devastated nation and people—but we are not satellites of the United States and we will not accept blackmail from American businessmen who are in Korea."

Yang accused some businessmen of refusing to register, reveal their books, or make tax returns.

A Chamber spokesman said all corporations required to register have done so, filed tax returns and either had opened their books or had offered to do so.

DU PAGE COUNTY, ILL., CITED AS MOST REPUBLICAN IN U.S.

NAPERVILLE, Ill., Sept. 10 (UP)—Du Page county was cited today as the most Republican suburban county in the nation.

The Young Republican organization of the county said a survey by the G.O.P. National Committee showed that Du Page county went 76 per cent Republican in the last national election.

U.S. IS REPORTED READY TO RAISE CEASE-FIRE ISSUE

Expects to Hear, but Reject, Peiping's Bid for China's Seat in U.N.

By WALTER KERR
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10— The United States was reported ready today to raise with Communist China the question of a formal cease-fire in the Formosa strait.

It also was prepared to listen politely but coldly to any suggestions from Communist China that the Peiping regime occupy China's seat in the United Nations.

These and other points at issue between the two governments are now held open to a frank exchange of views.

The understanding with regard to the repatriation of nationals, announced at Geneva today, is considered here as the end of the first phase of negotiations between the two countries.

The United States will attempt to find out in the next phase whether Peiping will accept the concept of a cease-fire.

It holds that Nationalist China, in effect, has accepted this concept through its pledge not to use force against the Communist-controlled mainland except in an emergency or after approval of this country.

In describing today's Geneva understanding, the State Department was most careful to point out that no step had been taken that could possibly imply recognition of the Chinese Communist regime.

First of all, said Henry Suydam, State Department press officer, there is no agreement, strictly speaking.

Rather, it should be called an "agreed announcement" carried "in the form of parallel, unilateral statements."

"No hidden meanings are to be read into the announcement; there are no side understandings," Suydam said.

He also explained that the understanding covers only civilians and does not cover any prisoners of war who may still be held secretly by the Chinese Communists from the conflict in Korea. Hundreds of American soldiers are still listed as missing.

Suydam held open the possibility that demands with respect to them may still be made in the latter stages of Geneva negotiations.

ATTEND AN INFORMATION FORUM

Perhaps, like a lot of us, you may sometimes wonder—"Where am I going?". You may ask yourself, "Am I really contented with my life as it is?". Or you may think, "Is there a Life after Death, and what will it be like for me?"

The Catholic Church wants to help you answer those questions. It can help you. Every parish in the St. Louis Archdiocese is going to hold what we call "Information Forums". These will be at nights. They will last only an hour or so. They will start October 3. There will be one located near your home.

You are invited to come if you are interested—for whatever reason—in learning more about what the Catholic Church teaches.

If you attend, you will not be put under any obligation to come back again. No one will ask you for money. No one will try to high pressure you into doing anything.

You will simply hear an explanation of what Catholicism is. You will learn what being a Catholic means to Catholics.

How Do You Find Out About the Nearest Inquiry Forum?

You can call or write one of two places:

The Catholic Information Center 1129 Locust Street St. Louis 1, Mo. MAin 1-6555	The St. Louis Cathedral 4431 Lindell Blvd. St. Louis 8, Mo. Jefferson 3-2824

Or you can ask any Catholic. He or she can tell you. They will go with you to the Forums if you want. Starting today, many of our Catholic men will be visiting their neighbors—to invite them to attend these Forums.

Remember—you are the happier for it and the better if you have a firm religious belief and the peace of mind that goes with it. Your community and your nation are the better too.

DOUBTS SCHOOL SURVEY CONTAINS ANY WORKABLE SUGGESTIONS

Morrell Says Committee Will Review Kearney Data With Open Mind, and May Find Some Benefit.

Serious doubts that the controversial Kearney report contains any workable recommendations that would result in substantial savings to the Board of Education were voiced yesterday by James F. Morrell, chairman of a board committee which will review the report.

However, he told the Post-Dispatch he "will approach the committee duties with an open mind" and that some improvements in school system operations may result from the review.

The report, covering only the board's non-teaching services, said $1,487,000 a year could be saved—mostly in the school building department — without impairing services rendered.

V. Harry Rhodes, head of the building department, stoutly denied that any such savings could be achieved and bitterly attacked the A. T. Kearney & Co., Chicago firm of business consultants which made a $50,000 survey of non-instructional operations.

"$50,000 Piece of Paper"

Although Morrell once publicly described the report as a "$50,000 piece of paper," he said yesterday, "You cannot spend $50,000 without some good coming from it."

He said he still thought the major findings were based on the "pre-conceived ideas" of the so-called "blue ribbon" faction which was in control of the board when the report was made last year.

Morrell, re-elected last April with strong support from the politically-powerful building department, is a member of the "old guard" group that regained control of the board in the spring elections.

He was appointed chairman of the committee by Mrs. Irma H. Friede, board president, after the former chairman, Charles H. Christel, a "blue ribbon" board member, resigned. Christel quit to "give responsibility of leadership" in evaluating non-teaching operations "to the presently constituted majority of the board."

Stem-by-Stem Review.

Morrell said, when questioned about the meeting by the Post-Dispatch, that his committee decided at a private session last week to conduct an item-by-item review of the report.

This will be undertaken in future private meetings with the heads of the various board departments, and "it looks as though it might be a long affair," he said. However, interim reports will be made.

Asked why he did not intend to have his committee meetings open to the public, he said there had been ample open hearings and discussions on the report and that his group could "do a more efficient job" in private. Moreover, he explained, when the committee is ready to make recommendations the public will be given an opportunity to study and comment on them.

Morrell said he thought the non-teaching operations already are being conducted soundly, and, therefore, the possibility of achieving any substantial cost cuts is slim.

Other board members on the committee are H. Lee Bruns, elected last spring with building department support, and Louis H. Antoine, a hold-over "blue ribbon" member.

HOSPITAL STAFF PRESIDENT

Dr. Eugene T. Dmytryk has been elected president of the medical staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, Kirkwood, it was announced yesterday. Other officers are Dr. Frank J. Catanzaro, vice president, and Dr. Quentin M. Gaines, secretary-treasurer.

Case of Abandoned Boy Points Up Lack Of Facilities to Care for the Retarded

Five Persons Consider Taking Lad for Whom Father Couldn't Find Help.

The problem of providing care for 6-year-old Robert Russell, mentally retarded son of Benjamin S. Russell, Herculaneum (Mo.) odd-jobs man, will be referred to the Board of Children's Guardians, probably this week, police announced yesterday.

Lt. Adolph Jacobsmeyer, in charge of the police department's juvenile division, said it would be up to the board to determine whether Robert should be placed in a foster home or be sent to a state school for retarded children.

Jacobsmeyer reported that five persons already have called his office inquiring about the possibility of caring for or adopting the boy. Robert was found Wednesday night wandering in the 700 block of South Broadway. His father, who was arrested Friday, was charged in a warrant with non-support.

Points Up Deficiency.

"This case shows there is a deficiency in our community social services," Jacobsmeyer told the Post-Dispatch, in discusing statements made by Russell that he had been unable to find a public agency willing or able to care for the boy.

"From what Russell tells us he was able to receive state financial assistance from time to time, but couldn't get the proper treatment for his boy."

The warrant charging Russell with non-support was issued by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John Godfrey. The charge is a misdemeanor and will be presented in the Court of Criminal Correction.

Russell told a Post-Dispatch reporter at Police Headquarters that he brought his son to St. Louis and let him out on the street because he was not making enough money for special care for the boy and "didn't know where to turn or what to do."

The boy, who can speak only a few words, has been retarded since suffering a spinal injury in infancy, Russell said. He was found walking on Broadway by Patrolman Ernest Jablon and has been cared for at City Hospital since Wednesday.

County Had No Facilities.

"I had been to the Jefferson county courthouse at Hillsboro and the state welfare office at Crystal City," Russell said, "Sheriff (Leo) Church said the county had no facilities for the boy. A state official suggested having the boy examined and filling out a lot of papers, but didn't offer me much hope.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

ROBERT RUSSELL playing with toy panda at City Hospital.

"I drove with Robert and a friend to St. Louis looking for help. By the time we got here the offices were closed. I was getting more desperate all the time.

"We were driving along Broadway when I saw a policeman. That gave me an idea. I let Robert out of the car and watched until I saw the policeman come up to him and start talking to him. I knew then he would be in good hands. My friend and I drove away."

Loves His Son, Father Says.

The 40-year-old Russell, a slight man dressed in faded maroon shirt and frayed trousers, spoke in a tired, hopeless voice as he told his story. He said he loved his son and had tried every means at his command to care for the boy himself.

The boy was identified from a photograph in Thursday's Post-Dispatch. His father was located Friday and was taken into custody by St. Louis juvenile authorities.

Russell has been caring for Robert and three other children since he was divorced by his wife about six years ago, he said. He was given custody of Betty Louise, now 16; Eileen, now 13; Ruby Fern, who is 11, and Robert.

Russell lived in St. Louis then and had regular employment at a local plant.

Another Crisis Arises.

"From time to time, I paid other people to take care of Robert and when Betty Louise became old enough she cared for him. I left St. Louis and earned a living as a tiff miner at Riverside, in Jefferson county.

"About five months ago I had to give up mining. I moved to Herculaneum and managed to get a part-time job in the quarry. Then Betty Louise got married and moved away. The other two girls are staying with other families and I had no one for Robert."

Records at City Hospital show the boy was born there Nov. 10, 1948. He was cared for at the hospital twice since then, in August 1949 and October and November 1950.

School Overcrowded.

Laymen and social workers who have expressed interest in the Russell case expressed the opinion yesterday that society has failed to provide sufficient facilities for retarded children. Such facilities are available at the St. Louis State Training School, 10695 Bellefontaine road, St. Louis county, but the school is overcrowded.

The Rev. Walter Pettibone, pastor of Rock Presbyterian Church, Imperial, Mo., and an organizer of the Jefferson County Association for Retarded Children, said there were no private or public facilities to take care of the Russell boy in Jefferson county.

"Our organization, established only recently, will assist parents in caring for these children," he said. "But the only alternatives we have for taking care of the Russell boy are assignment to a foster home or to state custody."

CHIMPS MUST WIN SPOT IN ZOO SHOW OR IT'S 'NO SALE'

Four chimpanzees which will arrive Wednesday as part of a half carload of animals for the St. Louis Zoo may need return trip tickets. Their stay here may be short.

The chimps impressed Zoo Director George P. Vierheller in preliminary tryouts this week in New York, but will undergo three weeks of rigorous testing to determine whether they are good enough to make the chimp show before a final purchase decision is reached.

Traveling here with the chimps will be two new giraffes, which may have to stoop slightly to get on the train, two zebras, a gaboon viper from Africa and several exotic birds —including a pair of roul rouls, partridge-like birds from Southeast Asia with crowns of stiff straw-textured feathers.

In the other half of the express car will be a shipment for the Swope Park Zoo at Kansas City, where, it is understood, no tryouts are involved.

COUNTY SCHOOLS OPEN TOMORROW IN SOME AREAS

Public schools will open tomorrow in Brentwood, Clayton and Ladue. High school will start in the Hazelwood R-1 district.

Two other districts, Affton and District R-8, which started other classes last week, will open their kindergartens tomorrow. In Ferguson-Florissant R-2, kindergarten and senior high school will start tomorrow. Elementary and junior high school pupils reported Friday.

Kindergarten in District R-9, where other classes began last week, will open Wednesday. However, public schools in the county will not all be in operation until a week from tomorrow when elementary school starts in Hazelwood R-1. Opening was postponed because of a delay in completing additional classrooms.

MRS. JUST SEEKS DIVORCE

Suit for divorce was filed at Clayton yesterday by Mrs. Martha M. Just, 611 Forest court, Clayton, against Milton H. Just, vice president of the Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Co.

She charged general indignities, stating she and Just separated in March, 1954. They were married in 1934 and have no children. Just lives at the Congress Hotel.

337,050 ST. LOUISANS REGISTERED FOR OCT. 4 ELECTION

A total of 337,050 St. Louis voters were registered for the Oct. 4 special election as the Board of Election Commissioners closed its books yesterday, it was reported by Joseph P. Uxa, chief clerk.

The final figures included 459 persons who registered in the last three days, Uxa said. Thursday's total was 148, Friday's was 128 and yesterday's was 183 desipte the afternoon's heavy rain. The board's office was open until 5 p.m.

Registered voters who change their places of residence between now and Sept. 24 may transfer registration if they apply in person, on or before Sept. 24, at 208 South Twelfth boulevard.

Yesterday's announced total registration, subject to change after lists are canvassed, was 2765 higher than the 334,285 on the books for the May 26 election. The Oct. 4 referendum will be on a plan of state aid to public schools and a 2-cent cigarette tax to help finance the plan.

HEARINGS ON ASSESSMENTS START TOMORROW IN COUNTY

The State Tax Commission will start hearings in the courthouse at Clayton tomorrow on appeals by 617 St. Louis county property owners who have protested that their assessments are too high. The hearings probably will continue into next month.

In preparation for the series of hearings, the commission recently sent its own field men here to make appraisal of certain property on which the valuation was challenged.

Chairman James M. Robertson said that in some instances assessments may be raised still more rather than reduced, as a result of information brought out on appeal. Also, he said, some appeals may be dismissed because they did not go first to the county board of equalization.

BOND ISSUE UNIT VISITS SITES OF ROAD PROJECTS

Members of the roads subcommittee of the executive campaign committee for the proposed multi-million dollar public improvements bond issue in St. Louis county yesterday toured the south and central parts of the county to make a first-hand inspection of sites of proposed bridge and highway projects.

The group studied the southern portion of the proposed $17,100,000 Inner Belt highway intended to relieve traffic congestion in the central county area; the proposed routes of the Daniel Boone and Ozark Expressways, and other highway improvements recommended by the Citizens' Bond Issue Screening Committee.

M. Eugene Baughman, county planning director who conducted the tour, said subcommittee members were particularly interested in the need for two projects in Maplewood, only one of which was recommended by the screening committee. The one recommended is construction of a grade separation at Big Bend boulevard and the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks.

The second, not recommended although originally considered, would be widening of the two-lane bridge carrying Big Bend across Deer Creek a short distance south of the railroad crossing at the southern boundary of Maplewood.

MAN IS KILLED, DAUGHTER HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Driver of Car Injured—Apparently Skidded Into Path of Other Machine.

Leslie Canton of Mount Olive, Ill., was killed yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding collided with another car on Illinois Route 100 about five miles north of Alton.

He was assistant superintendent of highways for Macoupin county and was 43 years old.

Canton's daughter, Carol, 16, suffered serious head injuries. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Alton. The driver of the car in which they were riding, Aaron Schuette, also of Mount Olive, was seriously injured and was taken to the same hospital.

State police said Schuette's car was traveling east, down the hill. He apparently lost control on a curve and skidded into the path of another car driven by Lloyd L. Bowen of Godfrey, Ill., police said. Bowen was not seriously injured.

Three persons were killed yesterday and another seriously injured in a head-on collision between two automobiles on Illinois Route 13, three miles southeast of Marissa. The accident occurred on a curve in the road.

The dead were: Dale Millsop, 17 years old, Murphysboro, Ill., driver of one of the machines; John Weekley of Fayetteville, Ill., driver of the second machine, and Weekley's wife, Eva Imogene, who was with him.

Mrs. Opal Marie Spinney of Fayetteville, also a passenger in Weekley's machine, suffered internal injuries and was in serious condition at St. Clement's Hospital in Red Bud, Ill.

Nancy Jeanne Engel, 1-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Engel, 704 Wabash avenue, Belleville, was killed when the Engel's automobile overturned on a highway near Kingston, N.Y., Friday, while the family was on a vacation trip.

Mrs. Engel and her mother, Mrs. Martin Daubach, 1810 East A street, Belleville, both were seriously injured in the accident and were taken to Kingston Hospital. Engel and the Engels' two other children, Diana, 4 years old, and Kathleen, 2, suffered minor injuries.

The family left Belleville Sept. 1 for a trip through New England and were on way to New York City for a visit before returning home. Kingston is about 100 miles north of New York.

Mrs. Engel was driving the automobile at the time of the accident and police reported she lost control of the machine when another automobile attempted to pass her. The Engel machine left the highway.

Engel is secretary-treasurer of the Fred G. Engel Co., carpenter contractors in Belleville.

Colorado Beauty Miss America; St. Louis Girl Wins Scholarship

MISS SHARON F. KNICKMEYER, Miss Missouri of 1955.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 10 (AP) — Red-haired Sharon Kay Ritchie, 18-year-old Miss Colorado, won the Miss America contest tonight.

She is the second beauty with red hair to win the Miss America crown in the 30-year history of the pageant. The first was 1944 winner Venus Ramey of Washington, D.C.

Miss Ritchie has blue eyes, is five feet, six inches tall and weighs 116 pounds.

Second-place winner was Miss Oregon, Dorothy Johnson. Third was Miss Chicago, Florence Gallagher. In fourth place was Miss North Carolina, Clara Arnold, and in fifth was Miss Oklahoma, Ann Campbell.

Miss Ritchie, whose bust, waist and hip measurements are, respectively, 35, 24 and 35 inches, said she is interested in a career in dramatics.

Miss Missouri Wins Scholarship for Her Swimming Ability.

Miss Sharon F. Knickmeyer of St. Louis—Miss Missouri of 1955—won a $1000 scholarship last night at the Miss America contest at Atlantic City, N.J., although she was not among the 10 finalists for the title.

Miss Knickmeyer, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard O. Knickmeyer, 7111 Florian avenue, Northwoods, tied in the judging for the most talented contestant among non-finalists with Miss Utah, Suzanne Poulton of Salt Lake City, who also received a $1000 scholarship.

Miss Knickmeyer showed judges color movies of herself doing a water ballet to music. Miss Poulton delivered lines from Ophelia's mad scene in Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

Measurements of Miss Missouri, who is a junior at Fontbonne College, are 35, 23 and 34 inches at the bust, waist and hips, respectively. She is five feet five inches tall and weighs 116 pounrs.

The new Miss America will win $7500 in cash, a $5000 scholarship, an automobile, a television set and other prizes, including public appearance fees of about $40,000.

COUNTY RECORDER VOLUME 19 PCT. ABOVE YEAR AGO

The volume of business handled in the office of Gerald J. Donworth, St. Louis county recorder of deeds, increased 19 per cent in the first eight months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1954, it was announced yesterday.

Donworth said total receipts from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 were $271,014 compared to $226,593 for the first eight months last year. Receipts in August were $38,242, with 7433 instruments being filed, a record for one month.

The annual statement filed by the county recorder in 1945 shows that $103,000 in receipts were handled by the office that year. Last year total receipts were more than $400,000.

MARINE CORPS LEAGUE WILL CONVENE TUESDAY

More than 700 members of the Marine Corps League are expected to attend its thirty-second annual convention here from Tuesday through Saturday, with headquarters at Hotel Jefferson.

The main speaker will be Lt. Gen. R. M. Pate, assistant commandant of the corps, at a banquet and military ball Saturday night.

Acting Mayor Donald Gunn will welcome the veterans at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, and at 10:30 there will be a memorial service. Tuesday night the visitors will be guests of August A. Busch Jr. at Grant's farm, and Wednesday night many of them will see the St. Louis Cardinals play the Brooklyn Dodgers.

NEW GRAND JURY TO GO ON WITH 'PAY-OFF' PROBE

It Will Be Impaneled Tomorrow — Dowd Favors Year-Long Service.

The new circuit court grand jury, to be impaneled tomorrow, will be instructed to continue the police pay-off inquiry whenever the circuit attorney's office obtains new evidence.

Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin told the Post-Dispatch he will charge the jury to be prepared to hear any additional witnesses found by investigators for Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd. Continuation of the inquiry was urged by the old grand jury whose term ended Friday.

Dowd said he doubted that the current investigation would be completed during the term of the new grand jury. He has no plans to present witnesses this week.

Urges Juries Serve Year.

Dowd said the inquiry showed the necessity for having a grand jury impaneled for at least a year to handle investigations of major importance.

"The regular grand jury has a lot of duties such as visiting and inspecting public institutions that makes it difficult to take on major criminal investigations at the same time," the circuit attorney stated.

"Grand juries we now have serve a term of only a few months. When these grand jurors leave, it becomes necessary to start anew with the next grand jury on a continuing inquiry.

"Since I took office in January 1953, there have been at least four investigations requiring year-around grand juries. These were the pay-off, dog pound, aldermanic and bombing inquiries."

If the circuit attorney seeks indictments later, the testimony of witnesses who appeared before the June-term jury probably would have to be re-stated.

Dowd had a bill introduced in the last Legislature for a second St. Louis grand jury, which would be impaneled for a year, meeting only when it was needed. The bill was defeated.

Eight St. Louis policemen have testified in the investigation into reported pay-offs to some officers by brothel operators and filled out questionnaires on their financial status.

TEST BORINGS TO CLOSE EXPRESS HIGHWAY TUESDAY

The Express Highway will be closed Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. to permit the Missouri Highway Department to make test borings of subsurface rock structure, it was announced yesterday by Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz.

The borings, which will be drilled at the west end of the highway, are being made in connection with preparation of engineering details for the connection of the highway with the proposed Daniel Boone Expressway.

charges. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Delbert T. Kanady of Houston.

The Rev. Levi Lovegren, a Baptist missionary from Seattle, Wash., who was serving in Chungking when the Reds grabbed him in 1950.

Miss Dorothy Middleton, formerly of Cicero, Ill. She is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hines of Lakeland, Fla., and was a missionary caring for leper children in China when arrested by the Reds in February 1951.

Miss Sara Perkins, native of Tennille, Ga., and a Presbyterian missionary and nurse for 27 years. She was educated at Bessie Tift College in Forsyth, Ga., and at the College of Music in Washington, D.C., and went to China to teach piano but decided to become a missionary. The Chinese imprisoned her in 1951.

Walter A. Rickett, a Fulbright scholar from Seattle, Wash. His wife, Adele, who was placed under house arrest when the Communists accused the couple of spying and imprisoned Rickett in July 1951, was released last February. She showed signs of "brain-washing" when she returned to the United States, but her husband's parents said she probably had made pro-Red remarks to induce the Chinese to help her husband. Both were teaching English and working for advanced degrees at Peiping University when they were arrested.

The Rev. Harold W. Rigney, son of Mrs. Addie Rigney of Chicago. He was dean of the Roman Catholic Fu Jen University in Peiping when arrested by the Reds on spy and sabotage charges in July 1951. He is a member of the Society of the Divine Word.

The Rev. Frederick D. Gordon of Somerset, Ohio; the Rev. Joseph E. Hyde, Lowell, Mass.; and the Rev. James Joyce, Clinton, Mass. All these are Roman Catholic Dominican priests held in house arrest since late 1953 or early 1954.

3 Serving Life Terms.

Of those not yet specifically named for the trip to freedom, 14 are, or were, missionaries. Of the total number at least three are serving life sentences on espionage charges. They are John Thomas Downey, New Britain, Conn., a civilian employe of the Army, who was aboard a plane shot down over Manchuria in November 1952; the Rev. Thomas Phillips, a Roman Catholic (Jesuit) priest from San Francisco who was arrested in 1951 after having been in China since 1928; and Hugh Francis Redmond Jr., a native of Yonkers, N.Y., who was arrested in 1951 while working in Shanghai for the New York export firm of Henningsen Brothers.

Richard Henry Fecteau, of Lynn, Mass., who was on the same plane with Downey and who also was a civilian employe of the Army, is serving a 20-year sentence. There also is one Roman Catholic bishop, Ambrose Pinger of St. Bernard, Nebr., who had been in China more than 20 years before his arrest in 1951.

In addition to these, the Americans whom the Reds said would be released "expeditiously" are:

Dr. Homer V. Bradshaw, New York; the Rev. John William Clifford, San Francisco; the Rev. Justin Gravey, Union City, N. J.; the Rev. Fulgence Gross, Chicago; the Rev. John Alex Houle, San Francisco.

Paul Mackinsen, Baltimore; Robert McCann, Altadena, Calif.; the Rev. Charles Joseph McCarthy, San Francisco; the Rev. Joseph Patrick McCormack, Ossining, N. Y.; Harriet Mills, New York.

Armand Proulx, Lawrence, Mass.; the Rev. John Paul Wagner; the Rev. Marcellus White, Waltham, Mass.; Mrs. Homer V. Bradshaw.

All But One Believed in Jail.

All but Mrs. Bradshaw are believed to have been recently in jail. She formerly was in prison but was released. She remained in China because her husband was still in jail there.

In Washington, State Department Press Officer Suydam stressed the point that long before the present talks started in Geneva six weeks ago the United States had announced that any Chinese who wished to leave the United States was permitted by American policy to do so.

In the years after World War II about 4500 to 5000 students went to the United States from Nationalist China.

Possibly a thousand or more have left the United States. During the Korean war restraining orders were issued against 129 whose technical education could have made them useful to the Red Chinese. The restricting orders were lifted early this year.

Suydam said that at least 50 of the 129 have now gone, that 34 definitely went to Red China in the three months beginning May 26 and that three more will go on Sept. 17.

Since 1949—when the Red Chinese took over all China—the United States has furnished travel funds to 746 of the students to return to the Far East, Suydam said. Most of those are presumed to have gone to their old homes.

Provision for Investigations.

The joint announcement said: "If any American in the (Communist) People's Republic of China believes that contrary to the declared policy of the People's Republic of China he is encountering obstruction in departure, he may so inform the office of the charge d'affaires of the United Kingdom (Britain) in the People's Republic of China and request it to make representations on his behalf to the government of the People's Republic of China. If desired, the government of the United Kingdom may also investigate the facts in any such case."

Similar provisions was made for having Indian diplomats handle any complaints of the same nature regarding the Chinese who feel their departure from the United States is being obstructed.

The reason for these special three-way negotiations is the fact the United States and Red China do not recognize each other diplomatically.

In the 14 meetings with Wang, Johnson stuck doggedly to the first point of the agreed agenda—"release of civilians" by the two countries. He refused to go to the second point—"other practical matters at issue between the two sides"—until the prisoner question had been settled satisfactorily.

A United States delegation spokesman declined to say today whether the two ambassadors will move on the second item when they hold their next meeting Wednesday. The Chinese are known to be keen on taking up that point, which they might claim includes everything from United States policy toward Nationalist China on Formosa to Peiping's demand that Red China be seated in the United Nations.

An American spokesman said today that "as far as the United States is concerned, we do not consider item one concluded until every American who wants to is able to leave China." However, a Chinese spokesman said earlier today that item one had been concluded and that the talks now can move to the second item.

It is possible the United States might leave aside temporarily the issue of the Americans whose release has not been announced in order to hear what China wants to bring up under the second item on the agenda.

Father Pinger Once At St. Louis Church.

Father Pinger, O.F.M., bishop of Chowtsun, Shantung, China, was an assistant pastor of St. Anthony of Padua Church, 3140 Meramec street, about 1924-25, it was announced by the Very Rev. Pius Barth, provincial superior of the Franciscan Order of the Middle West.

Father Barth said Father Pinger later volunteered for missionary duty and was assigned to China.

Text of Joint Announcement On U.S. and Chinese Civilians

GENEVA, Sept. 10 (AP).

Following is the text of a joint announcement today by United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan:

AGREED ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE AMBASSADORS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA:

The ambassadors of the United States of America and the People's Republic of China have agreed to announce the measures which their respective governments have adopted concerning the return of civilians to their respective countries.

With respect to Chinese in the United States, Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson, on behalf of the United States, has informed Ambassador Wang Ping-nan that:

1. The United States recognizes that Chinese in the United States who desire to return to the People's Republic of China are entitled to do so, and declares that it has adopted and will further adopt appropriate measures so that they can expeditiously exercise their right to return.

2. The government of the Republic of India will be invited to assist in the return to the People's Republic of China of those Chinese who desire to do so as follows:

A. If any Chinese in the United States believes that contrary to the declared policy of the United, States he is encountering obstruction in departure, he may so inform the embassy of the Republic of India in the United States and request it to make representations on his behalf to the United States Government. If desired by the People's Republic of China, the government of the Republic of India may also investigate the facts in any such case.

B. If any Chinese in the United States who desires to return to the People's Republic of China has difficulty in paying his return expenses, the government of the Republic of India may render him financial assistance needed to permit his return.

3. The United States Government will give wide publicity to the foregoing arrangements and the embassy of the Republic of India in the United States may also do so.

With respect to Americans in the People's Republic of China, Ambassador Wang Ping-nan, on behalf of the People's Republic of China, has informed Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson:

1. The People's Republic of China recognizes that Americans in the People's Republic of China who desire to return to the United States are entitled to do so, and declares that it has adopted and will further adopt appropriate measures so that they can expeditiously exercise their right to return.

BOY ADMITS HE BURNED STORE, HOME FOR 'REVENGE'

ST. AUGUSTINE, Ill., Sept. 10 (UP)—Authorities said today a 10-year-old boy has confessed he burned down a home and a store for "revenge."

State deputy fire marshall Walter E. Parlier and state policeman Gerald E. Johnson said the boy told them he took money from the cash register in the Henry Baker market because he "just didn't like Baker." When Baker caught him he decided on revenge, got up at midnight Aug. 14, broke into the store, and lit a pile of newspapers, according to his confession.

Five days later, Charles Oyler asked him to go to a homecoming celebration at Avon, the boy said, but after he went home to clean up he returned to find Oyler gone. So the boy entered the Oyler home, piled newspapers on a couch and lit them.

CZECHS BLOW UP PLANT TO CURB REFUGEE FLIGHT

FURTH, Germany, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Czechs blew up a glass factory near the border today after issuing an advance warning to German residents across the frontier.

The action followed the razing of two Czech border villages, and apparently was designed to remove border hideouts used by refugees fleeing west, Bavarian police said.

MAGNOLIA, LYNCH DISTRICTS' LINES SHIFTED BY POLICE

The boundary between Magnolia Avenue and Lynch Street police districts was shifted from Compton avenue to California avenue today to relieve the work load of busy Lynch Street District.

Both districts start at Chippewa street and run north to Chouteau avenue. Changing the Compton avenue boundary to California was originally suggested by the Governmental Research Institute. Magnolia Avenue District officers began patroling the additional territory at 7 a.m. today.

Lack of Rainfall Blights Trees In City, Spoils Area Corn Crops

St. Charles County Agent Tells of Delay in Planting Alfalfa — Sycamores Especially Hard Hit.

Lack of rainfall in the St. Louis area in recent weeks has blighted trees in the city and had adverse effect on corn crops in neighboring farm areas.

Some fall planting also has been delayed because of lack of moisture, J. B. Carmichael, St. Charles county farm agent, said yesterday. Farmers have hesitated to put in alfalfa and small grain ordinarily planted about this time for future pasturage.

Because of "spotty" rainfall in the summer, Carmichael continued, corn crops vary with different farms. Some farmers have had crop failures; others have done well in contrast to last year when virtually the entire crop failed. The current over-all yield was classified by Carmichael as representing a good crop.

Trees in city parks and residential areas have been affected by the recent drouth and the cumulative effect of a three-year cycle of dry weather, Edward Schrader, city forester, pointed out.

Numerous dead branches, Schrader said, betray effects of insufficient moisture with trees unable to get sufficient food. Sycamores, he said, subjected to "sycamore canker" have been especially hard hit.

Until yesterday's moderate-to-heavy rainfall in the St. Louis area, the last appreciable precipitation was on Aug. 9, when a total of 1.74 inches was recorded. Widely varying amounts were recorded in different parts of the city, the average being about a half inch.

Before the showers, this year's rainfall was 22.23 inches, 5.4 inches below normal, but 4.09 inches better than last year's 18.14 as of the same date.

EASTER SEAL GROUP ISSUES A CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

An appeal for volunteers to work one day a week at the Easter Seal Society was made yesterday by John H. Kniest, executive director of the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children, 4370 Olive street.

Kniest said most urgent assignments include filing, clerical work, addressing and assembling. Under the society's Easter seal rehabilitation program artificial legs, arms, braces and other appliances are provided and a nursery school program for crippled children is offered.

Rehabilitation care is available to physically handicapped children of all races, creeds and types of crippling ailments in the St. Louis area, Kniest stated. Persons interested in serving one day a week as a volunteer worker have been asked to call OLive 2-7342 for additional information.

NEGRO'S MOTHER TO APPEAR IN MISSISSIPPI MURDER TRAIL

SUMNER, Miss., Sept. 10 (AP)—The mother of a Chicago Negro boy will testify at the trial of two white Mississippi men charged with kidnapping and murdering him.

Roy Bryant, 24 years old, and his half-brother, J. W. Milam, 35, will stand trial Sept. 19 on a charge of murdering 14-year-old Emmett Louis Till, who was visiting his uncle in Money, Miss.

William Henry Huff, attorney for the mother, Mrs. Mamie Bradley said today in Chicago she definitely would be on hand for the trial. Huff said the fact that Mrs. Bradley had been put under subpena as a state witness was assurance of satisfactory protection.

Earlier, Huff said he had asked the Federal Department of Justice to assign Federal Bureau of Investigation agents to protect her during the trial. Mrs. Bradley also had asked for two Chicago detectives as bodyguards.

UNSEALED LETTERS CAUSING DELAY AT POST OFFICE HERE

An increasing number of unsealed letters arriving at the Post Office is causing needless expense and waste of manpower, Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann said yesterday.

Postmaster Dickmann called on the mailing public to eliminate this problem. From 350 to 400 pieces of unsealed first class mail are received daily, he said. It is necessary for each piece of such mail to be sealed and initialed, causing a loss of time and man hours, he added.

To insure the efficient delivery of mail, the co-operation of the public is essential, Dickmann said.

FRANCIS L. KENNEY JR. CITED FOR CEREBRAL PALSY WORK

Francis L. Kenney Jr., 9 Danfield road, Ladue, an attorney, was one of four persons who last night received citations for work done in the Missouri unit of the United Cerebral Palsy Association.

Unit president Hurst John, Columbia, presented the citations at a board of directors meeting at the Jefferson Hotel. Others who received the citations were Adian D. Fullerton, Clarence; Dorrel Hanks, Springfield and Fred L. Timberlake, Kansas City.

The four were commended by John for "kindling new hope for cerebral palsy victims." The meeting was part of an annual convention of members of the state unit which will end today.

KICKOFF RALLY FOR JEWISH SCHOOL BOARD FUND DRIVE

The annual kickoff rally for the Board of Jewish Education's annual appeal for funds to meet the budget for its nine schools in the city and county will be held today at Kings-way Hotel. Fourteen synagogues will participate in the campaign to raise $28,500.

At the meeting, leaders of the synagogues and their committees will be briefed on procedure of the campaign. The drive will be conducted in synagogues during the Jewish holidays.

Ben Sobel, general chairman, said aside from securing necessary funds to maintain schools, the appeal serves as a call to Jewish parents to become aware of the importance of Jewish education and enroll all eligible children in a Hebrew school.

CITY JAIL CONDITIONS REPORTED IMPROVED

Warden Says Security Was Tightened After Visit by Grand Jury.

Security measures have been tightened and facilities at the City Jail have been improved since the circuit court grand jury made an inspection of the jail premises, Warden Peter Nicholas said yesterday. Operation of the jail was criticized sharply in a report issued Friday in circuit court.

Nicholas said the inspection was made by the jury a short time before he took over as warden July 3. Three jurors inspected the jail again a week or so after he became warden, he said, but at that time he had not had an opportunity to correct the conditions.

A Post-Dispatch reporter who inspected the jail yesterday found the old institution somewhat dingy in appearance, but there was no accumulation of filth on the floors or in the cells. There was evidence of overcrowding.

With regard to some of the matters criticized in Friday's grand jury report, there still is no method of keeping food warm for prisoners on the fifth floor, but the food no longer is served by sliding trays under the bars. The men are served in line, moving into a cell with a dining table as they receive their trays.

All prisoners now have sheets, Nicholas said, and pillow cases are being made by inmates. Mattresses are old and dirty, but are fumigated regularly. Inspection regulations have been tightened since Nicholas himself discovered that bottles of gin were being slipped into the commissary in candy boxes.

Some prisoners still sleep on the jail floor, Nicholas said, because there is nothing he can do about overcrowding. There are 384 beds and there were 424 prisoners Friday.

Of the prisoners being held, 17 are awaiting trial in circuit court for first degree murder, 10 for second degree murder, 96 for first degree robbery, 98 for burglary and larceny, 33 for grand larceny and 31 for federal offenses.

Donald L. Carpenter, grand jury foreman, acknowledged that the grand jury inspection had been made before Nicholas became warden. But he told a reporter, Nicholas had been a guard officer before becoming warden and had been a member of the jail staff for about five years.

'DIAL A PRAYER' SERVICE OFFERED IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10 (AP) —A telephone call to LIberty 1-1313 will bring a one-minute recorded prayer that begins: "This prayer must come from your heart as well as from the voice that speaks it."

The "dial a prayer" idea, as it is called, was started this week as a special community service by the East Cleveland Congregational Church. The non-denominational service is on a round-the-clock basis.

So eagerly have callers sought the new dial-a-prayer service that a problem has arisen for the East Cleveland fire department.

Instead of dialing the Congregational Church's LIberty 1-1313, many callers have dialed LIberty 1-1212, the fire department's number. Complaining that as a result its lines have been tied up, the fire department asked the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Hochwald to get a new prayer-service number. He said he is trying, and added:

"We urge people not to call unless they are sincerely interested. Then they must be sure to call the right number."

ISRAEL ASKS U.S. JEWS FOR $35,000,000 LOAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP) — Israel called on American Jews today for an immediate loan of $35,000,000 to help take care of 50,000 Jewish immigrants from strife-torn North Africa.

It also appealed to Jewish leaders to raise $75,000,000 in 1956 to help support the republic's economy and to help pay for defenses against Arab attacks.

The appeal was presented to the national mobilization conference for Israel bonds by Israel's finance minister, Levi Eshkol. More than 1000 Jewish leaders are meeting here to plan the Israeli bond campaign.

STEVENSON CALLS ADMINISTRATION 'OF, BY, FOR RICH'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Sept. 10 (AP) — Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee in 1952, last night called the Eisenhower Administration a "Government of the rich, by the rich and for the rich" and said the phrase would become one of the 1956 campaign slogans. He stopped here overnight en route to Jamaica.

The former Illinois Governor said in an interview with a Miami Herald reporter that the Democrats would wage a campaign with "a lot of issues some people haven't even thought of."

Among them, he said, will be President Eisenhower's "erratic conduct" of foreign policy and what he termed "moral duplicity" of the Republican Administration. He declined to elaborate on the latter point.

Stevenson was accompanied by his son, Adlai Jr., and daughter-in-law, and by Richard Reynolds, aluminum manufacturer. Stevenson is scheduled to deliver an address at Kingston, Jamaica, on Sept. 15, at the British colony's 300th anniversary.

EX-FBI MAN PROSECUTOR'S AID IN RACE KILLING TRIAL

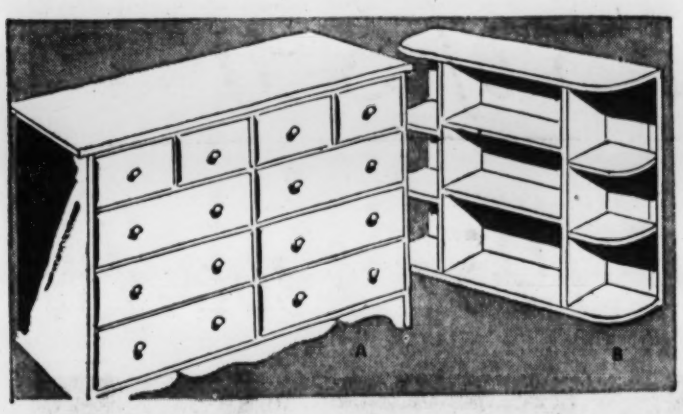

SUMNER, Miss., Sept. 10 (AP)—The state has bolstered the prosecution staff for the trial of two men charged with murdering a Chicago Negro boy who whistled at a white woman.

A former Federal Bureau Investigation agent, Robert B. Smith III of Ripley, Miss., was appointed a special assistant attorney general and assigned to the Emmett Till case last night. Trial on the murder indictments opens Sept. 19.

In Chicago, Till's mother said she will come here for the trial if she gets adequate protection. She asked for a bodyguard of two Chicago detectives.

NEGROES WIN ENTRY TO N. CAROLINA U.

Court Orders Three Considered for Admittance as Undergraduates.

GREENSBORO, N.C., Sept. 10 (AP)—Three Negro youths today won the right to have their applications for admission to the University of North Carolina received and processed. They would be the first Negro undergraduates at the university at Chapel Hill, N.C.

A special three-judge federal court ruled that the three graduates of a Durham high school should have their applications for admission as undergraduates processed without regard to race or color.

The state-supported university already has admitted some Negroes to graduate schools since 1951.

W. B. Rodman, state attorney general, told reporters today's decision "immediately raises a serious question of policy as to what the state will do about its higher educational institutions."

The ruling voided a decision of the board of trustees last May not to admit Negroes to undergraduate schools.

ASSAULT CHARGE ISSUED ON COMPLAINT OF WOMAN

A warrant charging assault with intent to rape was issued at Clayton yesterday against Burton H. Holmes, a former convict, on complaint of a University City woman, who reported he threw her to the ground in front of her home Friday night.

Holmes, arrested a short time later a block from the scene, denied the accusations of the woman, who identified him. A laborer, 31 years old, he lives in Kimmswick and was released from the Missouri penitentiary last April after serving a term for burglary.

The woman fought off the assailant, who fled with 37 cents and a package of cigarettes. Holmes was ordered held in jail at Clayton after the warrant was issued by Magistrate Leslie T. Davis.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR HERBERT M. PATTON

Funeral services for Herbert M. Patton, who retired three years ago as supervisor of outlying districts after 38 years with Union Electric Co., will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at First Congregational Church, Webster Groves. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Patton, 70 years old, died of a heart ailment yesterday at his home, 137 South Maple street, Webster Groves. He was secretary of the charter commission in Webster Groves and a member of the Webster Groves city council.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Margaret Patton; a son, Herbert M. Patton Jr. of Webster Groves; a daughter, Mrs. George S. Rosborough Jr. of Webster Groves; a brother and three grandchildren.

FIRED, TWO SONS PICKET PARENTS' CLEANING PLANT

CLARKSTON, Mich., Sept. 10 (UP)—Two sons are picketing the dry cleaning establishment of their parents here, maintaining they were fired for joining a union.

The sons, Orville and Robert Berg, 29 and 31 years old, respectively, started picketing the building with four other discharged workers after their parents, Jesse and Florence, turned thumbs down on their contract demands and fired them.

Mrs. Berg said the six were fired after she took one look at the contract demands which she termed "fantastic."

Funds Called Unusable Now for Maline Creek

000 was involved in these earlier agreements, which now are being analyzed by the sewer district staff with a view of determining how they should be handled.

In addition to the $178,000 deposited with the district for Maline watershed properties, the district also holds about $199,000 in similar deposits on lots in other areas.

Meanwhile, county authorities have held up final approval of plans for a proposed 97-house subdivision in the southwest part of the county because partly treated sewage from the development would be discharged in already polluted Gravois creek, the Post-Dispatch was told yesterday.

In addition, officials will not issue building permits for more than 1500 homes in the Gravois and Maline creek watersheds until they are satisfied that sewage disposal arrangements will not worsen pollution of the two streams.

The actions follow an order by Supervisor Matthews that no subdivision plats in unincorporated areas be approved if the developments would threaten public health. He also directed that building or occupancy permits be withheld under similar circumstances.

Matthews also renewed his efforts to persuade the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District to use sewer plans drawn in 1952 by the Fulton Engineering Co. for the Maline creek watershed, instead of ordering new plans.

In a letter to L. E. Ordelheide, district executive director, Matthews said:

"I would like to suggest to the board, in view of the pressing problems confronting the people of St. Louis county, that an independent group of competent engineers be appointed to review the Fulton engineering report so that the people can be informed as to whether there is a necessity for a completely new engineering study prior to any actual construction of sewer facilities in the Maline watershed."

The grand jury had taken the sewer district board of trustees severely to task for its handling of the Maline problem, including its decision to make a "fresh start" in the engineering of the project.

Pointing out that the Fulton plans now are in the hands of the trustees, the grand jury said its investigation indicated that these plans could be brought up to date at a cost of $2000 to $3000.

"There was no showing that these existing plans had been found inadequate, unreliable or impractical by an independent engineering expert," the jury said. "The present plans were made at a cost of $41,000 and good cause has not been shown as to why an additional sum of like amount should be expended."

Engineers Employed.

The district has employed Pitzman's Co. of Surveyors and Engineers to prepare preliminary plans and cost estimates within 120 days, at an initial cost of $7000 to be advanced from district funds. Total engineering fees, estimated at $42,500 including the $7000, ultimately would be paid by the Maline subdistrict after a successful bond election for a trunk sewer.

Ordelheide had explained earlier this week that the trustees decided to abandon the Fulton plans because recent subdivision development had made them obsolete and also because the district now is considering a storm water channel as well as a sanitary trunk sewer, which would necessitate lowering the level of the sanitary sewer.

Primary Treatment Plant.

County Planning Director M. Eugene Baughman's office said the 97-home subdivision for which approval has been held up is called Sherbrooke Meadows No. 2, and would be at Union and Ripa roads. Its plans call for a primary treatment sewage plant.

Another section of the subdivision, with similar sewage facilities planned, already has been approved and 56 homes are being constructed, the office said. It added that plat applications for about 10 more subdivisions in the Gravois and Maline watersheds, are being processed and their approval may similarly be held up when the processing is completed.

Baughman's office said it recently had approved plats for seven other subdivisions in the two creek watersheds, four of them in the Maline area and three in the Gravois area.

Building permits for a portion of the homes in the seven developments have been issued by the office of County Public Works Director Frank C. Roe. However, permits have not yet been granted for 1189 houses in the Maline subdivisions and about 350 in the Gravois subdivisions.

Roe said that, in view of Matthew's order, his office would investigate all applications for permits, including these. If the County Health Department advises him that sewage disposal arrangements for the houses would contribute to a health hazard, permits will not be issued, he said. Similarly, he added, occupancy permits will be denied in cases where building permits have been made.

Subdivisions in the Maline area which have had plats approved but which still lack building permits for many houses are Hathaway Manor, U.S. Highway 66 and Halls Ferry road; Northfield Gardens, U.S. Highway 67 north of St. Cyr road; Pepper Lane, Chambers road west of Halls Ferry, and Berry Meadows, west side of Carson road north of Natural Bridge road.

Those in the Gravois area are Archer Park, west of Baptist Church road between Gravois road and Lindbergh boulevard; Siemers Acres, Buckley road south of Lemay Ferry road, and South View, also on Buckley south of Lemay Ferry.

Baughman's office said in some cases in recent years subdividers have planned to use a basement on a lot as a septic tank for a development, expecting later on, when a sewer made the "tank" unnecessary, to clean out the basement, build a house on top of it, and sell it to a buyer.

A mass meeting of Ferguson residents to protest against handling of the Maline creek pollution problem by the metropolitan district will be held at noon today at Florissant road and Suburban avenue, Ferguson.

Charles E. Renaud, 437 Jean street, Ferguson, organizer of the meeting, said he expected about 1500 residents of a 25-block area, and also that city officials of Bellefontaine Neighbors and Berkeley would attend.

SOUTH KOREAN POLICEMEN KILL THREE RED GUERRILLAS

SEOUL, Sept. 10 (AP)—South Korean policemen yesterday shot and killed three Communist guerrillas, including a Red North Korean army lieutenant colonel, in a gun battle some 120 miles south of here, national police announced today.

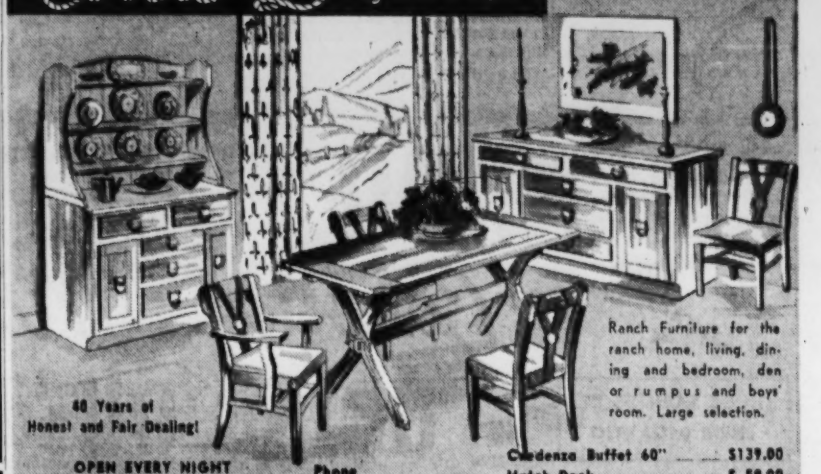

The police seized three carbines, one Russian-made pistol and 220,000 hwan ($400) in Republic of Korea banknotes.

FACES HEARING ON LICENSE, MAN KILLED IN HIS BAR

The operator of a tavern at 107 South Beaumont avenue in which a customer killed himself when playing "Russian roulette" has been directed by Excise Commissioner Arthur H. Bader to show cause on Sept. 27 why his license should not be revoked for violation of the city's liquor control ordinance.

In a citation issued yesterday, Bader charged Frank Montgomery, the licensee, with failing to keep an orderly place and with permitting gambling on the premises by allowing the "game" to take place. The "game" involves placing a revolver against the head, spinning the cylinder containing a single cartridge and pulling the trigger.

Robert P. Hill, a Negro laborer, was shot to death while playing the game with Frank Rozier, bartender in the place, police were told. Rozier earlier had placed the pistol against his head and pulled the trigger but the hammer fell on an empty chamber. When Hill tried it, the gun was discharged. Hill lived at 115 South Beaumont.

MEN, WOMEN VOLUNTEERS REQUESTED BY RED CROSS

Men and women volunteers are needed for day and evening activities in the fall program of the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross, Mrs. Arthur H. Wallace, chairman of volunteer service groups, announced yesterday. Particularly important is the need for volunteers in 16 local hospitals, she said.

Mrs. Wallace said volunteers also are needed at the Red Cross chapter, 3414 Lindell boulevard, as social welfare aids, in the blood center and in the production and supply service.

Volunteers who can offer daytime service at the Red Cross should call between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. tomorrow through Friday at the chapter. Men and women who are interested in service one or more nights a week can register until 7 p.m. tomorrow, Wednesday and Sept. 20. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Red Cross, FRanklin 1-4980.

PRESIDENT TELLS G.O.P. NOT TO PIN HOPE ON ONE MAN

somewhat tempered by his speech were Samuel L. Bodine, of New Jersey; Ray Bliss, of Ohio, and Claude O. Vardaman, of Alabama.

Bodine, who had initiated yesterday's "We like Ike better than ever" telegram to the President, said, "I'm glad to know he loves the Republican party better than ever, but from those remarks I am not now as confident about his going for a second term."

Vardaman, dean of the state chairman from point of service, agreed.

Recovery by Vardaman.

An hour after the session, however, Vardaman changed his view. He said he has been "confident all the time" that Mr. Eisenhower will run again.

Bliss, head of the powerful organization of midwestern chairmen and generally considered one of the nation's most effective Republican leaders, noted it may have been a mistake to push ahead next year's national convention six weeks to Aug. 20. If the President doesn't run it will be difficult to "build a candidate" in the short period between the convention and the November general election, he said.

In his speech, the President spoke mostly of his philosophy of good government, and how important it is for everyone in a democracy to participate.

He also outlined his reasons for believing that the Republican party was the best instrument of good government in America.

"In attempting to summarize the philosophy of the Republican party," he said: "I, myself, sometimes use such phrases as moderate progressive and dynamic conservative because we want to be known for what we are, the party of progress.

Peace and Prosperity.

"And if we are the party of progress," he continued, "we must be the party of peace and prosperity because this is implicit in the term progress.

"But I don't believe that you can sloganize the kind of honest philosophy that the Republican party is trying to promote in the United States," Mr. Eisenhower said. "If we can live by that philosophy, however, then I think we have proved our worthiness to be the instrument through which the people of the United States carry on the job of government."

The President, resorting at time to military terms, also referred to the state chairmen as "corps commanders" and recalled that he had about 48 such commanders in his European armies in the World War II campaigns.

He told them they should "take the fervor you have" back to their states, and pass it down to every level of the party organization. He also urged the leaders to broaden the base of their organization with young people, and to make every effort to "reach that 50 per cent of the people who do not vote and get them to believe in some of the things you believe in your heart."

"There is no such thing as a hopeless state, or a hopeless district," Mr. Eisenhower said. "They are Americans, aren't they? The harder the fight in your state, in your district—wherever it is—the harder you ought to fight.

"If you just increase the Republican vote by, let us say, 15 per cent over what is was before in these difficult localities you make the Republican party that much more respected there, and you increase the prospect of state victories."

$19,528,362 SUBSIDY SET FOR 2 PASSENGER LINES

ROME, Sept. 10 (AP) — The United States Federal Maritime Board, meeting in Rome, today fixed a subsidy of $19,528,362 for the construction of two passenger liners for the Moore-McCormack Lines of New York.

The three-man board established the difference between the cost of the ships in American shipyards and foreign costs. The subsidy is borned by the United States Government.

If acceptable to Moore-McCormack, the two 617-foot liners with a speed of 21 knots will be built by the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. of Mississippi at gross price of $48,888,362, plus $455,610 fo national defense features. The board estimated the cost of construction abroad would be $29,360,000.

EX-MISSOURI U. PROFESSOR MARRIES HIS SECRETARY

William C. Etheridge, who retired this month as professor of field crops at the University of Missouri, and Miss Helen Averitt, Etheridge's secretary for many years, were married yesterday at Hamilton Avenue Christian Church, 1260 Hamilton boulevard.

Following the wedding, performed by the Rev. Paul M. Bolman, past or the church, a reception for relatives and friends was held at the home of Dr. Robert E. Koch, 10036 Conway road, Ladue.

Etheridge, 70 years old and a widower, served as a member of the field crops department of the university for 39 years. He and his bride will live in Columbia.

VA RULING FOR STUDENTS

Money earned outside of class by veterans attending school under the Korean G.I. bill has no bearing on the amount of the allowance paid them by the Government and need not be reported to the Veterans' Administration, J. F. Kelley, manager of the St. Louis Veterans' Administration office, said yesterday.

Allowances paid veterans attending school full time are: $110 a month with no dependents; $135, one dependent; $160, more than one dependent. Kelley said the law places no ceiling on the amount of outside earnings for these veterans.

HANDLING OF CONVICT RIOT IS DENOUNCED

Ousted Nebraska Reformatory Head Assails Use of Force in Strike.

LINCOLN, Nebr., Sept. 10 (UP)—George Morris, ousted head of the men's reformatory, today criticized handling of a riot yesterday by his successor and board of control officials.

Morris said if Supt. M. L. Wimberly and board administrative assistant Harold Peterson had taken the advice of top staff members at the reformatory, the riot and fire would not have occurred.

The staff members, Morris said, recommended that no force be used to break a sit-down strike which mushroomed into a full scale riot and a fire which caused $35,000 damage, according to an official tabulation today. Earlier officials had estimated damage at about $100,000.

Wimberly, commenting on the Morris attack, said: "I guess everyone has a right to his own opinion."

Wimberly said "we exhausted every means and used force as a last resort" to stop the riot.

Peterson said: "I don't care to comment at this time."

Morris has advocated a "get tough" policy in handling rioters, but said this should be done before they get out of hand.

One inmate shot in the riot, Luis Morales, San Antonio, Tex., was reported in fair condition at a Lincoln hospital today.

Wimberly said all the 300 inmates of the institution were "quiet all night and this morning."

He and Peterson conducted reporters on a tour of the reformatory today "so you can see the hidden corners of this institution and form your own opinions."

The superintendent said 25 suspected leaders in the uprising yesterday, the second in two days, were locked in segregation. The process of "shaking down" the inmates involved in the disturbance has been completed, he said, and several work details were put back into operation.

By the Associated Press.

Morris asked the state board of control today for a hearing on his dismissal.

The board had said in firing him only that it was "in the best interests" of the institution.

Under state law, Morris apparently must be given a list of charges against him and if the hearing shows the charges to be without sufficient foundation he apparently would have grounds to seek reinstatement.

plainly describes the European statute as experimental. Another plebiscite once the German peace treaty is signed must confirm it.

But to make the man in the street here understand that what is good for France may also be good for them is almost impossible. This despite disaster wrought by their attachment to Nazi Germany.

To French detriment the problem is further complicated by two factors of great importance in the minds of Saarlanders.

Bishop's Intervention.

First is intervention of the German bishops of Trier and Spire, under whose religious jurisdiction the Saar comes, in favor of German reunification.

Sunday last, in all the churches of this devoutly Catholic territory, priests read a pastoral letter from the bishops which invited the faithful to pray for reunification.

While the letter dealt with East Germany on the eve of Chancellor Adenauer's visit to Moscow, for the Catholic Saarlanders the implication was clear:

If you vote for the European statute, you vote against reunification of the fatherland.

Another factor is the unpopularity of the 10-year government headed by Premier Hoffmann.

Hoffmann campaigns for a European statute. But his efforts in favor of such a rule, however earnest and energetic they are, appear to be more detrimental than useful.

Everything is not lost, however, for the French and the supporters of European unity. They have a card in their hands that might still turn up to be a trump.

In a speech at Bochum last Friday, Chancellor Adenauer invited Saarlanders to accept the European statute, which he said would insure peace between France and Germany.

Pro-German parties in the Saar, declared at week end rallies that they would show him what good German patriots Saarlanders are.

But in view of Adenauer's recent attitude, many of those who have not yet made up their minds wonder whether to reject the statute is not being more "royalist than the king."

U.S. SETTING UP 5000-MAN TASK FORCE IN NORTH ITALY

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED POWER EUROPE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Organization of "SETAF," a new 5000-man United States Army force to be stationed in northern Italy, was begun today.

The Southern European Task Force, made up largely of troops withdrawn from Austria, will be under command of Brig. Gen. John H. Michaelis, a veteran of World War II and the Korean war.

SETAF's mission will be to participate with other North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in defense of northern Italy. It will operate as part of Allied Land Forces, Southern Europe, commanded by Italian Lt. Gen. Clemente Primieri.

ALIEN ENTRIES IN LAST YEAR SET NEW MARK

858,536 Admitted to U.S.—237,590 Immigrants, 620,947 Tourists.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—Aliens entering the United States rose to a 31-year high of 858,536 in the year ending last June 30, it was disclosed today.

The total, up 11 per cent over the previous 12-month period, included 237,590 immigrants and 620,947 tourists, foreign government officials, business men, students and other temporary visitors.

That compares with 208,177 immigrants and 566,613 visitors in the previous 12-month period.

The figures, compiled by the United States Immigration Service, do not include ships' crewmen, temporary farm laborers or border crossers.

They were made public by Representative Francis E. Walter, chairman of the House Immigration subcommittee, in reply to critics of the controversial McCarran-Walter Immigration Act. Walter is co-author of that 1952 act which overhauled United States immigration laws.

"Contrary to persistent propaganda," he said, "I find that the existing immigration laws do not constitute 'a barrier' for foreigners who desire to enter this country."

Walter said the number of aliens admitted in the three years since the law was enacted "testify eloquently to the fact that our immigration laws . . . permit us to keep pace with the growing volume of international exchange of goods and persons."

Of the immigrants admitted in the 12 months ending last June 30, Walter said, 28,802 came in under the Refugee Relief Act of 1953 which authorized admissions of more than 200,000 non-quota immigrants over a three-year period.

POTOMAC RIVER POLLUTED, SWIMMING SHOW CANCELED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—The health department forced cancellation of swimming, diving and water ballet acts scheduled as part of the President's cup regatta Sept. 16.

The Potomac river is so polluted that the performers would have been exposed to "typhoid fever, dysentery, infectious hepatitis, diarrhea, eye, ear, nose and throat and skin infections" among other things, said Health Director Daniel L. Seckinger.

587 ENROLLED IN PRINCIPIA UPPER AND LOWER SCHOOLS

A total of 587 students have enrolled for the fall semester beginning tomorrow at The Principia Upper and Lower Schools, it was announced yesterday. School officials said the total was a record number.

Two new appointments to the faculty also were announced. Howard Marston, of Pleasantville, N.Y., was named an instructor of mathematics and football coach; and George Carrington, Seattle, Wash., will instruct the fifth grade.

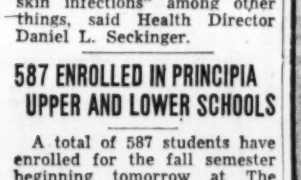

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Maas, of San Francisco, will be in charge of Howard House. Etzel House, a former faculty home, has been opened this fall to accomodate 15 new Upper School students. William Blankenship, of Sun Valley, Idaho, will be housemaster.

JOHN C. BAINE APPOINTED

John C. Baine, president of Public Service Co., has been appointed to the central business district council of the Urban Land Institute in Washington, D.C., Warren L. Morris of Cleveland, president of the institute, announced yesterday.

The institute is an independent research agency in planning and developing urban areas. Membership on the council is limited to 25 persons. The institute makes impartial studies of such urban problems as traffic, parking, shifting population, expressways and downtown areas in cities requesting them.

NAVY FINISHING $41,000,000 LABORATORY

Facility to Test Plane Engines Without Jeopardizing Men, Machines.

WEST TRENTON, N.J., Sept. 10 (AP)—The Navy put finishing touches today on a $41,000,000 laboratory in which it will test airplane engines for performance at extreme altitudes and supersonic speeds without jeopardizing either men or machines in actual flight.

It is the largest aeronautical test station ever built by the Navy. The Navy also describes it as perhaps the most complex engine test facility ever built. Included are:

1. Five huge steel and concrete test cells—two altitude chambers, two jet engine sea level test cells, and an altitude cell for turboprop engines—jet engines driving propellers. The Navy said the latter is the only turboprop test cell in existence.

2. Ram blower rigs which can force more than 1,000,000 cubic feet of air a minute past engines in the five test cells.

Heating Cooling System.

3. Heating and cooling systems which can simulate areodynamic heating—the so-called friction heat barrier which faces aircraft making sustained flights at supersonic speeds — and which can refrigerate air down to 67 degrees below zero.

4. Equipment to simulate any desired variation of atmospheric temperature, density and humidity encountered by aircraft, from sea level to an altitude of 65,000 feet, at speeds far beyond that of sound (760 miles an hour at sea level).

5. A remotely-operated electronic control system developed and installed by Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co., with a 35-foot graphic supervisory control panel, interlinked with 11 locally placed control panels, as its nerve center. More than 60 automatic instruments—level indicators, alarms, recorders, controllers and indicators—register the exacting engine tests. On one instrument the operator can dial any one of 300 different temperatures, ranging from 200 degrees below to more than 1200 degrees above zero.

6. A $3,000,000 sound attenuation or muffling system which reduces the scream of jet engines to little more than a whisper.

7. More than 26 miles of thermocouple (temperature sensitive) wire and 23 miles of copper tubing linking test cells and electronic control boards.

Power Consumption.

8. An electric power consumption rate greater, at peak, than that of all Trenton, which has a population of 128,000.

Capt. David E. Dressendorfer of Springfield, Ill., laboratory superintendent, said the new facilities would handle the bulk of the Navy's test and evaluation work on current and future jet and turboprop engines.

Capt. Joseph E. Dodson of Waco, Tex., commander of the naval air turbine test station of which the new laboratory is the heart, said the facility would save airplanes, engines, lives and millions of dollars which otherwise might be lost in experimental test flights.

Heretofore, Dodson explained, the Navy has tested new engines by flying with them—and because of the weight involved, the amount of instrumentation that could be carried was limited.

"Now we will be able to attach as many testing instruments to an engine as we want, we will be able to conduct a great many tests simultaneously, and we can spend more time installing and operating the instruments," Dodson said.

"The laboratory's cost may be compared with the $50,000,000 that the Government spends in developing one modern jet engine from its inception to the final product.

"In our test cells we can take an engine beyond the capability of an airplane, and can keep a jump ahead. The information from our tests will save the lives of pilots and countless millions of dollars."

Dodson added that the new laboratory would work closely and exchange information with America's two other somewhat similar test facilities—the Air Force engineering center at Tullahoma, Tenn., and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics Laboratory at Cleveland.

MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY DRIVE PLANS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Plans for this year's muscular dystrophy campaign here will be discussed at an organizational meeting of key workers at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, 826 North Union boulevard.

Mrs. Walter Boerner, president of the St. Louis chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America Inc., said the 1955 campaign will consist of a citizens' march Nov. 27.

Representatives from fire fighter's groups, letter carriers and other organizations will attend the Tuesday meeting. Last year a total of $140,000 was collected in a similar campaign march in Thanksgiving week.

Dutch Flood Aid Accepted

THE HAGUE, Sept. 10 (AP)—The United States Government has accepted a Dutch offer to provide enough trees and shrubs for the layout of 2½ acre public parks in each of the flood-damaged states of New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

DANISH MOVIE WINNER AT WORLD FILM FESTIVAL

VENICE, Sept. 10 (UP)—A Danish film won first prize at the sixteenth International Film Festival here tonight and an American film, "The Big Knife," placed third behind a Russian movie.

The Danish film, "Odet" (The Word) won the coveted winged golden lion of St. Mark. It waas directed by Carl Theodore Dryer.

Second prize went to a Russian color film, "The Cicala," from a short story by Anton Chekov, directed by S. Samsonov.

The United States film, "The Big Knife," directed by Robert Aldrich and starred Jack Palance and Ida Lupino. It is based on a play by Clifford Odets.

Fourth prize went to the Italian film "Le Amiche," (Girls Alone) directed by Michelangelo Antonioni, with Eleonora Rossi Drago in the lead role.

Critics werep ractically unanimous in their approval of the jury's choice of "Ordet." They said it had an exceptionally high artistic standard and good photography.

CONGRESSMAN ENDS VISIT

BELGRADE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Representative Devereux (Rep.), Maryland, left Yugoslavia today after a four-day visit. In his stay, he was received by President Josip (Tito) Broz and military leaders.

A member of the Armed Forces Committee of the House of Representatives, Devereux looked into the use of American military aid to Yugoslavia.

UNDERCARRIAGE BREAKS, PLANE WORKER KILLED

LONDON, Sept. 10 (UP) — One man was crushed to death and four others were injured at London airport today when the left undercarriage of a four-engine Constellation airliner on which they were working collapsed.

A mobile crane had to lift one wing of the plane to free the trapped men. Sandbags were piled against the damaged wing of the British Overseas Airways plane to soak up gasoline seeping from a punctured fuel tank.

EDUCATION CHIEF SEEKS BOOST IN RESEARCH FUND

U.S. Cash Is Needed to Test Ideas, Says S. M. Brownell — Projects in 3 Areas.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—The United States Office of Education will seek a "considerable" increase in its budget next year for research on educational problems, Commissioner Samuel M. Brownell said today.

Research is needed to test out ideas in the educational field and seek answers to many questions that cannot be solved just by discussion, he said in an interview.

He said both the Administration and Congress have given encouragement to such a program.

Brownell's staff has developed a research program that "we believe can make real contributions," he said. Most of the research would be done by colleges, universities and state education departments through federal grants, but some would be conducted by his own office.

Three General Areas.

The projects would be conducted in three general areas: conservation of human resources, school housing and staffing, and educational problems resulting from advances in the nation's economy and technology.

The research projects would cover such things as:

Training of mentally retarded children; detecting and developing a youngster's talents; how schools can spot potential juvenile delinquents and help prevent delinquency; school construction costs; making more efficient use of the teacher supply; educational uses of television; the potential impact of automation on vocational training; and the effects of a moving population on schooling.

Brownell said these projects have been given priority because "we think we can get something done in a reasonable time." He said many others would be considered as the program develops.

Regarding school construction, he said there is some indication that building codes adopted long ago result in more expensive schools. Research that could bring even a three to five per cent saving would be a good investment "if we are going to spend billions on school buildings" through the years, he said.

Savings in Effort.

Likewise, he said, research could bring important savings in money and human effort if it could find a way to help many more retarded youngsters to take care of themselves.

Brownell plans to appoint an assistant to co-ordinate the program. He said his office would be ready to start the projects as soon as it gets the money. He did not specify how much he will request. The program is for the fiscal year which starts next July 1.

The program will apply the same procedures that have brought advances in industry, agriculture, business and medicine, he said. Private funds have financed much of the research in these fields, but for educational research, he said, "we have to look to the Government chiefly for funds."

EISENHOWER TO PAY SUNDAY VISIT TO AIR FORCE ACADEMY

DENVER, Sept. 10 (AP)—President Eisenhower will take a look at the Air Force academy's temporary headquarters here Sunday and attend church services at the cadet chapel.

The temporary headquarters is at Lowry Air Force Base, where the President has his vacation office. The permanent headquarters will be located later at Colorado Springs, about 75 miles south of here.

In advance of the church services, the President will inspect the classrooms and watch the 300 cadets march in review. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower and her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud.

AUTHOR STUART ENGSTRAND WALKS INTO LAKE, DROWNS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10 (AP)—A body which lay unclaimed in the county morgue for 15 hours was identified yesterday as that of author Stuart Engstrand. Yesterday, too, Engstrand's latest novel was received by bookstores here. Its title: "More Deaths Than One."

Police said Engstrand, 51 years old, walked into the lake at MacArthur Park Thursday afternoon and drowned.

Engstrand wrote novels that reached best-seller lists, including "The Sling and the Arrow." Others of his novels were "The Invaders," "Beyond the Forest" and "Son of the Giant."

7 OF 14 CHILDREN IN ILLINOIS FAMILY STRICKEN WITH POLIO

DURAND, Ill., Sept. 10 (AP)—Seven of the 14 children of Keron Walsh, Durand farmer, have been stricken with polio.

The first polio victim in the family was Rosellen, 5 years old, whose illness was diagnosed Sept. 2. She is in St. Anthony's Hospital in nearby Rockford. The second was David, 17, who is in the Winnebago County Hospital at Rockford.

The other five children, being cared for at home, are Francis, 2; Susan, 11; Joan and Julia, twins, 13, and Ann, 15.

WANT THINGS? WATCH THE WANT ADS!

SOVIET LEADERS, ADENAUER CLASH ON WAR GUILT

sion by Soviet Premier Bulganin.

Heinrich von Brentano, West German foreign minister, spelled out the German stand on reunification in these words: "As to reunification, no system of security in Europe will have any solid basis as long as Germany is divided."

Khrushchev's Charge on NATO.

Khrushchev said NATO was directed against the Soviet Union and that this was proved by refusal to admit the Soviet Union into NATO.

Asserting the Soviet Union wanted only peace, Khrushchev said "we seek no other way except for friendship. We do not want friendships directed against any other state—Great Britain, the United States, France or any other state."

Bulganin opened the turbulent session, lasting more than three hours, by asserting Soviet Russia was not holding any prisoners of war, only 9626 German "war criminals" who he said "were convicted and sentenced for especially serious crimes against the Soviet people."

Von Brentano replied that without settlement of the prisoner of war question it was not possible to establish normal political relations between the two countries. He said the Soviet Union must "clarify the fate" of not only thousands, but hundreds of thousands and even millions of Germans who have been missing since the war's end.

Bulganin commented that the Soviet people could never understand why the Germans represent the Soviet-held prisoners as innocent martyrs, adding: "If it is necessary to discuss this question of prisoners, then both parts of Germany must take part in such discussions."

The meeting then went into more heated phases.

Khrushchev finally took the tension out of the atmosphere by saying "We must discuss these questions in a calm and friendly atmosphere. These negotiations should not be guided by a feeling of revenge or hatred, they are bad advisers that will never help us settle our problems."

Adenauer Grim.

Adenauer emerged grim-faced from the session. He was the chairman today. The chairmanship will pass back and fourth but there was no indication when another plenary session will be held.

The leaders got together again, however, after the luncheon recess. Adenauer, von Brentano, Khrushchev and Bulganin drove to the villa outside Moscow assigned to the German chancellor.

German sources said the four held a meeting there. What they discussed and the results were not disclosed.

Afterward, the four went to the theater.

Molotov and Von Brentano are to hold a private meeting Monday.

On the prisoner question Adenauer told the group "it is not possible to identify the Nazi clique of Adolf Hitler with the German people." He said the Soviet Union should realize that most German people think with disgust of the atrocities committed by Hitler's army.

In opening the meeting, Bulganin aimed an implied warning at West Germany by saying nobody should attempt to bargain from a position of strength.

"If someone speaks from such a position, there is no sense in negotiations here," Bulganin was quoted.

Adenauer replied that no one in West Germany would think of speaking from a position of strength with such a powerful country as the Soviet Union.

Bulganin, in a statement that echoed Soviet press criticism of Adenauer's remark that he spoke for the German people, emphasized that the Soviet Union thought reunification of Germany was an internal German matter.

"But it seems that if representatives of Western Germany do not think it possible or desirable to talk with Eastern Germany, there is no sense in discussing it whatsoever," Bulganin said.

Adenauer and his delegation planned strategy for the meetings aboard a German train in the railyards outside Leningrad station. They are holding their confidential talks aboard the train because of their skepticism concerning security at their Sovietskaya Hotel headquarters.

The Soviet press was carrying long articles on the conference, which the public lined up to read on wall boards. For many Russians it was the first intimation their country still held so many Germans prisoner.

The Soviet press had also begun to take up the chorus of discounting Adenauer's right to speak for all the German people. Moscow radio joined in with broadcasts at home and abroad quoting from Pravda and Izvestia articles. They criticized Adenauer's opening speech yesterday in which he said the meeting marked the first postwar contact between the Russians and the German people.

"The Soviet Union already has relations with (Communist) East Germany," one article said sharply. "Adenauer cannot speak for all the German people but only for the West Germans. He does not look realistically at the matter," another article said.

Tomorrow's program calls for the Chancellor to attend mass at the church of St. Louis de Francais, only Roman Catholic church in Moscow, and then to entertain Russian guests at the small country house set aside for him about 12 miles from the city. The guest list was not announced.

BOSTON (UP) — A federal judge was startled when, after four hours' deliberation, a jury asked him, "Who's the defendant?" The jury said it couldn't decide whether Guy Pezznola or the firm that employed him as treasurer was guilty in an income tax evasion case. The judge suggested the jury read the indictment. Soon afterward Pezznola was convicted.

Opera Workshop Auditions.

Auditions for St. Louis Grand Opera Guild scholarships to the Washington University opera workshop will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in Brown Hall auditorium on the university campus.

Appointments for auditions must be made through the university's department of music. Applicants for scholarships, which provide free tuition to the workshop, must be prepared to sing an operatic aria and a song in English.

Mystery Is Lifted From Death Of Prince, Sweetheart in 1889

VIENNA, Sept. 10 (AP)—The mystery surrounding the death of Austrian Crown Prince Rudolf and his 17-year-old sweetheart at Mayerling in 1889 appears to have been finally solved.

The Vienna newspaper, Wochenpresse, is publishing a series of documents which officials of the Austrian State Archives accept as a secret report on the "Mayerling Tragedy" by Baron Franz Krauss, then chief of Vienna police.

The papers were discovered in Berlin recently, after disappearing from the state archives during the Nazi occupation of Vienna.

The 200-page report, with many annexes, purports to reveal the full circumstances of the deaths.

The report, in Baron Krauss's own handwriting, confirms that the 30-year-old Crown Prince shot Baroness Maria Vetsera on her own request with a revolver and then killed himself with a sporting gun at the Mayerling hunting lodge.

Rudolf was married to Princess Stephanie of Belgium, but it had been an open secret in Vienna that the sentimental Prince was unhappy. He met Baroness Vetsera at a court ball. The romance ended after only a few months with the two shots that rocked the old Austro-Hungarian empire.

Emperor Francis Joseph I issued strict orders to keep secret all details of the death of his son and heir, but the state censorship was unable to suppress rumors. Many of the stories whispered at that time now appear verified by the report of the man in charge of the investigation.

Baron Krauss instructed his assistant, Baron Gurop, to get the body of Baroness Vetsera out of the hunting lodge in a way to create the impression she was alive and unhurt. According to Gorup's report, attached to the documents, the body was seated in an open carriage, completely dressed, and was driven to the neighboring monastery of Heiligenkreuz, there to be buried without any religious ceremony.

The Crown Prince's death was attributed officially to a hunting accident.

Also published is a letter written to Francis Joseph by Baroness Vetsera's mother, urging the Emperor to re-establish her child's honor by telling the truth about the tragedy. She never received an answer.

TRUMAN SAYS HE FIRED M'ARTHUR 2 YEARS TOO LATE

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (UP)—Former President Truman says the only "repentance" he has over firing Gen. Douglas MacArthur is "that I didn't do it two years sooner."

He made his comment in a question and answer period following a speech to the Executives Club of Chicago yesterday in which he accused the Administration of "crippling national defense" in order to cut taxes in time for the 1956 election.

Truman, asked why United Nations forces in Korea did not drive through to the Yalu river "as MacArthur said they could" instead of halting at the thirty-eighth parallel, replied:

"MacArthur never was ordered to stop at the thirty-eighth parallel. There were 1,500,000 Chinese Communists and he couldn't get there."

Truman fired MacArthur April 11, 1951, charging the general was "unable to give wholehearted support" to the policies of the U.N. and the Truman Administration in conducting the Korean conflict.

Truman said he knew President Eisenhower was popular "and I think it's fine for a President to be popular."

But, he added, "it won't hurt Eisenhower's popularity to put him out."

INDUSTRIES HIT BY FLOODS STAYING IN NEW ENGLAND

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

BOSTON, Sept. 10—Industry is sticking with New England come hurricane or high water. There isn't a single major industry hit by the costly floods of Aug. 19 in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts that talks of moving elsewhere.

They're all busy getting back into production. And they're getting there a lot faster than anyone anticipated.

The New England Council, economic research and development organization of the region, spot checked manufacturers, state officials, development agencies and Chambers of Commerce in the three states.

Everywhere the answer is the same. The financial hardship is great. The cost of rebuilding is great. In many cases raw materials and inventories of finished goods were carried away by the raging rivers. But everyone is tackling the task of rehabilitation and many already are back in business at the same old stand.

KARSTEN SEEKS FUND FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Asks for $600,000 to Finance Planning of St. Louis Project.

United States Representative Frank M. Karsten has asked for a federal appropriation of at least $600,000 to finance the work of planning a flood control program for St. Louis, he announced yesterday.

The request was made in a letter to Rowland R. Hughes, director of the Budget Bureau.

A plan to protect St. Louis against flood stages up to 52 feet by a system of earthen embankments and concrete walls has been outlined by the Army Corps of Engineers on the basis of a survey financed by the Federal Government. The project would cost $130,987,000, and a bond issue of $7,547,000 to defray the city's share was approved by the voters last May.

To complete planning of the flood wall will cost $2,200,000 and take about two years, the Army Engineers have estimated, explaining that they would be able to use between $200,000 and $600,000 of this total during the fiscal year which begins next July 1, and would seek the remainder of the planning funds as additional money is needed.

Karsten urged that an allocation of at least $600,000 for the St. Louis project be included in next year's budget. He plans to introduce an appropriation bill at the next session of Congress.

A flood control bill authorizing an initial federal contribution of $123,020,000 was passed in the last session and was signed by President Eisenhower on Aug. 9. This put the Government on record as approving the project but the go-ahead signal awaits appropriation of funds through further legislation.

Meanwhile, the city is going ahead with other bond issue projects. Work has begun on two street improvements and one viaduct project.

City workmen are relocating fireplugs on Forest Park and West Florissant avenues preliminary to widening the thoroughfares, and Western Waterproofing Co. is repairing concrete foundations of the South Kingshighway viaduct.

Contracts are to be let later this month for the street widenings, construction of a garbage grinding plant and a fire station, resurfacing of a section of Arsenal street and improvement of Riverview boulevard.

Appointed ot AEC Post.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—Dr. Charles L. Dunham was named today as director of biology and medicine for the Atomic Energy Commission. Dunham, former University of Chicago professor, will succeed Dr. John C. Bugher who will return to the Rockefeller Foundation where he has been named medical education and public health director.

SENATOR DOUGLAS SAYS FARM DROP WILL BEAT G.O.P.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (INS)—Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, predicted yesterday that the Administration will be dealt a "severe" blow at the polls if farm income continues to drop.

He advanced four suggestions for checking the decline.

1. To aid the "little farmer," try a variation of the so-called Brannan plan under which a direct subsidy would be paid to all farmers on the first $7000 of production. No farmer would receive more than $2000. The subsidy would represent the difference between the price farmers would receive and a given percentage of parity.

2. Give surplus foods to hungry people both at home and abroad.

3. Swap farm surpluses for Bolivia and manganese in southeast Asia.

4. Adopt a more liberal trade policy to simulate freer exchange of goods.

Douglas emphasized that his suggestions constituted a "trial balloon" and explained that he wasn't committed on the subsidy plan because he didn't know how much it would cost. basic metals, such as tin in

FINDS FATHER SHOT, BODY STUFFED INTO AUTO TRUNK

ADDISON, N.Y., Sept. 10 (UP)—Basil Church, 24 years old, went to nearby Goodhue lake yesterday when he heard that his father's missing automobile had been parked there for four days.

The automobile had a flat tire and when Church went to get a spare tire he found his father's body stuffed in the trunk. Basil's father, Casson Church, 54 had been shot in the head. The elder Church had been missing eight days.

Calls Co-ops Short of Power As U.S. Sells It to Firms

Democratic Head of House Unit Charges Law Is Violated—Republican Assails Allegation.

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, Sept. 10 (AP)—Idaho rural electric co-operatives and municipalities "are being refused power they will need" while federal power generated in the area is being "sold to a power company at dump rates," the chairman of a House subcommittee said yesterday.

Representative Earl Chudoff (Dem.), Pennsylvania, made the charge at the conclusion of a hearing here by the subcommittee on public works and resources of the House Government Operations Committee.

But a Republican member of the group, Representative Charles Jonas of North Carolina, said he was in complete disagreement with Chudoff. Jonas accused Chudoff of prejudging the situation prior to the hearing.

Haggling Continues.

Thus continued the haggling between Democratic and Republican members of the group which has been evident since it started a cross-country series of hearings. When they arrived for the Idaho Falls meeting the Republicans contended the Democrats were holding the hearings for political purposes while the Democrats contended they were called because of complaints against the Eisenhower Administration's power policies.

The committee's next sessions will be in San Francisco Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Chudoff said rural co-operatives and municipalities under existing law are the ones to receive first priority on federally generated electric power.

"In addition to these preference laws being violated, the Federal Government is not getting the revenue it should obtain from that power sale," Chudoff said.

Witnesses from rural electric co-operatives and municipalities of the Minidoka power system in southern Idaho testified during the day. The last of four witnesses was P. E. Shane, power supply adviser for the city of Rupert and the Rural Electric Co. of Rupert.

Charges Policy Reversal.

Shane said there has been a recent reverse in Bureau of Reclamation policy as a result of a directive from Washington. He said the Minidoka power system had been in close co-operation with the Bureau of Reclamation for nearly 50 years, but since the Washington directive the concept now, instead of co-operation, "is one of wanting to shun the electric co-operative people."

He added the Rupert customers "have no quarrel with the local bureau people here or with private power companies."

Other statements presented at the hearing charged that federal power was being sold to the Idaho Power Co. at dump rates.

Chudoff said: "This subcommittee has been hearing complaints from preference customers across the nation. These complaints form a pattern of disregard of the rights of these preference customers to have first call on available federal power.

"Evidence brought out here is that some 16 municipal and rural electric co-operatives are served by the Bureau of Reclamation on a single system. Now the Bureau of Reclamation tells the 16 that they should each and individually go to the private power company in the area for their additional needs.

"It appears federal power is available and could be wheeled over the private power company lines to these customers if the Bureau of Reclamation would adhere to the law. The pattern across the nation seems to be the same. This subcommittee is greatly interested and will continue to hear complaints in San Francisco."

Calls for Inquiry Into Sale of Power by AEC.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—Representative Irvin W. Davidson (Dem.), New York, called yesterday for a congressional investigation of what he described as apparent "improper conduct" by the Atomic Energy Commission in selling power from its plant at West Milton, N.Y.

He charged that the AEC gave the Niagara-Mohawk Co. the "inside track" in bidding for power despite a legal requirement that public bodies and farmer-owned co-operatives be given preference.

"It certainly looks as though there were some improper conduct and contact within the AEC," Davidson said in a statement. "There appears to be a violation of the intent of Congress, if not of the law itself."

Davidson said that Niagara-Mohawk "made an offer to buy the power at least three months before the AEC notified other power groups, including those entitled to a preference under the law that the electric energy from the AEC reactor would be for sale."

FOUR POLICE OFFICIALS ON TELEVISION PROGRAM

Four officials of the city and county police departments will discuss law enforcemet in the metropolitan area on the opening program of the League of Women Voters' television series, "Let's Face It—You Are the Government," at 1:30 p. m. today on television station KWK-TV.

Speakers on the program, "Policemen Are People," will include Col. I. A. Long, president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners; Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell; F. P. Aschemeyer, secretary and acting chairman of the County Board of Police Commissioners, and County Superintendent of Police Albert E. DuBois.

Moderators will be Mrs. Ernest Bashford, chairman of the county-city committee of the Leagues of Women Voters, and Mrs. L. F. Pinkus, member of the board of the St. Louis league.

Domestic Interlude.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—It was a tense moment in a civil suit in Justice Bill Richburg's court. "Let's quit a minute," the judge said suddenly, banging his gavel. "My wife's on the phone and she's liable to hold me in contempt if I don't talk to her."

COUNTRY DAY WILL OPEN TOMORROW; 386 ENROLLED

St. Louis Country Day School opens its thirty-ninth year tomorrow with 386 boys and five new faculty members, headmaster Ashby T. Harper announced yesterday.

The new instructors and the courses they will teach are: J. Thompson Freeman, English; Albert L. Grieve, Spanish; John C. Hoy, social studies and English; Robert W. Remick and Russell H. Stickney, mathematics, and William H. Richardson, who will be librarian.

The private school is Country Day lane, Berkeley.

Army Aims at Using Atomic Shells in Conventional Cannon

'Miniaturization' Program Would Permit Firing Nuclear Explosives in Standard 8-Inch Guns.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP) —The Army is aiming at using its time-tested, conventional eight-inch gun as an eventual replacement for the heavy and cumbersome 280-millimeter atomic cannon.

Atomic shells, until recently, could be fired from nothing smaller than the approximate 11-inch diameter used for the specially built atomic cannon.

But the "miniaturization" efforts of Army ordnance and Atomic Energy Commission designers now is understood to be directed at scaling down nuclear shells to fit one of the Army's standard artillery pieces, the eight-inch, long-range gun.

The atomic cannon, with its 20-mile range, has advantages. But balanced against the range are two disadvantages: (1) mobility trouble, exemplified in Europe where several of the big, 85-ton gun-tractor combinations have overturned or become bogged down while moving along roads. (2) The ammunition, even the conventional high explosive charges which the gun can use as well as nuclear shells, are special calibers.

Weighs 35 Tons.

The eight-inch gun, together with its carriage, weighs only 35 tons. At maximum range, it can reach out nearly as far as the atomic cannon. Data show the range of the eight-inch gun as running from 22,000 to 35,000 yards, the latter close to the 20-mile reach of the specially built A-gun. Standard explosive ammunition for the eight-inch is readily available.

There has been talk of even smaller calibers for atomic shells. This speculation has included the idea of bringing atomic firepower down to the level of the infantryman in a forward trench, using a conventional mortar.

The range of the newest 4.2-inch mortar is about 6400 yards, enough so that an atomic shell could be used without endangering friendly forces. However, those familiar with the miniaturization program say that point in development is still in the future.

The standard caliber atomic shell program, first publicly hinted at about a year ago by an Army official, is part of the broad program to put the massive, destructive firepower of nuclear explosive into the general arsenal of Army weapons.

Several 280-millimeter atomic cannon outfits already are stationed in Europe. Others are being deployed in the Far East. In addition, the Army has announced that units using the "Honest John" long-range rocket, capable of atomic fire, are going overseas.

Some of the Army planning looks to the day when large forces of American troops no longer can be maintained in Europe as part of the western defense system there. This planning foresees the appearance of highly specialized, comparatively small task forces—armed with a whole family of nuclear weapons and capable of moving about swiftly. These atomic-punch outfits would back up the conventional, large armies of the European members of NATO.

Michaelis Assignment.

This speculation has turned attention to a recent announcement of the assignment of Brig. Gen. John H. Michaelis, with a reputation for being forward-looking, to command an American force in Italy. It will be made up of about half of the American force being withdrawn from Austria under terms of the Austrian treaty.

Strategically, its mission will be to deploy quickly to any Communist-menaced sector along the Mediterranean-Adriatic-Alps sector.

Michaelis, with a battle-studded combat record in World War II and Korea, is 43 years old and one of the only two officers of his West Point class to be made a general up to now. He was an aide to President Eisenhower when the latter was Army Chief of Staff. He has served with Gen. James Gavin, present Army Chief of Operations and a foremost exponent of an Army of compact, highly mobile units with heavy atomic firepower.

This background, together with the mission of his force in Italy, has prompted speculation that the unit, of about 5000 men, ultimately may be converted into a prototype, nuclear armed, general-purpose task force.

Tale of An Elephant.

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Sept. 10 (UP)—Medical scientists at Ceylon University reported today they took X-rays of an elephant's tail—to see if a pin causing an infection still was there.

EDWARD J. KELLY RESIGNS AS DETECTIVE SERGEANT

Detective Sgt. Edward J. Kelly, a veteran of 22 years in the police department and head of the check squad for the last two years, has submitted his resignation effective Oct. 4, it was announced yesterday.

Kelly will leave the department to accept a position with the American Express Co. as a special agent in charge of the investigation of frauds in the St. Louis area in connection with American Express money orders.

The sergeant, who lives at 3413 Eads avenue, joined the police force as a telephone operator in 1933. A graduate of the FBI Academy in Washington, he has served with the identification bureau and the homicide squad. At one time he headed the police laboratory.

RUNAWAY TRUCK DIVES OFF STEEP MOUNTAIN HIGHWAY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 10 (UP)—A runaway truck roared out of control part of the way down a steep three-mile grade near Uniontown today and crashed over a steep embankment, but the driver leaped to safety and suffered only minor injuries.

State police said the driver, Joseph F. Jones, 36 years old, of Rocky Comfort, Mo., tried to shift into low gear at the top of the dangerous grade, where six motorists already have been killed in accidents so far this year.

Jones told police the gear shift failed, and the truck began picking up speed. The driver rode it for several hundred feet, then leaped from the cab. The truck shot over an embankment and down the mountainside, an almost sheer drop of 100 feet, then crashed into a tree. A smaller truck being carried by the other vehicle shook loose and rolled several hundred feet farther. Both vehicles burst into flame. State police estimated the loss at $10,000.

4 MORE AGENCIES JOIN UNITED FUND

Two Other Applications Being Considered, Says Chest President.

Four additional organizations will be included in the United Fund campaign, it was announced yesterday by F. Wendell Huntington, president of the Community Chest, which accepted the groups for membership.

The organizations are: Caroline Mission, Fellowship Center, Lutheran Orphans Home and the Campfire Girls. The four agencies will be financed through the United Fund, instead of by independent drives.

Applications of two other agencies for Community Chest membership are under consideration, Huntington said. They are the Catholic Youth Council and the Child Center of Our Lady of Grace.

The new Community Chest members were described by Huntington as follows:

Caroline Mission is a community center at 1823 Hickory street providing family and personal services, social group work and education.

Fellowship Center is a neighborhood settlement house at 1121 North Ninth street with the purpose of helping the neighborhood meet its needs through social group work, case work, community organization and recreational and religious services.

Lutheran Orphans Home, at 12325 Manchester road, St. Louis county, has been operating as a child-care institution since 1868. It currently is the home of 67 children from five to 18 years of age.

The Greater St. Louis Council of Campfire Girls provides a character development program to St. Louis-area girls 7 years of ago and older. Domestic and outdoor skills are developed through troops activity.

400 TO RETURN TO WORK AT OLD BEN COAL MINE 22

VALIER, Ill., Sept. 10 (UP)—About 400 coal miners will go back to work Monday after a long layoff at Old Ben Coal Co.'s mine 22 here.

The mine closed last February. During the summer months only a coal washer operated two days a week at the mine, employing 20 men.

Old Ben 22 was opened in 1919 and at one time employed 2200 men. Installation of modern machinery cut the work force to the present level.

MORSE TAKING HIS 'BULL' TO OREGON, G.O.P. PLEASED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—The Senate Republican Policy Committee today twitted Senator Wayne Morse (Dem.), Oregon—the Senate's champion marathon talker and breeder of prize cattle.

Under the caption "Many Will Be Pleased" the committee noted in its weekly newsletter that Morse, after an exhibition at a Maryland fair, is going "to transport his prize bull out to Oregon."

40-YEAR-OLD LUNCH FOUND INTACT, BUT IT IS INEDIBLE

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Back in 1915 a workman left his lunch in a house he was helping build.

The lunch was found recently when plumbers had to cut into a wall to make repairs. They found a sandwich, wrapped in a newspaper dated September 7, 1915. That is the year the home was built.

The sandwich inside was intact, rye bread, crust and all. The filling had blackened too much to tell what it was. It was hard as a rock.

FPC EXTENDS ITS GAS JURISDICTION

Decision Puts Unprocessed Fuel Near Wellhead Under U.S. Domain.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission ruled today it has jurisdiction over natural gas sales made by independent producers before the gas is processed, if any part of it ultimately moves in interstate commerce for resale.

The commission took its stand, it said, "in light of decisions by the United States Supreme Court.

In two decisions, the commission extended its jurisdiction over the independent natural gas producers pretty close to the wellhead.

One decision upheld the denial last April by Chief Examiner Edward B. Marsh of petitions by three independent producers for orders declaring their sales are not subject to commission regulations under the natural gas act.

That case involved Deep South Oil Co., of Beaumont, Tex.; Humble Oil & refining Co., Houston; and Shell Oil Co., New York.

The other decision reversed a ruling by Examiner Ewing G. Simpson in a case involving Dixie Pipe Line Co., Dallas.

Simpson dismissed "for want of jurisdiction" applications by 20 producers requesting certificates to authorize natural gas sales. He found the sales were made at or near the wellhead prior to gathering and processing.

The commission held that this decision contained "basic error of law."

As a result of the commission's ruling, gas which 10 of these producers proposed to sell for ultimate resale to Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., Houston, will continue to be sold to Southern Natural Co., Birmingham, Ala., under existing contracts.

MISSIONS ARE KEY EPISCOPALIAN ITEM

Convention Ready to Consider Expanding Program Abroad and in U.S.

HONOLULU, Sept. 10 (AP)—The fifty-eighth Protestant Episcopal convention was ready to tackle the key item before it—a budget for a stepped-up missionary program both at home and abroad.

For the past week, the House of Deputies and House of Bishops have been acting on measures ranging from barring secular music in churches to boosting the presiding bishop's pay.

In an atmosphere akin to that of a state legislature, they have listened to many speeches—mostly with an underlying theme that the Church must expand its missionary program, not only overseas but also in the 48 states.

Between now and Thursday's adjournment they are scheduled to decide on how much of a program the members can afford. Officials say the budget is sure to be the largest in the Church's history.

Services and Sightseeing.

Church services and sightseeing were expected to fill the program Sunday, but, as one official put it, "Monday the race to the finish begins."

The more than 1300 bishops, delegates and women will meet in a joint session Monday morning to hear detailed recommendations of a committee which has been studying budget proposals for the next three years.

Alternative yearly budgets of six, seven and eight million have been suggested by a church administration. The bulk of the larger figures would go for missionary work.

Church officials have told the convention it must "face the facts" of "the decay of the church's work in the heart of the city." Expanded TV and radio programs have been proposed to woo the workers in "time clock communities."

Major Decisions This Week.

Thus far action at the convention has been mostly preliminary work before the major decisions that come up this week.

However, definite action has been taken to tighten up restrictions on non-religious music for services such as weddings. Moves to change the church's name, and to ease its marriage and divorce canons have failed.

A proposal to give women a vote in the all-male House of Deputies has failed, but there is said to be some chance it may be revived.

The House of Bishops voted to give the presiding bishops position its first pay increase (to $15,000 a year) since 1907.

U.S. WORKERS WIN AWARDS FOR MONEY-SAVING IDEAS

Cash awards totaling $400 have been received by five employes of the Aeronautical Chart and Information Center, Second and Arsenal streets, for money saving suggestions, it was announced yesterday. Presentation was made by Col. W. B. Ashworth, deputy commander.

Thomas Lynn of Arnold, Mo., received $350 for a suggestion which saved $24,305 on the movement of warehousing facilities. Awards of $15 each were presented to Virgil L. Hammonds, 4500A South Grand boulevard, and Marvin B. Picker, 5864 Roosevelt place.

Albert P. Litwa, 3960A McDonald avenue, and Herman J. Droege, 3525 Lawn avenue, each received $10 awards.

TURKISH CABINET MINISTER QUITS IN WAKE OF RIOTS

LONDON, Sept. 10 (UP)—Ankara radio reported today that Turkish Minister of Interior Dr. Namik Gedik had resigned.

In a later broadcast, Ankara radio quoted the Anatolia news agency as saying Minister of National Defense Ethem Menderes had been appointed acting minister of interior.

(In Istanbul, Menderes announced that three high-ranking army officers had been suspended pending the outcome of an inquiry into the recent anti-Greek riots.

(It was also learned that a shakeup of provincial officials and police has been ordered by President Celal Bayar. At least eight sub-governors and a number of local police officials will be transferred to other posts because of negligence in stopping the riots.)

The chances followed by less than a week the bloody riots in Istanbaul and Smyrna in which thousands of young Turks burned public buildings, schools and houses. The violence coincided with talks in London among Turkish, Greek and British officials concerning the future of the British outpost of Cyprus, off the coast of Turkey. The majority of the Cypriots are of Greek ancestry.

OIL SEARCH SOUTH OF PARIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Plans for a five-year search for oil in the southern suburbs of Paris, France, were announced today by California-Texas Oil Co.

Permits have been granted to two companies—one owned by Caltex and the other by French interests—to conduct exploratory operations in the so-called Paris basin. The field, which takes in an area of 20,000 square kilometers, is just south of Paris.

DOCKERS MAY IGNORE COURT'S STRIKE EDICT

Writ Stayed Until Monday to Give Them Chance to Return to Jobs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—This port's dock strike, it was indicated today, may be prolonged into next week despite a Monday back-to-work deadline set by a court.

State Supreme Court Justice William C. Hecht Jr. had stayed injunction proceedings until Monday to give the workers a chance to go back to their jobs by then.

But Patrick J. Connolly, executive vice president of the independent International Longshoremen's Association, told reporters: "From what we hear, the temper of the men is such that they will not be back to work."

The strike is being waged against the New York-New Jersey Waterfront Commission. The ILA contends the commission is trying to break the union, which was kicked out of the AFL on racketeering charges, with harsh and discriminatory tactics—a charge denied by the commission.

As the strike went through its fourth day, the ILA announced that leaders of its Atlantic coast district council will meet in emergency session in New York tomorrow.

Mediation Offer Rejected.

Samuel M. Lane, executive director of the commission, today rejected an offer of an outsider to mediate between the commission and the ILA. Instead, Lane laid down a five-point ultimatum which he said the ILA must meet. It was:

1. The longshoremen must return to work.
2. The ILA must put its grievances in writing and present them to the commission.
3. The ILA must accept the commission as the lawful authority for the piers and stop what Lane called obstructionist tactics.
4. The ILA must sit directly with the commission in any dispute or discussions.
5. The commission will not accept any intermediary in the matter.

The offer to act as intermediary came from Maxwell Powers, director of Greenwich House, a settlement house. Powers became interested in waterfront problems and has interceded with the commission in behalf of some of the longshoremen in its neighborhood.

Longshoremen have conducted one-day sympathy walkouts in East Coast ports such as Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Norfolk.

Although not the target of the strike, the New York Shipping Association, employer group representing 170 shipping and stevedoring firms, estimated the walkout was costing business about $1,000,000 a day. Cargoes were piling up in the port, where ordinarily import and export shipments with a total value of about $20,000,000 are handled each day. Some 70 ships were idle.

Railroads were considering an embargo on shipments to the port if the strike continues much longer.

Both the Shipping Association and the Waterfront Commission are seeking permanent injunctions against the strike. These were the actions that were deferred until Monday. The Shipping Association earlier obtained a temporary injunction—but the strike continued.

NEW HIGH COMMISSIONER FROM BRITAIN TO INDIA

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Malcolm MacDonald, Britain's former commissioner general for Southeast Asia, left today by air for New Delhi to become high commissioner in India.

MacDonald is the son of a former British prime minister, the late Ramsay MacDonald. Before going to Singapore, he served as British high commissioner to Canada.

FATHER'S PLANE KILLS BOY, 6, ON TEETER-TOTTER

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 10 (AP)—A 6-year-old boy was killed and his sister injured yesterday when a light plane in which their father was taking off crashed into a school yard where they were teeter-tottering.

Thomas E. Bougher of Sanders, Ind., was killed instantly. His 8-year-old sister, Twyla, was taken to a Bloomington hospital. Her condition is fair.

The father, Homer Bougher, 26 years old, was a passenger in the plane piloted by Mac Manion, 33, of Crawfordsville, Ind. Bougher suffered bruises while Manion was uninjured. The plane was seriously damaged.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Hinkle said the children and their mother had gone to the Sanders school yard—six miles south of here—to watch the take-off from the nearby airport. The plane rose a few feet, fell to the ground and spun into the school yard where it struck the teeter-totter on which the children were playing.

SINGAPORE WILL NOT FUEL SHIP BOUND FOR N. VIET NAM

SINGAPORE, Sept. 10 (AP)—The government of this British crown colony raised a fresh obstacle today in the path of the mystery freighter Katerina S, which is reported carrying a cargo of arms from Communist Bulgaria to Haiphong, North Viet Nam, for Red China.

A spokesman said the port would refuse to refuel the freighter, identified by United States State Department officials as a Greek-owned vessel of 1618 tons that has sailed under the Panamanian flag.

At Panama's request, United States officials in Colombo, Ceylon, were ordered earlier this week to pick up the Panamanian registry papers—in effect the ship's license to travel—when it calls there on its voyage eastward. Officials at Colombo expressed belief the vessel would bypass that port in view of latest developments.

CALLS EASTERN U.S. HOSTILE TO WESTERN DEVELOPMENT

DENVER, Sept. 9 (AP)—Congressional hearings in Denver and elsewhere in the West on uranium stock issues are "an indication of eastern antagonism to the development of the natural resources of the West," acting Gov. Stephen L. R. McNichols of Colorado asserted yesterday.

McNichols said at a news conference that the manner in which the hearings are being conducted fits into "the over-all attitude of hostility of eastern people toward western uranium development, reclamation and other natural resources."

"Not one case of fraud in uranium stock issues has been taken to the courts to my knowledge," he said.

Lindbergh in Hong Kong.

HONG KONG, Sept. 10 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh arrived in Hong Kong today from Manila. He evaded questioners. Airport officials said Lindbergh was here on an unofficial visit for a few days' rest.

1956 Presidential Campaigns Are Opened by Both Parties

G.O.P. Stress on Peace and Prosperity — Democrats Say Administration Has Favored Big Business.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.

THE professional politicians of both major parties have started their 1956 presidential, congressional and local campaigns, and the pattern for vote-getting during the next 14 months is becoming clear.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall's "school" for the party's 48 state chairmen ended yesterday on the unyielding but unprovable assumption that President Eisenhower will accept renomination at the national convention next August. The slogan for these local politicians who are closer to the voters than the national committeemen and women or members of Congress will be "The President, Prosperity and Peace," with emphasis in the order named.

These men—it was not a co-educational affair—met with the President today in Denver to hear a pep talk to get in there and fight for the Grand Old Party, especially to regain control of both houses of Congress, now held by Democrats on slim margins.

THE "SCHOOL" had two objectives, first, to help convince Mr. Eisenhower that he is the indispensable man to lead the party to victory next year, and second, to give expert advice on such mundane and necessary matters as precinct organization by door-bell ringing, fund raising, television and radio appearances and the desirability for younger and better equipped candidates for local offices and party posts.

The picture the Republicans will exhibit to the country will be dominated by President Eisenhower surrounded by more than 65,000,000 Americans at work under peaceful skies from which the war clouds have been driven away by the warmth of the Eisenhower smile.

Former President Truman has taken the lead in changing this partisan presentation and as times goes on it is likely that other top Democratic speakers will try to make some changes on the Republican canvas. The Republicans are already crying "smear," "mudslinging" and "personal attacks" at Democratic efforts. The Democrats say they are merely "correcting the record."

Mr. Truman and some of the highest ranking labor leaders are following the line developed over recent months by the Democratic Digest, official monthly publication of the Democratic National Committee. This line, about which more will be heard in the coming session of Congress and during the campaign next summer and fall, is that the Eisenhower Administration is run by big business for big business at the expense of the little people, the workers and the farmers; that Republicans are giving away to a favored few the nation's natural resources that belong to all the people and the atomic power secrets that cost billions of the taxpayers' dollars; that the President violated his TVA pledges in the now abrogated Dixon-Yates-Atomic Energy Commission contract; that he "passed the buck" in the resignations of Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott in the Mulligan affair, of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby in the Salk vaccine investigations and of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens in the McCarthy-Cohn-Schine scandal; that he has "packed" the federal regulatory commissions with special interests appointees; that he is cutting national defense expenditures beyond the needs of world security to try to balance the budget; that he is responsible for the present plight of the American farmer, and in general that he has not shown the leadership for the nation and within his own party historically expected of an American President.

In short, the campaigning Democrats are likely to try to undermine the President's personal popularity, to claim that they would make and administer the laws for the welfare of more voters, and that what "good" the President has done had more support from congressional Democrats than Republicans and what has been "bad" has been defeated by Democratic votes.

FOREIGN POLICY is not likely to be a clear cut issue. Since the Geneva "summit conference" the advantage here is to the Republicans, because the President won a personal triumph in his conversations with Prime Ministers Eden of Britain, Bulganin of Soviet Russia and Faure of France. If the "spirit of Geneva" prevails until the elections next year, the Democrats will claim that they have given greater support to the bipartisan foreign policy originated by former President Roosevelt and former Gov. Dewey of New York than have the Senate Republicans. The Democrats have the record of policy initiation as well as the co-operation of Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Adlai Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, has made some tentative gestures toward criticism of the President's conduct of foreign affairs but domestic issues are likely to dominate next year's campaign oratory.

Chairman Hall and Vice President Nixon have conceded that the farm situation will be the biggest domestic problem next year. They say they are not worried by the labor vote because state and national elections have demonstrated that the national labor leaders cannot deliver the votes of the rank and file of union members.

—United Press Telephoto.

The farmers and organized labor are the two largest voter groups in the nation. Their leaders often claim they are blocs of votes but experience shows that the groups cannot be delivered at the polls. The farmers, as all political writers found to their sorrow in 1948, are unpredictable.

So far as legislation goes, both groups received more governmental benefits under Roosevelt and Truman than under the Eisenhower Administration. Their leaders and their would-be congressional benefactors now are pointing out that large corporations are making huge profits while wages have increased moderately, by comparison, and total and per capita farm income actually has gone down.

The farm situation is the achilles heel of President Eisenhower and the Republican organization and the present Democratic Congress is partly the result of the resentment farmers expressed in the off-year election in 1954.

Democratic speakers are exploiting the adroit wording of President Eisenhower's major farm speech in 1952 at the National Plowing Contest at Kasson, Minn., in which he said:

"And here and now, without any 'ifs' or 'buts,' I want to say to you I stand behind — and the Republican party stands behind—the price support law now on the books. This includes the amendment to the basic farm act, passed by the votes of both parties in Congress, to continue through 1954 the price supports on basic commodities at 90 per cent of parity. . . . All I know of farmers convinces me that they would rather earn their fair share than to have it as a Government handout. And a fair share is not merely 90 per cent of parity—it is full parity."

In this speech, candidate Eisenhower was amplifying the Republican platform which pledged:

"We favor a farm program aimed at full parity prices for all farm products in the market place."

Over Democratic objections, the Republican Eighty-third Congress voted flexible farm price supports. The promise was that this measure would eventually bring production into balance with consumption and do away with seven billion dollars worth of surplus products held by the Government.

The state chairmen's "school" produced no answer to the present farm situation, which is not likely to get better before the 1956 elections despite Nixon's assertion that "the Eisenhower Administration is definitely aware of the problem and will make every effort to dispose of surpluses and reverse the trend to lower farm prices that began when the Democrats were in power."

THE FARMER'S PLIGHT is real and can be illustrated by official figures. These show the farmer is getting aboua a fourth less per unit for his crops than he did in 1951, when crop prices began to slip.

For the first seven months of this year, during which the Administration flexible price support program was in effect, farm prices averaged 4 per cent less than during the comparable period last year. In mid-August of this year the index of prices received by farmers was 6 per cent below the same period in 1954.

During the 1951-1955 period industrial wages have gone up and corporate profits have touched new highs, resulting in higher prices for farm machinery, tools, equipment and labor. The ratio between prices the farmers receive and prices he must pay is called parity; the parity ratio has declined 29 points since 1951. Five points of this decline occurred in the last year.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has been expressing optimism about the farm situation, but Benson's economic adviser, Don Paarlberg, said last month at West Millbury, Mass., that there is evidence farm prices "may be somewhere near normal for modern-day periods of peacetime full employment." Paarlberg described the farm price decline as the emergence from "a dream world."

Several Democrats pounced on Paarlberg's statement, asserting this attitude would be a 1956 campaign issue. Senator Richard L. Neuberger (Dem.), Oregon, said "the farmers are told they must be content with reduced income and lower farm prices at a time when big corporations are boasting of all-time record profits."

Current corporation profits are also the target of labor leaders but with employment and take-home pay at new

'Wall Street TVA'

Lilienthal, Clapp Business Men, Now

Former Tennessee Valley Authority Chairmen Will Act as Consultants to Foreign Governments.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.

WALL STREET has never seen anything quite like its new tenants at Number 44. Two men long identified with one of the New Deal's foremost projects, the Tennessee Valley Authority, have teamed up to make their experience available to underdeveloped nations of the world.

David E. Lilienthal and Gordon R. Clapp, both associated with TVA from its inception in 1933 and both former chairmen of the Authority, have formed a new firm, Development and Resources Corp., to provide organizational, technical and financial advice to countries seeking to develop their natural resources.

WITH THE FINANCIAL backing of a New York international investment house, Lazard Freres & Co., the new firm opened its doors Sept. 1. Lilienthal, a leading exponent of the kind of unified resources development found in TVA, is chairman of the board. Clapp, who last month resigned a $20,000-a-year job as deputy administrator of the City of New York, is president.

"We expect to make our services available to other governments and public agencies outside the continental United States as general advisory consultants in programs of developing resources such as rivers, land, forests and minerals," Clapp told the Post-Dispatch.

Interviewed in the firm's still-unfurnished offices, the soft-spoken former educator described the thinking which led to formation of the firm and which now finds him "where I never thought I'd be —on Wall Street."

From its earliest days, Clapp said, TVA was a "showcase" of unified development of a region. It attracted droves of foreigners who wanted to study its integrated planning of water resources and power, agriculture, forestry, mining and industry, and take its principles back to their own lands.

Today, while the Eisenhower Administration "is trying to smash the windows" of the showcase, other countries are actively seeking to emulate the TVA type of development and thereby avoid wasteful "piecemeal" utilization of their resources, Clapp asserted.

At the same time, as the Administration attempts to balance the budget and reduce taxes, there is a prospect of further cuts in foreign aid appropriations, including the possibility of new reductions in technical assistance—the know-how involved in programs of resources development.

Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey has called for a 3 per cent reduction in spending by Government departments to achieve a balanced budget next year, and Chairman Walter F. George (Dem.), Georgia, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has said "further cuts can be made" in foreign aid.

Underdeveloped countries thus are faced with the possibility that in the future they will have to rely more on private, non-governmental sources for assistance in planning, executing and financing public works and resources development.

Clapp said he and Lilienthal were "keenly" aware of the possible effects of cutbacks in American foreign aid, and "this trend, if you can call it that, had something to do with our timing" in setting up the new firm.

More important, however, was a feeling that "we could be helpful in generating ideas about what can be done with natural resources in a country or a region," he said.

The firm's principal function, Clapp continued, will be to advise countries or public agencies on that stage of resources development which comes between initial planning of a project and actual construction.

In this interim phase, he explained, it is necessary that government officials and civic leaders know how to set up an agency or authority to build and operate the proposed development, where to find and train technicians, how to stimulate local interest and how to define and limit the scope of the project and the agency which will operate it.

This involves the "translation of technical reports, studies and advice into lay language that will be understood by government officials and laymen," Clapp said. "This is something we had to do in TVA all the time—often before congressional committees."

TO QUALIFY as advisers on unified programs of resources development, Lilienthal and Clapp have a total of 34 years' experience with TVA.

Lilienthal, who served as chairman of the agency from 1941 to 1946 and before that as a TVA director, has been an industrial consultant in recent years and has been retained to study several areas in which resources development is planned.

In one of these, the Cauca River Valley in Colombia, Lilienthal recommended, after a three-week survey, that the government launch a regional development along TVA lines and financed largely through coffee exports.

He suggested that the Valley's basic natural resources—chiefly the river and adjoining land—be developed first, with later stages of the project to include improved methods of administration, local and regional sanitation and public health and local and regional transportation facilities.

Partly as a result of Lilienthal's recommendations, a Cauca Valley Regional Authority has been set up by the Colombian Government. Its charter, calling for a semi-autonomous agency with considerable power but still responsible to the central government, is strikingly reminiscent of TVA's legal framework.

Lilienthal's work in Colombia, Clapp said, can be considered a "prototype" of the kind of service the new firm hopes to render.

Lilienthal, who served as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission after leaving TVA, also has been asked to take part in discussions of land reforms in southern Italy and Sicily, where the Government hopes to integrate irrigation, river improvements, roads, agriculture and industrial development in such a way as to step up employment.

"This area is similar to the Tennessee Valley region years ago," Clapp said. "It is economically depressed; it has some natural resources, but nothing much has been done with them."

Several years ago, Lilienthal was consulted on the Indus River Development in Kashmir. Next week he will be in Istanbul, Turkey, for the annual meeting of the boards of governors of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank) and the International Monetary Fund.

The World Bank, an important source of financing for underdeveloped countries, has shown considerable interest in the Lilienthal-Clapp firm. Lilienthal is expected to outline its aims informally at the meeting.

Although each project undertaken by the firm undoubtedly will have different features, due to varying topography, politics and economics, it is expected that most of the basic principles developed in the Tennessee Valley will be applicable to some degree, Clapp said.

"Those principles are as sound today as they were in 1936, 1948 or 1952," he declared emphatically.

"An economic development that makes sense should be both public and private. Those aspects which offer no return to the private investor—such things as power and roads—should be developed first and at public expense. If they are not, private capital usually will not come in.

"For example, in the Tennessee Valley, flood protection, cheap power and irrigation features resulted from the harnessing of the river by dams, but these in turn led to such private enterprises as metals plants and the individual initiative of farmers in improving agricultural output.

"A 20-year forestry development program undertaken by TVA had everything to do with the location of a paper mill built by the Bowater Co. In addition, TVA put in the hands of local business men the specific data they needed for development of a region."

"If you go at it in a piecemeal fashion, butchering your rivers as was done on the Missouri river until recent years, it will actually cost more money in the long run."

Clapp said the new firm's services will be available not only to governments but to selected industrial and private commercial enterprises. Its scope will include advice on production of power from all sources, including atomic energy where feasible, and in modernizing agriculture and highway system.

DISCUSSING one type of problem which may engage the firm's attention, Clapp pointed to the fact that some Middle Eastern and South American nations have highly centralized governments which could come into conflict with regional, semi-independent development agencies. It will be necessary to determine, he said, whether a proposed project should be undertaken by the central government, through an existing agency or ministry, or whether a regional authority should be set up.

Another problem will be that of technicians. The charter for the new Cauca Valley Authority calls for outside engineering firms which may be engaged by the authority to train and equip the agency with its own force of Colombian engineers, Clapp pointed out.

"Here again is a parallel with TVA, which had its own engineering staff," he said. Under the Cauca Valley charter, the Colombian authority will have its own trained men available for future projects even if initial planning is done by outside firms.

Clapp, a 54-year-old native of Wisconsin who was a college official before joining TVA in 1933, served as TVA chairman from 1946 to 1954. Lilienthal, a member of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission in pre-TVA days, is 56 years old.

Together, the two men will constitute much of the new firm's working force, Clapp said. "We don't plan to hire a large group of technicians and experts. We want to keep ourselves mobile, not chained to a desk."

'Gaza Strip' a Trouble Spot: Samson Also Fought There

By RICHARD DUDMAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.

THE so-called "Gaza strip," where an uneasy truce has halted bloody border fighting between Israeli and Egyptian forces, has been one of the world's trouble spots for at least 3500 years. Ancestors of the present antagonists were struggling for possession of the strategic bit of Mediterranean coastline in Biblical times. Egyptian and Jewish armies fought over it from the third to the first century B.C.

It was in Gaza that Samson, in a final surge of strength after Delilah had given away his secret and the Philistines had shaved his head and blinded him, pulled down the stone pillars and killed 3000 enemies of the Israelites, according to the Book of Judges.

The current crisis there is not over the land itself so much as over the thousands of Arab refugees who have been crammed into the narrow strip, mostly in clusters of Bedouin tents, for the last seven years.

The present Gaza strip, living up to its inheritance of strife and bloodshed, dates from Feb. 24, 1949, when Israel and Egypt signed an armistice after negotiations conducted by Dr. Ralph Bunche, as acting United Nations mediator, on the Island of Rhodes.

An Egyptian army had marched into Palestine May 15, 1948, the day Great Britain ended its 26-year League of Nations mandate over the area. From other directions, armies of other Arab nations of the Middle East advanced in an effort to crush the new nation at the start. Superior training and strategy on the part of the Israelis, together with disorganization among the Arabs, resulted in heavy military defeats for the Arab armies.

By the time the U.N. intervened and obtained a cease-fire agreement, the Arabs had been pushed back, well beyond the boundaries of Jewish territory as outlined by the U.N. General Assembly in the 1947 partition resolution. Nearly a million Palestine Arabs had fled from Israeli territory.

Boundaries of Israel, as set forth in the 1949 armistice signed by Israel with Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, were mainly the lines where the fighting stopped. In the case of Egypt, its forces had been pushed back until they held only a narrow strip of coastline extending north for 30 miles from the old Palestine-Egypt border—the Gaza strip. Egypt was given administration of the strip, under a military government headed by an Egyptian army officer.

The 30-mile strip is six miles wide at its widest, two at its narrowest. It includes the town of Gaza and the railway junction of Rafah, at the Egyptian border. The land is semi-desert, but irrigation permits the growing of fine oranges, olives, grapes and vegetable crops. Across its rolling hills run the old Palestine-Egypt railroad, built in World War I by Gen. Allenby, and a temporary road built by the British in World War II by spreading oil on the sand and packing the mixture to a hard surface.

In more peaceful times, the town of Gaza had only about 15,000 persons living in its mud huts and few low stone buildings. They engaged in some commerce and fishing. The only manufacturing industry was the making of coarse cloth for Bedouin cloaks on 100 primitive looms.

Into this narrow strip of land are crowded 200,000 of the Arab refugees. Israel does not want them to return, and Egypt will not let them move on south across its border.

The two sides disagree not only over what should be done with the refugees but also over how their mass exodus from territory now a part of Israel came about. The Egyptian Embassy here and other Arab spokesmen say the Palestine Arabs fled in fear of their lives against direct Arab orders to stand fast and defend their homes. Israeli spokesmen dispute this, asserting that Arab authorities urged Palestine Arabs to flee, promising them it would be only a few weeks until the Israelis had been driven into the sea and the refugees could return.

Israel opposes any return of the refugees into Israeli territory on grounds of both security and economics. Israel's Ambassador Michael Comay told the U.N. last November that Israel would create a Trojan horse if it took back the refugees, since they would always seek the destruction of Israel.

Acknowledging that it was natural for the refugees to want to return to their old homes, Comay went on:

"But the world they once knew has vanished. Their businesses and jobs disappeared during the Arab exodus. The derelict villages have crumbled away; the abandoned lands have been resettled. The repatriates would be, in effect, new immigrants, to be settled afresh in a country which has been rapidly transformed, and bears little resemblance to the territory they once left."

Comay called attention to the fact that Jews from Arab countries also had fled to Israel and had been resettled there. Thus, he said, "through the rough surgery of a war which was none of our seeking," this two-way movement "has created a factual situation which cannot be rubbed out, but on which a better future could be built."

Israeli spokesmen contend that the Arabs do not want the refugee problem settled, preferring to keep it hot as a tool of propaganda with which to harass Israel. Egyptians and other Arab spokesmen say that they have no room to resettle the refugees and that Israel should rightfully take them back.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Gene Debs Centennial

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In less than two months, on Nov. 5, to be exact, there will occur the 100th anniversary of the birth of Eugene Victor Debs. His friends, among them the Norman Thomas group, and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen of Terre Haute, Debs's home town, will observe the occasion with special tributes.

Eugene Victor Debs was in the twentieth century what Tom Paine was in the eighteenth—what Elijah Lovejoy and John Brown were in the nineteenth. It is probable that the full appreciation of Debs's contributions will not occur until the twenty-first century.

Because of Debs's and his coworkers' efforts in the field of labor and social relations, better housing, social security, child welfare, education, conservation of natural resources, economic planning, international affairs, government administration (at least on the municipal level), everybody in America has gained in one form or another.

But his most special contribution was that in a crucial epoch in his country's history he helped to raise the laborer of farm and industry from primitive conditions to a status of fuller citizenship. Who can fully appraise the meaning of this in view of the current competitive struggle with the totalitarian half of the world?

Debs in the future should emerge as some sort of American hero because it was he who taught that although the age of science would take the load off our backs it would not necessarily perpetuate the age of reason. That one was desired and should be developed while the other had to be preserved and fought for. That only study and action from the lowest rank on up could cope with changes that could overwhelm us. And his co-workers, the theoreticians, were discussing the atom and electron in tracts that go back more than 50 years.

Every record pertaining to Debs should be preserved and made accessible to inspire America's future writers, thinkers, poets and scientists for an ideal which serves all people. And even when they disagree they should be excited to learn that this country produced such a man.

Honors to a German Girl

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

My Collinsville "mother and father," Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cole, have sent me the fine article that Mary Kimbrough wrote about the student-teacher exchange program between the United States and Germany. I appreciate that this article was printed and that I was described in it as a German high school girl at the Collinsville High School for a year.

The exchange scholarship and the article both were honors for me. May I tell all your readers what a wonderful country I think America is and how wonderful the people are? Thank you very much!

How Long?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I applaud your Aug. 28 editorial, "What to Apologize For." I am proud to see my home-town paper standing four-square against racial intolerance.

Incidents such as that involving Indian Ambassador Mehta in Houston are particularly embarrassing. How long will it be necessary for visiting colored people to prove that they are not American citizens in order to have white Americans treat them as full-fledged human beings?

Toughening a Soldier

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

After reading the account of some training techniques and practices advocated by the Pentagon, I believe that I have found a few more ways of hardening the American soldier.

First of all, why not break the left hand of all soldiers who are right-handed, thus acquainting them with the idea and to impress on them that "This ain't just gonna be a picnic."

The value of educating our troops in survival under adverse conditions cannot be discounted, nor should the importance of impressing upon them what they can expect at a P.O.W. camp be considered valueless. But it seems as though the infliction of mental and physical punishment, which is termed education, can be realistically viewed as nothing less than a Frankenstein's monster.

All for an Index

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

May I inquire why a newspaper of the size and prestige of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch does not print on the front page a small index to the various pages of major interest contained in each edition? For instance, the stock market report is usually found in the back of the editorial section, except on occasional days when for some reason it is not.

On these days I do not get to see it before leaving home as I do not have time to thumb through the whole paper to find out where it is. This is a matter of considerable annoyance to me and I am sure you must have thousands of other readers who feel the same way.

At the Water's Edge

It is often said that differences among the people of the United States stop at the water's edge. This was pretty well demonstrated in the foreign policy votes in the Senate in the first session of the Eighty-fourth Congress.

A careful study by Congressional Quarterly shows that 30 "Eisenhower-issue" rollcalls were held in the field of foreign policy. Here is how the Senators were grouped, by percentage of support, on these issues:

In the 90 to 100 per cent support group, there were 15 Republican Senators and 10 Democrats, and in the 80 to 90 per cent group, eight Republicans and six Democrats. In the 70 to 80 per cent group, the Democrats led 15 to eight. The other percentage groups were made up as follows: 60 to 70, nine Republicans and nine Democrats; 50 to 60, three Republicans and four Democrats, and below 50, four Republicans and five Democrats.

The figures are somewhat unfair to the Democrats since Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee and Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson both were ill for part of the session. And Democratic Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts missed much of it. Had they been present for all rollcalls, there would be still more Democrats in the higher groupings.

The main point is that the Jenner-McCarthy-Malone-Langer Republican view on foreign affairs has dwindled to where it now has almost no influence in voting in the Senate. For that President Eisenhower—and the country—can be profoundly grateful.

Failure at Cyprus

The failure of the conference on what to do with Cyprus is a dismal one for the democracies. Riots in Turkey against the Greeks and the bombing of the Turkish consulate in Salonika afford some measure of the ill-feeling that has arisen. It certainly is not all Communist-inspired.

The British must bear some blame because of the uncompromising way in which they have stuck to colonial rule on Cyprus. Now martial law has been declared and London has sent troops to the island. If some way is not soon found to solve the Cypriot dilemma, the eastern flank of NATO, which includes Turkey and Greece, could be seriously weakened.

Rendezvous With a Kangaroo

The kangaroo is impressive. Eight feet tall, it has greatly enlarged hind legs for hopping and a long, thick, tapering tail. It has big brown eyes. It is dignified but mean when antagonized.

A Science Service dispatch from Sydney reveals that Australia is marking kangaroos with reflector tape so that scientists can make a study of their life after dark. Water in kangaroo drinking holes is drugged to put the kangaroo asleep. An inspector then attaches a metal tag covered with reflector tape to the animal's ears. It would seem to be somewhat of a sporting proposition to attach a metal tag to a kangaroo's ears for if the beast is not sufficiently drugged some inspector is certainly going to receive a lambasting.

We await impatiently the scientists' report. Questions come to mind. Does a kangaroo bounding around at night with luminous ears cause panic when he first lands among his non-luminous-eared brothers? Does he appear proud or ashamed of his effulgent ears? After the novelty wears off does his own group pay him homage or do they look upon him as a chap who has had an unfortunate experience resulting in permanent impairment? Do the lady kangaroos regard him as an improved type of Romeo? Or is he set upon by all and sundry for becoming startlingly different from the herd?

Still, come to think of it, whose business is it anyway what a kangaroo may or may not do in a nocturnal rendezvous?

Filipino Success Story

The best report on the problem of land reform, which besets most underdeveloped nations of the world, comes from the Philippines. A United States specialist in Manila says, "At the rate they're going, the Filipinos should solve their land tenure problems within five years."

In less than two years President Ramon Magsaysay has induced his Congress to pass a new tenancy act, reducing rents. His government has expropriated several large estates. It has resettled more than 8000 tenants on public land—some of them former guerrillas. It has given credit to 140,000 small farmers struggling to hold their land against high interest rates.

This is a remarkable record in land reform, and no nation has a better one. A medieval agricultural system is gradually being replaced by private enterprise extended to thousands of farmers. Not every nation in the world can expect as much from land reform as the Philippines, for the simple reason that not every nation has as much tillable land available for farming. The Filipinos have a natural advantage in soil waiting for men who can put it to use. But it took the energetic President Magsaysay to put the men on the soil, and he deserves the respect of the free world for his remarkable accomplishment.

To Limit If Not Disarm

It is good news indeed that the Russians are discussing President Eisenhower's aerial inspection plan in the U.N. meetings on disarmament.

That they have broken their silence at last could be, as an American spokesman says, the most important development since Geneva. It could mean that they agree with White House Adviser Harold E. Stassen that the question of setting up an inspection system must be disposed of before actual disarmament, especially in atomic weapons, is undertaken.

Mr. Stassen announced that this country is placing "reservations" on any previous disarmament plans it had approved, and called for attention to be fixed upon "post-Geneva" inspection proposals, especially President Eisenhower's plan for mutual aerial surveillance.

The primary purpose of that inspection, it has been made clear, would be to detect any signs of mobilization for attack, especially atomic air attack. As Mr. Stassen has been pointing out, scientists now say that the existence of atomic weapons could be concealed from even a thorough inspection system. So the emphasis is shifting from the idea of inspection to enforce a ban on atomic weapons to the idea of inspection to warn against their surprise use.

The implication is, of course, that atomic disarmament, being unenforceable, must be laid aside until some reliable means of detecting the presence of atomic weapons is devised. This may well be true, but it would be most unfortunate if all efforts toward limitation of conventional weapons and the size of armed forces also were laid aside. Washington would make a serious mistake if it gave cause to peoples over the world to think that we do not mean what we say about the urgency of halting the arms race.

Within the past year the Russians have come around to accepting several basic Western principles on disarmament. They accepted numerical ceilings on armed forces, instead of a percentage cut calculated to maintain their own power of advantage, and they agreed to the establishment of an international inspection agency before actual arms limitation went into effect. It took many months to win this agreement and we hope it will not be sacrificed while ideas on inspection are being worked out.

Fortunately Mr. Stassen told the U.N. subcommittee that in placing "reservations" on previous American commitments, he was not to be understood as withdrawing, disavowing or reaffirming those commitments, pending the outcome of the study of inspection.

The important thing is to begin. President Eisenhower at Geneva spoke eloquently of the "burden of costly armaments," which, he said, "not only deprives our own people of higher living standards, but also denies the peoples of underdeveloped areas of resources which would improve their lot." Armament reduction, as he said, is essential to a sound and secure peace. The "spirit of Geneva" calls for a beginning.

Walt Disney and the Wrong River

NORTH PLATTE, Nebr. (UP)—Water from the North and South Platte rivers was mailed to California and used to christen the Mark Twain, paddle-wheel steamer in the Disneyland amusement center.

Throughout Missouri the above intelligence may be expected to be received without amusement. Toward Hannibal the reaction may warm up to one of incredulity mixed with indignation. As the banks of the Mississippi are reached, the warmth is apt to touch the boiling point.

North and South Platte rivers indeed! What is Walt Disney trying to start here? Something? As well identify Christopher Columbus with the South Pole, or Admiral Peary with the discovery of America. Sam Clemens did not exactly discover the Mississippi, but he made it well known.

If any one feature of the landscape and any one person may be said to be inseparable, that feature of the landscape is the Father of Waters and that person is Mark Twain. As apprentice for a year and a half, and as pilot for two years and a half, he knew the river as few have ever known it, and wrote about it that way in "Life on the Mississippi."

Sitting here on the banks of the great stream that holds East and West together, we can tell Walt Disney and any given number of Nebraskans that until a steamer named the Mark Twain has been christened with Mississippi river water, that same steamer has not been christened.

Good Tidings

Ten Americans held in Red China are being released "within a few days." All others are being released soon. Chinese in the United States who so desire may return to their homeland. Such is the essence of an agreement just reached at Geneva.

To all who have had a part in bringing this about—in Washington, at the U.N. in New York, in Geneva, at the world capitals—go the profound thanks of the American people. And if it is good tidings for now, it may well be an even better omen for the future.

So may we all hope!

Remembering a Great American

The Madison County Bar Association will do a most appropriate thing when it dedicates a memorial plaque to James Madison in public ceremonies on the Edwardsville courthouse lawn this afternoon. And it has chosen most appropriately in obtaining Irving Brant of Washington, who was editor of the Star-Times editorial page 25 years ago, as the dedicatory speaker.

So much notice properly goes to Washington and Jefferson that almost everyone tends to overlook the truly great services of the fourth President. As Jefferson's Secretary of State, Madison was a leading participant in the purchase of the Louisiana Territory in 1803. He was the architect of the Constitutional Convention, and he, more than anyone else gave us the wording of the First Amendment with its historic freedoms of religion, speech, press and assembly. He so strongly advocated separation of church and state that it became known as "Madison's principle." Madison county honors itself just before Constitution week by remembering the statesman for whom it was named.

As for Mr. Brant, he is the author of four volumes on Madison's life and the fifth volume of his definitive study, on the presidential years, is now in progress. It seems safe to say that he knows more about James Madison than any historian or biographer before him. Already we are in his debt for his outstanding work. Completion of his project will bring Irving Brant a sure place among the significant writers on the luminous gallery of great Americans.

NOT ONLY GERMANY AND RUSSIA MEET AT MOSCOW

A Defense of the Theater

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Distinguished New York drama critic says House investigation of 23 actors proved nothing but insulted the theater and overwhelming number of loyal Americans in it; notes one way to assure loyalty is for government to take over theater, as in Russia.

Brooks Atkinson in The New York Times

What good purpose was served by the investigation of 23 actors by the House Un-American Activities Committee?

One confessed his sins, which he had already reported voluntarily to the FBI and received absolution from the committee. During the four days of hearings the other witnesses and the committee members snarled and growled at each other in uniform tones of virtuous indignation. The hearing proved at least that the level of conversation is low.

Three of the witnesses did not invoke the protection of any constitutional amendment. They are the ones who have the courage of their convictions against testifying before a congressional committee about their private beliefs and associations.

Brooks Atkinson

Since they stood on principle, their courage must be respected. For they can be automatically cited for contempt of Congress; they are likely to be in serious trouble and they may have to go to jail. Those who claimed the protection of constitutional amendments are in a relatively secure position.

Committee's Findings Already Known

But what good purpose was served by this series of public hearings? No one knows anything that was not known before. The one man who confessed his sins had already confessed them to the proper Government agency, and might decently have been spared the humiliation of having to go through them in public.

But even before the hearings began it was obvious that they could not sustain Representative Francis E. Walter's assertion that he was going to try to find out who was contributing to the support of Communist unions. The witnesses he called were so minor and obscure, at least in the theater, that their earning power is modest.

Even if they were Communist sympathizers, which the hearing did not prove, any contribution they could make would not pay the deficit of the Daily Worker for one day.

At the conclusion of the first day's hearings, Mr. Walter made one statement that Actors Equity would be justified in asking him to withdraw. Referring to the balky witness he said: "I am sure that these people have demonstrated that there is something to be concealed in the framework of the (theatrical) unions, something that was designed to make them as captive as the United Electrical Workers and the Mine, Mill and Smelters were."

'As Popular as Smallpox'

Later Mr. Walter qualified this statement, after having been prompted by one of his colleagues.

But it was a gratuitous defamation of a decent organization. In Actors Equity and in the theater in general, Communism is about as popular as smallpox. There was a time in the 30s when left-wingers gave Actors Equity a lot of trouble. The trouble was caused by the fact that most actors had no use for left-wingers and fought them furiously.

No doubt there are dedicated left-wingers as well as dedicated right-wingers in Actors Equity today. But, like the theater in general, it is overwhelmingly dominated by intelligent Americans who loathe subversion.

No one has a right to raise doubts of the loyalty of the theater, even by implication, and least of all a representative of the Government. For actors are among the first people who are invariably expected to contribute their services and influence to public causes. They do and they always will.

Although the Communist party is a legal political party, Congress has passed legislation that sharply restricts its activities on the assumption that it is an international conspiracy, as it is. If any of the left-wingers in the theater has violated any of these laws he can be indicted by a grand jury and tried in the courts. That is the traditional American way. It is also the best way that civilized people have been able to devise.

No congressional committee, maneuvering in the sensitive areas of personal thought, belief and association, can preserve the moral health of the country as the courts do.

Doubts Raised in Public Mind

Over the last five years, in fact, congressional committees have weakened the moral health of the country. They have provoked Americans into distrusting Americans. They have spread fear, discord and suspicion; and one of them has just raised doubts in the public mind as to the loyalty of the theater.

Congressional committees have the right by law to inquire into conspiratorial acts that may turn out to be the basis for new legislation. But inquiries into belief and association do not have such legal sanction. They may invade the area of the First Amendment, which prohibits Congress from making any law that, among other things, abridges the freedom of speech or of the press, or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble.

Whatever the legal sanction may or may not be, it is certain that no Congressman or congressional committee is endowed by God with enough understanding to preside over another citizen's thinking or associations. No man, Congressman or not, is wise enough to operate simultaneously as prosecuting attorney, judge and parish priest.

If by some unforseeable stroke of Divine Providence a Congressman turned up who was capable of passing judgment on questions of opinion he would be wise enough to refuse to do so. For he would know where demagoguery begins.

Jefferson on 'Censorial Power'

"If we advert to the nature of republican government," Jefferson said, "we shall find that the censorial power is in the people over the Government, and not in the Government over the people." That is why people go to the polls.

In and out of the theater there are many high-minded people who hope that some day the United States Government will support the theater to the extent that the British government supports the British theater through the autonomous Arts Council. The idea is reasonable on many grounds and the British Arts Council is an admirable organization.

But the sensational appearance of the House Un-American Activities Committee on the fringes of the theater and Representative Walter's comment on theatrical unions raise an important question. Could the theater afford the help and interest of a Government that seems to be uneasy about the loyalty of the theater?

The Russian government does not doubt the loyalty of the Russian theater. It settled that a long time ago by putting the theater on the payroll.

Colored Waiting Room

I passed the door with that sign;
Inside the voices were autumn leaves whirling
And laughter bright and warm as egg yolk
Spilled in little pools.
I saw babies like small brown birds
And old men with mossy pates
And root-crinkled faces
And women slow and rich as sorghum
And girls like poppies and flamingoes.

I passed that door
To the place allotted to me
With its pale sour air
And speech like dollars thudding.
Surrounded by newspapers
Spectacles and peevish mouths
I waited
Envious, and amazed
At the adamant, thin wall between.

October Roadside

Asters like purple smoke along the wind
Crowd the ditches where the autumn sun
Sifts muted gold dust.
All the land seems like a cloak
Of some wayfaring prince dropped carelessly
Beside the road the while he rests,
A trifle dusty, but for all that
Royal and rich and worthy of a crown.

Greek Water Jug in a Museum

Not now on a sun-ripe shoulder
Carried through that white city of the sun
While wide gulls dipped
Above the gracious head laid for light balance
Close to your sun-struck bronze,
Not now the cool sibilance of your water
Lapped to the lovely ear
While like a blue hexameter the sky
Arced above that Greek girl and you....

Here in the empty air,
Your centuried dryness pedestaled and tagged,
You wait . . . with all waiting things,
And I wait too.
With one forbidden finger
I touch your greening side,
And think I hear, faintly as in a shell,
A little wind among the olive trees.

Bus Ride, Morning

All this bone and nerve and tissue
Hurtling toward frustration and ambition,
Into the beehives of free enterprise,
Into the catacombs of hope.
Perhaps the kindest function of the morning paper
Is to hide their faces.

Second Hand Book Store

Here time runs counter clock-wise and erratically
Swinging deep doors into the quiet years;
Caverns of shadow hang in narrow corners
Where I can touch the soft grain of old leather
Brown and dry as a wintry leaf.
Fingers can slip along the gilded edge
Of pages tightly pressed to make a band
Rare as the dimming gold from an Egyptian tomb.
The little bookman, pipe between his teeth,
Near-sighted eyes behind thick spectacles,
Is startled from a medieval trance
To take my fifty cents that buys a ghost.

Color Line Slowly Being Erased In Nation's Capital, but Negroes Still Lack Economic Equality

Public Schools to Open Monday on Mixed Racial Basis, Climaxing Social Revolution of Major Proportions in City With One Third of Population Non-White.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP).

THE 168 public schools in the national capital, which President Eisenhower hopes will serve as a model for the rest of the nation, open for the first time Monday on a completely mixed racial basis. The event climaxes a social revolution of major proportions which gradually is erasing the color line in Washington.

In a city of some 800,000, where the non-white population is more than a third of the total and rising steadily, Negroes now may:

Eat in any restaurant in town, stay at any hotel, attend any movie or theater, swim in any public pool, play in all city recreation centers, golf on all public courses.

Negroes — Cubans, but still Negroes—play on the Washington American League baseball team although not with the professional football Redskins. The National Press Club has admitted its first Negro member. The transit system finally is hiring some Negro operators after years of resisting. Police and Fire Departments, the latter only recently, operate on a desegrated basis.

Public welfare activities are largely integrated. Of 24 public housing projects for low income families, 19 are open to all races and the rest will be.

Still Long Way to Go.

Negroes still have a long way to go before catching up with white income levels. They still make up the bulk of laborers, domestics and other low-paid workers and account for the bulk of the welfare load.

But a survey directed by Raymond F. Clapp, research analyst for the District of Columbia Department of Public Welfare, shows the economic position of the Negro is improving. For example:

In 1940, 28 per cent of nonwhite men workers were laborers but only 23 per cent in 1950. In the same decade the percentage of such workers in clerical and sales jobs rose from 10 to 17.

Similarly, 61 per cent of nonwhite working women were in household service in 1940 but only 29 per cent 10 years later. Over this 10 year period, the percentage in clerical and sales positions jumped from 3 to 23 per cent.

The study shows, furthermore, that the Negro is becoming better educated and better housed, that his health is improving, as he gets better-paying, more secure employment.

It all adds up to a tremendous change. Much of it has come about under the compulsion of court decisions striking down racial barriers. And it has been accompanied at times by friction, bitterness, and occasional disturbances and violence. Now and again rocks have crashed through windows when a Negro family has moved into a home in a white neighborhood.

Change Since 1939.

Whatever the impetus and difficulties of this social upheaval, a lot of segregation has disappeared in Washington since that day in 1939 when the acclaimed Negro contralto, Marian Anderson, sang from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial after the Daughters of the American Revolution refused the use of Constitution Hall. Since then Miss Anderson has given three concerts in Constitution Hall.

Negroes here have far more rights and privileges now than they had in 1939. Their leaders say that is what they have been fighting for over the years—rights they say the nation's founding fathers embraced in the doctrine that "all men are created free and equal."

Yet, while Negroes insist on equal rights, and to a large extent are getting them, they don't always use them to a maximum. They aren't overrunning high-toned restaurants or monopolizing swank hotels.

In part, the reason may be that many of them can't afford to patronize such places. But Eugene Davidson, president of the Washington chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, offers another.

"We are taking advantage of our rights," Davidson said in an interview, "but only to a limited extent. There was no rush to restaurants when they opened up. We aren't staying away. But nobody leaves uptown to go downtown to eat. If they happen to be down there, they go in and eat.

"We still go to our own places — movies, restaurants and all the rest.

"Things in general are going beautifully."

In common with many cities, Washington is growing rapidly and the Negro population is growing more rapidly than the white. The process has been going on for decades.

"What gives an impression that the city is being inundated by the Negro," Clapp said in an interview, "is that the District of Columbia is limited in size and probably never will have an opportunity to annex any suburbs."

When the whole metropolitan area is considered, including adjoining communities and counties in Maryland and Virginia, the racial ratio has remained a steady 3 to 1 between whites and non-whites since 1930. But in Washington proper, with a population of 802,000 in the 1950 census, the percentage of Negroes climbed from 27.3 in 1930 to 28.5 in 1940 and 35.4 in 1950. Clapp figures it will be 47.1 by 1960.

He explains the trend this way:

Since the mid-1940s the district has been pretty well built up and the great increase in housing has been in the suburbs. The white people, particularly the married ones with children, tend to move to the suburbs. The Negroes then move into the areas the white people vacate.

Shift Being Accepted.

By and large, Washingtonians appear to be accepting the shifting pattern of racial relations with comparative calm. It seems to be something they have to accept and live with, whether they like it or not. Legal and other maneuvers designed to block it invariably have failed.

Even so, resentment at expanding rights of Negroes still bubbles below the surface and occasionally breaks above it. From persons such as cab drivers one hears reports of clashes that never become generally known—fights, refusals to serve Negroes, and so on. And there still are a few open trouble spots.

Right now, Negroes are campaigning to put boys clubs sponsored by the police department on a mixed basis. The board of directors of the clubs has voted against it.

Hospitals have taken some steps toward integration but haven't gone all the way.

Places of amusement—bowling alleys, billiard parlors, shooting galleries—are in an uncertain status. So are barber shops. A case is pending in court now arising from the refusal of a bowling alley to accept Negro customers.

White barbers, Davidson said, "use the excuse that they don't know how to cut a colored person's hair." That, he said, could be handled through the licensing system.

"So far," he said, "we have had no formal complaints and actually we haven't worked on it too much."

Strike by White Students.

A year ago, when the integration process began in public schools, hundreds of white students went on strike at nine schools. There were placard-carrying demonstrations in front of the Supreme Court, which outlawed racial segregation in public schools on May 17, 1954. The rebellion was over in a few days.

This year, Davidson says he expects no more strike trouble. Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, says: "I'm not expecting any strikes, but I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

After the strikes ended last year, Corning said, there were some difficulties of a personal nature between white and Negro pupils "but no racial outbursts." The difficulties, he said, were largely of a type that might arise among children regardless of race and student grievance committees helped solve them.

Some of the striking pupils had reported they were egged on by their parents. But now Negro and white parent-teacher associations, as well as Negro and white teacher organizations, have merged.

Last year, 106,000 pupils, 61 per cent of them Negro, attended the capital's public schools. Enrollment is expected to go up this year. But the proportion of Negroes won't be known. School records from now on will make no mention of race.

Difficulty of Arms Control Shown By Failure of Korea Truce Group

Experience Should Help U.N. Talks Avoid Pitfalls of Inspection.

By GEORGE H. HALL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.

THE failure of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission in Korea illustrates the extreme difficulty of controlling arms without the element of good faith on the part of everyone concerned. The commission was set up under the July 27, 1953, armistice as a watch-dog agency to determine whether the terms of the truce were being carried out and to report the results of its inspections and observations to the top military armistice commission.

There were complaints from the beginning, particularly by the Republic of (South) Korea, that the commission could not carry out its duties because of the composition of its membership. A few days ago the functions of the commission were sharply cut back after South Korean demonstrations, in which several American soldiers were injured. Demonstrations and South Korean demands for total liquidation of the commission are continuing.

Although the current United States proposals for arms control do not contemplate an inspection system similar to that established in Korea, the Korean experience should be useful and significant in interpreting discussions now going on in the United Nations subcommittee on disarmament in New York.

Neutrality Questioned.

Membership of the Supervisory Commission in Korea was spelled out in the 1953 armistice document. It consists of representatives of Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia. The South Koreans, who were not parties to the agreement, asked how such a commission could be "neutral" when it was composed of two neutrals and two Communists.

The United Nations command and the Swiss and Swedes have accused the Communist members of frustrating effective inspections to conceal North Korean and Chinese Communist violations of the truce agreement. The South Koreans, in addition, accuse the Communist members and their assistants of espionage, although it is thought likely there has not been much spying since the Geneva Conference of May, 1954, when an Indochina truce was achieved.

To freeze the North-South status quo in Korea in 1953, 10 ports of entry were designated and the commission assigned inspection teams to check incoming and outgoing shipments of men and materials. Five of the ports were in the North and five in the South. By recent agreement between the Communists and the U.N. command two ports in each area were eliminated and the strength of the inspection teams reduced in those remaining.

Useless Inspections.

This will make the inspections even less useful than the ineffective ones in the past, if that is possible. The position of the United States is that the commission should be dissolved or its functions confined to the buffer zone between North and South, but this country has stated it will stand by its U.N. commitments. The Communists have wanted to retain the commission because, as Washington sees it, the arrangement provides them with a front of cooperation with neutrals. The South Koreans charge the Communists want to retain the commission because it is useful to their spy network.

Charges of violating the terms of the armistice have been made against the U.N. command by the Communists and against the Communists by the U.N. command. There seems little doubt, however, as to the relative merit of the charges and counter-charges and the weight of the evidence. The strong U.N. position is reinforced by that of the Swiss and Swedes on the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission.

Sharp Statement.

Under the date of May 4, 1954, Maj. Gen. Paul Mohn, Swedish member of N.N.S.C., and Brig. Gen. Ernst Gross, Swiss member, issued a statement unusually sharp for men in their position. The statement, a reply to Communist charges, said in part:

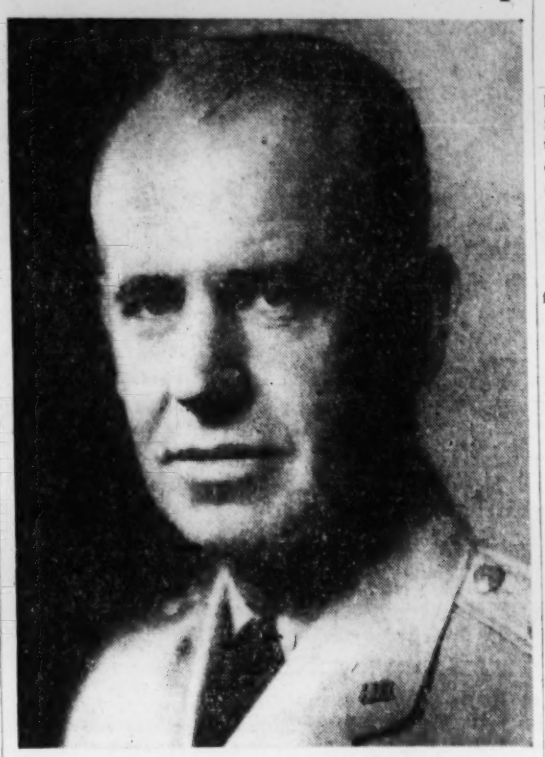

"The contention that the U.N. command side has obstructed and restricted the activities of the neutral nations inspection teams is utterly ridiculous. . . . There is no evidence whatever to show that the U.N. command side has increased its combat strength in Korea since the armistice agreement came into force.

"The charge that the U.N. command side has violated the provisions of the armistice agreement relating to the replacement of combat materiel piece-for-piece of the same effectiveness and the same type is merely a product of the imagination of the Czechoslovak and Polish members."

Generals Mohn and Gross set up a list of grievances which was picked up in part in statements delivered last July to the Military Armistice Commission by Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks of the United States Air Force, senior member of the U.N. command.

'Proof' of Partisanship.

In these M.A.C. meetings of July 5 and July 14 Gen. Parks presented what he held to be "extensive evidence to prove beyond any reasonable doubt the un-neutral and partisan attitude consistently demonstrated by the Czechs and Poles throughout the armistice period and their active collaboration with your (the Communist) side in thwarting any realistic investigation of the illegal buildup of your combat forces, particularly your air force."

United Press Telephoto.

MAJ. GEN. HARLAN C. PARKS

Neither of the Parks documents (the second was not released by the Pentagon until Aug. 23) received comprehensive publicity in the United States, nor did a tabulation of "truce violations" by the Communists and of alleged espionage and propaganda activities on the part of the Czech and Polish members of the N.N.S.C., published Aug. 11 in Seoul by the Republic of Korea government.

Gen. Parks told the M.A.C. it became evident shortly after the signing of the armistice that the Korean People's Army and the Chinese People's Volunteers (the Communist side) "were resorting to every possible subterfuge to avoid compliance" with the inspection provisions of the armistice.

Cites Protests.

Parks w— particularly incensed with Communist efforts to conceal the buildup of air strength in North Korea. He recited the history of protests against what the U.N. command termed the illegal introduction of MIG-type fighter planes subsequent to the signing of the armistice. The third such protest was made last Feb. 21.

Again, said Parks, the U.N. command asked in February for a mobile inspection team investigation of six airfields where MIG fighters were known to be based. Again, he went on, the Czech and Polish members of the N.N.S.C. "successfully stalled the dispatch of the teams for one week, enabling you (the Communists) to fly your MIGs away from the bases to be investigated and otherwise remove or hide incriminating evidence; that most of your MIGs were flown out was irrefutably established by our radar surveillance."

Last May 10 "illegally introduced" Communist aircraft attacked a U.N. command airplane over international waters, Parks continued, and a fourth charge and protest was lodged.

Deserters Take Plane.

Then last June 21, Parks continued, two officers of the Korean People's Armed Forces air force deserted, leaving Pyongyang, main airfield, and arriving at Seoul in a YAK-18 aircraft which had been brought to North Korea in April 1954. The two officers told the U.N. command what ruses the Communists employed to frustrate N.N.S.C. inspection teams.

Among these were:

The Communists flew aircraft away from fields to be inspected. They hid airplanes in ravines and sometimes dismantled the planes and concealed the parts. They stationed heavy guards about hiding places and arbitrarily reduced the boundaries of the fields. The Communists prepared false testimony by coaching probable witnesses and substituting political agents for military officers by switching insignias. They left newly-arrived aircraft in crates until after inspection.

The defectors said that the illegal buildup of the North Korean air force had been in progress since the armistice was signed and that as of last June there were more than 300 combat aircraft in service, most of them jet fighters of the MIG-15 type.

Combat Materiel Reports.

Parks said a tabulation of official reports showed that from July 28, 1953, to last May 31 the U.N. command submitted 1969 combat materiel reports covering movement of 16,141 combat aircraft, 2492 armored vehicles, 447,803 weapons and 608,386,231 rounds of ammunition.

In contrast, he said, during the same period the Korean People's Army and the Chinese People's Volunteers submitted 162 combat materiel reports, covering the movement of no combat aircraft, 245 armored vehicles, 144,808 weapons and 50,674,619 rounds of ammunition.

The Communist record of truce violations "stands as monumental evidence to the U.N. command and the free world of your (Communist) complete insincerity, dishonesty and utter lack of integrity," said Parks.

Communist Rebuttal.

In rebuttal, the Communists contended the Czech and Pole members of the N.N.S.C. had always adopted a neutral stand and had faithfully and impartially carried out their duties. Parks quoted at length from N.N.S.C. records in reply to the rebuttal.

Parks quoted Gen. Mohn as saying on one occasion that "since the inception of the commission the Czech and Polish members have not deviated one inch from the line traced by the Communist side or allowed themselves to direct even the mildest criticism against its actions or pronouncements."

In another N.N.S.C. meeting Gen. Mohn said of the attitude of the Czech and Polish members that "when an accusation is leveled against the U.N. command side, it is proved in advance that a violation has taken place, but when a violation is alleged against the Communist side, it is proved in advance that no violation has taken place."

Parks said the records of the N.N.S.C. as well as of its various inspection teams showed frequent deadlocks, the basis being "in the political creed of the Czechs and Poles which bound them to make decisions that would promote the Communist party line rather than a decision based on evidence."

Insanity Claimed.

Experiences of several mobile inspection teams were recounted by Parks. When a team at Taechon last March 10 tried to interview a Communist soldier who was on duty, the Communist liaison officer said:

"He is not belonging to this unit as he is also an insane people. He needs rest. Therefore he cannot be brought here."

On one occasion, it was said, Czech and Polish members of a mobile inspection team "attempted to uphold the fiction" that the Communist air force conducted normal operations, including gunnery practice and training flights, over a two-year period with little ammunition, no spare parts and no engine changes.

In the statements released earlier this month by the Korean Office of Public Information it was charged that the Soviet and Chinese Communists "deliberately infiltrated high-ranking Russian officers" into the N.N.S.C. and that under the disguised Russians, the Czechs and Poles busied themselves trying to obtain military secrets and distributing propaganda leaflets.

Installations Photographed.

The South Koreans listed 10 specific instances in which Poles or Czechs were alleged to have photographed defense installations, two instances in which they engaged in "subversive activities" and five instances in which they carried on "propaganda and agitation." These examples were said to have been culled from a list of more than 200 gathered by South Korean investigative agencies. Names, dates and places were set down. The South Koreans also listed 86 alleged violations of the truce.

What the next step will be in the history of the N.N.S.C. is not known but it is no secret that the United States would like to see an end to South Korean demonstrations on the ground they add an element of duress to the situation and make it more difficult to handle.

American proposals being presented to the U.N. disarmament subcommittee by Presidential Assistant Harold E. Stassen envisage a sort of alarm system that would give the Communists and the West the chance of protecting themselves against surprise attack.

To this end President Eisenhower suggested that this country and Soviet Russia exchange military blueprints and that each permit aerial inspection of the other's territory. This country's reliance for its security would be based on its capacity to retaliate with nuclear weapons, not on the inspection system as such.

Adoption of the Eisenhower inspection system, to which the Russians have not agreed, would be regarded as a start toward arms reduction.

1956 Campaign Is Opened by Both Parties

highs these spokesmen are going beyond purely labor matters, such as extension of unemployment pay and increase of the minimum wage to $1.25 an hour, to such new-fair deal proposals as extension of social security benefits, higher personal income tax exemptions, federal contributions to education and health and greater international co-operation.

There can be little question that labor leaders like presidents George Meany of the AFL and Walter J. Reuther of the CIO are more favorable to Democratic than Republican candidates although each insists that his organization is not wedded to any particular party. There will be a test of organized labor's effectiveness at the polls next year if and when the two largest organizations join later this year. Together these organizations will represent 15,000,000 workers, and in the words of Meaney, 50,000,000 voters. In some primaries and elections the AFL locals have supported one candidate, the CIO another. The combination should eliminate much of this friction and also make more effective the large contributions labor organizations give, mostly for Democratic candidates.

Personalities.

Next year's elections, presidential, congressional and local, will be influenced as much by the personalities of the candidates as by partisan principles and claims. Chairman Hall and his opposite number, Chairman Paul M. Butler of the Democratic National Committee are both using their most persuasive powers on local politicians to back younger and better equipped candidates. Butler is an Adlai Stevenson man just as Hall is for President Eisenhower, and each, as a professional politician, knows that a presidential candidate is helped or hurt by the rest of the ticket.

It would help solve the Republican organization's problem if the President would announce soon that he will stand for reelection. Several Republican gubernatorial and senatorial prospects have said privately they would seek public office if they were certain Mr. Eisenhower would be a candidate. He has said he will not disclose his plans until next year. His reasons for withholding his announcement are undoubtedly governmental as well as political. As soon as a President announces his intentions to seek a second term, he becomes an official target for partisan attacks. By postponing his announcement, the President may get more congressional support for his governmental recommendation than if he were an avowed candidate.

Stevenson's Intentions.

Stevenson's withholding of his announcement of intentions until November is apparently along the same lines but for intra-party reasons. When and if he announces that he will seek re-nomination he will become the official target of other aspiring Democrats and the non-aspirants who don't want him again at the top of the ticket. Once he has announced he will seek presidential honors he will have to express himself on national and international issues and his views may not find unanimous favor among the Democrats in Congress.

As of today, it looks as though the 1956 presidential race will again be between Messrs. Eisenhower and Stevenson, with the President taking Nixon again as his vice presidential candidate. No person or group in the Republican party can take the nomination from the President if he wants it or prevent the renomination of Nixon if the President backs him. The same cannot be said of Stevenson and the Democratic vice presidential nominee. The former Illinois Governor, as yet without a manager such as Gov. Averell Harriman has in New York with Carmine de Sapio, may have to fight for renomination over the opposition of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and a bloc of formidable Southern delegates. Even if he wins the nomination and is given a free choice he is not likely to take Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama again as his running mate. Sparkman did not prevent the loss of Texas, Virginia and Florida in the solid South and some other Southern border state Democrat is the expected choice for second place nomination next year.

G.O.P. Determined to Balance Budget Regardless of Defense

Humphrey's Goal Apparently One Billion, Which It Is Held Would Cut Into Bone of Program.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.

WHEN YOU READ about Gen. Nathan F. Twining making a "secret" trip to Defense Secretary Wilson's summer hideaway, or the Joint Chiefs of Staff flying to Denver, or Air Force Secretary Donald Quarles showing the Bureau of the Budget why further defense cuts are unwise—the following is what is behind the controversy.

The Eisenhower Administration is determined to balance the budget before the 1956 presidential campaign gets under way.

In order to balance the budget, there will have to be another appreciable cut in defense spending—perhaps as much as a billion dollars.

The pressure to balance the budget decisively, with a kitty big enough to justify a pre-election tax cut, is bound to mount over the coming months.

This pressure to balance the budget at all costs will come from two sources: (1) From those within the Administration who put budget-balancing ahead of all other things, and (2) from Republican Congressmen who believe that tax reduction is essential to the election of a Republican Congress next fall.

Factors to Bear in Mind.

It is unrealistic to think that on the eve of the election politics can be kept out of this debate. There can be modest economies in the military budget without sacrificing defensive strength. But the economies can easily go too deep. It won't be easy to adjudicate this argument even when the size of the cut-backs becomes known. These factors will need to be borne in mind:

1. The Republicans are going to balance the budget within the next nine months if they have to dig up the turf and sell the grass from the White House lawn. That's the mood in which they are approaching the task today and they are not prepared to rely on the uncertain prospect that, with business booming, increased revenue next year may automatically balance the budget. There will be powerful pressures within the Administration to force whatever cuts in spending are necessary to make it possible.

Would Cut Into Bone.

2. If defense spending is reduced by as much as one billion dollars over the next year, which is the objective Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey appears to have in mind, it will certainly carve into the bone of our defensive readiness. But to talk of balancing the budget without lowering defense goals would either be eyewash or self-deception or a bad combination of both. Unless inefficiency is rampant, serious reductions in defense spending would, it seems to me, have to be defended on the ground that our present level of military strength is no longer necessary.

3. We should know by the end of the year—as a result of the current United Nations disarmament commission discussions and as a result of the forthcoming meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in Geneva—whether the Kremlin is trying to melt the Western defenses with warm smiles or really desires to remove some of the causes of the cold war.

Major defense cuts would mean putting economy-for-its-own-sake ahead of defense.

Effect on Allies.

Certainly we can't expect that our less prosperous allies in NATO, where neutralist sentiment is stronger than it is in the United States, will keep up their defense budgets if we lead the way in cutting ours down before we know whether the Soviet Union wants to end the cold war or to only appear to end it.

At the moment the official spokesmen of the Pentagon are saying all the "correct" things. They are saying that our defense goals will not be lowered; they are saying that the program of achieving 137-wing air force by mid-1957 will not be touched.

But the Air Force is worried. It is a legitimate worry. The political motivation for balancing the budget and the pressure for economy-over-defense are going to mount and it will take an alerted public opinion to hold them in prudent check.

JAPANESE ROCKET CALLED SUPERIOR TO ATOM WEAPON

MATSUYAMA, Japan, Sept. 10 AP)—Shigemasa Sunada, defense board chief, said today Japan is conducting research on guided missiles that are superior to atomic weapons.

He told reporters experimental production might begin in 1956 or early 1957. Sunada gave no details other than to call the weapon a rocket.

Japan has been experimenting with two miniature rockets capable of twice the speed of sound. They reportedly have reached altitudes of 11 miles.

One is called the "pencil." It is nine inches long with a diameter approximately that of a fountain pen. The other, known as "the Baby," is three feet long with a 2.4-inch diameter.

Initial tests early this year were pronounced a success.

A spokesman said then that Japan hopes to develop rockets capable of five to six times the speed of sound and 275 miles altitude.

2 SPANISH PRINCES HURT IN SWISS AUTO ACCIDENT

VILLARS STE. CROIX, Switzerland, Sept. 10 (AP)—The two sons of Don Jaime, brother Don Juan, the pretender to the Spanish throne, were injured in an automobile accident here today.

The two princes, Alfonso, 19 years old and Gonzalo, 18, had driven their small Italian car from the French channel coast throughout the night to visit their grandmother, ex-Queen Victoria Eugenia of Spain, in Lausanne.

Police said they believed the driver fell asleep at the wheel and ran off the road at a curve. Neither was reported seriously hurt.

TEAM GETS PERMISSION TO TRY TO CLIMB LHOTSE

KATMANDU, Nepal, Sept. 10 (AP)—Nepal has granted permission to attempt to climb Lhotse, second highest peak of the Everest group, to an international expedition headed by Norman Dyrenfurth. The team originally planned to climb the Gyan Chung Koan peak, but were balked because the route to it goes through part of Red China.

New Novel by Author of 'The Caine Mutiny'

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch

THE decline of the live theater has brought no proportionate reduction in the number of young Americans who nurse a burning ambition to go on the stage. For that reason the central character in "Marjorie Morningstar," a new novel by Herman Wouk, is fairly typical. Marjorie also shares another prevalent trait of American adolescence in that she rejects automatically the pattern of life laid down for her by her respectable parents. The fact that she is Jewish alters her situation in no important respect, and the same may be said for Noel Airman.

On the face of it Airman is much more justified in assuming that he is destined for a brilliant career as a theatrical artist. Whereas Marjorie is pretty, charming, intelligent and talented enough to make an impression as an amateur performer, Noel wins a limited professional recognition almost at the start. He is handsome, brilliant, widely read, an engaging talker, a clever song writer who composes several hits while still in his twenties, and a perceptive stage director at summer camp theaters.

At bottom, however, they are strikingly similar. Both are in rebellion against the "philistines" without being fully qualified to stake out independent positions of their own.

Being an attractive girl, Marjorie has many suitors, but once she has met Noel Airman at a de luxe resort in the Catskills her life is dedicated to two main purposes. She will become a "star" and she will marry Noel Airman. At the moment of decision the second ambition promises nothing but failure. Noel attracts women by the shoals, is already a confirmed rake and is outspoken in his determination to avoid all domestic entanglements.

THE remainder of a longish novel is devoted to Marjorie's pursuit of her twin goals and to Noel's mercurial swings between near-success and complete demoralization. Noel's spiritual and philosophical oscillations make up the most interesting parts of the novel because they describe a genuine conflict between a tawdry bohemian freedom on the one hand and a recurrent desire to make some constructive use of his many talents. So the pathos of his career lies not in his failure to become another Noel Coward but in preferring such a goal largely because of its promised luxury and glamor.

MIDWAY in her tempestuous relations, with Noel the dedicated Marjorie realizes that Noel's professed philosophy — anti-respectable, anti-bourgeois, anti-religious—is just a negative print of the positive values in the pattern of Jewish family life that surrounded him in childhood. The same is true of herself though the print is not quite so bold.

Her fate, however, is even more ironic. Marjorie Morgensterne never becomes "Marjorie Morningstar," the name she has chosen to appear on a Broadway marquee; and when the dissolute Noel finally proposes marriage she no longer wants it. And at the final turn of the screw she winds up just where her parents wanted her to be in the first place.

The two main characters are discerningly revealed in all their complexity and though not wholly admirable they are never dull. The background of their adventures, modern New York with European and up-state detours, is also copiously described with special attention given to the Broadway theatrical scene and to middle-class Jewish family life.

MR. WOUK is entirely successful with his characters, and there are many. Noal Airman's brilliance and charm do not depend upon the mere assertion of the author. He talks and acts like an erudite charmer.

Strangely enough the pungent dialogue is often accompanied by dull and commonplace expository passages. In every respect, however, it is a plausible disclosure of modern life with connections and associations that show all the strength of its main compulsions.

It is scarcely necessary to say that Herman Wouk is also the author of "The Caine Mutiny." I have avoided this reference until now because the two novels are so dissimilar as to afford no basis of comparison.

AMERIGO AND THE NEW WORLD, by German Arciniegas. (Knopf, 323 pgs., $5.)

ALEXANDER NIVEN

THIS book comes one step nearer to the answer as to who discovered America. Columbus was always credited with the discovery of the New World, though he himself never believed so. The first man who called it the New World was a Florentine navigator, business man and agent Amerigo Vespucci. It was Amerigo who, according to his biographer, reached the American mainland one year before Columbus did.

The reader will not learn much about Amerigo Vespucci as there is very little known about the man himself. To fill the gaps author Arciniegas pads his book with a fascinating description of the world in which Amerigo lived and acted. Some of the most fascinating personages of the 15th century—King Ferdinand of Spain, Lorenzo de Medici, Domenico Ghirlandaio, Leonardo da Vinci, Columbus—help to make this book an absorbing study of the times rather than the life of Amerigo Vespucci.

It seems that the author's primary intention was to clear the doubtful reputation historians had ascribed to Amerigo and to prove that his voyages were indeed as epochal as Amerigo would have claimed them to be. Because of the lack of positive details concerning Amerigo as a person his name will still have to remain under suspicion for having chivvied his contemporary, Columbus, out of his due.

SHAKESPEAREANA

Now It Is Marlowe

THE MURDER OF THE MAN WHO WAS SHAKESPEARE, by Calvin Hoffman. (Julian Messner, Inc., 232 pgs., $3.95.)
SHAKESPEARE: THE LAST PHASE, by Derek Traversi. (Harcourt, Brace, 232 pgs., $4.75.)

ALEXANDER M. BUCHAN

HERE are two pieces of Shakespeareana of very different order of interest and merit. Mr. Hoffman's guess that the plays attributed to Shakespeare were the work of Christopher Marlowe has already received wide publicity in an article by Robert Heilbroner in Esquire of last December.

No similar fanfare will attend Mr. Traversi's study of Shakespeare's poetic symbolism, but his kind of analysis, steeped in a feeling for the idiom of Elizabethan speech, is becoming a valuable part of academic scholarship. It is fortunately taking the place of the weary Teutonic philosophizing that dominated the study of Shakespeare for too long.

For Mr. Hoffman it may be said that, though one may cavil at many of the arguments by which he backs up his guess, he did not begin his investigation by donning a set of literary blinders, as the Baconians and Oxfordians have always done. He was honestly puzzled by facts that the scholars cannot readily account for—the relationship of Marlowe's work to Shakespeare's, the paucity of details about Shakespeare as a writer, the peculiar circumstances of Marlowe's death as uncovered by Professor Hotson, the innumerable items of Quarto and Folio research that are being reassessed by students year after year.

He put all the bits of his bewilderment together and came up with a hunch—that if Marlowe was not stabbed to death in 1593 he might be the writer of the Shakespeare plays, having shown tremendous dramatic and poetic power while still a young man. Proving this hunch, however, is a bigger job than having it, and the weight of evidence still leans heavily against it.

AFTER all the parallel passages have been read—and Marlowe and Shakespeare did employ what might be called a "common idiom"—a reader of Mr. Hoffman's book reaches a definite decision, that not one shred of objective evidence is given to indicate that Chris Marlowe was alive after 1593.

He was exiled, according to this thesis, to protect him from execution for atheism and misconduct. He dared not set foot in England, so that plays he wrote were sent to Thomas Walsingham, were copied by a scrivener, and so found their way to London over the name of a nondescript actor and owner of real estate named Wm. Shakespeare. If, that is to say, he was not killed . . .

It is true that the England of the Armada period, before and after, was a fantastic world of plot and counterplot, as Mr. Conyers Read has shown in his three-volume study of Thomas Walsingham's brother Francis and Elizabeth's ministers generally. Such a deception as Mr. Hoffman conceived might have been practiced. But until one concrete bit of proof appears of Marlowe's surviving his "murder" — proof apart from the plays themselves or an interpretation of them, scholars are bound to remain attached to the traditional theory of authorship.

Unfortunately, too, in his enthusiasm for a case, Mr. Hoffman runs away with his evidence. He labors, for instance, the point that the dagger of Frizer, Marlowe's murderer, hung "at his back," a circumstance that cannot be read into the coroner's account. He grossly underestimates Shakespeare's opportunities for gaining an education. And his use of parallel passages indicates no strong feeling for the kind of language that all of the Elizabethan dramatists tossed around in a vainglorious manner.

WITH Mr. Traversi the reader is in another world, one of dramatic and poetic meanings to be found in the last three plays of the Shakespeare canon "Cymbeline," "The Winter's Tale," and "The Tempest" and in the uncertain play, "Pericles." It has been customary to regard these plays as a falling-off from the high level of accomplishment of the great tragedies.

Mr. Traversi thinks not, discovering in them a symbolic handling of plot and character and an "interwoven texture of imagery" that crown and complete the dramatist's profound understanding of life.

Through the plays he traces a theme of loss leading to reconciliation, of conflict between human passion and a reasoned way of living, of wisdom gained by suffering and an ultimate harmony to be achieved. Because he has a rare sensitiveness that draws meaning out of the speeches, line by line and image by image, he brings into clear focus for any reader a gleam of the brilliance of the "cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces" of the old familiar dramas.

Written by Shakespeare, as one continues obstinately to believe, or by another, the plays are richer for what Mr. Traversi discovers in them.

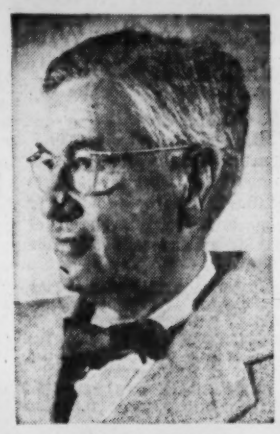

Three Stout Libertarians

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS, by William L. Chenery. (Harcourt, Brace and Co., 256 pgs., $3.75.)
BILL OF RIGHTS READER: LEADING CONSTITUTIONAL CASES, compiled and edited by Milton I. Konvitz. (Cornell Press, 591 pgs., $6.50.)
THE DIARY OF A PUBLIC SERVANT, by Martin Merson. (The Macmillan Co., 171 pgs., $3.)

IRVING DILLIARD

FEW Americans can write about our historic freedoms, including freedom of the press, out of a more qualifying experience than William L. Chenery. A native of Thomas Jefferson's Virginia, Mr. Chenery took his heritage of liberty to Chicago where he entered journalism in the heyday of Sherwood Anderson, Carl Sandburg, Lloyd Lewis, Henry Justin Smith, and Harry Hansen.

Then as editor of the editorial page of the Rocky Mountain News, in Denver, he wrote an editorial, "The Massacre of the Innocents," on the bitter coal strikes, that brought him to the attention of the nation. After serving on the public information committee at the Paris Peace conference after World War I, he first became associate editor of the New York Globe and then managing editor of the New York Sun.

WILLIAM L. CHENERY

Thus trained in daily journalism, Mr. Chenery began in 1925 a quarter century association with Collier's Magazine, for 18 years as editor and for seven as publisher. In that long span, he struck many a hard, solid blow for the liberties he writes about in this positive, vigorous book.

For while Mr. Chenery calls his book, "Freedom of the Press," he writes about all our freedoms—speech, religion, press and assembly. He is for them all and vigorously. These freedoms are what has made America great and Mr. Chenery has no use for weak-kneed politicians who are afraid to take their stand for liberty for fear of offending some demagogue who is supposed to have the public's ear.

HERE is a sample of his stouthearted utterance:

"Up to now the only danger has come from the reactionary politicians and their supporters who would deny their fellow citizens the benefits of their constitutional guarantees. American Communists have never been able to muster a corporal's guard. Imperialistic autocrats from without have been vanquished and their military power destroyed when they made war upon a people armed by a willingness to defend their own.

"The only important enemies of American liberties are those who, with the politician McCarthy, have tried to take away from us the historic privilege of examining all doctrines and of holding even to a false one until we had satisfied ourselves of its folly.

"Those who deny their fellow citizens the constitutional privilege of being wrong as well as right are themselves the only significant un-Americans. Those who from the privileged position of Congress, and particularly of the Senate, speak contemptuously of constitutional immunities that belong to all citizens are themselves the fifth column, or the Trojan horse deceptively brought in to confuse the people and so to take away their inheritance."

Mr. Chenery does not overlook the newer forms of communication — movies, radio and television. He discusses "The Miracle" censorship case and takes his stand for fullest freedom here, too. A minor point is that while he has a good chapter on the service to freedom of the press of John Peter Zenger of colonial times, he does not mention Elijah Parish Lovejoy, who gave his life in defense of his press at Alton, Ill., in 1837.

THE second book is a most valuable collection of court decisions — mostly from the Supreme Court—in cases arising under the Bill of Rights. The compiler is a professor in the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University and the book is published in the series known as the Cornell Studies in Civil Liberties, of which the Rockefeller Foundation is financial sponsor and Cornell's distinguished Robert E. Cushman is advisory editor.

Prof. Konvitz is also a stout libertarian who believes that "the history of liberty is the history of resistance." He writes also that, apropos the opinions of Justices Black, Douglas, Rutledge and Murphy, that "the dissenting opinion often is, if not the candle itself, the match that lights the candle."

The editor presents splendid summaries of facts and background. In his discussion of "The Miracle" case, for example, he shows how the Rosselini film that Cardinal Spellman caused to be banned in New York, was sympathetically reviewed on the Vatican City's L'Osservatore Romano and exhibited widely in Italy and viewed there without boycott before it was brought to this country.

MARTIN MERSON'S book relates his experience as a lawyer-business man "on loan" to the International Information Agency in Washington, as a right-arm to Dr. Robert Johnson. They went to the job together, in 1953, got off on the wrong foot, came up against the McCarthy influences for five months and then pulled out. About all the guidance they could get was not to offend the Senator from Wisconsin. When they went to see then Assistant Secretary of State, Gen. Bedell Smith, to get his help, they discovered that the curried lamb dinner he was preparing was for the man who was busy wrecking the Government's overseas information program.

The one clearest conclusion from this story of the disillusion of one business man (Dixie Cup Co.) is that chief responsibility for the McCarthy mess rests on the top echelon of the Eisenhower Administration which was afraid to come to grips with Senator McCarthy.

Messrs. Johnson and Merson finally joined the issue on book burning, and Mr. Merson recalling it writes: "I was proud. We had managed to push Dulles and Eisenhower into the ring with McCarthy."

French Poet's Life Warmly, Vividly Told

APOLLINAIRE, by Marcel Adema, translated from the French by Denise Folliot. (Grove Press, 298 pgs., $3.75.)

Reviewed by
WILL WHARTON

THERE could be no more interesting biographical subject than Guillaume Apollinaire, for as a writer he sums up a flowering interlude of experimentation following the breaking of the shackles of Romanticism.

Born in Rome, and out of wedlock, of Polish mother and Italian father, he first appeared on the scrolls as Guillaume Dulcigni, but was baptized Wilhelm de Kostrowitzky. When he was 17 his still unwed mother moved to Paris and there after some years of writing he adopted the pen name by which he is known.

From his entry into Paris until his death at 38, Apollinaire was never free of economic pinch. He kept himself alive by journalism and the writing of pornographic novels under pseudonyms. With more leisure, he might have been a more significant poet, but the account of his active life as a writer makes his biography fascinating.

He wrote plays, novels and criticism as well as verse. Always the champion of the new, he fostered cubism and surrealism and as an art critic was the first to encourage Picasso. His first collection of verse was illustrated by Raoul Dufy.

Of necessity he was a Bohemian, in the current sense of a person whose budget does not allow for high rentals. At one time we find him living in an apartment on the sixth floor, without benefit of elevators, but neither Pablo Picasso nor Jean Cocteau was averse to climbing those flights, for Apollinaire punctuated his flow of witticisms with trips to the kitchen where with the same discriminating craftsmanship applied to his verse, he seasoned his delightful Italian, Greek and Chinese recipes.

HOW sad that the first phase of World war should have given Apollinaire maturity and stability, only to take him away before he could fully utilize this rounding-out of his personality. Enlisting as a private because of disappointment over a love affair, he eventually volunteered for front line duty in order to obtain the rank of lieutenant and the badly needed extra income. But a shrapnel wound fractured his skull.

The resultant complications lowered his resistance. In the midst of a new literary career that he was sandwiching between the duties for the Ministry of Information given him because of his disabilities, he died of influenza but two days before the Armistice. "I want to live!" he cried to the doctors attending him. Alas, just when he had found himself, he must go.

M. Adema's biography so vividly pictures the plump, witty, warmhearted poet — the improved, Gallic Goethe —that we seem to be with him in his succession of shabby, albeit Picasso-decked studio-apartments, in his constant tumult of manifestos, new magazines, new literary movements and stormy play premieres.

One Aim, Many Voices

THE UNITY OF KNOWLEDGE, edited by Lewis Leary. (Doubleday & Co., 306 pgs., $5.)

HERE are the 18 essays prepared under this general heading for Columbia's bicentennial celebration. Among the contributors are Etienne Gilson, Niels Bohr, Julian Huxley, John von Neumann, Archibald MacLeish, Detlev Bronk, Robert Penn Warren and Charles H. Malik. They represent the chief disciplines of learning from literature to science, and so do not speak with one voice. Nor are the essays intended to produce a monolithic manifesto. As the editor says, the most important thing about them is that men of different countries and different fields were willing and able to voice their opinions in this way under the auspices of a democratic university.

Dad's Aches That Aspirin Can't Cure

THIS IS GOGGLE, by Bentz Plagemann. (McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc., 243 pgs., $3.50.)

JOHN KEASLER

THIS is the author's account of Life with Son. Plagemann is the father and Goggle is the son. It is a funny, and moving, story of the everlasting—and entirely futile—attempt of the man to remember the boy; of the father's effort to figure out just what in hades DOES go on in the head of his son.

Bentz Plagemann left a tiny boy at home when he went into the Navy and he came home in 1946, after five years of war, to be confronted with a 10-year-old, one Goggle by name. The name Goggle, which was the first thing the boy said when he tried to talk, was the same. But nothing else was.

This man, Plagemann, had never seen a 10-year-old boy before. Nobody, he wrote, has actually seen a 10-year-old boy unless they actually have one around the house. ("And if you are the parent of one," the author said, "never ask for whom the policeman calls; he calls for thee.")

The story, written with unobtrusive understanding and with a fine sense of quiet hysteria, takes Goggle, no sissy type he, on up into his teens — at which point the author leaves off with a note of mingled optimism and tightly crossed fingers about what his son will do with life, and vice versa.

There's some hilarity in bringing a boy from 10 to the teens; Plagemann makes that clear. There is also heartache, along with the headaches that sneer at Aspirin.

"What did you bring me?" were the first words of the son to the warrior home from the wars. The author said that in less than 24 hours he could understand the worried line between the eyes of Kate, his wife. A boy was in the house.

"He had stubby black hair like hog bristles," Plagemann wrote. "His nails were worn down below the quick and there was a wart just below his right elbow. He walked on his heels the way small boys do, especially barefooted, and especially on Saturday mornings when Papa wanted to sleep . . . he was always soiled but never what you might call dirty . . . looking at him, you knew you'd never again in your whole life be as clean as he was."

HIS room, of course, was chaos. His goings and comings were strange and disturbing. The four-letter-word stage caused adults to blanch. He grew. And grew. And grew. "Babies fool you," Plagemann noted. "They look so permanent."

The child psychologists got in their licks, with no more effect than usual; theory and practice being different. The inevitable air-rifle crisis came and the hot breath of juvenile court seemed close on Plagemann's neck. Then came Goggle's conviction his father was an alcoholic, the ruin of a man in his late thirties poisoning his tissues with gin, because of the before-dinner martini, or so.

The first separation came; the boy went off to school. And on visiting day the one-time grubby little hellion inspected his parents carefully — and Plagemann put this in italics—to see if they were properly dressed!

You won't find much in this book that doesn't happen to any father whose son grows up. You will find perception and awareness in the telling. And, if you happen to be a parent caught up in the whirlwind of growth under your roof, you'll also find a well-written reiteration of a fact so easy to forget: You aren't alone.

SOUTH VIET NAM PREMIER SAYS NATION IS STABLE

Diem Assails Defeatists, Thanks U.S. for Moral and Material Assistance.

BY EARNEST HOBERECHT

SAIGON, Sept. 10 (UP)—South Viet Nam Premier Ngo Dinh Diem today said his government was independent, firmly established and making progress and strongly denounced those "defeatists" who "predicted doom" for his nation.

In an interview, the Premier expressed "tremendous appreciation" for both the moral and material assistance given his country by the United States.

He said relations with the French — once the colonial rulers of his nation—were improving and said with the aid of friendly powers, including the free nations of Asia, he was making progress against the Communists and improving living conditions for his people.

Explains In Detail.

The Premier explained in detail his views on important subjects connected with Viet Nam and made these points:

1. His government did not sign the Geneva agreement which calls for among other things north-south elections. "However we are for all peaceful means which tend to unify the country." Unfortunately Communists have tried to use terms of the Geneva agreement to advocate talks supposedly to prepare for elections but actually to further their propaganda aims. It is "undesirable" to hold a conference such as Communist Vietminh advocates.

2. "There is no truth to reports" that the Communists are taking over South Viet Nam now by infiltration. It is a fact that the Communists left agents in the south when they withdrew, but many people have turned against them and they have been unable to carry out their objectives.

3. "We want Viet Nam to be a true democracy" so as soon as the census is finished at the end of the month preparations will be made for free elections of a national assembly. Even refugees from the north, who number nearly a million, will be allowed to vote.

4. In South Viet Nam there are many sects. "I am not opposed to these sects but I am opposed to the armed bands which some have set up and which are endeavoring to set themselves up as feudal lords contrary to the tradition of our country. They have taken advantage of the war. We have taken action against them and people have welcomed this—welcoming our forces as liberators. The sect bands are not a problem now and we can extend our reforms to distant parts of the country."

Wanted Full Independence.

5. "When at first I wanted full independence in spirit as well as in fact some French who had colonial ideas were not happy. So I had not a few difficulties. We had to move step by step to recover the attributes of our national independence. Backward French and the French press were full of prophesies of doom. But now these people can judge for themselves what has happened—and relations with the French are getting better now."

6. "The United States has been our greatest friend. She had helped us in moments of greatest difficulty. That is why the impression of the people is very deep for that great democracy. Without help from the United States, the exodus of refugees from the north would not have been possible and I could not have resettled so many people. In all fields the support, help and co-operation of American experts has helped us and gradually our country has moved toward recovery."

7. "We have many friends in Asia. Assistance from the Philippines, Thailand and Korea is tremendously appreciated. We always shall remember our Asian friends who were sympathetic and who helped us when we were threatened by Communist action."

8. "I think Bao Dai will always stay in France. As for his fate—that will be up to the people themselves to decide."

MEMORIAL SERVICES HERE FOR MRS. WALDO A. LAYMAN

Memorial services for Mrs. Waldo A. Layman, widow of a former president of Wagner Electric Co., will be at 3 p.m. Thursday at Pilgrim Congregational Church, 826 Union boulevard.

Mrs. Layman died of infirmities Thursday in Asheville, N. C., friends here learned yesterday. She was 86 years old. Her husband was president of the electric firm from 1898 to 1927. When he retired, he went to Chicago as an industrial consultant until 1947. He died in Clearwater, Fla., in October 1950.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Edward F. Deacon, Asheville; Mrs. Henry G. Isaacs, Coral Gables, Fla.; Mrs. Keen N. Brundage, Whittier, Calif.; and Mrs. G. Donald Gibbins, Ladue; and a sister, Miss Eva L. Toms, St. Petersburg, Fla. Private funeral services will be held here.

FALL GUY FOR AN OLD GAG; SAWS LIMB HE'S SITTING ON

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 10 (UP)—A tree limb blowing against his house so annoyed Pullman porter Benjamin Morris at 1 a.m. today that he finally got out of bed, got a saw and climbed the tree to cut off the branch.

Morris is back in bed again—a hospital bed. He got on the wrong side of the limb when he started sawing. However, the hospital reported he was not seriously hurt.

Text of Eisenhower's Speech to G.O.P. Chairmen: 'Don't Believe We Are Dependent on One Man'

He Advises Them to 'Get Hold of Something That Shines in Our Faces.'

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

DENVER, Sept. 10 (UP). Text of President Eisenhower's remarks to the Republican chairmen as made public by the summer White House:

THANK you very much, gentlemen. This is a special group and of course I feel especially honored at the privilege of meeting you. I understand that you are just new graduates, and I must say, in a way, it's the strangest kind of commencement exercise for me to attend, although I have made a number of commencement addresses.

What strikes me is this: Governmental service is the temporary privilege of some people. But what you are doing is exercising the inherent right and performing the basic duties of citizenship. Every citizen owes it to himself and his country to participate individually, or, of course, through a political organization, in making certain that our country goes in the direction that conforms to his ideals and hopes for that government—for that country.

Political Philosophy.

Now, if you will forgive me, instead of jumping into farm problems and Geneva problems, and things of that kind, which are discussed interminably, I am going to talk just a little bit of philosophy this morning—political philosophy. That is because of a very deep and abiding belief that if a political party is not held together by a common faith, a common conviction, in certain fundamentals, then it is not a true political party, but it is merely a conspiracy to gain power.

If we are not held together by a cause, then we are not making of ourselves an agency to help the United States of America. It is merely another form of gaining distinction for ourselves, to get ourselves a pat on the back, and to appear important.

Now, the text I am going to take is one with which you are completely familiar. You have all used it a thousand times. But whether or not we have stopped to think sufficiently of what it means is another story.

Lincoln concluded his Gettysburg address: ". . . that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

The first thing I want to bring out is that he recognized that the possibility of this type of government perishing is always with us, and it is still with us.

The experiment in free government that was started by our founding fathers is still going on, and it will go on to the end of time, because the law of change is the law of life. No established philosophy or doctrine set up in 1787 could possibly apply in its detail today as it did then. It will be the same a hundred years hence.

"Of the people." Just exactly what do you think of when you say "government of the people?"

I think, in a simple sort of way, we could say "of the people" doesn't mean a government for farmers, of labor bosses, of smart politicians, of business men, or of anybody else. It means a government of all types and classes of people, regardless of race or color or religion or everything else that tends to separate us in our social and ordinary lives. It means a government which, in its whole constitution, its whole concept and its aims, takes in the thoughts, the purposes, the ideals, the aspirations and the problems of today and 165 years ago.

And "by the people," really means that every individual is participating in that government. Remember, Lincoln defined this government in three ways: Of, by and for, implying that if the people did not exercise their right to govern, it shall perish from the earth.

In the national elections, something like a little over 50 per cent of all qualified electors vote and in state and local actions, I am told that it is frequently as low as 25 per cent.

Well, government by the people would seem to be not flourishing as well as it should. Some politician some years ago said that bad officials are elected by good voters who do not vote.

If we are going to have government by the people, then the man who is trying to exercise his rights and duties as a citizen makes certain that others are voting—not only in order to promote the fortunes of his own political life, but to make sure that this type of government shall not perish from the earth.

A Tortured Phrase.

Now, what did he mean by "for the people?"

It seems to me here is one of the tall riddles of free government. "For the people": we have seen the phrase "tortured by demagogic types" to mean that an over-wise and overbusy governmental bureaucracy takes over all the functions of living. They say, "Now go on, boys, do just what you are told and we will take care of the 165,000,000 people." And they tortured the general welfare clause of the Constitution.

I don't believe that is what Lincoln meant at all. If we are for the people, which means for the individual as such, we go first to the ten first amendments of the Constitution—to the Bill of Rights. That was written for the people. That Bill of Rights does not guarantee to each of us a profitable living. It guarantees to each of us an equal opportunity with all others to earn our living for ourselves and for our families, and to protect our future.

We could discuss further what we mean by "for the people," but I refer to another quotation of Lincoln's which was generally to this effect: The function of government is to do for the people what the individual cannot do at all, or do so well for himself, and in all those things which the individual can do for himself, the government ought not to interfere.

As President Sees Aims.

Now I think today that is as good a presentation of the Republican case as I know how to make. It puts it in terms and in words that all of us not only understand, but which we can make others understand.

In attempting to summarize the philosophy of the Republican party, I, myself have sometimes used such phrases as moderate progressive and dynamic conservative, because we want to be known for what we are, the party of progress. And if we are the party of progress, we must be the party of peace and prosperity, because this is implicit in the term "progress."

But I don't believe that you can sloganize the kind of honest philosophy that the Republican party is trying to promote in the United States. If we can live by that philosophy, however, then I think we have proved our worthiness to be the instrument through which the people of the United States carry on the job of government—of the people, by the people, and for the people. And representative government shall not perish from the earth.

We have a great cause for which to fight. Possibly this manner of cause, something in which you believe, is deeper with an old soldier than it is with some. In the military life you are required to study whole campaigns, the careers of leaders—how did they think, how did they produce the things they wanted?

One man who always attracted me because of his military career, rather than anything else, was old Cromwell. Cromwell's army had the sternest and toughest discipline of any army that I know of in the world. It had been the belief that if you had that kind of discipline, you couldn't have enthusiasm. But he had it. He sent his Roundheads into battle singing hymns and chopping off the heads of Cavaliers. Why? Because they believed in something. He told them, by golly, if you are going to fight under the Roundheads you will go straight to Heaven; and whatever your desires were, you got them. He taught them to believe in something.

Now, what I am trying to get at is how do we get hold of something that we believe in so much that it shines in our faces every time we say it to anybody else?

It is not only what we believe. It is what we believe we live for. We say "for God and country." Our country was organized and defined, when you come down to it, on a very fervent and firm basic religious faith. Our founding documents maintained the only way you could explain our form of government was because "man was endowed by his Creator." On this principle our cause is founded.

How do we convince the people that we are for a cause? How do we go about this thing, believing in it as fervently as we do? How do we get the people to accept it and put into power the people who will exemplify and practice that kind of doctrine?

Like a Battle Plan.

Well now, again you will have to let me go back to the military.

After all, I have been in it much more than I have the political. Before every great battle, the commander gets together his corps commanders. This group here this morning numbers 48. I suppose it would be comparable to the number of corps commanders I had, finally, in the European campaign.

Now, to the corps commanders, the commander explains his plans. Everybody is indoctrinated. It is supposed to be a very useful performance.

But gentlemen, could you imagine a battle—and some of you here in this room were probably in the very campaigns of which I am talking—if the commanders all knew everything about what was going to be done, and they were all doing it, and they were all dedicated, and it started on down there and finally got down to where there wasn't a corporal in the whole business that knew his job? You will forgive me for using military terms. Getting this information through the ranks is the corps commander's job.

Now, in volunteering for the work you have undertaken, you have undertaken one of the highest forms of duty which an American citizen performs. You are also taking on the tough job, just like a corps commander in battle, of making sure that his organization is ready to carry the fight right down on through. In your case, that means from the state chairman to the district chairman and the precinct chairman and all the workers in the ranks—and to each individual.

Emphasis on the People.

Unless you can take the fervor that you have, and carry it back to your state, and conduct the same effective campaign schools there—make sure that the spirit and know-how is going right on down through—it is all in vain. If you do the job right, it is government by the people. Let's emphasize people, not just us—not just a bunch of politicians seeking office.

So the object in the organization of a political party comes down to: How can I get to the last man living in my block, my apartment house? How can I get to him? Well, if you can get to him with your conviction, with your belief, with your fervor, with the leadership that you have exhibited by getting where you are today in this organization, you can win any election in the country. You can go down and reach that 50 per cent of people who do not vote and get them to believe in some of the things that you believe in your own heart. The thing is done.

And incidentally, while I have been forbidden to mention this subject by your chairman, I will bring up for a moment the question of one man and one man's value.

Now, I just want to point out to you that I greatly appreciated your telegram, particularly where you said, "I like Ike more than ever." May I return the compliment and say that when I see these faces before me, I like the Republican party more than ever.

But we don't believe for a minute that the Republican party is so lacking in inspiration, high quality personnel and leadership, that we are dependent on one man. We don't believe it for a minute.

Now as long as we have a man in the leadership position, why of course, as a party, we are going to be loyal, we are going to help in the fight.

But humans are frail—and they are mortal. Finally—you never pin your flag so tightly to one mast that if a ship sinks you cannot rip it off and nail it to another. It is sometimes good to remember that.

So I suggest that as a party everybody on down the line pledge to get a new recruit—a youngster—and make him a member of the party. Now, if you will carry that idea far enough, making each party member a vote-seeker as well as a voter, you have got elected a president of the United States.

The job of getting people really wanting to do something is the essence of leadership. And one of the things a leader needs occasionally is the inspiration he gets from the people he leads. The old tactical textbooks say that the commander always visits his troops to inspire them to fight. I for one soon discovered that one of the reasons for my visiting the front lines was to get inspiration from the young American soldier. I went back to my job ashamed of my own occasional resentments or discouragements, which I probably—at least I hope I concealed them.

'You Can Build for Long Pull If You Get Real Youngsters,' President Says.

The young American in action is something to inspire anybody. If you get these young men of zeal and vigor, pep and tireless energy, get them on your side and get them to going, you just have to keep a light rein on them, you don't have to use a spur or whip.

Let me give you a very quick application of this principle of getting young recruits. If you get a recruit my age, I am lucky if I can vote in two presidential elections. But if you get a recruit at 21, he can vote for you in 12 or 15. You can build for the long pull if you get the real youngsters.

Now gentlemen, I know you have discussed the problems—domestic and foreign—of the times. They are important. The National Committee will continue to give you literature that analyzes and shows what the Administration is trying to do, working with the leadership in the Congress, to bring these things about. All those things will be coming to you. That is the ammunition for your guns, to show that you are working for the people, and that the party is of the people, and you are trying to get that kind of thing done by the people.

But underneath it all, just remember that the cause for which you are working is: To make certain that government is to do for the people those things which they cannot do themselves, or so well do, but we are not going to interfere with those things which are the proper province of the individual. With your other ammunition, you have got something that you can carry to the voters with a grin on your face. And for heaven's sake, don't forget the value of a grin. Pessimism never won a battle.

One more point: There is no such thing as a hopeless state, or a hopeless district. They are Americans, aren't they? The harder the fight in your state, in your district—wherever it is—the harder you ought to fight. You don't go into a battle and say to one division or one corps, "Oh, we don't care if you fight. Just stand there. It's all right. We know it's pretty tough stuff over there." You get everybody to operate for a common objective.

If you just increase the Republican vote by, let us say, 15 per cent over what it was before in these difficult localities, you make the Republican party that much more respected there, and you increase the prospects of state victories.

Assails Defeatism.

So I just ask each one, don't believe in political defeatism. We have got a positive program, to develop, exploit, exemplify, the philosophy that Lincoln taught us. That is the positive thing. That means not merely in Kansas, or Pennsylvania, or Colorado, or anywhere else—but throughout the U.S.A.

Again, gentlemen, I refer to the telegram you sent me, and your expression of confidence.

To fail to say that I am complimented by such action on your part, fail to say that I am grateful, would be inexcusable. Of course I am. Any American would like to think that he has the confidence of his fellow Americans when he is trying to do a tough job. But, again I say, this country, this party, is not only big—it overshadows every individual and any individual in it.

We must set as a goal the extra 15 per cent of recruits that we need—and are going to have—to make this party a perpetual agency for carrying out the kind of doctrine that Lincoln taught us, for the benefit of our children and all our grandchildren.

I overlooked one thought: your attention to the character and quality of your candidates in every district. I mean not only presidents and vice presidents, particularly—but gubernatorial, senatorial, congressional candidates — right on down.

Did you ever stop to think how important it is to a man to know who his councilman is going to be, or the type of man running for mayor? If the councilman is a personable and fine fellow, with a lot of vigor and ability, and you get him out where people can see him, I would say that that would be a reinforcing and an implementation of your leadership that would be most effective in the state and national contests.

Thank you very much.

WEARS STRAW HAT 3 YEARS — SPARES PARK OPERA RAIN

William Zalken, publicity director of the Municipal Opera, has insurance, in the form of a straw hat, against rain at performances of the Opera. It hasn't rained enough to cancel any performance to which he wore the hat in the last three years, he says.

It all started in August 1952 when a performance was rained out. Zalken bought the hat, and at show times from then on the weather was fair and the stars were out. Seeing Zalken with the same old straw, week in and week out, at least became too much for Paul Beisman, the manager, and he told him so last June 10. That night it rained.

Back came the hat. It rained again July 23, but Zalken isn't counting that one. The downpour started before he and hat arrived.

NLRB DECISION ON UNIONS AS EMPLOYERS IS APPEALED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals here has been asked to overrule a National Labor Relations Board decision that a union, in its capacity as an employer, is not subject to the Taft-Hartley law bar on unfair labor practices.

The AFL Office Employes Union, and its Local 11 at Portland, Ore., yesterday petitioned the court to set aside the 3-2 opinion by the NLRB Aug. 23 that unions in such cases are covered by its policy against taking cases involving nonprofit organizations.

The case that brought the ruling involved an AFL Teamsters Union subdivision in Portland, charged with unfair labor practices toward its own employes.

STEVENSON ARRIVES IN HAITI FOR VISIT--TO TOUR MINES

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 10 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson arroved here today for a four-day visit. He was accompanied by Richard Reynolds, president of the Reynolds Mining Co., and a party of friends and relatives.

The 1952 Democratic presidential candidate plans to tour the Reynolds bauxite mining operations in south Haiti, and President Paul E. Magloire is expected to receive the visitors.

The party arrived in Reynold's private plane.

BLAST AT SITE OF HUGE FIRE

WHITING, Ind., Sept. 10 (UP)—An explosion and fire smashed a building tonight in the Standard Oil plant which two weeks ago was ripped by a $10,000,000 fire. Seven persons were injured, none seriously, when the blast tore through a clay oil filtering building.

More than three hours after the explosion at 7:24 p.m. flames still swept the brick building. However, plant fire marshal Frank A. Horlbeck said the blaze was under control and hemmed in.

$445 IN PRIZES AWARDED AT KIRKWOOD ART FAIR

Prizes totaling $455 were awarded yesterday at the Kirkwood Homecoming Open Air Art Fair, which will reopen today at 11 a.m. south of the tennis courts in Kirkwood Park. The Kirkwood homecoming parade, rained out yesterday, will begin today at 2 p.m. at Clay and Woodbine avenues.

Prizes of $100 each went to Philip Gronemeyer and Bill Morgan. Other winners: Robert Walker, $75; Fred James Carpenter, Douglas Brown and Al Gruer, $25 each; Harold Poth, Robert Solomon and Douglas Brown, $15 each; Rick Koesterer, Maurine Murch, Virginia Moberly Schlueter and G. Ashen, $10 each.

These, numerous $5 awards and other prizes making a total of $660 will be presented at the fair today at 3 p.m. by Kirkwood Mayor William Berthold. There will be demonstrations of sketching, carving and craftwork by a number of the exhibitors throughout the afternoon.

MOTORISTS URGED TO USE CAUTION, PROTECT CHILDREN

Motorists were urged to exercise extra caution to protect school children crossing streets and highways in a statement issued yesterday by Col. Hugh Waggoner of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

Last year, 63 children under 15 years old were killed and 1217 were injured in rural traffic accidents in the state, he said. He asked drivers to be especially careful when driving near children because some of them have not learned to watch out for themselves.

Col. Waggoner also reminded motorists that it is their responsibility to stop when a school bus is loading or discharging passengers.

Temperatures 14 in Canada.

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 10 (AP)—Winter moved into Canada's prairie provinces today. Temperatures dropped to as low as 14 degrees at Whitecourt, 115 miles northwest of here, and it was 19 at Medicine Hat. Calgary got an inch of snow yesterday and last night, but it melted as it hit the streets.

MALAYA RED TERRORIST TAKES AMNESTY OFFER

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya, Sept. 10 (UP)—One of Malaya's most dangerous Communist terrorists and his guerrilla girl friend walked out of a jungle swamp today to accept amnesty terms offered by Britain.

The couple was among the first four Red insurgents to accept Britain's terms. Two other terrorists surrendered in remote Kelantan state.

Ah Tee, ranked by British officers as one of the most dangerous insurgents in the Kuala Langat area, surrendered about 15 miles from here. With him was a woman guerilla, Ah Kiew.

They accepted the amnesty offer after a British airplane flew low over the swamp calling on them by name over a public address system. British intelligence officers knew the couple was hiding in the area.

The amnesty pardons all terrorists for their acts against the government.

FREDERICK H. HENNEMEYER DIES, RETIRED AUDIT CHIEF

Frederick H. Hennemeyer, audit supervisor for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s New York office for 15 years before retiring in 1950, died of a heart ailment yesterday at his home, 1956 Stillwater drive, Overland. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Hennemeyer was born in St. Charles and joined the insurance firm in 1906 as an agent here. In 1926 he was named assistant manager of the O'Fallon Park district office.

Surviving are his wife and a son, Charles M. Hennemeyer, Normandy. Funeral services will be at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at St. Rita's Catholic Church, 1740 North and South Road, Vinita Park. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

U.S. BONDS ADVANCE FOR SECOND WEEK

Rediscount Rate Hike Had Been Anticipated, Is View.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The corporate bond market eased slightly this week but United States Government bonds advanced for the second straight week. The latter advance took place despite the rise in the rediscount rate from 2 to 2¼ per cent by seven mode federal reserve banks. This brought the rate to a uniform 2¼ for 11 of the 12 banks, leaving only the Boston reserve district still lending at 2 per cent to member banks in its area.

The continued tightening of credit was regarded as a sign that there would be increasing pressure on bond prices in the future. Rising interest rates naturally tend to reduce bond prices so that their yield can compete with other investments.

Boston Rate May Hold.

Nevertheless, there was no immediate reaction of any extent in the bond market to the latest anti-inflation measure. Market observers felt that the hike in the rediscount rate in most of the reserve district had been anticipated by traders.

So far as Boston is concerned, speculation in Washington was that the lending rate there might remain for some time at 2 per cent so that credit would be easier for the huge reconstruction task in the flood-stricken New England states.

The continued firmness in United States Government bonds was a repetition of their recovery late in summer in the face of the earlier increases in the rediscount rate.

Trading volume in the holiday-shortened week picked up on daily basis over the week before. Trading $6,441,000 on Wednesday and $5,270,000 Thursday compared with the prior week when $4,700,000 was about the best.

Averages Unchanged.

Average prices in the industrial and utilities sections remained unchanged from a week ago. The rails, however, slipped a bit and the foreign dollar liens also were off a shade.

The upward move in long-term United States Government bonds was not so subtle as the fluctuations in corporates. The governments picked up size-able fractions uniformly.

HOGS STEADY TO HIGHER IN TRADING OF WEEK

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Sept. 10 (USDA weekly review of the livestock market.)

Buyers took hold of better cattle readily for the week, and prices advanced 50-75 cents on steers and heifers grading top-good and above in period ended Friday; others steady to 50c higher; little if any change on cattle under $20, some of which on the weak side, especially low-grade grassers. Cows advanced 25-50c and vealers $10; no change on bulls, or stocker and feeder cattle. Receipts, despite the Monday holiday, were fully as large as week before. Tuesday's 10,500 being most for any one day in eight years, or since September 1947. An interesting side light was the sale of about 500 good to prime steers from a show exhibit late in the week. A number of these ranged up to $25 and above; a few as high as $26. Best individuals on the regular market brought $25 for the week; about a load all told $24; practical carlot top for the week $23.75, including 1131 lb steers; best for heavies $23.50 for 1289 lbs; average-choice 1460 lbs $22.50; carlot heifer top $23; about three loads mixed yearlings $23.25@23.50. Over 80 per cent of steers and heifers were good and choice from $20@23.50; with fully 50 per cent choice from $22@23.50. A sizable showing of commercial to good kinds brought $17@19.50; individual cows up to $13; bulk utility and commercial beef cows $10@12 most utility and commercial bulls $12@14; prime vealers up to $27 sparingly; bulk good and choice $20@24; bulk stockers and feeders common to good from $15@19; a few $19.25@20.50.

Compared with last Friday, barrows and gilts 200 lbs up finished mostly steady, lighter weights 25 to 50 cents higher and sows strong to 50c higher. Top prices ranged from $16.75 to $17.25, the Friday top $17 for over 450 head. For the week, bulk of 200 to 270 lb barrows and gilts sold at $16.25@17; 270 to 320 lbs $15.60@16.50; 170 to 190 lbs $15.50@16.50; 150 to 170 lbs $14.50@16; 120 to 140 lbs $13@14.50; sows 400 lbs down $13.75@15.25, few lots $15.50 and heavier sows $11.50@13.75.

Compared with last Friday, spring lambs closed 50 to 75 cents lower, slaughter sheep generally steady. Small lots choice and prime spring lambs scored $21.75; good and choice mostly $19@21.50; utility and good in mixed lots $17@18.50; cull and utility $10@16. Good quality 78-lb fresh shorn lambs brought $18.50, a few feeder lambs $15@16. Cull to good shorn slaughter ewes went largely at $3@5.

Week's Review Of Business And Finance

ONLY SUPERLATIVES

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP).

GOOD news about jobs, pay-checks, production and sales gave business an extra lift this week. More Americans were working than ever before; personal income, at latest count, was the highest yet; spending in the nation's retail stores was substantially ahead of year-ago levels.

In Wall Street, a new surge of confidence sent stock price averages to all-time record highs.

The long-range outlook for business was hopeful, too. Some 29,000,000 kids trooped back to United States elementary schools this week. The United States Office of Education, estimating total student enrollment in schools, colleges and universities this year at nearly 40,000,000, forecast an increase of 11,500,000 by 1964. For business, this could mean a forced-draft program of school construction, plus over-expanding juvenile and teen-age markets.

Steel Production Upped.

The steel industry, still struggling to catch up with demand, forced its production up to 93.8 per cent of capacity for a calculated output of 2,264,000 net tons. Production in the same weeks last year was 1,502,000. Customers continued to complain about lagging deliveries; Government experts warned that the industry must undertake a gigantic rebuilding and expansion program if it is to meet future military and civilian needs. Meanwhile the nation's third largest steel producer, Republic Steel Corp., announced plans for an immediate $130,000,000 expansion.

The railroads also face an expansion problem of major proportions. James M. Symes, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, predicted United States railroads will spend 20 billion dollars in the next 10 years improving their equipment. That's twice as much as they spent in the 10 years after 1945.

The Labor day holiday made a further dent in automobile production, already sharply curtailed by model changeover operations, but it was the calm before the storm. Six makes—including Ford—were turning out their first 1956 cars this week; others would soon follow suit, with big General Motors changing over in October. Ford's switch from 1955 to 1956 production was the shortest model changeover in the company's history; Chevrolet's shutdown was expected to be equally brief. From there on, the two leaders would be slugging it out for first place.

Employment Reports.

Output for the upcoming fourth quarter was authoritatively estimated at a record 2,000,000 cars—enough to raise the total for the year to an unprecedented 8,000,000.

Brightest spot in the week's budget of business news was the official United States Government report on employment. It showed 65,500,000 Americans in paying jobs last month—the highest total ever recorded, and up 500,000 from July. Unemployment, down 234,000 from the previous month, amounted to only 3.3 per cent of the United States labor force, the lowest percentage in nearly two years.

Stepped-up industrial production hiked the average work-week of factory employes to 40.8 hours; average weekly earnings of factory workers reached an all-time high of $77.

Equally encouraging were the latest statistics on retail trade. Department store sales at latest count showed an 11 per cent gain over the comparable year-ago week; total retail sales in the week ended Sept. 7 were estimated by Dun & Bradstreet at from 3 to 7 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The Less Favorable.

Somewhat less favorable were the latest reports on auto retail sales, textile prospects, and home construction.

Auto merchants, loaded down with staggering inventories of unsold 1955 cars, reported record late-summer sales, but at prices which left little margin for profit. "It's a giveaway madhouse," said one eastern dealer.

Tariff cuts which went into effect this week on textile imports were sharply criticized by U.S. cloth producers. A. K. Winget, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, said the reductions "expose the U.S. cotton textile industry and the American cotton farmer to damage which can be as real and costly as that threatened by any hurricane or flood catastrophe."

The week produced new signs of slowdown in home construction. West coast lumber mills shaved their prices; demand for lumber for home building, they explained, has fallen off.

Total construction spending in August, while at a record high for that month, declined slightly from the blistering pace of the January-through-July period. Biggest factor in the slowdown, builders said, was tighter mortgage credit.

News in Brief.

Briefly over the business scene:

Earnings and other personal income of Americans in July climbed to a record annual rate of $304,500,000,000. . . . Trans World Airlines announced plans for direct flights between London and the West Coast, with a single stopover in New York. . . . Ford Motor Co. said crash belts and other safety devices now planned by car manufacturers should cut the auto accident injury rate 50 per cent in the next few years.

MILD GRAIN UPTURN WITH WHEAT IN LEAD

Seasonal Factors More Than Concrete, Bullish Developments Exert Influence.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—Wheat paced a mild advance in grains on the Board of Trade this week. The upturn appeared to be based more on seasonal factors than any concrete bullish developments. Many traders simply felt a rally at this time of year, particularly in wheat, was a normal expectation.

Wheat ended the week 3 to 3⅝ cents higher, corn ¾ to 1⅜c higher, oats ⅜ to 1⅛c higher, rye 1½ to 2¼c higher, soybeans 1¼c lower to ¾c higher, and lard unchanged to 60 cents a recorded by the old crop September future. It was unsettled by weakness in fats and oils, as well as lard futures. Soybean oil finished the week at a two-year low of 10⅜ cents a pound while lard was 10 cents a pound.

Major news items of the week came after the market closed Friday, when the Agriculture Department issued its crop report based on Sept. 1 conditions.

The department indicated the hot, dry weather of August cut a little more from estimated corn and soybean production than the trade had believed. In each case, however, the crop is very large and it could not be said the Government's estimate was a great surprise.

Corn Crop Estimates.

A corn crop of 3,113,467,000 bushels was estimated by the Government. This compared with an estimate last week by C. M. Galvin of 3,143,654,000 bushels.

The department estimated soybean production at 387,527,000 bushels, while Galvin had estimated it at 389,824,000.

Spring Wheat and Oats.

The department also was under Galvin on both its spring wheat and oats crops estimate. The department estimated spring wheat at 227,373,000 compared with Galvin's 232,037,000. The department estimated oats at 1,636,030,000 compared with Galvin's 1,694,385,000.

WOOL GOODS REORDERING NOT ACTIVE DURING WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Re-ordering of wool goods was not active during the past week. Most apparel manufacturers awaited the response of retail clothiers to their spring lines. Some companies opened their lines with prices about unchanged from previous season and a year ago. The Australian wool market showed some signs of stabilizing following declines in the preceding and opening week of the new 1955-56 selling season. The Brisbane wool market was about unchanged from the Sydney market levels for the new season established a week earlier.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET TREND

BOSTON (AP)—Undeviating Australian wool values gave mill buyers a "more confident atmosphere" in the Boston wool market last week, according to the Commercial Bulletin. The Bulletin says that "consequently interest for available wools in the spot market improved somewhat over the previous week.

"Several lots of spot ¾-blood were turned over to mills at $1 clean, and in one instance $1.02 was obtained.

"Available Texas wools appeared to be the quietest of the domestic wools. Interest to buy from both topmakers and mills was spotty, and consequently the aggregate turnover to these consumers was light.

"Spot fleece wools were more active items here during the current period, particularly wools from Eastern Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and Virginia."

LONG-EXPECTED ZINC PRICE RISE IN WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The long-expected increase in the price of zinc came the past week. It went up ½ cent a pound to 13 cents, East St. Louis, the highest level in more than 2½ years. Meanwhile, lead demand continued firm and metal-short copper fabricators urged the Government to let them have copper from Government stocks.

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co. was the first to boost the price of zinc. Other producers quickly followed. When this year began, zinc was selling at 11½ cents a pound. It was increased to 12 cents in April and to 12½ cents in June. Back in the early spring of 1954, zinc was selling at 9¼ cents a pound and a good part of the industry was in distress. A few months later, the Government announced a program of expanded stockpiling of both zinc and lead.

Steady Improvement.

A steady improvement followed and then came a sharp upturn in buying by the booming steel and automobile industries. In recent months, demand for prime western grade zinc has been consistently good and that for special high-grade zinc—used by the auto makers—has exceeded supplies.

Because of Government buying and the better industrial demand, zinc producers have cut their stocks on hand to the lowest point in more than three years. Stocks of slab zinc fell in August by 5203 tons to 46,087 tons. Shipments to domestic consumers rose by 10,230 tons while deliveries to the Government were the lowest since the accelerated stockpile program began.

Trade sources expressed the belief that the Government will be willing to buy zinc at 13 cents a pound, but that this may be just about as high as the United States will go.

The trade has much the same feeling about lead at the current price of 15 cents a pound. There has been little talk of an increase in this quotation, however, although stocks on hand have been coming down and consumer demand has been good right along.

Copper Users Appeal.

Copper fabricators appealed to Washington this week to come to their assistance in view of the extreme shortage of copper. They asked for the release of the 100,000 tons of copper bought by the United States from Chile early last year to help Chile's economy.

The appeal came from the Copper and Brass Warehouse Association, the Copper and Brass Research Association and the wire and cable section of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association. They said they face "the worst crisis in the industry's history."

The big producers are quoting copper at 43 cents a pound and foreign copper is being sold in this country for 50 cents a pound and more.

COTTON TEXTILE PRICE STRUCTURE HOLDS STRONG

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Cotton textile market experienced only a moderate volume of sales during the past week but the price structure was strong. Converters bought various types of print cloths ranging from spot into early first quarter delivery in a limited way. Some mills sold cloth and then raised asking prices fractionally. Other fabrics experiencing a fair call included broadcloths, drills, sheetings and Osnaburgs. Premium types of the popular 80 square print cloth sold at 19½ cents with average makes bringing 19 cents a yard. The 36½-inch 64x60 5.35 yard print number advanced ⅛ cent to 14⅛ cents a yard o nspot. During the week textile officials commented at length on rising imports of Japanese gray cloth and apparel items which they said posed a serious threat to domestic textile operations.

Semiconductor Engineers and Scientists

GENERAL MOTORS offers exceptional opportunities in this field as a result of newly expanded programs of research and development—and now, also, pilot plant production.

These are permanent programs of great and increasing importance to General Motors in its electronic, automotive, aircraft engine, locomotive, household appliance and military activities—not just temporary study or short-term development programs.

Physicists, physical chemists and electronic engineers with baccalaureate or advanced degrees and those with transistor, diode, photo-cell, other semiconductor and related experiences in research, development or process and production will find:

- Important, interesting and challenging problems
- Modern facilities
- Congenial association with others skilled in these sciences

Resulting in maximum personal satisfaction, development and recognition.

Upper-level positions for those shown to qualify.

The unusual employe benefits of General Motors are provided by this 20-year-old GM electronics division. Relocation expenses are paid. Pleasant Indiana community with excellent living conditions, schools and many other advantages. Letters held in complete confidence. New Warnings of Hidden Dangers in the '55 Boom

It's easy to relax these days, in the belief that a new era of endless prosperity is really here at last. Recessions, wars, other worries of the past seem far away. Jobs are quite plentiful. Pay never was so good. The promise is that taxes will be cut again.

And yet you hear talk about dangers in the current boom. You read that Washington officials are concerned about the way things are going.

You see warnings that tell you to watch out for:

MORE INFLATION. Inflation seems to be in the air again. Prices are edging up. Another round of wage increases is well under way. A price-wage spiral is the threat which has officials worried.

INDIVIDUALS OVERBORROWING. Many people still keep plunging heavily into debt to get the things they want. Too many, the experts say, are overextended as a result of buying automobiles, homes, furniture, appliances on credit. American families are paying out about 12% of their incomes after taxes just to meet payments on past purchases of goods.

THE "NEW ERA" FEELING . . . the idea that things will keep on getting better and better -- seems to be the by-word for many business firms. Inventories are huge in many lines. Manufacturers go right on borrowing money and making goods against the assumption that they can sell tomorrow all they make today.

MARKET SPECULATION. Prices on the stock market have pushed to record highs, and continue to cause concern in official Washington. Security prices, at their recent peak level, made stock dividend yields little better than high grade corporate bond yields, on the basis of return per dollar invested. The Federal Reserve Board, by raising margins, has flashed a signal that stock market speculation might be unwise.

BUILDING BOOM . . . SPUTTERING? Home building which has grown and flourished since the end of World War II gives the first signs of passing its peak. Fewer new houses are being started these days. Construction also is tapering off in other important lines.

These are signs of concern that the present boom, like most booms of the past, may lead to trouble. They are being pointed out to subscribers to "U.S. News & World Report" in current issues of this weekly news magazine. They are being explained and analysed . . . and weighed against the facts on the other side of the fence which indicate that good times will last for many, many months . . . so that readers of "U.S. News & World Report" can make up their own minds about what to do, how to plan, for their personal and business security.

How Our Editors Watch Out for Trouble

The editors of this national weekly news magazine constantly watch Washington for cuts in government spending . . . watch big business for signs of halted expansion . . . watch the real estate markets for new houses that do not sell, for old houses that go at cut prices . . . watch your local merchants for signs of stiffer competition . . . watch the nation's warehouses for dangerous pileups of goods . . . watch every telltale sign by which an approaching economic storm can be forecast. In this way, if trouble does come, the 725,000 readers of "U.S. News & World Report" will be considerably better prepared for it than will most people.

This same highly practical approach to the news has proved its value in all aspects of the news. The editors of "U.S. News & World Report" have shown by their analyses that almost every important development that crashes into the headlines – whether it's political, military, or economic -- is preceded by a build-up of the forces involved. Big changes, whether they happen in Formosa, Washington, Detroit, Moscow, New York, or anywhere else, usually "telegraph their punches."

By keen observation of news-in-the-making, our editors are able to inform you of important changes shaping up in prices -- wages -- employment conditions -- politics -- taxes -- foreign trade -- the "cold war" -- business prosperity -- government regulations -- and how these changes will affect your business and personal affairs.

Why not try reading "U.S. News & World Report" regularly for a while and see how much it can help you? Your trial won't cost you a penny unless it convinces you that here is an exciting new kind of information service you can't afford to be without.

STOCK PUSH PUTS MARKET INTO UNCHARTED HEIGHTS

Rails, Long Laggards in General Rise, Come to Life With Vigor in Week — Take Over Leadership.

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—A lunge ahead to a new peak this week sent the stock market on its way again into uncharted heights. Markets immediately after the Labor day recess are always carefully watched for signs that might indicate near-term trends. This year the watchers had little time to wait. Prices advanced strongly to push the market up higher than it ever had been before. Volume was at the best levels in two months.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, yardstick for the move, established four new highs in four days. It ended the week at $178.10.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed the week 2.09 points above the previous week's close at 474.59. At the start of the period the index reached a new record high of 476.24. The 20 rails climbed 4.87 points to 162.27 and the 15 utilities gained .05 of a point at 66.35. The total of the 65 stocks made a new 1955 high each successive day of the week, closing at 170.70 for a gain of 1.89 points over last week's finish.)

Sales Are Larger.

Total sales for the four-day week were larger than the previous five-day period, 9,703,410 shares, against 9,062,420. Trading was in 1385 issues with 756 closing net higher, 460 lower and 169 unchanged.

To chartists, the market's performance was significant. Three times in the first half of this year, the market nosed into a reaction. Each time it recovered strongly and raced on up to new high levels. Last July 25 came the fourth reaction, a sharp dip like the previous three. The bottom was reached Aug. 9, and true to form the market leaped upward in recovery. The average stood at $177 on July 27, and last Tuesday it passed that mark with a jump of $1.30 at $177.70, and the rest of the week it kept on going ahead with some irregularity brought on by normal profit-taking.

Comfort for Chartists.

Chartists had an additional bit of comforting news, too. The rails, long laggard in the general rise of the market, came to life during the week and gave promise of matching the vigor of the industrial segment of the list. And that, said the chartists, is what it takes to make a real bull market. Those who decided to buy rails had behind them the fact that net income of class one railroads in July was 44 per cent higher than a year ago.

The major items of news during the week for the market as a whole was the increase in the discount rate by the Federal Reserve banks in New York and six other cities to 2¼ per cent from 2 per cent. That put all but the Boston bank in line with the 2¼ rate instituted in Cleveland six weeks ago.

Market and Money.

The discount rate is the amount commercial banks have to pay for money they borrow from the reserve banks to lend to business. All interest rates tend to follow the discount rate. The higher cost for money is a slap at inflation.

As of now, the stock market hasn't indicated that it considers the harder money rates as a brake on market prices. Some observers, however, believe the stock market must in due time heed the Federal Reserve's restraining hand.

HOPE FOR PEACE IN CHURCH-PERON FEUD IS SLIGHT

Catholic Leaders in Argentina Pessimistic Despite 'Cordial' Talks.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 10 (AP)—Church circles today described Roman Catholic leaders as pessimistic over the chances for any swift healing of wounds from the long and bitter church-state feud in Argentina.

This outlook was expressed despite the recent rush of private talks between top government and church officials.

During the past week, Ildefenso Cavagna Martinez, new Foreign Minister, conferred twice with Cardinal Santiago Luis Copello, Roman Catholic primate in this country. The Foreign Minister also talked three times with Msgr. Mario Zanin, papal nuncio. Both churchmen said their conversations with the cabinet minister were "cordial." But few concrete details were disclosed.

Church circles in close touch with Cardinal Copello and other top Catholics emphasized that any optimism hinging on the conversations with Cavagna Martinez would be premature. These informants explained that relations between the Church and President Peron's government were so severely strained in the controversy which erupted last November that church leaders "remain pessimistic" on the outlook for any rapid change.

Still State Church.

Argentina is about 90 per cent Catholic, and Roman Catholicism is still the state church. Under a new law, the Peron government was authorized to postpone until next May election of a constitutional assembly to consider severing state-church ties.

The church informants said "there can be no basis for conciliation until full freedom of the church is re-established and all clergy are freed."

Another touchy issue is the expulsion from the country of Msgr. Manuel Tato, auxiliary bishop of Buenos Aires archdiocese, and his assistant, Msgr. Ramon Pablo Novoa. The government hustled them aboard a plane for Rome June 15, the day before an unsuccessful navy-led revolt against the Peron regime broke out.

Now in Colombia.

Msgr. Tato and Msgr. Novoa are in Bogota, Colombia. Their successors in the Argentine church have been named by Cardinal Copello. It was understood Msgr. Tato plans to visit the United States soon, while Msgr. Novoa is expected to remain in Bogota as a teacher at the seminary.

Since the June revolt an uneasy truce has prevailed between church and state, jarred at intervals by renewed government jabs at church leaders and more arrests of a few priests and theological students. Some of those arrested were charged with joining an alleged plot last month to assassinate Peron.

Reports received here today from Cordoba in central Argentina said unidentified assailants had plunged a parish church into darkness and frightened the congregation with shouts. The pastor, the Rev. Jeremias Guiterrez, said they slashed electric power lines to the church, causing panic in which some men, women and children were injured. Father Gutierrez accused the police of failing to intervene during the disturbance.

55TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Santi Caminita, 5866 Kennerly avenue, will celebrate their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary today with a family dinner at the Gatesworth Hotel. They were married Sept. 9, 1900, in Partinico, Italy, and have lived in St. Louis for 46 years.

Caminita, 76 years old, was an insurance salesman before retiring about 12 years ago. His wife is 73. They have three daughters, Mrs. Concetta Castelli, Mrs. Jacqueline Neuberger and Mrs. Antoinette Petri; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Vickers Electric Division has immediate openings for Junior and Senior Electrical Engineers. Although part of a great industrial structure (Vickers, Inc., of Detroit, and Sperry-Rand Corp.), Vickers Electric Division itself is a moderate size organization where the Vickers engineer soon finds a close personal relation with the company and its fellow workers—the spirit of individuality prevails. Vickers Electric was the first company in the United States to commercially produce the Magnetic Amplifier as a standard production unit. The design and application of Magnetic Amplifiers and the many other components for Servo and other type control systems offers you a provocative and challenging task.

We will be happy to arrange an interview at your convenience.

BIG TRUMAN ROLE IN 1956 CAMPAIGN

Democratic Chairman Says Ex-President Stung G.O.P. in Detroit Speech.

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., Sept. 10 (AP)—Harry Truman will play an important role in the 1956 political campaign, Paul Butler, Democratic national chairman, said today.

Butler said also that, as of now, he believes the farm problem will be the top political issue in the next election.

Butler was asked to describe the part the former President will take in the campaign in the light of his recent Detroit talk castigating the Republican party.

G.O.P. Asks Equal Time.

Leonard Hall, Republican national chairman, has asked for equal time on television and radio to reply to Truman's talk.

"Harry Truman's attack on the Republicans must have hurt, so they asked for equal time," Butler told a nine-state Democratic conference.

"I think Mr. Truman will play an important part within the limits of his health and age," Butler said.

"Mr. Truman was compelled to cancel his trips to Los Angeles and San Francisco, but we intend to use him a great deal in 1956. He will be an important factor. He will be helpful," Butler said.

The party chief said that Truman's popularity has "increased tremendously the last 2½ years, since Eisenhower has been in the White House."

Butler was asked if he has found strong support for Gov. Averell Harriman of New York for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I find that Mr. Harriman, like many other prominently mentioned men, is respected generally and I think we have a great number of men who are highly considered."

Many Possibilities.

Butler then said that the Democratic party, unlike the Republican party, has a large number of acceptable candidates.

"We don't have to admit that if we don't get one man, that we can't elect a President, as Vice President Nixon has said."

Butler asserted that the farm problem is certain to be the biggest issue, unless the Administration wards off responsibility, adding:

"Apparently this Administration feels it won't be too bad if several million men and women are driven off the farms to industrial centers in competition with industrial workers.

"The whole farm program of the present Administration is directed toward the shifting of the population from the farm to cities."

LONDON MOVIE USHERETTES TAKING LESSONS IN JUDO

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Usherettes in movie theaters in suburban Nunhead today began free lessons in judo—just to impress the customers.

Professional wrestler Len Law and amateur weight lifter Dick James do the instructing. They said the idea was to discourage rowdyism.

Teddy boy gangs in the area—complete with their garb of tight trousers, long jackets and string ties similar to United States zoot suiters—have the habit of brawling inside movie theaters. Customers complain that sometimes the noise is so great you cannot hear the shooting in the cowboy pictures.

Anonymous Samaritan.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Walter Moriarty driving home to New York from California, told the Albuquerque Tribune, he blew out a tire and had no funds with which to buy a new one. An Albuquerque man, known to Moriarty only as a construction worker named Hastings, took the tourist into Albuquerque, paid for tire repairs and then drove Moriarty back to his stalled car and stranded family. Moriarty so far has had no luck finding his benefactor to repay him.

CURTIS AND CANNON TO SPEAK BEFORE MISSOURI C. OF C.

Representatives Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), Webster Groves, and Clarence Cannon (Dem.), Elsberry, will discuss the role of business men in politics and government at the annual meeting of the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce Friday at Hotel Jefferson.

The program also will include a panel discussion of guaranteed annual wage programs and their effect on the interpretation of unemployment compensation laws.

Bronze plaques will be awarded to Chamber of Commerce organizations with records of outstanding accomplishments in agricultural promotion in the last year. Scheduled to receive awards are the St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Cassville and West Plains groups.

ABE S. BARG FUNERAL, LAWYER IN MAPLEWOOD

Funeral services for Abe S. Barg, a Maplewood lawyer for 34 years before he retired in 1948, will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Rindskopf undertaking establishment, 5212 Delmar boulevard. Burial will be in B'nai Amoona Cemetery.

Mr. Barg died of a heart ailment Thursday at his home, 6226 Loughborough avenue. He was 64 years old. Born in Omaha, Neb., he lived here most of his life. He was a 1914 graduate of the old Benton College of Law here. Mr. Barg served as an indexer from 1922 to 1931 in the office of St. Louis Recorder of Deeds. He was a general practice attorney and had his office in the Barg building at 7363A Manchester boulevard, Maplewood, which he owned.

Surviving is his wife.

$1,000,000 Union Health Center.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10 (AP)—A $1,000,000 health center for some 12,000 members of the Chicago joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, CIO, was formally opened today.

WILLIAM P. MASON DIES AT 81; FUNERAL TUESDAY

William P. Mason, a former director of International Shoe Co., died yesterday of heart disease at his home, 453 North Harrison avenue, Kirkwood. He was 81 years old.

Born in Jackson, Tenn., Mr. Mason was associated with the old Star Shoe Co. at Hannibal, Mo., when it became part of the original International Shoe Co. at the formation of the latter firm about 50 years ago. He served as a director of International prior to 1930, later handling sales promotion work and editing its house organ. He retired in 1948. Mr. Mason served two one-year terms as district deputy grand master of the Masonic lodge in this area.

Surviving are his wife; a son, William C. Mason, city clerk of Kirkwood, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Thomas V. Canavan of Ouray, Colo. Funeral services will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday at Kirkwood Methodist Church, followed by cremation.

'QUIET PLEASE' SIGNS POSTED TO WARN TRUCK DRIVERS

"Quiet Please" signs which advise operators of trucks to avoid excessive noise under penalty of fine have been erected at three bridges and four highway weight stations in this area, Austin C. Knetzger, president of the Citizens Traffic Advisory Council of Greater St. Louis, announced yesterday.

The signs have been posted at Chain of Rocks, Lewis and Clark and Jefferson Barracks bridges. In addition, signs have been set up at Missouri highway weight stations at Imperial, Gray Summit, Wentzville and St. Charles. Signs will be posted at other bridge entrances to St. Louis, Knetzger said.

"St. Louis ordinances forbid excessive truck noises," the signs state. "Fine for first offense $28." The signs also say that the "quiet please" program is indorsed by Teamsters Joint Council No. 13.

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 11, 1955

Friend on Phone for Boys in Back Room.

DO YOU know who won the World's Fair Handicap? Was Max Schmeling champion when he whipped Joe Louis? Did Ezzard Charles ever fight Archie Moore? Was that a passed ball or a wild pitch that marked the end of the 1927 World Series? Who played left field for the 1926 Cardinals?

If you get into an argument in the back room and want the answers to puzzling questions, two courageous young men with a fairly new idea are hopeful that they can accommodate you.

David E. Stewart and George F. McKay, two young men who have grown up in the St. Louis district, plan to go into business shortly as Sports Monitor, Inc., and the business will be answering sports questions.

Sports departments will welcome Stewart and McKay as helping friends, because for as long as we can remember, whenever the boys in the back room get into an argument, they usually call the sports department, and usually at the busiest time of day or night.

You can bet there'll be a dozen or more calls about Schmeling and Louis and Charles and Moore whenever there's a heavyweight fight on television or the radio. The baseball questions have no season.

And we might warn Stewart and McKay that it will take some searching to get answers to some of the questions. For instance, don't waste too much time if somebody wants to know the origin of the seventh-inning stretch in baseball, or who actually invented the game of baseball. And the other day it took some time to find the right book to get Earl Sande's age. And we were stumped when a friend wrote from California for confirmation of his memory about when the last racing meet and auto races were held at Fairgrounds.

There's a Gimmick in It, You'll Get a Commercial.

IT sounded like a big project when Stewart and McKay told us about it. Did they know about the library of reference books they'd need, and the telephones and the news wires?

Yes, they knew. But they'll have a battery of telephone operators, they'll hire primarily disabled veterans and other handicapped persons to handle the calls. They'll have a news service and telegraph wires, to bring in baseball, football and other scores.

And who will pay the freight for all the calls and information gathering? There's the gimmick. If you want to know whether Lou Gehrig or Wally Pipp played first base for the Yankees in the 1926 world series with the Cardinals, you'll get a polite, "Just a moment, sir," and while the answer is being pinpointed, you'll listen to a ten-second commercial about Spiegelmeyer's Heavy Lager, or Ahrenhoersterbaeumer's Meatless Wienies.

It may take time to find the Spiegelmeyers and the Ahrenhoersterbaeumers, but we can assure Dave and George that they won't have to wait long for the questions. And the boys in the back room won't mind the commercials. They've heard worse than commercials occasionally from an extra-busy sports writer who interrupts his pet project in masterful prose to be asked who played left tiddle on the Slippery Rock championship tiddledywinks team of 1892.

An Old Base Stealer Ranks Greatest Stars.

MAX CAREY, one of the greatest base stealers baseball has ever known, undertakes the job of rating the Twenty Greatest Ballplayers of All Time in the October issue of Esquire Magazine.

Under three classifications of offense, defense and intangibles, Carey gives points for numerous qualifications, such as power, hitting to all fields, hit and run, bunting, hit for club, batting total, run scoring, hustle, intelligence, team play, fitness, unselfishness, etc.

It's an interesting contribution to opinion sports writing. Carey rates Hans Wagner as the greatest of the great. Eddie Collins is his No. 2 man and George Sisler, the greatest ball player this writer ever saw in action, is third. Ty Cobb ranks fourth, just a few points below Sisler and then in order, Carey names Tris Speaker, Rogers Hornsby, Stan Musial, Frank Frisch, Bill Dickey, Joe DiMaggio, Jackie Robinson, Lou Gehrig, Mickey Cochrane, Zach Wheat, Joe Jackson, Nap Lajoie, Bill Terry, Babe Ruth, Ted Williams and Roger Bresnahan.

Carey is very tactful in some of his classifications. For instance, he gives each of the 20 "greatest" 100 points for intelligence, although it would seem obvious that in a group of 20 such athletes, somebody should stand out.

At any rate, it's recommended reading, good and controversial.

Sportsfolio.

BOB BROEG of the sports staff has dug up some interesting statistics on the Cardinals. During the 1955 period before the All-Star game the Redbirds scored four or more runs in 70 per cent of their 80 games. Since the All-Star game they have scored four or more in only 44 per cent of their games. Opponents scored four or more in 61 per cent of the games before and in 65 per cent of the games since the All-Star game. There were five or more runs in 29 of the first 80 games and five or more in only 11 of the next 55 games. And here's one for Stan the Man. Musial had 95 runs batted in in 501 times at bat, while eight of 14 other non-pitchers had only 91 RBI's in 1258 at bats. The eight included Bill Sarni and Nelson Burbrink, Alex Grammas and Bob Stephenson, Solly Hemus and the three extra outfielders — Pete Whisenant, Harry Elliott and Joe Frazier.

Anybody know where we can get a new bench?

Seixas Is Beaten by Aussie

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 10 (INS)—Tony Trabert regained a fresh and tasty half a loaf of tennis prestige for Uncle Sam today when he slammed his way into the final round of the National Championships with Australia's sharpshooting Kenny Rosewall.

Top-seeded Trabert, exuding lithe spirit, fight and determination, and backing it all up with a breath-taking display of power, flattened Australia's Lew Hoad, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1, in an exciting semi-final of the seventy-fifth annual tournament.

Trabert's stirring triumph came after Rosewall, doing what has come almost naturally for him, reaching the big payoff round by whipping defending champion Vic Seixas, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

Magnificently, and quickly—52 minutes—Trabert prevented the 20-year-old Aussie "tennis terrors" from making off with everything American but the Statue of Liberty.

Replay, and Revised.

The men's semis were a replay of the Davis Cup challenge round. After young Rosewall continued his career habit of beating 32-year-old Seixas, it seemed that the 13,000 spectators at the West Side Tennis Club and a nationwide television audience were in for another Aussie sweep.

But Trabert, playing perhaps the best tennis of his life, even surpassing the efforts which won him the Wimbledon and French titles this year and the U.S. crown in 1953, out-powered Hoad to reverse the blond bomber's victory over him in the challenge round.

In a National women's final, apparently, you've gotta have Hart!

Amazing Doris Hart, the defending champion from Coral Gables, Fla., entered the final round for the seventh time, taking less time than is necessary to get a manicure.

Miss Hart bested fourth-seeded Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode of New York, 6-1, 6-1.

England's Pat Ward qualified as Doris' foe in the title round tomorrow when she defeated 17-year-old Barbara Breit of Hollywood, Calif., 6-1, 6-2.

Long Time at Home.

The last time a foreign entry managed to make off with the U.S. women's title was in 1937, when Chile's Anita Lizana won.

Trabert, who zoomed to the finals without the loss of a set, began to recover his touch after he trailed, 3-0 in the first set. He broke through Hoad's jet serves in the fifth game at love, a whitewash feat he achieved twice more in the second set.

Hoad could score only 15 points in the second set and the temperamental Aussie youth managed only 11 in the last-set rout.

Hoad lacked the sharpness that marked his challenge round showing and his earlier appearances in the tourney.

But so tremendous was the 25-year-old Trabert that veteran tennis observers at Forest Hills doubted if the muscular Aussie could have stopped Tony even if he was really running on all cylinders.

Boston a Happy Hunting Ground

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Musial's 1012th Extra-Base Hit Beats Roberts, 4 to 3

By Bob Broeg

The weather and Stan Musial, two hardy perennials, combined yesterday to do unto Robin Roberts what the Cardinals had been unable to achieve all season. Rain and the Redbirds' Everyday Man beat the Philadelphia Phillies' great righthander in five innings at Busch Stadium, 4 to 3.

The Mighty Musial, who had been forced out of action again Friday night when hit on the right elbow by a pitch, returned to duty and provided the margin of victory with a two-run homer, his twenty-eighth, as the Cardinals finally defeated the Phillies' six-season 20-game winner in their final try of 1955.

Roberts, a 22-12 hurler this year, had scored five of the Phillies' 13 victories over the Redbirds before the weather-shortened windup in which the Cardinals collected four of their five hits in a payoff third round.

Two Safeties for Ashburn.

In addition to Musial, Solly Hemus homered for St. Louis and Roberts hit for the circuit for the Phillies, who finished the cut-rate contest with six blows, of which league-leading hitter Richie Ashburn and Eddie Waitkus had two apiece.

The winning pitcher in the abbreviated action was Tom Poholsky, Redbird righthander. The victory was his eighth, one more than in his rookie year of 1951 and three more than his injury-jinxed season of '54. He has lost 10 times.

Musial's home run was the 1012th extra-base hit of Stan's career, surpassing the total of Rogers Hornsby, great National League hitter of a generation ago. Only Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Jimmy Foxx and Mel Ott, all of whom played three or more full seasons than Musial, have had more long hits than Stan the Man. Barring the unexpected, he'll break Ott's National League extra-base record of 1071 late next season. The Babe had the grand high of 1356.

A noisy ladies' and children's day crowd of 11,881, entertained by a community songfest and the tireless efforts of Organist Audrie Ross Garagiola during nearly two hours before the game was called off, saw the Cardinals gain a second straight victory for the first time since a string of four in succession was snapped by Cincinnati here Aug. 13.

Roberts put himself and the Phillies in front in the visitors' third with his second home run, a shot into the pavilion where the screen used to be. That tied the figures for the season, 21 each for the Cardinals and opposition.

And the Redbirds tied the score and then some in the home third, which Alex Grammas began with a double. He moved up on Nelson Burbrink's infield out and scored on Poholsky's slick bunt, a two-strike safety squeeze.

Two Drives to Roof.

Hemus hit the next pitch to the right field roof, and the Redbirds were ahead. Wally Moon drilled a single to center and Musial, still paying with a flesh-colored tape on the right hand painfully bruised by a pitch Aug. 29 at Brooklyn, hammered a two-strike delivery onto the pavilion.

The Phillies tallied in the fourth on Del Ennis's double and Waitkus's single and pulled within a run in the fifth as Ashburn tripled and tallied on an infield out.

But then the rains came, sure and steady. After a 81-minute delay, play was resumed only long enough for Ennis to foul out in the sixth before precipitation, an even hardier perennial than Musial, took over again.

Thirty-two minutes later everybody went home.

Redbird Notes.

BEN FLOWERS, righthander acquired from Detroit by way of Buffalo, will make his National League debut with the Cardinals in this afternoon's 2 o'clock game against Pittsburgh. Southpaw Dick Littlefield probably will be the Pirates' pitcher in the opener of the two-game battle of the basement.

The Cardinals' afternoon game with Brooklyn next Thursday will be Ladies day and women will be admitted for a 50-cent tax and service charge.

Vice President Bill Walsingham, answering the query, explained that with terminal leave coming, Vinegar Bend Mizell could be discharged from the Army in time to join the Car-

Rain Stops Play in Women's Golf Tourney

By John J. Archibald

A steady rain forced postponement of the third round of the St. Louis Women's open golf tournament at Norwood Hills Country Club yesterday. None of the players had shot more than nine holes, so all scores were erased from the books and the third round will be resumed today.

The tournament now is scheduled for a Monday finish, a day later than originally planned.

The custom in the case of rain ordinarily is to resume play the next day just where it stopped, but the members of the Women's Professional Golf Association consented to start the third round of 18 holes over again in order to avoid financial loss to the tournament sponsors. Yesterday's tickets will be honored today.

Among the women who will suffer somewhat by the throwing away of the scores are Betty Hicks, the Palm Springs, Calif., entrant, who had come back from rounds of 77 and 79 with a three-under-par 33.

Young Ponnie Randolph, the Columbus, Ohio, player, who is tied for ninth with 154, was one under with a 35. Peggy Kirk, of St. Clair, Mich., far back with 169, also had a 35.

Miss Suggs was even with par for the six holes she and Miss Faulk were able to get in. Louise had bogeys on Nos. 1 and 4, but got the strokes back with an eagle the 405-yard No. 6.

Neither Durocher Nor Lane Coming to Cards, Busch Says

The Cardinal rumor market became bigger and better than ever last night as not one, but two, baseball men were reported in line to become the club's general manager. The freshest report was that Frank Lane, now general manager of the Chicago White Sox, would take over here. Preceding it on the street corners was the word that Leo Durocher would become Cardinal general manager.

Durocher quitting as manager of the Giants to come here is a compratively venerable rumor, though previously he has been cast therein as a field manager.

The Lane story was presented by Bill Corum, writing for the International News Service under a New York City dateline. "Lane," wrote Corum, "... apparently has again failed to get the rabbit out of his silk hat in Chicago. So now he is going to try his hand with the St. Louis Cardinals. . . . If true, this will be a plain gain for owner Gus Busch's Cardinals and the National League, because Lane is a 'stirrer-upper', who makes news, controversy and the sort of feudin' and fightin' that makes baseball fans."

Busch, contacted here, said "Neither one of them has a bit of truth. I know nothing about it—and I think I would, don't you? No change at the ball park is contemplated."

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians stretched their American League lead to 1½ games over New York today by rallying to beat the Boston Red Sox, 10-7, as the Yanks dropped a pressure-packed 10-inning thriller to Chicago's scrapping White Sox, 9-8.

Errors at crucial moments determined both games and could turn out to be important factors in the torrid pennant race. A little of the heat was taken off the Indians and piled on the Yanks for the big Cleveland-New York doubleheader at Yankee Stadium.

Chicago, winning on a 2-out error by First Baseman Eddie Robinson, kept in the running, 3½ games behind the flying Indians, who captured their fifth straight. The defeat just about ruined Boston's chances, dropping the Red Sox six games off the pace. The Yanks had a four-game winning streak snapped.

Trailing, 7-4, going into the seventh, the Indians battered Boston's defenses for five runs to win the nerve-tingling, see-saw contest. Ralph Kiner's two-run homer off Reliefer Ellis Kinder, his second in two days, made it 7-6.

Kinder's Wildness Costly.

When Kinder walked Gene Woodling and Dale Mitchell, he was replaced by Tom Hurd. Pinch-Hitter Bob Lemon singled to right field and when the ball got past Jackie Jensen, two runs rolled in and Lemon reached third.

Al Smith, who smashed five singles, sent Lemon home with the insurance run of a sacrifice fly. Reliefer Ray Narleski singled in another run for Cleveland in the eighth but it was the other relief ace of the Indians, Don Mossi, who nailed down the victory in the eighth and ninth.

In the ninth Ted Williams singled and Jackie Jensen walked. The tension was nerve-cracking. Mossi then fanned Norm Zauchin, who had clubbed a three-run homer in Boston's five-run fifth, got Sammy White on a liner and struck out Grady Hatton.

Cleveland's win was posted on the stadium scoreboard as the Yanks and White Sox tossed away game-winning chances. Then in the tenth the Yanks were forced to use Outfielder Hank Bauer behind the plate because Catcher Yogi Berra, Outfielder-Catcher Elston Howard, and Charlie Silvera were out of the game. Silvera went out for pinch-hitter Robinson in the ninth and Robinson took over first in the 10th. Berra was forced out by an upset stomach.

Minnie Minoso, who had dropped Bauer's liner in the ninth with two out to permit Mickey Mantle to tie the score at 8-8, opened the tenth with a walk off Johnny Kucks, fifth Yankee pitcher.

Tom Morgan replaced Kucks at this stage. Bob Nieman sacrificed Minoso to second and Minnie took third on a passed ball. Morgan threw out Bob Kennedy, who had been on base five times and drove in four runs with three singles and a two-run homer. Then came the decisive "break." Millard (Dixie) Howell grounded to Shortstop Phil Rizzuto, whose throw to first got away from Robinson and Minoso streaked home with what proved to be the winning run.

Six-Run Inning Not Enough.

The Yanks had taken a 6-1 lead in the second when they blasted starter Billy Pierce for six runs in a splurge highlighted by Bob Cerv's two-run pinch-single and Howard's three-run homer. The White Sox clawed from behind with two out in the ninth for three runs to go ahead, 8-7. Bob Kennedy opend the gates by walking and Third Baseman Andy Carey let the White Sox in by fumbling Less Moss's grounder. A single by Chico Carrasquel, a walk to Jim Rivera and Walt Dropo's two-run single sent the Sox ahead, 8-7.

Minoso let the Yanks back in again when, with two out and Mickey Mantle on second with a double, he dropped Bauer's liner, which scored Mantle with the tying run.

In the other American League games, Kansas City beat Washington, 8-6, on Gus Zernial's twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth homers, and Baltimore whipped Detroit, 5-3.

Baltimore spoiled young Bud Black's first American League start this season. He lives in University City, Mo.

Black even got thrown out of the game. The 23-year-old righthander, called up from Little Rock, Ark., on Labor Day, was moving nicely behind a 2-1 lead until the Tiger fielding fell apart.

Lights Go Out for South St. Louis Fans.

CISCO ANDRADE and Orlando Zulueta were having quite a set-to at Madison Square Garden, seen here over KSD-TV. It was an interesting fight and well worth watching but if you live in South St. Louis the lights went out in about the sixth round.

There you were watching the fight, and it was going very well when suddenly there was nothing but blackness. You wondered if you had been hit by a punch until you looked around the neighborhood and saw that the lights were out all over, not just in your house.

But Andrade went on to win, you found out by another older but more stable method of communication, and Cisco is now anxious for a shot at the winner of the Jimmy Carter-Bud Smith lightweight title bout which is to be held in Cincinnati, Oct. 19.

Andrade is an interesting performer and should make a good opponent for either Carter or Smith.

Also Cisco said he would be interested in a match with the winner of the Frankie Ryff-Joey Lopes bout which is to be seen on KSD-TV next Friday night—unless the lights go out.

There is another bout of interest scheduled for television this week, that is Wednesday night over KTVI, Channel 36, which will show Tony De Marco, the former welterweight champion of the world and Chico Vejar, who formerly had aspirations to win the middleweight championship of the world.

Joe Louis Picks Marciano Over Moore.

JOE LOUIS, former heavyweight champion of the world, who was knocked out by Rocky Marciano when they met, has told the International Boxing Club that he expects the champion to retain his title when he meets Archie Moore in Yankee Stadium, Sept. 20.

Louis is not one of those old-time fighters who makes his picks at the behest of the promoter in order to help the publicity for a bout. But he doesn't do too well with his selections, either, although he has named the last two, Moore over Olson and Marciano over Cockell.

Joe's line of reasoning is, however, interesting.

"I pick Marciano not because he is the better fighter. He isn't," Joe said. "All-round, Moore is the much better fighter. He's smarter than any of those who've been in with Marciano for the title, and he's faster and harder to hit. But there's one key factor in this fight that a lot of people don't look at. I don't think Moore can take Marciano's best punch as well as Marciano can take Moore's best. I think this fight will end in a knockout within ten rounds. If it goes beyond ten rounds, then Moore will win because Marciano will be chopped up by that time.

"If Moore has Marciano in the same condition that Charles had him in their second fight, with his nose cut badly, Moore will not let him get off the hook like Charles did. Moore is a good finisher and an alert fighter. He will take advantage of every slip, every advantage. Marciano can make few, if any, mistakes in this fight, but his punch, which Moore may not be able to take too well, should determine the result."

Louis Elaborates.

BILL CORUM, New York newspaper man, was in on the interview with Louis and Joe told Corum that he thought a left hand will beat Marciano, meaning not necessarily the Moore fight but that the left was the weapon with which to beat Rocky.

"I remember a jab that you nailed him in mid-ring," Corum remarked to Louis, "when his knees bent and he dropped his hands and tried to grin."

"That was the one," Joe replied, "the jab hit solid with him coming into me and I am standing there set on both feet. He look sort of funny. Then, I look down at my right hand to see what happen to it, and it's just hung there and then I know I was an old man in there."

"But, Joe, Moore must be 41," Corum told him, "if you lost your reflexes before you were that old, what about him?"

(Moore, to the best information available, is 38 years old and will be 39 on Dec. 13 this year, but the old suspicion that he's older still lingers.)

"I don't know how old he is," Louis said, "but it don't go that way. Not by the years. Some fellow's legs and reflexes go at one age and some another.

"Take Walcott, he fought a long time, but he never lost his legs."

Joe then reiterated that he picks Marciano because he thinks Marciano can take Moore's best punch while Moore can't take Rocky's best.

And that is the opinion of a former champion.

Littler, Haas Also Total 209

SCOTCH PLAINS, N. J., Sept. 10 (UP)—Sammy Snead fired a blistering 66 today to leap from seventh place into a three-way tie for the lead in the $50,000 Cavalcade of Golf tournament over the tough Shackamaxon course.

Tied with Snead at 209 after 54 holes, were Freddy Haas and Gene Littler. The trio was one stroke ahead of George Bayer of Cincinnati and little Jerry Barber.

Snead, who had serious trouble with the greens on the first two days of competition, birdied the second, fourth, sixth, and ninth holes and then birdied three more holes on the back nine en route to his brilliant round. Sam bogeyed the eighth, ninth and the 16th holes but it was clear from the outset that he was hot.

Gets Lift From Eagle.

A total of 14 players shot under par 70 golf, including Bayer, who carried a 67 with the help of an eagle two on the 467-yard seventh hole.

Also among the par-busters was Dutch Harrison, pro at Old Warson country club in St. Louis. Harrison scored a 68 today and was four strokes behind the leaders with a 54-hole total of 213. Ed Furgol, pro at Westwood country club in St. Louis, had a par 70 in today's round for a total of 216.

Cary Middlecoff, the golfing dentist who was second to Snead as a pre-tournament favorite, finished strong to wind up the day two strokes behind at 211. Middlecoff birdied the last two holes to earn a par 70 and tie Marty Furgol, who shot a 71 for a 211 total.

Bolt Disqualified.

Gardner Dickinson of Panama City, Fla., was next with 212, tied with Tommy Bolt. Bolt, however, was disqualified when Ted Kroll, keeping his score, accidentally wrote down a four for the tenth hole instead of a five.

Although Kroll had Bolt's total of 70 correct on the card, Bolt was disqualified because he signed the card when it had an incorrect score for one of the holes. Golf rules make all players responsible for their individual hole scores.

Orange, Calif., Wins Women's Softball Title

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 10 (AP)—The Orange, Calif., team is the new champion of the Women's Amateur Softball Association.

Orange won the title last night by defeating Phoenix, Ariz., 4-1, in the final game of the week-long tourney here.

Bertha Ragan, who was named the tourney's outstanding player, allowed only three hits and one unearned run as she pitched the victory. She had 28 runless innings in the tourney before Phoenix scored in the first.

3-Way Tie for First In Inter-City League

Edwardsville Moose, in a three-way tie for first place, plays the Maryville Red Sox at Maryville today at 2:30 p.m. as part of the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Southwestern Illinois Inter-City Baseball League.

Edwardsville, East St. Louis Smallings and Ponton A.C. all have 15-5 records going into their final games today. The Smallings will be at Venice and Pontoon at Troy. Granite City visits Collinsville.

The league was founded in Maryville in 1926.

Ottsen and O'Connor on Eisenhower Committee

Lamar Ottsen and Dan O'Connor, guiding lights of the Missouri Skating Association, have been appointed to serve on President Eisenhower's Youth Fitness Program. Ottsen is president and O'Connor secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Skating Union and the United States and both are members of the United States Olympic speed skating committee.

Ottsen, coach of the 1952 American Olympic team, also has been selected as technical adviser for the 1960 Olympic Winter Games to be held at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Alexander Cushman, director of the Squaw Valley Olympic committee, plans an artificial ice rink similar to the proposed outdoor rink for St. Louis in Forest Park in the event natural ice in California is not available for the Olympic competition and training purposes.

Shano Collins Dies; Player And Manager

NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 10 (AP)—John F. (Shano) Collins, 69, former major league ball player and one-time manager of the Boston Red Sox, died unexpectedly today at his home.

Collins, a Boston native, broke into the big leagues as a first baseman—outfielder in 1910 with the Chicago White Sox and remained with them through the 1920 season.

In 1921 Shano came to the Sox and played for them through 1925.

After managing in the minors at Des Moines and Pittsfield, he returned as field pilot of the Boston American League club in 1931 and remained at the helm through most of the 1932 season.

He is survived by his widow, a son, three daughters, five grandchildren, four sisters and a brother.

K.C. Rehires Boudreau, Buys Lou Kretlow

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 10 (UP)—The Kansas City Athletics tonight announced that Manager Lou Boudreau had been signed to head the club during the 1956 season.

The Boudreau announcement surprised no one. Boudreau has been credited with having done an outstanding managerial job with a team that was voted unanimously to wind up in the American League cellar. The A's currently are in sixth place. It is the policy of the club, however, to sign one-year contracts with its field manager.

The Athletics announced the purchase from the Seattle Raniers of the Pacific Coast League of right-handed pitcher Lou Kretlow and catched Joe Ginsberg for cash and three players to be named later. The cash was in the neighborhood of $100,000, the A's front office said.

Indians to Donate to Polio Fund in Gratitude For Recovery of Wertz

CLEVELAND, Sept. 10 (AP)—In gratitude for the recovery of Vic Wertz, the Cleveland Indians will donate most of their share of the gate from their game with the Detroit Tigers Sept. 18 to the Cleveland Chapter, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Announcing this today, the baseball club designated Sept. 18 at "Fans March on Polio Day."

The Polio Foundation is to get all receipts from the game except for Detroit's share, rent, taxes and proceeds from the 14,000 advance tickets sold to date for the event in Cleveland Stadium.

A crowd of around 50,000 is expected, so the donation should amount to between $35,000 and $40,000.

Wertz, Cleveland first baseman, is progressing well from a recent attack of polio and may be able to play in a few of the final games of the season.

British Winner Conrad Has Easy Early Go in Amateur

GOLF
by ROBERT MORRISON

Off the Record.

THE present state of Walker Cupper Jim Jackson's golf game makes his outlook for this year's National Amateur a bit dubious, but his record in the tournament the last four years compares favorably with the showings of other present top contenders.

Harvie Ward and Joe Conrad, past and present British Amateur titlists, are being accorded co-favorite roles in the fifty-fifth U.S.G.A. Amateur starting tomorrow at Richmond, Va. One has done little better and one not nearly so well as Jackson in the American championship.

Since Jimmy hit the big-time of amateur golf in 1951, he has won 10 matches and has gone to the fifth round (the last 16) on two occasions, and the fourth round once.

In comparison Harvie Ward has won 11 matches and his best was reaching the fourth round three times. Conrad, playing in the tournament the last two years, failed to win a match in those starts.

Bill Campbell, current Walker Cup captain, also has won 10 matches over the same four-year span, reaching the fifth round three times, but other name players have fewer victories to show. Billy Joe Patton, for instance, has won only six times in three starts, Hillman Robbins four times, and Eddie Merrins, new Western Amateur champion, five times.

The record, of course, doesn't mean too much, as many a star has discovered, and the 32-year-old Jackson has his work cut out for him.

All Work, No Play?

BOB COCHRAN, Joe Switzer, Joe Dolan and Jackson are the St. Louis representation in the blue ribbon amateur tournament. Whether any will last very long may depend, as it usually does, on breaks. A little luck goes a long way in 18-hole match play.

The veteran Cochran, of course, is long experienced in National Amateur competition. In six tournament ventures he has won six matches. He reached the round of 16 in 1941. Switzer is playing for the third time in the last seven years, Dolan for the first.

Jackson himself is in the tournament only because of the withdrawal of others after he failed to qualify, and a subsequent Labor day holiday tournament performance at Centralia, Ill., failed to demonstrate that he has regained real sharpness.

"I worked harder in preparing for the Amateur trial than I ever did for any tournament," Jackson said after his failure. His famed putting touch went temporarily awry and the rest of his game was bad. And even though he later felt that his putting was generally in top form, he had to admit his other shots were deteriorating.

To the suggestion he may have been working too hard at the game, Jackson replied that it was possible, so he undoubtedly has eased up in his preparation at Richmond the last few days.

Good Year, Anyway.

WIN OR LOSE at Richmond, the St. Louis Walker Cup player has had a good year. He won in both foursomes and singles in the Walker Cup matches at St. Andrews. He thus removed the taint from his previous Walker Cup play in 1953, when he almost cost the United States a disqualification by inadvertently exceeding the 14-club limit. The British refused the penalty and so he has yet to be beaten in Walker Cup play, because he and Gene Littler won that foursomes match.

In the 1955 British Amateur Jackson won three matches before losing to Conrad, 1 up, and it was considered possible that if he had succeeded in beating Conrad, he might have gone on to win the British title because he was playing so well.

Later on he repeated as Trans-Mississippi champion at Des Moines, but a month later, in July, he was nosed out by a stroke in the 72-hole qualifying of the Western Amateur, and thus missed making the eight-man match play draw.

His late summer decline, however, seemingly is continuing. Unless he can recapture shot-making consistency with irons and woods, he may do no better in the National Amateur than he did a year ago, when he also missed qualifying, went to the tournament as an alternate and lost in the third round.

BPA Pin Results.

Joe Hofer Jr. of Saratoga rolled 211 high single and Harry Learned of Terry Moore had 566 total to pace the Proprietors' Traveling League bowlers last night at Eddie's Lanes. Saratoga had 928 and 2620 top team scores. Team results: Terry Moore 2, Bowl-O-Crat 1; Eddies 2, Sports Bowl 1; Golden Eagle 2, Arway 1; Saratoga 2, Midway Lanes 1.

Since 1926 the Cardinals have won nine National League pennants. What was the earliest date they clinched the flag?

His Way To Last 8 Blocked By Blair

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 10 (AP)—Two hundred golfers are scheduled to start play Monday in quest of the fifty-fifth United States amateur championship. At least a dozen of them are potential winners.

And, if you want to pick one favorite in this wide-open tournament, the most logical candidate is a little red-headed Texan who never has won a match in the amateur, Joe Conrad.

Conrad, who played on the American Walker Cup team and won the British Amateur title last spring while on leave from the Air Force, is one of five Walker Cuppers "distributed" in the otherwise blind draw. He landed in the third quarter, which is notably shy of name players.

Of course, there's a chance Conrad will come a cropper in his first match just as he has for the past two years. Most of the 200 survivors of the original 1500 entries are good enough to give anyone trouble in a short 18-hole match.

But of the well-known players, only Missouri State Champion James T. Blair III of Jefferson City stands between the Texas redhead and a spot in the last eight. Others in his quarter include 1946 champion Ted Bishop of Weston, Mass., U.S.G.A. junior champion Billy Dunn of Duncan, Okla., and New York's Frank Strafaci and Tim Holland.

Cup Players Rate.

Also listed among the favorites are Bill Campbell, Bruce Cudd, Jimmy Jackson, Billy Joe Patton and Harvie Ward from the Walker Cup team—even though Jackson got into the tournament only as a qualifying alternate—and a handful of former American and British champions on the exempt list. These include Dick Chapman and Willie Turnesa, who have won both titles; 1949 winner Charlie Coe, Bob Sweeny, runner-up last year to Arnold Palmer, and 1955 public links champion Sam Kocsis.

Two other ex-champions, Chick Evans, 1916-1920 American titleholder, and Charley Yates, 1938 British winner, are expected to make only token appearances.

Campbell, Chapman, Coe, Jackson, Evans and Yates all landed in the first, and toughest, quarter of the draw. With them are former Walker Cupper Jimmy McHale, Ed Meister, a semi-finalist last year, Intercollegiate champion Joe Campbell and a lot of other good golfers.

The second quarter has Patton, Kocsis, Dr. Ted Lenczyk, another 1954 semi-finalist; Hillman Robbins, who led the scoring in the sectional qualifying rounds; Don Bisplinghoff, the young Floridian who reached the British Amateur quarter finals this year, sharpshooting Doug Sanders and Western Amateur winner Eddie Merrins.

In the fourth quarter are Cudd, Turnesa, Sweeny, Harvie Ward, slugging Dave Smith from Gastonia, N. C., former junior champion Rex Baxter and 1954 public links Champion Gene Andrews.

Tightened Course.

The one certainty is that the man who comes out on top Saturday will have to play some very good golf over the 6713-yard James river course of the Country Club of Virginia. In preparation for the first amateur championship in the South since 1948, 160 trees were planted to tighten up the fairways, several tees were lengthened and a few new traps were constructed. Tournament par was set at 70 instead of the normal 72.

The course suffered some damage from the August Hurricanes, but the bent grass greens are expected to be in good condition for the tournament.

Most of the star players drew byes or comparatively easy opposition in the first round but there's one match which should be a headliner. In it Bisplinghoff, who has a burning ambition to make the Walker Cup team, meets veteran Ray Billows of Poughkeepse, N. Y., a former Walker Cupper and runner-up to Turnesa in the 1948 championship.

Seventy-two first-round matches are scheduled Monday with 56 players drawing byes, the second round will be played Tuesday and on Wednesday and Thursday two 18-hole rounds will be played each day, leading up to Friday's 36-hole semi-finals. The final, also at 36 holes, is scheduled for Saturday.

Two Big Tackles Stand Out In Missouri's First Scrimmage

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 10—Coach Don Faurot displayed two big and agile tackles and a middle guard that promise to solve a big percentage of his defensive problems as the Missouri Tigers engaged in a game-condition scrimmage today in tuning up for the opening game with Maryland next Saturday.

In Al Portney, 220-pound University City senior, and Frank Czapla, 205-pound McKinley high sophomore, Faurot's tackle problems apparently are solved, and Jim (Cornbread) Martin, 205-pound retread of two seasons ago with Army grid experience added, is the middle guard. They have weight and agility, something Faurot has lacked in key linemen through several seasons.

Problems Shrinking.

Among Faurot's big problems in last year's 4-5-1 season was lack of a second capable tackle, a middle guard to stop movement up the middle, and capable line-backing. Solving the first two problems, naturally, would ease the third. And in Ralph Schulz, 205-pound Sedalia sophomore, and Tony Karakas, 181-pound Soldan high senior, Faurot has a pair of centers as well as Gene Roll, a fullback, who can take care of the line-backing, particularly if they get some help up along the scrimmage line.

After watching his charges today, Faurot wasn't optimistic, either. He doubts that Maryland can repeat its 74-13 victory of a season back with the Tiger players he has on hand. Although he is relying so heavily on sophomores that lack experience he knows that mistakes are going to be made, he feels that if the neophytes come through the Maryland and Michigan games without getting stage fright, they'll be capable hands for the rest of the season.

Halfbacks Lack Size.

He still has problems, including the recurring pass defense situation that has prevailed over several years. His starting halfbacks, Sonny Stringer and Bill Rice, lack height and weight. And paraphrasing Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson, a failure in the line may cost 10 yards, but one on pass defense may mean a touchdown, he pointed out in defensive drills to date, Faurot has been a fanatic at teaching his charges how to cut off those potential touchdowns.

The Tigers, too, may need a game or two to get the split-T offense in gear with a converted halfback, Jim Hunter, and Dick Stuber, who played at the position one year at Iowa State, as the top ball handlers. They are backed by Dave Doane, yet to play a varsity game, whose strong forte is passing.

Recovery of Terry Roberts, all-conference guard two seasons back, from a pulled muscle might help solve still another problem light and inexperience ends.

Today, the top two Tiger teams held the No. 3 and No. 4 elevens in check in rolling up a 34-0 victory, with the reserves threatening only twice. Then they were stopped after recovering a fumble only 18 yards out.

Brightest spot of the day was the performance of Ritenour's Jay Hankins, baseball player of last season, who made a 70-yard touchdown on a pass from Stringer. Stuber passed to Jerry Curtright, Doane passed to Harold Burnine, and Hunter passed to Stringer for one touchdown and scored another on a sneak for the five counters.

Westward Ho Wins Handicap; Saratoga Hurt

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (UP)—Westward Ho streaked to a three-quarter length victory in the eleventh running of the $28,400 Discovery Handicap at Aqueduct today as favored Saratoga suffered a severe leg injury which halted his racing career.

In fourth place as the field of seven three-year-olds swept around the final turn into the homestretch, Saratoga suddenly faded completely out of contention. Although Jockey Nick Shuk rode him the length of the stretch, the colt staggered badly and Shuk dismounted immediately after crossing the finish line.

Saratoga could not put any weight on his right rear leg and a veterinarian said he apparently suffered a broken pastern.

Westward Ho, owned by Breckenridge Long, completed the mile and one-eighth in the ordinary time of 1:52 4-5 under 113 pounds and paid $3.70, $2.70 and $2.20 across the board. Illusionist returned $4.60 and $3.20 while Power paid $3.

One St. Louis Team Wins, Another Loses In Softball Tourney

GREAT BEND, Kan., Sept. 10 (AP)—A no-hitter by Harold Siebert and a home run by Andy Dickman added up to a 1-0 victory for the St. Louis Brocker over the Glenn Tower team of Des Moines in today's play of the Western Amateur Softball association regional tournament.

In other games the Springfield, Mo., Press & Leader team eliminated the St. Louis Lucky Eleven, 2-1; Strauss Brothers of Lincoln, Neb., eliminated the Kansas City, Kan., Town House Rockets, 4-2, and Omaha Haneys defeated North Wichita Businessmen, 6-1.

ASK ME ANOTHER

By Harold Tuthill

"Please settle a discussion about the Cardinals. When were they sold by Sam Breadon? Which owner sold Murry Dickson to the Pirates?" Glenn Gibson, Charleston, Mo.

Breadon sold the Cardinals to Bob Hannegan in 1947. Dickson was sold for a reported $125,000 to the Pirates, Jan. 29, 1949. Although the sale of the Cardinals by Hannegan to Saigh was consummated Jan. 27, the Associated Press, in a dispatch from St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24 said "Saigh approved the sale (of Dickson by Bob Hannegan, then president of the Cardinals."

"What is Stan Musial's 1953 salary with the Cardinals?" Tommie Lee Makey, 5133 Ridge.

Ball clubs do not disclose salaries paid to the players but Stan the Man's 1955 salary has been estimated unofficially at $80,000.

Stockhams, Radisons In Khoury Playoff

Stockham Post, which has won both of its playoff games, faces the Radison Pirates (1-1) in the Khoury senior baseball eliminations today at 1 p.m. on Heman Park diamond No. 2 in University City. Schmersahls (1-1) also are in the two-losses-and-out playoffs.

In the intermediate playoffs, Simpkins, virtually the same team that wore the Thoman-Boothe Legion uniforms, tries for its third victory in as many games in a 1 o'clock game with East Alton V.F.W. Post 9432 at Forest Park No. 7. East Alton (1-1) will play Simpkins again at 3:30 if it wins the 1 o'clock game. Goldes are the other intermediate survivor.

Second games in doubleheaders in the Khoury eliminations were prevented by rain yesterday, and rescheduled for next Saturday afternoon. In an Atom playoff at Forest Park, the H.V.B. team defeated New Athens, Ill., 17-0, as Richard Bauer of the winning team struck out 12 and aided himself with a home run.

Weed Released

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10 (UP).

TAD WEED, Ohio State's tiny place-kicking star, who won the All-Star game for the college team in Chicago last month, has been released by the Los Angeles Rams, it was announced by the local pro grid club prior to last night's Rams-San Francisco Forty-Niner game.

Trainer Shipp Gains 1st Win In 102 Days

By Herman Wecke

A dry spell longer than the one ended by yesterday's rain concluded last night at Cahokia Downs for E. D. Shipp, usually one of the leading trainers in local racing. Niembro Cue won the first race, and it was the first victory by a Shipp-trained horse since the season here began with racing at Fairmount—102 racing dates ago.

The Niembro Cue victory was welcome to some bettors, too, particularly those who had it and Mary's Beacon in the second race, as a daily double combination. The pair were good for a daily double of $137.80. Mary's Beacon paid $31.60, and that was considerably less than it returned in its first victory of the Cahokia meeting. Its return of $126.00 on July 28 remains the highest of the season here.

In contrast to Shipp's broken drouth, there was the continued deluge of winners for the combination of Trainer C. C. Lemors and the Mikel Farm, owner of Rachel G. That animal's victory in the fourth race was the sixteenth of the meeting for the trainer-owned team.

Weather cloudy; track good.
FIRST RACE—Six and one-half furlongs:

Losing Teams in Muny Twin Bill Will Bow Out of Eliminations

McNearys To Shift Outfield

The must-win stage is at hand today for four teams in the Muny senior baseball playoffs.

McNearys (1-1) face Borbein-Young (0-1) at 1 o'clock and Kimacks (0-1) oppose Hoffmeisters (1-1) at 3:30 at Fairground Park No. 1 and the losers will be knocked out of the two-losses-and-out tournament.

Kutis North, defending Muny champion, and Carondelet Sunday Morning Club, both winners in their playoff starts, will sit out today's action. They meet next Sunday. Today's victors also will be matched next Sunday.

Art Slocum, star centerfielder for McNearys, has gone into a seminary, so Manager Roy Fleddermann plans to shift Bobby Faucett from right field with either Frank Loncaric or Cotton Schaefer taking over in right.

Harold Rosenthal will be the plate umpire in today's first game, McNearys home team. Arnold Zimmer will call them at first base, Ted Schneider at third. In the second contest, Kimacks home team, Ed Venator will call balls and strikes, Leroy Edwards will be at first base, Jim Flavin at third.

Admission is 50 cents, children under 12 free if accompanied by their parents.

In the first round, McNearys defeated Kimacks, 4-2, and Hoffmeisters upset Borbeins, also 4-2. Then Kutis routed McNearys, 8-2, and Carondelet walloped Hoffmeisters, 8-3.

County League Races End.

The second-half races wind up today in both divisions of the County Baseball League with the pennants still undecided.

In the American Division, Vigus (7-1) can gain the title with a double victory at Creve Coeur (5-3). Manchester (7-2) is at home to Festus (3-6) and Ballwin (6-2) also is at home for a twin bill with Olivette (4-4). Thus, a triple tie for first place is possible. St. Louis C.A.C. (1-8) and Valley Park (1-8) battle for last place at Valley Park.

Webster Lions, leading the National Division with an 8-1 record, play at Florissant (5-4) and Glencoe (7-2) visits Chesterfield (0-9). Bridgeton (5-4) is at Festus (4-5) and Creve Coeur (3-5) plays two at Richmond Heights (3-5).

Creve Coeur took the first half title in the American Division, Florissant, in the National.

Kutis vs. Liberty Today.

Liberty soccer team, fresh from a 2-0 victory over St. Philip Neri in a Summer League playoff match, will meet Kutis this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Fee Fee Gardens, on Fee Fee road south of St. Charles.

MUNY VETERAN WHO PLAYED UNTIL 70 LONGS FOR GOOD OL' BASEBALL DAYS

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

JOHN GEBHART, 76, retired Commission Row wholesaler and a sandlot baseball player here as recently as six years ago, is shown with his dog, Rex, at his home on 1319 Benton street.

By Neal Russo

Although young baseball players today have such advantages as better equipment, earlier starts in kids' leagues, prosperity in that they don't have to work at hard jobs at a tender age—and vitamins—the boys 40 and 50 years ago were superior. That, controversially, is the opinion of John Gebhart, 76 years old and a Muny veteran who didn't hang up his glove until he was 70.

Gebhart, who had plenty of chances to reminisce with old teammates congratulating him on his recent golden wedding anniversary, said that players in his day worked much harder at trying to improve on their talent.

"You don't see many boys shagging flies and running at the parks these days," Gebhart said. "Too many wait for a bonus. I was born 60 years too soon. I'm sure I could have picked up some of that easy bonus money."

Gebhart recalled his days with the old Olives when he was a hard-hitting, speedy outfielder who filled in as a pitcher.

"Charley Grimm was only 16 years old then. I was captain of the Olives and tried to help Charley all I could at the plate, but he never could hit a balloon for us—although he was always great with the glove."

Grimm, now Milwaukee's manager, didn't do so well at bat two years later (at the age of 18) in a brief fling with the Philadelphia Athletics, finishing with .091. But he picked up—closing with a .290 lifetime major league average.

Gebhart, a familiar figure as a wholesaler on Commission Row for some 40 years—all of which he lived at 1319 Benton street, still his home—said he could still throw a sharp overhand curve and a fast one at 70 when he finally retired from the Sunday morning regulation games of the Harlem Park Veterans.

A brick-carrier for 50 cents a day at the age of 9, Gebhart began picking up extra money for pitching and playing in the outfield at 15. He was with the Conroys and Sam Schultz teams and played with or against Dickie Kerr and Jeff Tesreau, both of whom went on to fame as major league pitchers.

St. Matthew Wins Hickey Soccer Title

St. Matthew, with 12 points, won the championship in the summer soccer league at Hickey Field. In the final matches, Holy Rosary won from St. Paul, 3-1, and St. Edwards gained a 1-0 victory over St. Matthew.

Final standings:

5000-Meter Mark Topped By Hungarian

VIENNA, Sept. 10 UP) — Sandor Iharos of Hungary bettered the official world record for 5000 meters during today's international track and field meet in Budapest with a clocking of 13 minutes, 50.8 seconds, Radio Budapest reported.

The official mark of 13:51.2 is held by Russia's Vladimir Kuts. Iharos previously set world records for 1500 and 3000 meters and two miles in 1955 races.

Iharos hit the 1000-meter mark today in 2:44.0, did 2000 meters in 5:39.4; 3000 meters in 8:23.2 and 4000 meters in 11:09.

Radio Budapest said 4000 fans watched the meet.

St. Louis Man Sets World Record in Outboard Racing

CAIRO, Ill., Sept. 10 (UP)—Arthur Kennedy of St. Louis, Mo., roared to a new world speed record today in the world championship Outboard Association's races here.

Kennedy zoomed his Class D-2 runabout over the Ohio river mile course at 51.428 miles per hour to crack the old mark of 50.420 held by Earl McGill, Corpus Christi, Texas.

Lonnie Kelly of Corpus Christi and Earl Renfrow of Boonville, Mo., finished second and third respectively.

Bob Snider of Mission, Kan., won the Class A runabout title with a time of 4 minutes, 27.9 seconds for the mile. He was trailed by Clyde Davie of East St. Louis, Ill., and George Avery of Tulsa, Okla.

Eight more races are scheduled to wind up the two-day meet tomorrow.

Braves Plan Shift Of Toledo Franchise

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 10 (UP)—The Milwaukee Braves today announced that the club would request approval for the transfer of the Braves' American Association franchise from Toledo to an undetermined city for the 1956 season.

The Braves said "the pressure of major league baseball" and television at Detroit and Cleveland were the main reasons for the proposed move.

JUST FOR FUN ..ANSWER ..TO QUESTION ON PRECEDING PAGE

The 1931 Cardinal team clinched the pennant Sept. 16. That was the earliest date until Brooklyn broke the record, Sept. 12, 1953. The Dodgers bettered their own mark by sewing up the title last Thursday, Sept. 8.

Parador, Trim Destiny Head Nominees for St. Louis Derby

Big Field Expected Saturday

Parador and Trim Destiny head a list of 21 horses nominated for the second running of the $12,000 added St. Louis Derby at Cahokia Downs next Saturday night, Sept. 17. Nomination closing date was last midnight, and there is a possibility additional nominations will be received in Monday morning's mail.

An intensive drive was conducted to obtain nominations for the stakes event, and indications are that a full field, exceeding last year's starters both in numbers and in class, will run in the one mile and one sixteenth race.

A likely starter derby night will be G. R. White's Trim Destiny, a chestnut colt that in the recent Kentucky Derby forced the pace for the first mile but gave way in the last quarters wilting under the pressure applied by Swaps, Nashua and Summer Tan. A son of Destino-Qrimlike, the three-year-old captured the Arkansas Derby, a $10,000 added event.

In the Ohio Derby, Trim Destiny ran seventh, as Traffic Judge disposed of the field in the $40,000 added classic. In mid-June, Trim Destiny finished fifth in the $50,000 added "Chicagoan." The colt owns two allowance decisions in other competition this year.

H. C. Fruehauf's Parador, a bay colt by Errand-No Ma'am, as a two-year-old—earned in excess of $25,000 as a result of two wins, one place and three show finishes. A fourth-place finisher in the Washington Park Futurity, $75,000 added, the Fruehauf representative also finished fourth in the Breeder's Futurity and later ran third in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

Parador's last start was in the recent $100,000 American Derby where he finished third to Swaps and Traffic Judge after forcing the pace for the first mile of the mile of the mile and three sixteenths race. Previous to that he won the American Derby Preview on the turf going a mile and one sixteenth in 1:44, with Jockey Willie Hartack up. His first rtiumph in stakes competition was a six-length victory in the Sheridan Handicap at Washington Park.

Ambor Reigh Nominated.

Also nominated is Ambor Reigh, a starter only seven times in his career who has won twice and recently finished second in the Young Blade Handicap at Hazel Park, losing the decision to Elkchester. Sired by the great French import Ambiorix, his dam Reigh Ann was sired by Reigh Count, a Kentucky Derby winner who also sired Count Fleet and Count Turf, also Kentucky Derby winners.

Other nominees include H. H. Rendleman's Tiger Bee and F. E. Waldron's Ambalong, both stabled at Cahokia Downs and regular campaigners there; Prince Eric and Teisler, owned by Emil Denemark; Sticks, owned by B & G Stable; R. A. Parachek's Tile King; Martine and Whitesell's Elkchester; Harold L, owned by Lem G. Jones; River Gate, owned by M. H. Van Berg; Lowill, owned by W. T. Larber; West Wind Farm's Stroller; Camping Out, owned by Mabel Wilson; Djeddah's Star, owned by Courtney Burton and trained by Norman L. Haymaker; Shannon Comet, owned by J. C. Pollard; Next Option, owned by Locust Lawn Farm; Drogheda, owned by C. A. Donnelly; Retract, owned by B. W. Landy and Colonel Velvet, owned by H. Kellaheran.

Last year a total of 31 nominations were received and ten started. The 1954 derby was won by M. H. Van Berg's Endon and was ridden by Howard Craig.

Post time derby night has been moved up to 8 P.M.

Earlier Dove Season? Treaty Bars It.

MISSOURI dove hunters generally have had good shooting since the season opened Sept. 1, but the conservation commission believes hunting would be even better with a season opening around Aug. 15.

Unfortunately, a long-standing treaty between the United States and Canada concerning migratory birds prohibits dove shooting in this country before Sept. 1.

As a result, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service has been unable to heed pleads by Missouri and some other states for an earlier starting date.

The treaty was signed many years ago when little dove research had been done. Subsequently, Missouri Conservation Commission experts and others were able to show the first movement of doves out of the state occurs generally in July, with a second migration in August.

Frequently, the doves are all gone from Missouri by the time the season gets under way. This is particularly true if heavy rains and cool weather occur in July and August.

"I believe Missouri dove hunters would be better off if we could open the season two weeks earlier than now," Harold Terrill, wildfowl expert for the commission, said.

"This August opening would give shooters an increased opportunity to harvest the dove supply, without cutting into the breeding stock. I don't think we should move the start back any farther than early August."

When the dove season opened in Missouri this year, more than 2,000,000 of the birds had moved out, but the hunting situation was not so bad as might be expected, for an estimated 4,000,000 remained. At the end of last week, this number had been reduced by approximately 500,000.

Terrill pointed out that Missouri's record population of doves has been due to very favorable conditions during the nesting season and a minimum of loss in Guatemala, Mexico and Texas, where the doves spend the winter.

The dove season ends Oct. 15—10 days later than last year. In Illinois, however, the shooting period closes Oct. 5.

Ducks Already on Way.

Bluewinged teal and pintails have begun appearing in Missouri in considerable numbers on their southern migration, more than one month ahead of last year. The early hatch in Canada is probably the principal factor for the ducks' arrival at this time.

Fishing at the August A. Busch Wildlife Area at Weldon Spring will close Oct. 1.

This news will cause little sadness among local anglers as fishing at the area has been poor because of low water in the lakes. A few lakes are so low as to be almost useless.

The recent complaint by a Post-Dispatch reader that fish were non-existent creatures, since he had never been able to catch one, was made the subject of an outdoors column by John Willard of Helena, Mont., writing for Montana newspapers.

Willard said: "Missouri's dejected angler is voicing a complaint which can be heard in any Montana sportsmen's meeting.

"What is needed, though, is not as much more fish as it is better fishermen."

Case of the Pond Owners.

Charles E. Ellenberger, 3929 Utah street, says, in a letter to Outdoors, that he believes Missouri pond owners would do better to buy their own fish for stocking rather than accept the provisions under which the conservation commission provides fish free for this purpose.

The September issue of the Missouri Conservationist discusses the subject. To the question "What are my rights as owner of a stocked farm pond?" it replies:

"As owner of a commission-stocked pond you lose no ownership rights. You still own and control all the land under and around the pond and you have complete control over who can fish in your pond.

"No one is authorized to fish in the pond without your permission. On the other hand, you have an obligation to allow some fishing without charge, as all pond owners do when applying for fish.

"The cost of raising and distributing the fish was paid for from hunting and fishing permit fees collected by the commission.

"It would not be proper for the commission to accept these fees from all fishermen and then spend the money to stock ponds that would be for private use only or where a charge was made for fishing.

"As to how many people you let fish in your pond and who they are—that is up to you."

Siegel Passes For Touchdown In Bears' Game

Washington University's Bears were preoccupied with running their ground offense but a 30-yard pass play from star Mel Siegel to wingback Jere Clamp got one of the five touchdowns made in a two-hour game-type scrimmage yesterday.

Coach Carl Snavely used 60 men in the drill. For about 45 minutes Siegel at tailback, Bob Ladd at blocking back, Clamp at wingback and Jay Metcalfe at fullback made up the backfield of one team.

After that Snavely thoroughly mixed the lineups on both sides. Don Polkinghorne, highly rated at the fullback position, was out of action because of a sprained ankle.

While the Siegel-led backfield was in the game, his side scored another touchdown by recovering a fumble then driving some 25 yards.

Snavely said the defensive work of the big squad was encouraging but blocking left much to be desired. The teams tried only a dozen passes throughout the workout.

The Bears, who open their season here against Missouri Mines Sept. 24, will go back to twice-a-day drills next week.

Three W. U. Home Games on KSD-TV

THREE Washington University home games have been added to the schedule of college football telecasts which Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV will carry this fall.

The three, which are in addition to eight nation-wide telecasts arranged by the N.C.A.A., will feature the Bears against Rolla on Sept. 24, against Drake on Oct. 8 and against Butler on Nov. 12. The programs will start at 1:45 p.m.

KSD-TV's schedule of football telecasts opens Sept. 17 with the Georgia Tech-Miami game. Other games in the 13-week series are Stanford-Ohio State, Oct. 1; Michigan State-Notre Dame, Oct. 15; Michigan - Iowa, Oct. 29; Southern California - UCLA, Nov. 19; Texas A & M-Texas, Nov. 24; Army-Navy, Nov. 26; Duke-North Carolina, Dec. 3.

The games on Sept. 17, Oct. 15, Oct. 29 and Nov. 26 will be telecast in color.

Boston Bruins Begin Training at Hershey

BOSTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—The Boston Bruins move out to training camp tomorrow at midnight when Coach Milt Schmidt takes three Greater Boston rookies and several veterans to Hershey, Pa.

The rest of the squad of 40 professionals and amateurs will begin training Monday, a week earlier than usual, to prepare for an early opening of their 35-game National Hockey League schedule.

The Bruins open against the Montreal Canadiens in Canada, Oct. 8 and play host to the Canadiens the following day in the Boston Garden, earliest Boston opener in the Bruins' history.

Schmidt, in his first training season as coach, will be accompanied tomorrow by three promising Bay State rookies—Ralph De Leo, former Boston Tech star; Fred Wonoski of Lynn, and Bill Henderson of Natick.

Duck Problems To Be Aired by Commissioners

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 10 (AP)—The men who boss the conservation programs in every state of the union, the Canadian provinces and Mexico get together for a three-day meeting starting Monday to compare notes.

The sessions of the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners will "cover practically every phase of wildlife management and definitely point up the growing influence of science as applied to general conservation," says Howard D. Dodgen, executive secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission and president of the International.

"The significance of this annual program has been increasing in proportion to the expanded utilization of our natural resources both from an economic and a pleasure viewpoint," Dodgen added. "The ever increasing pressure on wildlife enhances the importance of the discussions."

And high on the list of featured topics are two close to the hearts of hunters: Use of the limited hunting system on big game, and problems in developing duck and goose habitat.

Motorboat Races at Alton.

The Alton motorboat club will hold its annual regatta this afternoon starting at 1 o'clock. The race course will be adjacent to the club docks, located on the McAdams Highway, four miles north of Alton. The program will include inboard and outboard motorboat events, as well as water ski races.

Light De Andreis Squad Faces King-Sized Grid Schedule

It Meets Beaumont In Opener

By Harold Tuthill

Ed Donohue, a personable Irishman who learned his football at St. Louis U., is singing the blues at De Andreis High these days because of a small squad—both in numbers and in weight—to meet a man-sized schedule.

The Wildcats from Carter avenue in North St. Louis picked a real toughie for their opener Thursday night—Beaumont. And, if what Donohue says is true about his boys, Beaumont most likely will repeat its 50-0 triumph of a year ago.

"Our squad numbers only 21," Donohue said. "Of that number six are lettermen, but none is very big. Don Schweppe, a letterman tackle, goes 180 and Joe Inchiostro, letterman quarterback, weighs 170. They and Jack Kavanaugh, an inexperienced tackle who weighs 170, are the only good-sized players we have."

Other Holdovers.

Other lettermen on the D-A squad are Bob Hilton, 130-pound end; Rich Herbst, 135-pound center; and Dick Zurmuehler and Jim Herkenhoff, backs, who weigh about 155. Filling out the starting eleven will be Bill Hubler, 145, right end; Jerry Piekarski, 150, left guard; Leonard Bieser, 150, right guard; and Bob McGee, 140, right half.

Tom Lamkie, a defensive end, may start instead of Hubler and Jack Delahunt, former center converted into an end also will get into the game as a wing man.

After Beaumont, De Andreis will oppose Washington Tech, Assumption and Riverview Gardens before opening its five-game Catholic Athletic Conference schedule.

Beaumont, beaten only by St. Louis U. High, 7-0, in a 10-game schedule last year, capped its season with a 6-0 triumph over St. Mary's in the Accident Benefit contest between the Public High and the Catholic Athletic Conference champions.

St. Mary's Strong Again.

St. Mary's figures to be almost as strong this fall, although Vernon Winter's Green Dragons have been plagued by early injuries. Andy Rios, a speedy halfback on whom Winter was counting, dislocated his elbow in the first day of contact work. Winter hopes the 185-pound track star will return to practice by the end of the week, but there's small hope Rios will be able to play against Cathedral at Belleville Friday night.

In addition to Rios, Rich Riley and Tony Simokaitis, both backs, were fast enough to run on the Dragon track team last spring. Then, too, Winter has acquired Don Henry, an all-conference halfback who played for DuBourg a year ago, but a discouraging factor there is that Henry has an old back injury which has kept him from strenuous practice.

Of the 20 lettermen on the St. Mary's squad, only co-captains Henry Midden and Larry Gazall were regular starters on the offensive formations. Nine from the championship aggregation were lost by graduation.

Those who played much of the time during the '54 campaign include Don Brush, Bill Condon, Stan Kostecki, Ken Plassmeyer, Bill Saufnauer and Ray Ahillen.

Outstanding among the newcomers, according to Winter, are Bob Maher, Jim Cropper, Don Hutchison, Pat Grimes, John Oberlohr, Rich Roseman, Charles Bilka, and the twin 5-8, 185-pound tackles, Edward and Tom Renaud.

Probably the outstanding game of the first week of prep football in the district will be Friday between Webster Groves, mythical state champion of 1954, and Roosevelt, which has steadily developed since Irl Lake and George Hasser have been handling the Rough Riders. The contest will be at Public Schools Stadium Friday night.

Sparky's Aspirin Budget Already Established; Wait 'Til Next Year

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 10 (UP)—Venerable Forrest C. (Phog) Allen, the University of Kansas basketball coach, failed to scare at least one rival Big Seven coach with his acquisition of 7-foot Wilt Chamberlain for his squad.

Sparky Stalcup, Missouri coach, said he would not worry about the highly-touted Chamberlain this year because "my aspirin budget has already been established and can't be increased."

"From all I've heard about Wilt's ability he'll be headache enough a year from now when he's eligible for varsity competition," Stalcup said.

Allen, who will be 70 in November, is scheduled for retirement next year.

"It looks like my friend Phog has again pulled off a master stroke of recruiting, in view of his talked-of retirement. But Wilt says he just came to Kansas to play for Phog."

"If Allen retires and Wilt holds good on the statement he 'just came to play for Phog,' I wonder who'll have the headache then?" the Missouri mentor asked.

Basketball coaches all over the country were reportedly bidding high for Chamberlain's services. The Philadelphian received scholarship offers from 150 colleges.

Chamberlain, who can almost reach the top of the basketball hoop with his hand, broke every Philadelphia scoring record during his high school days and set a state scoring record of 90 points in a game against Roxborough High School.

9 Senior Clubs in Khoury Soccer

Nine senior clubs have made application to play in the Khoury soccer organization this season, George Khoury announced yesterday.

Two teams, the Trojans and Craigs, are newcomers. The others are the Polish National Alliance, the Diamonds, Joe Simpkins, Meramecs, Mike Brehenys, Liberty and Carondelet Sunday Morning Athletic Club.

One other team is expected in the senior loop before the season starts the second week of October.

There also is a possibility of junior league competition this year. There are openings for teams in this division (17 and under), and in the midget, bantam and juvenile classes. Applications may be made at 3216 Park avenue.

Monsanto vs. McDonnell.

Monsanto and McDonnell open a best-of-three series for Y.M.C.A. Industrial baseball title today at 2 p.m. at Cherokee Park No. 1.

Kids Can Size Up Rosewall Here and Hope

Ken Rosewall, the Australian Davis Cup star who will appear in an exhibition in St. Louis Thursday afternoon, is the answer to the tennis coach's dream, according to Earl Buchholz Sr., professional at Triple A club, where the matches will be played.

"Rosewall is the smallest of all top-ranking tennis campaigners," Buchholz said, "and he's the kind of fellow you can point out to kids who don't have all the best physical ability. Rosewall is only about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, and he probably doesn't weigh more than 140, yet he hits the ball as hard and with as much authority as the big American muscle men."

The matches at Triple A, in which Rosewall and Neale Fraser of the winning Australian Cup team will compete with Enrique Morea of Argentina and Kurt Nielsen of Denmark, will start at 3:30 o'clock, so that teen-agers attending high school and the small fry, too, can see the attraction.

Buchholz, whose son, Earl Buchholz Jr., is one of the top-ranking boy players of the nation, thinks youngsters can learn a lot from watching Rosewall, who defeated both Vic Seixas, the American champion, and Hamilton Richardson in Davis Cup singles matches at Forest Hills.

Morea, the Argentine player, has been among the best in the world for at least a decade and Nielsen was runner-up in the most recent Wimbledon tournament at London—the play frequently referred to as the "world series" of tennis.

Most American topnotchers have been six-footers in recent years, but many oldtimers can recall the sterling play of Atlanta's Bitsy Grant in the thirties and more recently the smashing of Bobby Riggs, also a professional attraction for years.

Rosewall, only 20 years old, is considered the best "little guy" of them all.

Favorites Advance In Kirkwood Tennis

The four favored players in the Kirkwood Chamber of Commerce junior tennis tournament, held in conjunction with a homecoming program, had little trouble winning second round matches yesterday before the rains came.

Neil Drury, seeded No. 1, defeated Don McIver, 6-2, 6-0; Dick Horwitz, No. 2, defeated Harold Heitman, 6-1, 6-0; Rodney Susman, No. 3, won from Jan Coester, 6-1, 6-2 and Chuck McKinley, No. 4, disposed of Jack Skilling, 6-0, 6-1.

Other results, first round:

Jimmy Parker defeated Russell Brooks, 6-3, 6-4. Dick Page defeated Carl Rohne, 6-4, 6-0; Paul Young defeated Bill Hahn, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2; Clifford Buchholz defeated Carl Froebel, 6-1, 6-0.

DOUBLES, FIRST ROUND

Michael Putney and Coester defeated Mickey Grand-Jean and Jimmy Holden, 6-2, 6-0; Froebel and Page defeated Dunn and Gladders, 6-0, 6-2; Susman and McKinley won by default from Hodgenson and Lang; Rohne and Parker defeated Buchholz and Jim Bryan, 6-1, 7-5.

SECOND ROUND

Drury and Horwitz defeated Skilling and Scott Pratt, 6-1, 6-0; Froebel and Page defeated Putney and Coester, 7-5, 7-5. Susman and McKinley defeated Rohne and Parker, 6-4, 6-1; Brooks and Hahn defeated Heitman and Young, 6-4, 7-5.

Kissing Comfort

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

KISSING a man goodnight can be an ennobling and enlightening experience for a woman, and the practice is highly popular.

"So far be it from me," said Mr. Elbridge J. Casselman, "to put a damper on night-time smooching. But I really feel that women should be advised of the latest scientific facts regarding the comforts of kissing in the Winter as opposed to kissing in the Summer. Don't you?"

Mercy yes, Elbridge. No sense in ducking kissing issues.

"After more than 15 years of research, mostly at the Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh, it has been discovered that a man's beard grows 50 per cent faster in the Summertime than in the Wintertime.

"This means, of course, that if he ordinarily gets (5 o'clock shadow) at 5 o'clock—this 5 o'clock shadow will start appearing about 2:30 or 3 in the Summer.

By 9 of a Summer's night, the average shadow will be a stubble. And by midnight—or goodnight kiss hour—a man has a small scale brush for a face, and a woman is in for discomfort.

Two Solutions

"There are two solutions to this Summertime romance problem" offered by Casselman.

"Number one—men can shave twice a day, but if they do this they must not shave as closely as usual. Otherwise they will irritate their skin.

"Or solution number two—kissing could be cut to the bone during the hot weather months and replaced by other pursuits, like surf bathing and scrabble. This is just a suggestion, and frankly—"

Elbridge shook his head knowingly—"I don't think it'll catch on."

Technically, Mr. Casselman is both an organic chemist and a pogonomist (shaving artist), and his scientific research at Mellon has been done on behalf of the American Safety Razor Co.

"My studies have also shown up a lot of old wives' tales," he said, running a hand thoughtfully down his silky smooth cheek. "For instance, you're a woman and you probably shave your legs occasionally."

I conceded the validity of both points.

"You've probably heard the old theory that once a woman starts shaving her legs, the hair will grow in faster and stronger than ever before. This is absolutely not true.

Used Arms for Test

"For 15 years, I have been shaving my left arm at regular intervals and leaving my right arm alone. The hair on my left arm always grows back gradually, and it is of exactly the same consistency, and certainly in no greater quantity, than on my right arm. A woman's leg hair reacts precisely the same."

Another unusual fact gleaned from Casselman's studies is this: The woman shaver does more work than the average man. Even if she has short legs, a lady covers as much territory in one shave as a man does in four.

So if she sleeks her limbs twice a week in Summer, a woman out-shaves the average man one face-worth.

Miami-Georgia Tech Game on Television

Part of Gridiron Twin Bill

ATLANTA, Sept. 10 (AP)—Atlanta will be the hub of the football world Saturday when four of the nation's highly regarded teams perform in a day-night double attraction to kick off the 1955 season.

And the whole country can get in on part of the act via television—color TV, at that.

Miami and Georgia Tech, ranked ninth and tenth among the grid giants in The Associated Press pre-season poll, will furnish the afternoon fireworks. The night's head-knocking will be between Mississippi, No. 15, and Georgia, a darkhorse pawing at the gate for admission among the elite.

On KSD-TV.

The Tech-Miami game will be the first ever televised nationally in color. (KSD-TV will carry the game at 2:15, St. Louis time.) The Georgia-Ole Miss game will not be available to the TV audience under the NCAA's restricted TV program.

The Miami-Tech affair ranks as the top game in the country.

Coached by Bobby Dodd, father of the "Razzle-Dazzle" football of the 1930s, Tech's offense is built around Quarterback Wade Mitchell, an All-America candidate, and a handsome halfback corps headed by Jimmy Thompson and Paul Rotenberry. TV fans recall the 5-foot-6 Thompson as the darting, dodging scene-stealer in the Tech-Alabama TV game last November.

Miami, under the guidance of Andy Gustafson, likewise has a sterling backfield. Quarterback Mario Bonofiglio, halfback Whitey Rouviere, another All-America hopeful, and Fullback Don Bosseler are the key cogs.

Where's the Ball?.

Tech and Miami use strikingly similar formations for their "bread and butter" offense. Tech calls it the "belly" series; Miami the "drive" series. In both, the play starts with the quarterback faking (or was he?) to the fullback, and just about anything can develop from there. Ball-handling, timing and faking are all-important in bringing off the sought-for deception.

Mississippi, the defending Southeastern Conference champion, has an offensive edge over Georgia—on paper, at least—but the rebels will run up against one of the toughest lines in these parts.

Rebel standouts include quarterback Johnny Blalack, a junior passing whiz, guard Buddy Alliston and ball-carriers Billy Kinard, Earl Blair and Paige Cothren.

Georgia needs a good passer to give an improved running game, built around Fullback Bobby Garrard, for greater effectiveness. Line stalwarts include Tackles Pud Mosteller and Jim Luck and Guards Len Spadafino and Don Shea.

Both games are rated sell-outs (separate tickets for each contest, of course) in tech's 40,000 capacity Grant Field.

Most Terrible Terrapin

—University of Maryland Photograph.

BOB PELLEGRINI, 6-foot-3, 225-pound Maryland center from Yatesboro, Pa., is this formidable 21-year-old young man who'll look Missouri linemen in the eye next Saturday at Columbia, Mo., in the Tigers' 1955 football opener. "He easily could be the nation's best lineman," Coach Jim Tatum said of the Terrapins' All-America candidate.

Then . . . and Now.

DURING the Cardinals' last eastern trip — why bring that up!—Tom Meany, veteran New York writer, watched the beloved Dodgers of his native Brooklyn run amuck against the Redbirds at Ebbets Field. Tom, no meany, changed the subject.

"I was thinking how close we are to the football season and how different things were when I was working the daily sports beat," he said.

Meany, now sports editor of Collier's, explained that when he began traveling with a ball club 30 years ago, there was no overlapping between baseball and football.

"Most of the colleges played eight games. Instead of 10, and started the first week in October, not the third week in September," he said, "and if you did miss anything through the World Series, it was just a breather. By the time the Babe (Ruth) broke his last window of the year or the Cardinals broke some club's heart in the Series, everybody who was anybody in college football still was unbeaten.

"Now," Meany said, chuckling, "by the time the World Series is over, so is the season for a lot of football teams—good ones, too—that have lost two or three because they've insisted on playing early and with the big boys."

How true. An unbeaten season, as a result, has become increasingly difficult to achieve. As Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson put it, though his Sooners have been the No. 1 postwar exception, old grads and young ones have had to learn to settle for victories over traditional rivals, quality triumphs instead of quantity.

It's Kick-Off Time.

NEITHER the calendar nor the weather suggests football is near, but don't be misled. This is it, the opening week in which, quite fittingly, U.C.L.A., national co-champions with Ohio State last fall and generally favored along with Oklahoma for the top spot this time, will kick off the season Friday night at Los Angeles against roving recruiter Paul (Bear) Bryant's Texas Aggies.

Checking more than 25 games we'd rate first-class next Saturday, only two smacked of probable premeditated one-sidedness, Wofford against South Carolina and the University of Hawaii at Nebraska. And the Cornhuskers are just returning the invitation for a handsome Thanksgiving trip to Waikiki last fall.

Elsewhere, major gridiron openers include Maryland at Missouri, Miami at Georgia Tech, California at Pittsburgh, Texas Tech at Texas, Mississippi at Georgia, Washington State at Southern California, Kentucky at Louisiana State, Kansas at Texas Christian and Mississippi State at Florida.

Additionally, there are other formidable first games, too, remembering that, as Mr. Shakespeare said, what's in a name? For instance, the Mississippi Southern team that surprised Alabama each of the last two years and is NOT on the 1955 Crimson Tide schedule, was a well-recruited squad and no Cinderella accident.

So at least sectionally there'll be interest in College of Pacific at Stanford, Wyoming at Kansas State, Arkansas at Tulsa, Utah at Oregon, North Carolina State at Florida State, Denver at Iowa State, Montana at Houston, Brigham Young at Oregon State, Hardin-Simmons at Baylor, Arizona State of Tempe at Wichita and Virginia Tech at Wake Forest.

Maryland, Oh, My!

THE way the fur flies from the outset now in college football, forecasting is considerably more difficult, too, for Dukes Duford and others who boldly attempt to predict the next crazy bounce of the oval.

But the Post-Dispatch pigskin analyst and the rest aren't likely to have much difficulty figuring the Missouri-Maryland game Saturday at Columbia, not if they've read Herman Hickman's pre-season report—"The Eleven Best Elevens"—in the current Sports Illustrated.

Hefty Hickman, poet laureate of the Smokies and former coach, ranks Maryland with Army, U.C.L.A., Georgia Tech, Iowa, Michigan, Navy, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Oklahoma and Rice.

Hickman quoted Terrapin Coach Jim Tatum as saying: "Barring any injuries to key personnel, Maryland should be better than in 1954 (won 7, lost 2, tied 1). We have a good line, one that could be the fastest in my tenure at Maryland. Center Bob Pellegrini is a great football player, maybe the best lineman in the country. Quarterback Frank Tamburello gives us outstanding confidence at the signal-calling position. He is a tremendous one-platoon football player."

For himself, Hickman wrote of the Terps:

"No team in the country last year displayed a more awesome offense than did the Terps toward the end of the season. . . . The big difference over last year lies in the line, especially the tackle position. I have talked with many opposing coaches, and they all agree that Pellegrini is without peer as a linebacker, and his offensive blocking at center is plenty potent.

"I agree with Tatum's hopeful estimate of Quarterback Tamburello. As a sophomore last fall he was an excellent signal-caller and ball-handler, and on defense he was a joy to behold.

"Red Sanders says, without hesitation, that Maryland was by far the best team his (U.C.L.A.) Bruins faced last fall."

Duford Sees a Tie in Big Ten Between Michigan and Wisconsin

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth in a series of college football sectional previews prepared by a former St. Louis University coach.)

By Dukes Duford

Notre Dame, year-in and year-out kingpin of college football, should be down a notch this fall while the Big Ten Conference, generally considered the must rugged league, is expected to have a four-team race. And if Sherlock Duford's deductions are better than before, the race should end in a tie with Michigan and Wisconsin as co-champions.

Here's why: The Wolverines and Badgers play seven conference games. The two other favorites, defending champion Ohio State and Iowa, have only six league contests, a disadvantage percentage-wise. Besides, Michigan and Wisconsin will meet the Buckeyes and Hawkeyes at Ann Arbor and Madison, gaining the home field advantage. Michigan and Wisconsin, thus favored, unfortunately don't meet. Conclusion: Title tie. See?

It's not that easy, of course, just as it's not wise to grieve for Notre Dame even though Terry Brennan, the boy wonder coach, has a man-sized job of augmenting the little that is left from the first lineup of a team which won nine of 10 in his first year. Except for Guard Ray Lemek, that powerful Irish line is gone. So, too, are Halfback Joe Heap and Quarterbacks Ralph Guglielmi and Tommy Carey. Brennan is building his hopes on Paul Hornung to fill Guglielmi's shoes, and it must be repeated that Notre Dame annually has the horses. But it's going to be mighty hard replacing the Guglielmi I saw lead the College All-Stars to victory over Cleveland.

Eliot to Miss Caroline.

Before getting back to the title favorites in the Big Ten, our Illinois neighbor, Ray Eliot, suffered a great loss when Capt. J. C. Caroline was declared academically ineligible. Yes, the Illini still have some other fine fast backs, fellows like Harry Jefferson, Abe Woodson and Mickey Bates, and Hiles Stout can throw. But the Orange and Blue will need all its backs and then some, because the big question is:

"Will the weak Illini line of 1954 be stronger?"

At Michigan, Coach Benny Oosterbaan has talent heaped high, including his entire starting backfield of last year. Lou Baldacci, Tony Branoff, Jim Maddock and Terry Barr, plus several standout sophomores of whom Jim Pace, a tailback, is rated as the speediest in the glorious history of the Wolverines. Add a line led by mighty All-America nominee Ron Kramer at end I certainly don't envy Missouri U. the ride to Ann Arbor Sept. 24.

Rose Bowl champion Ohio State lost seven brilliant stars, among them Davey Leggett, Bobby Watkins and Hubert Bobo, but Coach Woody Hayes still has the nation's No. 1 halfback, Howard (Hopalong) Cassady and a host of hard-shelled linemen. There's seldom a season when the Buckeyes' talent is as good as any school's.

Wisconsin lost All-America Fullback Alan (The Horse) Ameche, but some railbirds insist the Badgers will be more versatile offensively without the temptation of rushing the human battering ram too often. They've got two excellent signal- callers. Jim Miller and Jim Haluska.

Tall Corn, Stout Linemen.

Iowa is getting closer and c-l-o-s-e-r under Forrest Evashevski, Tommy Harmon's old blocking back at Michigan. Evvy has 18 lettermen. Among them is the All-America guard, Calvin Jones, a terrific lineman, and good punch featured by Jerry Reichow, Eddie Vincent and Earl Smith.

Purdue's Boilermakers, the only team to defeat Notre Dame last year, will have again its sharpshooting passing combination of Lenny Dawson to Lamar Lundy. Just to keep the defense honest and from deploying too much, hard-running Bill Murakowski, the fullback, will be available to lend balance to Stu Holcomb's pro-style offense.

Michigan State's Spartans, good but not good enough since its Rose Bowl team, has 18 veterans and several promising varsity newcomers.

At Minnesota, where the Golden Gophers came surprisingly back into the race last year, Murray Warmath's first season as coach, the brilliant and inspirational Bob McNamara has departed. Warmath's rebuilding is regarded as solid, but because of the quirk of personnel turnover Minnesota momentarily might have to go down again before it can come up.

Indiana could be troublesome if Bernie Crimmins, favored with 22 lettermen, can find a quarterback to replace Florian Helinski. Northwestern hopes to get out from under with 53 sophomores and a new coach, Lou Saban, but it's a rugged league the Wildcats play in.

(Next: Big Seven and Missouri Valley.)

Jabbo, Better Fielder Now, He Says, Credits Tips From Elliott

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10 (UP)—Ray Jablonski, who prefers to do his talking from third base, said he will return to the Cincinnati Redlegs next week a much steadier fielder—thanks to some elementary advice by Manager Bob Elliott of the San Diego Padres.

The Redlegs obtained Jablonski last winter from St. Louis, then optioned him to the Coast League club July 18 after he had gone into a bad tailspin at the plate as well as afield. He rejoins Cincinnati Monday, the day after the Coast League season ends.

Usually rated a "strong .260 hitter," Jablonski saw his average dwindle to .229 at Cincinnati. And fielding never was one of his key assets. He had a mild .929 average for the first two seasons in the National League. Yet fans considered him solid enough to assign him to the starting spot at third in the 1954 All-Star game.

But it wasn't the same "Jabbo" this year and by July he appeared less and less frequently in the batting order.

Too Tense?

"Maybe I was too tense and tried too hard," he explained in his rumbling voice after he was told he was headed for San Diego.

And this sojourn in the minors gave him a chance to go over his third basing problems with Elliott, who became an institution at the bag himself during 14 years in the National League. The solution was easy.

"Elliott told me to play third base with my right leg back a few inches," Jablonski explained. "I used to get set with both feet parallel; but with this new stance I get a better start on balls hit to my left, and it seems to have helped my throwing, too."

Jablonski recently went 23 straight games at third without an error while handling 86 chances. He broke the string on Sept. 4 when he made a bad throw against Sacramento "because I was throwing flat-footed, which I hadn't done for some time either."

In the meantime, Jablonski is back in the .260 class again at bat and after 53 games had driven in 32 runs and hit 10 homers.

Now More Relaxed.

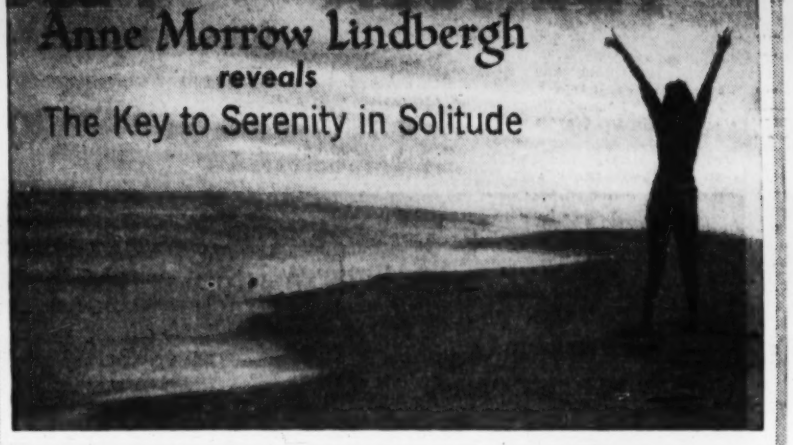

"I'm feeling easier and more relaxed at the plate," he said. "Coast League pitching isn't much different from the majors."

Jablonski said he was surprised when the Cardinals sent him to Cincinnati last year because he thought he was slated to go to an Eastern club. But when Manager Birdie Tebbetts of Cincinnati told him he was headed for a far Western club in July he was not exactly stunned.

"When Tebbetts came in and said 'I've got bad news,' I told him it was all right—I hadn't been helping him any. But now that I'm headed back to the majors I intend to stay there," Jablonski said.

One of the most unusual and difficult foreign policy problems in United States history concerns a group of islands 6,000 miles from the Pacific Coast of the United States. The key to war or peace in the world may lie among these "Disputed Islands."

What are these islands like? How do their people live? Why have they become so important in the struggle between the free world and Communism?

To find the answers to these questions, the Post-Dispatch sent Staff Photographer Paul Berg to Formosa, the Pescadores and Quemoy to make a comprehensive pictorial report. During his six-week stay in those disputed islands, Berg examined and photographed their social, economic, political and military phases. Pictures which will be included in next Sunday's special section are among the many he made on this assignment.

In addition to the pictures, many of which are in full color, the special section will contain an introduction by George H. Hall, a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and expert on Far Eastern affairs; and a report on the military and morale problems which the disputed islands have created, by Brig. Gen. Thomas R. Phillips, U.S.A. (Ret.), Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

Paul Berg first came to the Post-Dispatch as a news photographer. During World War II he served as an Army combat photographer in Northern France, the Ardennes, the battle of the Bulge and Germany. On his return to the Post-Dispatch, Berg was assigned to Sunday PICTURES. Four years ago he was transferred to New York to cover the eastern area of the nation for the PICTURES section.

'Not All One Mad Whirl'

Hints to Young Man Off to Kindergarten

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP).

AN open letter to a young man just starting kindergarten:

Dear Junior:

You are about to take the most important step of your young career. Don't approach it too light-heartedly.

Kindergarten can be the best year of your life. But it isn't all just one mad whirl. It is also a chance to get in a lot of hard sober work—work that will pay off in later years (when you have reached the age of 8 or even 9).

Naturally, you should have your share of good clean fun. But also try to keep in mind the dictionary definition of kindergarten:

"A school for young children conducted on the theory that education should be begun by cultivating the normal aptitude for exercise, play, observation, imitation and construction, and emphasizing the necessity of social training."

If you will memorize this definition, it will help explain some of the seemingly nonsensical things you will be asked to do, such as learning to gallop like a horse to piano music, when what you want to do is make a noise like a jet plane.

Here are a few sound tips on how to get off to a good start in kindergarten:

1. Don't arrive looking like a bum. Put on your snappiest suit, your brightest necktie. Be a standout in your class, so that when you arrive the other kids will nudge each other and ask, "Who's he? Boy, wonder where he got those snazzy, two-tone shoes?"

2. YOUR MOTHER, of course, thinking you are still a child, will want to ferry you to school the first day. When she introduces you to your teacher, you should look up to your teacher and say warmly, "Gee, you're pretty. I wish you were my mama." This will not only give your mother a guilt complex—it'll put you in solid with the teacher.

You will probably notice some of your little classmates have longer hair than others. These strange-looking creatures are girls. Greet them coldly and stay away from them. If you cozy up to them, before long they'll be wanting half your popsicles. Remember, a boy who shares his lollipops with girls in kindergarten is the sucker who later on has to buy 'em mink coats.

4. Beware of trick questions. If the teacher asks "Who killed Cock Robin?", don't brag, "I did." She'll only send you to the school psychiatrist.

5. NEVER THROW SPITBALLS. If you do, you'll probably end up racking balls in a pool hall. The time to throw spitballs is when you have grown up and become a vice president and don't have much else to do.

6. Don't play marbles for keeps during recess periods with any of those big affable strangers from the first grade. They're all sharpies.

7. Make all the contacts you can. If there is the son of a bank president in your class, pick him for a friend. You may want to borrow money from him or sell him life insurance in after years. For either purpose there is nothing like an old school tie.

8. If you must go with a girl, go with one who has wealthy parents. Never look down your nose at a girl just because her family has a background of money. It never pays to be a snob, and the time to learn tolerance is when you are young.

9. AFTER A FEW DAYS, tell your daddy he's going to have to double your weekly allowance. Let him know it costs more to stay in the social swim in kindergarten now than it did when he was a lad.

As for the rest of it, Junior, just buckle down and do the best with each new problem as it arises. Remember that, in kindergarten, what you are to be, little man, you are now becoming.

With best wishes from a veteran of the class of '17.

OUTSIDE ROCKEFELLER CENTER, Maestro Arturo Toscanini's artistic sensibilities were offended by an old organ grinder who was rendering a march from "Carmen" at a funeral pace.

"Faster, you fool, faster!" hissed the Maestro in passing. Next day a new placard adorned the beggar's organ: "Pupil of Toscanini."

"HOW," inquired Rosenbaum's partner, "was that new hotel you stayed at down South this year? Should we try it?" "The food wasn't bad," admitted Rosenbaum. "But the music! One night a waiter dropped a tray of knives and glassware while the band was outside having a smoke, and seven couples got up and began to dance."

NEAL O'HARA tells about the football coach who started a brand-new backfield for the final quarter of a game safely won, consisting of Osscowinsinki, Yablanowicz, Palleofontack, and Bacjewobonwich. "Are they any good?" asked an old grad on the bench.

"Heck, no," barked the coach, "but, boy, am I paying back a score I owe a coupe of those smart-aleck sports writers!"

THE SALESMAN for the 44-volume encyclopedia climaxed his pitch with a hearty, "Yes, ma'am! You simply put a tiny deposit down, and don't pay another penny for six months!" The prospect looked surprised, narrowed her eyes and demanded, "Who told you about us?"

GIFT FROM THE SEA

First Installment of Best-Selling Book--A Way of Life for Women

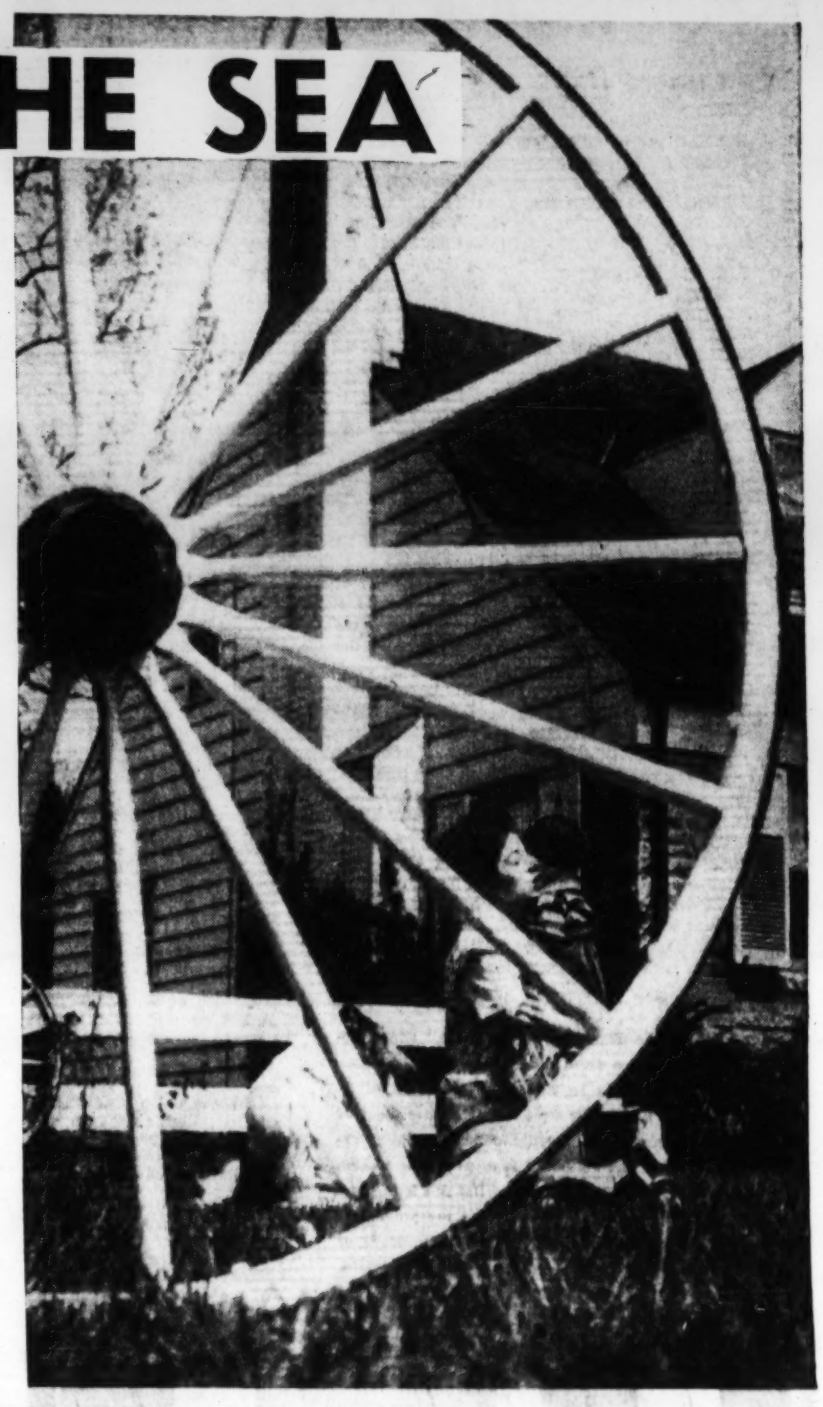

By Anne Morrow Lindbergh

I BEGAN these pages for myself, in order to think out my own particular pattern of living, my own individual balance of life, work and human relationships. And since I think best with a pencil in my hand, I started naturally to write. I had the feeling, when the thoughts first clarified on paper, that my experience was very different from other people's. (Are we all under this illusion?) My situatoin had, in certain ways, more freedom than that of most people, and in certain other ways, much less.

Besides, I thought, not all women searching for a new pattern of living, or want a contemplative corner of their own. Many women are content with their lives as they are. They manage amazingly well, far better than I, it seemed to me, looking at their lives from the outside. With envy and admiration, I observed the porcelain perfection of their smoothly ticking days. Perhaps they had no problems, or had found the answers long ago. No, I decided, these discussions would have value and interest only for myself.

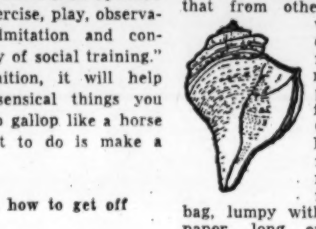

But as I went on writing and simultaneously talking with other women, young and old, with different lives and experiences—those who supported themselves, those who wished careers, those who were hard-working housewives and mothers, and those with more ease—I found that my point of view was not unique. In varying settings and under different forms, I discovered that many women, and men, too, were grappling with essentially the same questions as I, and were hungry to discuss and argue and hammer out possible answers. Even those whose lives had appeared to be ticking imperturbably under their smiling clock-faces were often trying, like me, to evolve another rhythm with more creative pauses in it, more adjustment to their individual needs, and new and more alive relationships to themselves as well as to others.

And so gradually, these chapters, fed by conversations, arguments and revelations from men and women of all groups, became more than my individual story, until I decided in the end to give them back to the people who had shared and stimulated many of these thoughts. Here, then, with my warm feelings of gratitude and companionship for those working along the same lines, I return my gift from the sea.

"FOR TO BE A WOMAN IS TO HAVE INTERESTS AND DUTIES, RAYING OUT IN ALL DIRECTIONS FROM THE CENTRAL MOTHER-CORE, LIKE SPOKES FROM THE HUB OF A WHEEL. . . . WE MUST BE OPEN TO ALL POINTS OF THE COMPASS: HUSBAND, CHILDREN, FRIENDS, HOME, COMMUNITY; STRETCHED OUT, EXPOSED, SENSITIVE LIKE A SPIDER'S WEB TO EACH BREEZE THAT BLOWS, TO EACH CALL THAT COMES."

THE beach is not the place to work; to read, write or think. I should have remembered that from other years. Too warm, too damp, too soft for any real mental discipline or sharp flights of spirit. One never learns. Hopefully, one carries down the faded straw bag, lumpy with books, clean paper, long over-due unanswered letters, freshly sharpened pencils, lists, and good intentions. The books remain unread, the pencils break their points, and the pads rest smooth and unblemished as the cloudless sky. No reading, no writing, no thoughts even—at least, not at first.

At first, the tired body takes over completely. As on shipboard, one descends into a deck-chair apathy. One is forced against one's mind, against all tidy resolutions, back into the primeval rhythms of the seashore. Rollers on the beach, wind in the pines, the slow flapping of herons across sand dunes, drown out the hectic rhythms of city and suburb, time tables and schedules. One falls under their spell, relaxes, stretches out prone. One becomes, in fact, like the element on which one lies, flattened by the sea; bare, open, empty as the beach, erased by today's tides of all yesterday's scribblings.

And then, some morning in the second week, the mind wakes, comes to life again. Not in a city sense—no—but beachwise. It begins to drift, to play, to turn over in gentle careless rolls like those lazy waves on the beach. One never knows what chance treasures these easy unconscious rollers may toss up, on the smooth white sand of the conscious mind; what perfectly rounded stone, what rare shell from the ocean floor. Perhaps a channeled whelk, a moon shell, or even an argonaut.

But it must not be sought for or — heaven forbid! — dug for. No, no dredging of the sea-bottom here. That would defeat one's purpose. The sea does not reward those who are too anxious, too greedy, or too impatient. To dig for treasures shows not only impatience and greed, but lack of faith. Patience, patience, patience, is what the sea teaches. Patience and faith. One should lie empty, open, choiceless as a beach—waiting for a gift from the sea.

THE shell in my hand is deserted. It once housed a whelk, a snail-like creature, and then temporarily, after the death of the first occupant, a little hermit crab, which has run away, leaving his tracks behind him like a delicate vine on the sand. He ran away, and left me his shell. It was once a protection to him. I turn the shell in my hand, gazing into the wide open door from which he made his exit. Had it become an encumbrance? Why did he run away? Did he hope to find a better home, a better mode of living? I too have run away, I realize, I have shed the shell of my life, for these few weeks of vacation.

But his shell—it is simple; it is bare, it is beautiful. Small, only the size of my thumb, its architecture is perfect, down to the finest detail. Its shape, swelling like a pear in the center, winds in a gentle spiral to the pointed apex. Its color, dull gold, is whitened by a wash of salt from the sea. Each whorl, each faint knob, each criss-cross vein in its egg-shell texture, is as clearly defined as on the day of creation. My eye follows with delight the outer circumference of that diminutive winding staircase up which this tenant used to travel.

My shell is not like this, I think. How untidy it has become! Blurred with moss, knobby with barnacles, its shape is hardly recognizable any more. Surely, it had a shape once. It has a shape still in my mind. What is the shape of my life?

The shape of my life today starts with a family. I have a husband, five children and a home just beyond the suburbs of New York. I have also a craft, writing, and therefore work I want to pursue. The shape of my life is, of course, determined by many other things; my background and childhood, my mind and its education, my conscience and its pressures, my heart and its desires. I want to give and take from my children and husband, to share with friends and community, to carry out my obligations to man and to the world, as a woman, as an artist, as a citizen.

But I want first of all—in fact, as an end to these other desires—to be at peace with myself. I want a singleness of eye, a purity of intention, a central core to my life that will enable me to carry out these obligations and activities as well as I can. I want, in fact—to borrow from the language of the saints—to live "in grace" as much of the time as possible. I am not using this term in a strictly theological sense. By grace I mean an inner harmony, essentially spiritual, which can be translated into outward harmony. I am seeking perhaps what Socrates asked for in the prayer from the Phaedrus when he said, "May the outward and inward man be at one." I would like to achieve a state of inner spiritual grace from which I could function and give as I was meant to in the eye of God.

VAGUE as this definition may be, I believe most people are aware of periods in their lives when they seem to be "in grace" and other periods when they feel "out of grace," even though they may use different words to describe these states. In the first happy condition, one seems to carry all one's tasks before one lightly, as if borne along on a great tide; and in the opposite state one can hardly tie a shoe-string. It is true that a large part of life consists in learning a technique of tying the shoe-string, whether one is in grace or not. But there are techniques of living too; there are even techniques in the search for grace. And techniques can be cultivated, I have learned by some experience, by many examples, and by the writings of countless others before me, also occupied in the search, that certain environments, certain modes of life, certain rules of conduct are more conducive to inner and outer harmony than others. There are, in fact, certain roads that one may follow. Simplification of life is one of them.

I mean to lead a simple life, to choose a simple shell I can carry easily—like a hermit crab. But I do not. I find that my frame of life does not foster simplicity. My husband and five children must make their way in the world. The life I have chosen as wife and mother entrains a whole caravan of complications. It involves a house in the suburbs and either household drudgery or household help which wavers between scarcity and none-existence for most of us.

IT INVOLVES food and shelter; meals, planning, marketing, bills, and making the ends meet in a thousand ways. It involves not only the butcher, the baker, the candlestickmaker but countless other experts to keep my modern house with its modern "simplifications" (electricity, plumbing, refrigerator, gas-stove, oil-burner, dishwasher, radios, car, and numerous other labor-saving devices) functioning properly. It involves health; doctors, dentists, appointments, medicine, cod-liver oil, vitamins, trips to the drug store. It involves education, spiritual, intellectual, physical; schools, school conferences, car-pools, extra trips for basketball or orchestra practice; tutoring; camps, camp equipment and transportation.

It involves clothes, shopping, laundry, cleaning, mending, letting skirts down and sewing buttons on, or finding someone else to do it. It involves friends, my husband's, my children's, my own, and endless arrangements to get together; letters, invitations, telephone calls and transportation hither and yon.

For life today in America is based on the premise of ever-widening circles of contact and communication. It involves not only family demands, but community demands, national demands, international demands on the good citizen, through social and cultural pressures, through newspapers, magazines, radio programs, political drives, charitable appeals, and so on. My mind reels with it. What a circus act we women perform every day of our lives. It puts the trapeze artist to shame. Look at us. We run a tight rope daily, balancing a pile of books on the head. Baby-carriage, parasol, kitchen chair, still under control. Steady now.

THIS is not the life of simplicity but the life of multiplicity that the wise men warn us of. It leads not to unification but to fragmentation. It does not bring grace; it destroys the soul. And this is not only true of my life, I am forced to conclude; it is the life of millions of women in America. I stress America, because today, the American woman more than any other has the privilege of choosing such a life. Woman in large parts of the civilized world has been forced back by war, by poverty, by collapse, by the sheer struggle to survive, into a smaller circle of immediate time and space, immediate family life, immediate problems of existence. The American woman is still relatively free to choose the wider life. How long she will hold this enviable and precarious position no one knows. But her particular situation has a significance far above its apparent economic, national or even sex limitations.

For the problem of the multiplicity of life not only confronts the American woman, but also the American man. And it is not merely the concern of the American as such, but of our whole modern civilization, since life in America today is held up as the ideal of a large part of the rest of the world. And finally, it is not limited to our present civilization, though we are faced with it now in an exaggerated form. It has always been one of the pitfalls of mankind. Plotinus was preaching the dangers of multiplicity of the world back in the third century. Yet, the problem is particularly and essentially woman's. Distraction is, always has been, and probably always will be, inherent in woman's life.

For to be a woman is to have interests and duties, raying out in all directions from the central mother-core, like spokes from the hub of a wheel. The pattern of our lives is essentially circular. We must be open to all points of the compass; husband, children, friends, home, community; stretched out, exposed, sensitive like a spider's web to each breeze that blows, to each call that comes. How difficult for us, then, to achieve a balance in the midst of these contradictory tensions, and yet how necessary for the proper functioning of our lives. How much we need, and how arduous of attainment is that steadiness preached in all rules for holy living. How desirable and how distant is the ideal of the contemplative, artist, or saint—the inner inviolable core, the single eye.

With a new awareness, both painful and humorous, I begin to understand why the saints were rarely married women. I am convinced it has nothing inherently to do, as I once supposed, with chastity or children. It has to do primarily with distractions. The bearing, rearing, feeding and educating of children; the running of a house with its thousand details; human relationships with their myriad pulls—woman's normal occupations in general run counter to creative life, or contemplative life, or saintly life.

THE problem is not merely one of Woman and Career, Woman and the Home, Woman and Independence. It is more basically: how to remain whole in the midst of the distractions of life; how to remain balanced, no matter what centrifugal forces tend to pull one off center; how to remain strong, no matter what shocks come in at the periphery and tend to crack the hub of the wheel.

What is the answer? There is no easy answer, no complete answer. I have only clues, shells from the sea. The bare beauty of the channeled whelk tells me that one answer, and perhaps a first step, is in simplification of life, in cutting out some of the distractions. But how? Total retirement is not possible. I cannot shed my responsibilities. I cannot permanently inhabit a desert island. I cannot be a nun in the midst of family life. I would not want to be. The solution for me, surely, is neither in total renunciation of the world, nor in total acceptance of it. I must find a balance somewhere, or an alternating rhythm between these two extremes; a swinging of the pendulum between solitude and communion, between retreat and return. In my periods of retreat, perhaps I can learn something to carry back into my worldly life. I can at least practice for these two weeks the simplification of outward life, as a beginning. I can follow this superficial clue, and see where it leads. Here, in beach living, I can try.

In the next installment tomorrow of her "Gift from the Sea," Anne Morrow Lindbergh discusses the needs of women in this modern world and suggests a way through which they can find the true essence of their being.

The Author

MRS. LINDBERGH

ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH was born in Englewood, New Jersey. The summers of her childhood took her to the seashore: Martha's Vineyard, Cape Cod, and later to the island of North Haven off the coast of Maine. Sometimes, in winter, the whole family moved for a month or two to Nassau, a then distant and quiet island in the Bahamas.

In 1928, she graduated from Smith College, where she had majored in English literature, with specific emphasis on creative writing. In her senior year in college, her father was Ambassador in Mexico, and all the children went down to Mexico City for Christmas vacation. It was here that Anne Morrow first met her future husband, Charles A. Lindbergh, of Spirit of St. Louis fame. They were married in May, 1929.

The Lindbergh family has grown until there are now places for six children at a full dinner table—Jon and his wife Barbara, Land, Anne, Scott and Reeve.

The thoughts in her newest book, "Gift from the Sea," of which the accompanying article is the first installment, are wound about the sea, a beach, and an island. These same elements have wound about Anne Lindbergh's life—flying over seas, walking along beaches, living on islands.

The book is the current best-seller in the non-fiction field.

Animal Situation in One Man's Home

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO

THE animal situation has been rather quiet lately around my house. The budgie pulled a jail break and we have not seen a feather of him since.

The female boxer has gradually taken up with neighbors. She visits me with less frequency. Like going through town where the poor relations live.

We get abandoned dogs and cats, brought up the hill by the small fry. There seems to be a wave on now of rescuing abandoned animals. Every animal not nailed down is "abandoned." I am constantly being offered some amiable dog on the end of a piece of clothesline.

The fact that his collar tag plainly says who he is and where he belongs does not halt this fever of charitable works.

"He's abandoned," they say. And they turn him over to me. I am constantly running a taxi service for homing dogs.

I read in the paper of Boozer the boxer. Owned by Mrs. B. Willcocks of Sidley, Boxhill, Kent, England. He lets a parakeet name of Joey sit on his head.

The fact that he does not put this bird on toast and serve him up with a cold bottle intrigues the British journals. They put his picture in the paper.

A boxer named Frauline is owned by the O. L. Sullivans in Orlando, Florida. She lets a parakeet Tweety Pie sit on her paw.

Another boxer from Pasadena, California, named Eddie sits around with a parakeet named Debbie.

I do not know what happened with my boxer, named Carmichael. He made no effort to get his picture in the paper. No ambition.

I had this budgie. I called him Hamlet, hoping it would inspire him to chatter like the talkative Dane. I didn't care whether he was melancholy or not. So long as he talked.

Never said a single, solitary word. Looked sideways and twittered out of the corner of his mouth. Like a con doing five to life.

The boxer paid him no attention.

This was a terrible disappointment. For I had the captions already written for the pictures.

I had in mind a rare picture which I would develop into a TV act.

The budgie would sit on Carmichael's head and recite: "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck."

He would follow this up with a comical parody: "The Bird Stood on the Boxer's head. From which all but him had fled . . ."

It did not scan exactly. But I could have smoothed it out. It gives you the idea.

I would have put this team on the Dave Garroway show first for free. Later I would teach them humility and get them on with Arthur Godfrey. It would sell cake mix like crazy.

Forest Service Men On Inspection Tour

By Leonard Hall

WE HAD an interesting hour last week when the United States Forest Service dropped in at Possum Trot en masse for early morning coffee. There were 11 in the group, which kept Ginnie busy for awhile replenishing the pot. The occasion was an inspection tour of the Missouri National Forests led by Supervisor Byron Groesbeck. The group included Bill Swingler, assistant chief of the service, and some of his aides from Washington; several old friends, including Ham Pyles from the Regional office in Milwaukee, Pete Lewis and Buck Hornkohl from Rolla and Ranger Jerry Kladiva, who has been in charge of the Potosi district.

There's no group of men in public work whom I enjoy more than the fellows in the Forest Service. They have an esprit de corps that is admirable, a complete belief in their work and a constant enthusiasm for it, a goal of accomplishment and efficiency which certainly are in contrast to all theories about the inefficiency of bureaucracy. Part of this comes, of course, from the fact that Forest Service personnel are all men with sound scientific training; part because it attracts men of high caliber, more interested in the job they are doing than in the financial rewards. Part of it is due to the rugged outdoor life that is a part of every forester's training—and to the understanding of nature which comes from long contact with mountains, forests and wilderness. And part of it doubtless stems from the fact that the Forest Service is what one might call a "lean" service; always called upon to do a big job with too little money and manpower.

From the standpoint of its over-all appropriation, the Service fared fairly well in the last Congress, though this by no means solves all of its problems. Right now some of the most serious of these are created by a combination of uranium exploration and the outmoded laws governing mining claims on National Forest land. But this is the sort of pressure which all custodians of the public domain are constantly subjected to—the pressure of special interests such as lumbermen, miners, cattlemen, oil explorers, waterpower developers. And in the end, with the backing of a public which becomes steadily more conservation minded, compromises are generally worked out.

● ONE AREA of Forest Service functioning where investigation and planning—and funds—are badly needed is recreation. We've reached the point where there are 40,000,000 visitors to the national forests annually; most of these visitors coming for purposes of recreation—to fish, hunt in season, or camp while on vacation. Several proposals have been made to allocate a definite percentage of receipts from timber sales to developing the recreational facilities of the national forests, although both Congress and the departments are inclined to frown on this method of raising money. But the Forest Service is stumbling along with totally inadequate facilities, most of them dating from CCC days, and with no money for new camp sites and the like to take care of the far heavier load of visitors or even to keep the old ones in good repair. It is high time that the millions of Americans who use the national forests for recreation started bearing down on their representatives in Government to attack this problem.

After the foresters departed, I went cattle hunting. Last week we'd turned the steers out into the woods pasture along the creek; an area of some 35 acres where no cattle had grazed for a year and which had grown into a veritable jungle.

● ONCE WE TURNED THE STEERS OUT, they scattered. Some jumped the fence to join the cow herd and others found their way into the pasture with the heifers. But there were a half dozen that no amount of hunting would locate, though we combed the brush on horseback. Finally on Saturday afternoon I decided to try a search on foot. So with Mike and Tiger and, from long habit, my shotgun, I started out from the south water gap. The dove season had opened, but Ginnie hoped I wouldn't see any. I did, but didn't shoot. In fact, I watched three young fox squirrels playing under a buckeye tree and even failed to draw a bead on the fat groundhogs that are making a nuisance of themselves burrowing in the back clover field. Somehow, it seemed too peaceful an afternoon to start warring on any of our harmless wildlife.

As I pushed along through the tall cover, I realized how different this is from hiking across open country where horizons stretch into the distance. Here everything is close up, so that you must develop a sort of microscopic eye. The far-away hill has a charming dissymmetry and the mountain a rugged though irregular grandeur. This close-up world, on the other hand, is one of geometric forms, repeated over and over. It is a world of leaf and stem and flower and seed-pod. And though these differ for different kinds of plants, the pattern is repeated countless times for each plant of the same species. And the same is true, in only slightly lesser degree, of the world of insects.

Thus one might say that the broad landscape furnishes inspiration for the artist; and the close-up landscape for the architect, the designer and the artisan. Here are the forms which become the arch and flying buttress, the column with its graceful capital, the decorative frieze with its motif that repeats again and again. But enough of the microscopic eye. The lost steers turned up safely in a thickety corner and next week will be on their way to market. And I arrived home in time for evening chores—and with my gun barrel as cool as when I started out, which happens oftener and with less regret as the years go by.

What's It Like to Be a Champ?

'Everything,' Says Man Who Is In Training to Defend Title— But There's Lots of Drudgery

(Editor's Note: What is it like to be heavyweight champion of the world? Rocky Marciano says the title he'll risk against Archie Moore on Sept. 20 means "everything," even though "there are times when you wish . . ." Here's a profile of a man who says: "I got to get cruel at the right time.")

By Saul Pett

GROSSINGER, N.Y., Sept. 10 (AP).

ROCKY MARCIANO was explaining that being heavyweight boxing champion of the world means more than money.

"It's everything," he said, slowly, earnestly. "You lose the title and you lose people's respect and admiration and, of course, you lose money.

"It would hurt—it would hurt a lot—to find a guy who could lick me, you know? So far, I haven't. And I don't think I will for awhile. That's important, you know? I mean knowing you can lick anyone in the world. It's the kind of confidence a guy needs."

This huge understatement, delivered solemnly, was interrupted by Charlie Goldman, the little, owlish trainer.

"Rocky's got to get his rest," he said dourly. The champ excused himself politely and went up to his tiny, bare sleeping porch to catch his afternoon nap.

"Laymen don't realize the sacrifices involved," Goldman said. "They just watch a fight a half hour, maybe an hour, they don't realize the months of hard work, how the man has to deny himself, how he has to live like a hermit."

We were sitting on the porch of an old, white clapboard house, the champ's training quarters, on the edge of a mountain-top airport. An unbearable hot sun wrapped the wheat fields and the Catskill hills in dull haze and stifling indolence.

OUT on the lawn, Rocky's parents, Piecino and Pasqualina Marchegiano, were posing for a friend's box camera. They laughed and talked with quiet dignity, in English and Italian. The father, a thin, gray man, was a shoemaker until his son made the big time. Now he's retired and assists in the training.

The mother, a big, smiling woman, wouldn't be smiling on the big night. She still can't endure watching her son fight or even spar. On the nights he fights, she won't watch on television or even listen to a broadcast. Instead, a friend drives her around town until the fight is over.

Rocky Marciano's mother would leave the camp well before his title fight with Archie Moore on Sept. 20. His wife and daughter had already returned home to Brockton, Mass. They might come up again for another weekend visit, stopping at a nearby hotel, but that would be all. The champ has a normal home life only about four months a year; the rest of the time he's either training or on the road.

"Except for Pop, nobody in the family sees Rocky in the last two weeks," Goldman was saying. "His wife, his mother, they can't even call him up or write a letter. He's got to get his rest and peace and keep his mind free.

"Listen, I trained many clean-living fighters—guys like Lou Ambers and Marty Servo—but they didn't live as strict as this guy. He's always thinking about his condition.

"If I happen to forget his celery and carrot juice just once, you'd think he was going to die. If a friend comes up to see him at 9:28 at night — it doesn't matter if he's his best friend who came from 2000 miles away—Rocky still goes to bed at his regular time, at 9:30."

GOLDMAN explained the training camp routine.

Rocky had awakened at 6:30 that morning; taken his road work for five or six miles; rested for half an hour; breakfasted on a concoction of corn flakes mixed with two raw eggs, blueberries and vitamin pills followed by two lamb chops and hot tea; taken a walk, then back to bed, skipping lunch, resting until work-out time at 3:30.

In the evening, he would dine in a bare, antiseptic kitchen, on soup, green salad and a couple of steaks but nothing resembling the rich spaghetti and lasagna he loves. The dinner conversation would be mostly shop talk concerning the day's workout or strategy for the coming fight, with only rare mention of his opponent by name.

After dinner he would take another walk, watch TV in a tiny bedroom-living room or watch a movie in an adjoining barn. He would end his day without having done many of the things he likes—seeing his wife and daughter, swimming (it's bad for a fighter's muscles) or tossing a baseball around (it could easily hurt a finger.)

His permanent companions at camp are: Manager Al Weill (who this day happened to be in New York); Goldman, who used to be a fighter himself; Allie Columbo, boyhood friend and training camp assistant; Al Mandy, an old army buddy who now answers Rocky's mail and chauffeurs him; Al Renauer, the chef; and a waiter known only as "Ace," a welterweight currently recovering from a rough fight. The sparring partners live in separate quarters.

They are all there for one purpose: to get the champ in shape, to insulate him in heavy cotton batting against disease, accidental physical hurt, distractions or the everyday worries of a man, husband and father.

This is his life for more than two months before every fight. And in the last two weeks or 10 days, the insulation becomes heavier; the champ can't write or receive a letter; gets no phone calls; makes no new acquaintances; can't ride in a car or shake hands.

OUT OF THE RING HE KNOWS HOW TO WEAR CLOTHES.

ROCKY MARCIANO . . . TWO MONTHS OF HARD WORK BEFORE EVERY FIGHT.

It was now 3:30 and the screen door swung open. His nap over, Marciano came out quietly, wearing training pants over his boxing tights and a white hood over his head. The hood highlighted his deep tan, dented nose and dark, earnest, almost sad eyes.

Walking to his gym, a converted nissen-type plane hangar, Rocky was joined by some boys from a nearby camp. He was silent and they were too awed to speak. They walked with heads bowed, as though being led in solemn religious procession by a white-hooded monk.

In the gym, Rocky stripped down, revealing short, club-like arms and legs as strong as oak stumps. He stood in patient silence as Goldman taped his hands and a photographer from a nearby hotel made arrangements for publicity shots.

And then for more than an hour, he pounded the heavy, 150-pound bag, worked rhythmically on the light bag, shadow-boxed in a ring whose apron was draped in royal purple (he had no sparring scheduled for this day). He said nothing, never smiled. He punched and jabbed and snorted with a fury strangely alien to his expression. His brows went up, his tongue curled out and under his lower lip. His eyes remained earnest. It was more the look of a schoolboy struggling with a long division problem.

GOLDMAN, his eyes glued intently on the champ like a technician studying the parts of a motor, whispered "Time," and Rocky stopped. Columbo toweled him off. His father was ready with the robe. Goldman unwound the tape. The conversation was still meager and unsmiling.

Back on his sleeping porch, Rocky exercised on a tilted board laid on the floor. His head resting on the lower end, he raised his torso without using his hands or raising his legs. This continued for more than 20 minutes.

In this visitor, the impression was growing that while he might regret much of the training routine, the champ liked the physical discipline and exercise; that getting into good condition was an end in itself; that he would be scrupulous about preserving the strength and agility of his body even if he weren't a boxer.

The impression was confirmed by the champ as he emerged from his shower, was toweled off by his father, alcohol-rubbed by Columbo and he sucked orange slices held forth by Goldman.

"Look," Rocky said, "a guy with a bankroll has got something, right? A good-looking guy's got something, right? Well, a guy with a good body, he's got something too. I always wanted to have strength—more than the average guy.

"It makes you feel proud. As a kid I always admired guys with muscles. I always liked walking. It's the feeling of going some place, of moving, of being relaxed outdoors."

He recalled that he won all his seven or eight kid fights. He recalled other boys saying: "Hey, Rocky, nice going, Rock." He recalled Army buddies saying, after he knocked out a Texan in a grudge fight with gloves, "Hey, you know that quiet guy Marchegiano knocked out the loud-mouth."

Rocky recalled such comments with pride and warmth. Such things, he indicated, were part of a diet essential to him.

"I like to be liked. I try to please people. But you wonder what makes people say what they say. You go into a ring for an exhibition bout or just to practice with your sparring partner—you're not looking to kill anybody. Then you hear someone yell to the other fighter, 'Kill him.' You wonder why anybody would say a thing like that."

WHAT does he think about going into the ring for a big fight?

"You're thinking only of the fight. You're hoping everything you practiced in the gym will show up, that you'll look good and won't get hurt."

What are his thoughts when he has his opponent on the ropes, battered, bleeding, spent?

"You're only thinking of ending it as quickly as possible. You find yourself wishing he'd go down, save himself more pain.

"People say, do you enjoy hurting the other fellow? Of course, not. But it's another man against me. I got to get cruel at the right time. When he's on the verge, I got to get meaner. After a couple of rounds, you feel the guy is your enemy. You got to feel that way. Otherwise you couldn't hurt him. And you got to hurt him."

Was becoming champion everything it's cracked up to be?

"In some ways, yes. But others, no. Everybody thinks the heavyweight champ is a millionaire. I'm far from it, very far. I need at least another two years, maybe four more big purses before I can quit.

"Most of the time the lack of privacy doesn't bother you. But there are times when it works against you, like when things haven't gone right and people come around and want lots of attention.

"LOTS of times, you feel like a prisoner. You can't be yourself. You'd like to joke around with guys, your old friends, play cards with them, but there's no time. Also the guys are a little strange toward you. They stand off a little.

"Now you're the champ and you got a special identity. They still have none at all. They read so much about you. They can't believe you're the same guy."

Isn't boxing a dirty business full of racketeers and gangsters? Rocky said that wasn't his experience; there is certainly less of this than the movies suggest.

Does he ever feel like a cut-up pie? No, he said, and he likes everyone working for or with him.

Is he ever sorry he made a career of boxing?

"There are times you wish you could do a few things yourself, without having to listen to somebody. Like you'd want to shoot home for awhile and be with your wife and daughter, alone, without Charlie and Al and the others.

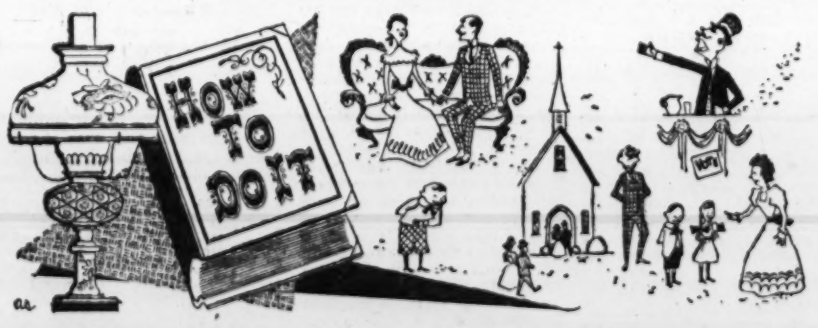

"They kinda get on your nerves after a long while in training camp. It's natural. But when I feel that way I take a long walk by myself and calm down."

At this point, Goldman reappeared in the doorway.

"Rocky's got to rest," he said, dourly. The interview was over and the heavyweight champion of the world once more was being protected from the world.

Parent of All How-to-Do-It Books

By Mary Margaret McBride

OF "how to" best sellers today there is seemingly no end—how to be happy married, single, in the country, in the city; how to save time; how to spend your leisure; how to control your temper; how to let it go and thus get a raise or promotion. . . .

I had thought the self help books were a product of our era, but yesterday, unpacking some boxes that came up from her Florida home after my mother died, I found an enormous volume dated 1889 that surely must be the parent of all the how-to-do efforts. "The Path of Glory, Embracing Every Phase of Life," by the Rev. Madison C. Peters is subtitled "Whom to Marry, Making Home Happy, Training Children, Moral Obligations, Social Duties and Pleasures, Prosperity in Business, Love of Country, Duty to God and Glimpses of the Heavenly World."

IN HIS INTRODUCTION, the Rev. Mr. Peters promises "there is not a dull, drowsy or dry line in this book. We do not stick, stutter or stammer in telling the truth. Those who get vexed because their follies are aimed at, do so because they are shot. If we can lead the reader to Success, Honor and Happiness in the Home, Moral, Social, Business, Political, Church, Spiritual and Future Life, the author will consider himself well paid for his labor."

My mother's name in the front was written with the curlicues and flourishes of another time by her great-aunt Jacynthia Moore who gave her the book hoping it would lead her to a happy marriage and a godly life.

Here and there passages are marked, including one under Elopement, reminding me that my father and mother did go off and get quietly married without telling her parents. I always believed that my mother, a dutiful, loving daughter, did this to save her father the expense of a wedding, but now I wonder if there had been opposition, for the marked passage says, "Given good morals, means of livelihood, appropriate age and quality of social position, no parent has a right to prohibit a union that seems deliberate and a matter of the heart."

My mother also circled the lines in which the Rev. Peters points out that the word "lady" means literally loaf-server, one who dispenses bread to the family, and that "wife" means weaver.

Perhaps it is only sentiment that makes me imagine that the stains on a page labeled "The First Quarrel" are tears but I'm sure my mother heeded the warning to "confess your fault quickly and freely and be not ashamed to ask forgiveness."

IT MOVES ME to think that mama must often have pored over the now-yellowed section marked "What to Teach Our Daughters."

"Teach them to wear calico dresses and do it like queens" may have occasioned one of the few lectures I ever remember from her. I was crying because for a speech-making at school I wanted a silk dress and a calico one was all I had.

Mama gently made clear to me that what you really are shows just as plainly in calico as in silk and if you aren't the right kind of person, silk won't help. I guess the lesson is one reason I've never cared much about clothes.

I may smile a little at the high-flown phrases and the Rev. Peters's naive belief that he could make everything right from the cradle to the grave, but all the same it is touching that women like my mother were concerned enough about the manners and morals of their families to wade through such a great tome and humbly mark passages.

Marriage

Husband Behaves Like Boy

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

Dear Dr. Popenoe:

"WHAT can I do for a husband who is behaving like a small boy? He is intelligent, has many fine qualities, I love him, we have twin girls five years old, and I don't want to break up my home—but I sometimes think he's hopeless. He is totally unable to manage money, so we agreed that I should handle the finances from our joint account—then I find he is drawing checks on the side, for his drinking and gambling, and leaving our accounts in chaos. He has a good business, run by competent help—and neglects it outrageously.

When our twins were born, I phoned him that I had to start for the hospital at once; he said he was coming for me immediately; then he got into a poker game! After waiting until it was almost too late, I had to call a taxi. Fortunately he has never been interested in other women—merely likes to feel that he is 'one of the boys.' But I'd like him to me a man. Is there any hope?"

YES, MRS. L., but it will be a slow job. He's way back in childhood, emotionally — isn't mature enough yet to be interested in girls. You have a long way to go with him but it can be done. He ought to have a professional counselor, but you can make a beginning by seeing to it that he gets progressively more little responsibilities laid on him, and receives recognition for accepting and living up to them. Outsiders can help you in this — his business associates, clergyman, officers of lodges or clubs to which he belongs, and the like. They'll probably be glad to act on a tip from you.

Meanwhile, take care that you don't unconsciously fall into the class of a substitute mother, rather than a wife. At his emotional age he is naturally in revolt against domination by a mother. Let him see that you look up to him and admire him for his manly qualities. It will take some "wishful thinking" at first, but should steadily become more nearly true.

Any reader may profit from my little self-rating scale, "Just How Adult Are You?" A copy will be sent free if request is accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to me in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Answers to Questions.

Q. Man says he will stop drinking if I marry him. How can I be sure of this?

A. I'm afraid you can be sure right now that he won't!

Q. Is is true that good-looking girls marry earlier than others?

A. Indeed, it is! Look around you.

Q. How do I keep my teenage daughter from wearing my clothes, when she has more clothes than I do?

A. What a question to ask a mere man, the father of four sons! I'd say she may need variety more than you do, and I don't know any reason why you shouldn't swap with her occasionally.

Q. I have many fears. . . .

A. Who doesn't? One survey found that the average woman had 78 fears, conscious or unconscious, which largely ruled her life; and that most of them were imaginary.

Q. Do you think it's fair for our parents to insist that we go to dances only at places of which they approve?

A. Yes, if the parents of most of the other girls in your group feel the same way about it.

Q. Is there any way to make children hurry?

A. Sometimes not desirable to try. Each child has his own tempo, which is not necessarily the same as that of the parent. See that they start far enough ahead of time to get there at their own pace.

Q. I am terrified and hurt to find that my 7-year-old daughter seems to think she is an adopted child.

A. This fantasy is common among children — perhaps as many as 20 or 30 out of very 100 go through the same experience. They also outgrow it! Ignore it, but show plenty of wholesome affection.

Cake Unnecessary

By Christopher Billopp

CAKE is a nice accompaniment with stewed fruit, custard or jelly for dessert. But, although it is nice, it is not necessary.

The stewed fruit or the custard or the jelly is dessert enough. It can stand on its own feet. A person finds this out when he asks if there is any cake. Such a question causes a disturbance.

It gives the impression that he is not satisfied with the dessert as it is. It suggests that if he were in charge of the housekeeping he would do it better.

It sets a bad precedent in the matter of asking for something that is not on the table. If one member of the family does that soon all of them will be similarly priveleged. The situation could easily get out of hand.

THEREFORE, such a question should be discouraged. The questioner should be told in no uncertain terms that there is no cake. If he insists upon having cake on top of the rest of his dessert, then he had better look around for another boarding place.

This is an exaggerated picture of the situation reflecting the tense emotional state of all housekeepers. The question was asked with no intention of finding fault but merely on the possibility that cake was intended but overlooked.

IT WAS ASSUMED that if cake was intended, but overlooked, it would grow stale. Then it would be no good to anybody.

However, rather than cause trouble a person will keep his peace. He will eat the stewed fruit, or the custard or the jelly in silence. He will try as best he can to stifle the thought of how a nice piece of cake would help to get it down.

This is a splendid example of restraint. What a shame that so often in such a case, just as the dessert has been completed, the housekeeper will exclaim, "Oh, I meant to have cake!"

Eisenhower Farm—How It Operates

First Detailed Account of President's Acquisition of 496 Acres of Land and Buildings Near Gettysburg, Pa.

By Charles Bailey

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 10.

THE hay-baler moved across the Pennsylvania field under the hot sun. Two dozen Angus beef cattle loafed in the shade at the edge of the pasture. In the northwest field, corn stood better than knee-high.

To the casual passerby on the narrow country road, the farm looked like most of the other large, prosperous places in Adams county. The roomy white house and big "Pennsylvania Dutch" barn with the three dovecotes on top could have been found on scores of other places in the gently rolling hills of the area.

But a closer look revealed some features that wouldn't look normal on any farm in Pennsylvania, Minnesota or anywhere else.

A handfull of small white structures, looking like outdoor telephone booths, was scattered around the edges of the place. A uniformed policeman stood behind a closed gate at the end of the driveway to the house. His badge revealed what was different about this farm: it carried the inscription: "White House Police."

The policeman—and the secret service agents who can watch all approaches from their seats in the "telephone booths"—are part of a tight secrecy curtain that dropped over Dwight D. Eisenhower's farm home the day he became President of the United States.

Since that time, press and public have been barred from the scene. Few details of the farm and the rebuilt house that have cost the Eisenhowers about a quarter of a million dollars ($158,518 for land and buildings, plus a conservative estimate of $100,000 for rebuilding the house) have been released.

I have been able to construct a picture of the Eisenhower farm by searching county records, talking to neighbors and local farm officials, checking maps and just plain looking across the fence.

THIS is the first detailed story of the President's farm to be published. Here are the facts:

The place is actually made up from three farms, totaling 493 acres. Ike bought the first, central unit—189 acres with a house, barn, assorted outbuildings and a meandering brook—in 1950. He paid $40,000—$24,000 for land and buildings and $16,000 for stock and equipment.

In July 1954, a second farm, a 125-acre place adjoining the President's land on the south, was purchased. The price tag on this place—no doubt somewhat inflated by the fame of the buyer—was $55,000. A house and barn were included.

This spring, a third unit—to the north of the original purchase—was added. This farm, running to 161 acres and including house and barn, cost $44,318.

In May, 21 acres lying between the President's original farm and the Gettysburg battlefield park were added. The cost of this pie-shaped piece of cultivated land was $15,000.

July 11 the last addition to the farm was made with the purchase of a tiny wedge of land at the northwest corner of the original Eisenhower purchase. A two-room schoolhouse stands here, but it was closed in a county consolidation and the property sold for $4200.

The purchase of the additional land—which makes up over 300 of the 496 acres—apparently was intended to provide the first family with more privacy than it could have had otherwise. The 125-acre farm to the south, for example, stretched clear across the Eisenhower boundary, and the house on that place was only a few hundred yards from the new barbecue fireplace outside his study.

WHEN Mr. Eisenhower started to make over his farm, he found the house itself wasn't the only thing that needed rebuilding. Reconstruction of the living quarters, which took over a year, was the most obvious change. But the shifts in farm operation eventually may make more adjustments in the appearance of the Gettysburg place.

Mr. Eisenhower discovered—as he himself told a group recently—that the soil on the farm, which had been intensively cultivated to support a dairy-poultry business, was badly worn out.

The farming pattern in 1951 and 1952, while Mr. Eisenhower was still overseas in Paris and the farm was being run without his personal supervision, was roughly the same as it had been under the ownership of Allen Redding, who lived there for 30 years before selling it to the Eisenhowers.

In 1952, for example, the reported cropping plan for the 189 acres showed 160 acres under cultivation—48 in corn, 32 in winter wheat, 63 in oats and 12 labeled "miscellaneous." Of the remaining 30 acres, much could not be tilled—some was woodland (there is a small grove northwest of the house) and some was in grass along the edges of the brook.

This cropping plan was aimed at supporting about 22 Holstein and Guernsey milch cows, some 20 heifers and over 700 laying hens—a unit that was reported in June 1952 to be producing between 60 and 70 gallons of milk and from 24 to 30 dozen eggs a day.

According to printed reports, the farm operated at a loss in 1951. In that year, it was reported, about $1000 worth of wheat was sold to the government, but none was put under loan after that. The farm had a wheat acreage allotment as late as 1953, when the President was listed as eligible to vote in the wheat marketing quota election.

(The Adams county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) office refuses to discuss any of its dealings with the President's farm—on orders from the state ASC director, says the office manager).

The summer of 1952 brought a lot of changes. Gen. Eisenhower came home and became President, which meant that he was in no position to be running a farm for private profit. This in turn brought a change in business arrangements.

In 1951 and 1952, Mr. Eisenhower had operated in partnership with George E. Allen, a longtime Washington figure and personal friend who is credited with persuading the Eisenhowers to buy the Gettysburg place. Allen, a likeable gent who was on good terms with Presidents Roosevelt and Truman as well as Eisenhower, owns an 80-acre farm down the pike from the President's.

JUST before the 1952 election, however, the partnership was dissolved. This did not mean the end of Mr. Eisenhower's association with Allen, though. Allen bought out only the stock and equipment. He uses the farmland, but pays rent for it now.

"When he became President, he decided it wouldn't be proper to be in partnership with anybody," Allen explains. "He's super-sensitive about doing the proper thing. So I bought him out—wrote him a check for his share of the farming operation—and I now lease the entire farm."

According to Allen, the only business transactions Ike now has in connection with the farm are the receipts of rent from Allen and a payment for "boarding" the small but growing presidential livestock herd.

Allen currently has 38 Angus beef animals on the place. He plans to restrict his operations to livestock. He thinks now he may raise hogs to provide a cash crop while he is building the Angus herd. On his own farm nearby he has some 300 sheep, but he has no plans to install any at the Eisenhower place. The crops now being grown on the farm, he says, are for feeding the stock.

Allen has placed responsibility for running the farm in the hands of two men. Ivan Feaster is the resident farmer. He works on a salary from Allen, and is the man who votes for the farm in wheat quota elections and similar referendums. Brig. Gen. Arthur S. Nevins, also on a salary from Allen, is supervisor of the operation.

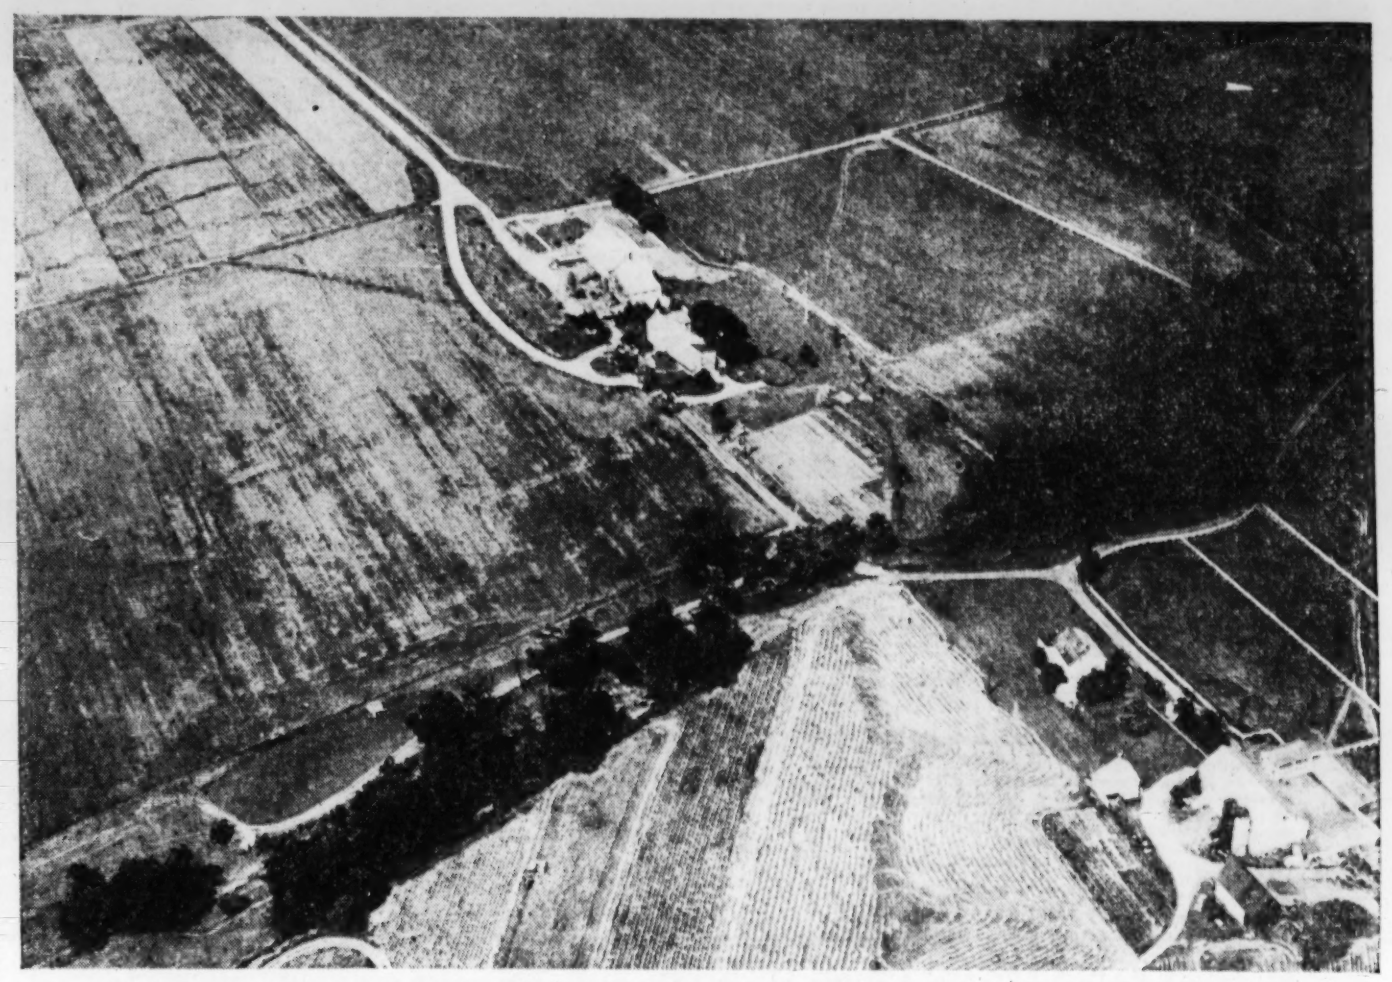

The fact that Ike has no financial interest in the profit or loss of the farm doesn't prevent him from keeping a close eye on the operation. Allen says the President "is always interested in what's happening—he walks all over the place, looking at what's being done."

MR. EISENHOWER'S exact financial arrangements for the farm have never been disclosed by the White House. But he told a farm group this summer that he doesn't make or lose money on the farm when prices rise or fall. His arrangement, he said, does not give him "any interest in the income and the debts of my farm—that is something that purely belongs to the fellow leasing it."

Feaster, the man who actually does the farming, is a 35-year-old World War II navy veteran who was raised on a West Virginia farm. Feaster, with his wife and children, lives in the former Earl Brandon farmhouse, across the brook from the Eisenhower home. (The Feasters lived in the Eisenhower house until last year, but moved out when it was torn up for remodeling and the President began to spend weekends on the place.)

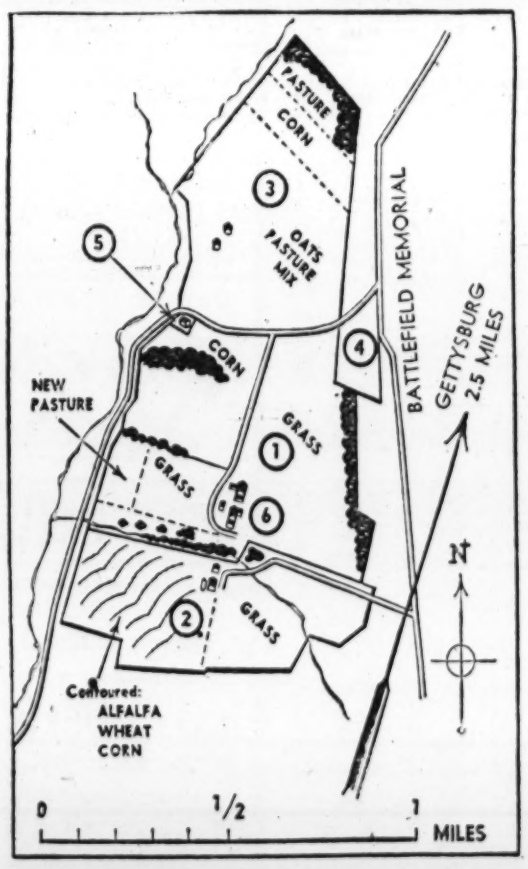

Feaster is the foreman, boss-

NEAR THE MIDDLE OF THE PICTURE ARE THE PRESIDENT'S RECENTLY-REMODELED HOME AND FARM BUILDINGS OF THE ORIGINAL 125-ACRE FARM WHICH MR. EISENHOWER BOUGHT IN 1950. THE BUILDINGS AND CONTOUR-STRIP FIELD IN THE FOREGROUND WERE ACQUIRED IN 1954.

NUMBERS ON FARM PLAN INDICATE ORDER IN WHICH PRESIDENT EISENHOWER ACQUIRED PORTIONS OF HIS FARM. (1) NOVEMBER, 1950, THE BASIC FARM WAS ACQUIRED FROM ALLEN REDDING; (2) GAIL BRANDON FARM PURCHASED JULY 1954; (3) BERNARD REDDING FARM APRIL 1955; (4) TWENTY-ONE ACRE FIELD MAY 1955; (5) PITZER SCHOOL ACREAGE JULY 1955; (6) LOCATION OF HOME AND MAIN BUILDINGS.

ing a crew that runs up to as many as half a dozen men in busy times. (The size of the force has caused a certain amount of eyebrow-raising by local observers, who comment that there seems to be a surplus of "chiefs" which keeps more "Indians" busy than should be needed.)

With Allen leasing the farm, but away most of the time, operations are under the supervision of retired Gen. Nevins, who served on Ike's World War II planning staff in Europe. Nevins, who has lived in Gettysburg since his retirement, not only acts as supervisor or overseer for Allen but also handles some local business matters for the President.

Each of the four additional land purchases, for instance, was made in Nevins's name—a fact which seems to convince no one around Gettysburg that the land belongs to Nevins. "One of these days," says county recorder of deeds Harvey Reidinger, "we will get deeds transferring title to Mr. Eisenhower."

The shift in management of the farm after the 1952 season coincided with a major change in the pattern of farm operations. The dairy herd was sold early in 1953. The chickens followed.

That spring, 40 more acres went into hay. Although there were still 30 acres in wheat (planted the preceding fall, 50 in corn and 20 in oats, the pasture area was up to 80 acres—almost one-half of the entire 190 acres.

This was part of a general switch to a grass-farming plan. The change was sorely needed—the President told a group of farm editors this spring that a soil survey showed three fourths of the topsoil was washed away or worn out.

The farm was put under a soil conservation service (SCS) district agreement (with Nevins signing for the President). The local SCS office made a survey of the farm, complete with aerial photo-map analysis, and suggested procedures.

WHAT was proposed? The local SCS technicians, federal employes, won't talk about the farm at all. They say they don't want to lose their jobs. But the county extension agent, F. S. Zettle, gives this picture of the soil situation on the farm:

There are two main soil types in the Gettysburg area—with the dividing line between them roughly splitting the Eisenhower farm from north to south. To the east of this line, where the land runs up to the Confederate battle memorials on Seminary ridge, the soil is volcanic, "blue," tight, hard to drain. This soil is best suited for grass—which is the crop there now.

To the west of the north-south dividing line, where the land runs down to Willoughby run, the soil is a red shale, looser, better suited to cultivated crops.

A few hundred feet southwest of the house, where the brook runs westward under scattered oaks, there is a new pond—built as a by-pass beside the brook. At last count, there were 21 ducks in it, and the bass and bluegill stocked in the pond a year ago should be "keeping size" by now if the President decides to wet a line for them.

WITH Mr. Eisenhower himself out of the active farming business at least as long as he stays in the White House, there has been a big shrinkage in the number of farm buildings on the place. When he bought it, in addition to the house and barn, there were two silos, two chicken houses, a brick garage, an implement shed, a blacksmith shed-garage, and a milk house.

Now there are only four buildings visible on the place—the house (which bears little resemblance to the original), the barn, a small office building across the driveway from the back door (now used by the security communications men who travel with the President) and a brand-new quonset-style equipment shed behind the barn.

There should have been little need for the purchase of new farm equipment. Part of the package in 1950 was this line-up of machinery: two tractors, a combine, a corn picker, a side delivery hay rake and loader, corn and wheat binders, ensilage cutter, mowing machine, grain drill, corn planter, harrows and plows.

The switch to grass farming should have allowed the President to get rid of a good deal of this equipment.

While the President has kept himself out of the farming picture to date, he has been intimately involved at every step in the planning and remaking of his house. What he bought in 1950 was a run-down farmhouse; a narrow brick center section was flanked on each end by sagging wooden wings.

What he has now is a large, three-story house, all of it new except for the brick shell of the old center section. It is air-conditioned throughout—a feature that will make life much more pleasant in July and August, when Gettysburg temperatures and humidity are often unpleasantly high.

THE axis of the house is north-south, so that the front windows look out to the east and the back windows face west. The new north wing of the building juts east giving the house an "L" shape. At the south end, a new one-and-a-half story wing contains Mr. Eisenhower's study.

The house as it now stands is an architectural mixture, as if Ike and Mamie had put their pet ideas from 40 years of rented houses and government quarters around the world into the remodeling. The old center section is brick; the two large new wings, on each side of it, are wood; the study wing is fieldstone.

The resulting structure is not like most of the other farmhouses in the area; they tend to be simple rectangular buildings, made of a single material—wood, stone or brick. From the back the Eisenhower house looks rather unyielding, with the face of the house in one plane broken by a number of windows—including a slightly incongruous picture window on the first floor.

From the front the lines of the house are more broken up by large trees, by the north ell, by the screen porch, by the terrace. Mrs. Eisenhower apparently is doing her part, as workmen have been busy this summer planting shrubs and flowers on this side.

In addition to the air conditioning, the house now is equipped with a big TV antenna, which rises from the ridge-pole where the north ell joins the center section, and a fancy barbecue fireplace, on the south and outside the President's study.

The color scheme is another that was apparently hand-picked by the Eisenhowers. When the paint was being mixed for the barn recently, Ike stood over the painter as he tried to get the exact shade the Eisenhowers wanted.

After a certain amount of high-level coaching, the painter came up with a mixture that gave the Eisenhowers a color unlike any other in the area—one that can only be described as a sort of pale grayish pastel peagreen.

One odd color note is the fact that although the shutters on the house are painted a deep, rich green, the heavy wooden back door, through which visitors enter the house (like most farms, the driveway leads to the back door), is an equally rich shade of dark blue.

From the back door—or through the big picture window on the north wing—the Eisenhowers look out to the main cultivated area of their farm.

As they face west, there are four sections; on their extreme left, the woods and grassland that border the brook; next to that, a section of pasture, with a patch of new alfalfa on the far side by the road; then, to the right of a fence-line, the strip-planted field of corn and oats, stretching from the driveway all the way to the road; and, on the far right beyond the grove, the corner of the cornfield can be seen.

THE Eisenhowers cannot be quite as easygoing as some other prosperous grandparents retiring to their "dream house" might be. So there are "private road" and "private property" signs, some new barbed wire on top of the fences, a system of electronic devices around the house, and "no parking" signs (which do nothing to cut down the flow of camera-wielding sightseers along the road where the house is in sight.

But in spite of these special features around the farm, Gettysburg folks seem inclined to treat Mr. Eisenhower as "just a neighbor."

The Eisenhowers had good reasons for choosing Gettysburg as the site of the only home they have owned since their marriage in 1916.

In addition to the urgings of George Allen, Ike and Mamie had fond memories of time spent at Camp Colt, a World War I training camp on the battlefield. Ike, a junior officer, taught tank tactics—without tanks—near what is now his farm.

A keen student of military history, the President has long been interested in the battle of Gettysburg—so interested, in fact, that one recent weekend he treated his young grandson to a guided tour of the historic area.

The countryside had another sentimental attraction for the Eisenhowers. While they were there, they enjoyed many happy times with their first son, Dwight Jr., who died a few years later when he was still a small boy.

In addition to these personal matters, the Eisenhower family had deep roots in Pennsylvania soil. Nicolas Eisenhower settled in Lebanon county, about 50 miles northeast of Gettysburg, in 1753. The President's father, David, lived in Elizabethville, Pa., as a youngster; his brother, Milton, is president of Pennsylvania State college.

Pulitzer Prize Play Colorcast Tonight

A TWO-HOUR color telecast of the Pulitzer Prize play "The Skin of Our Teeth" and the premiere of the new Perry Como show are among the highlights of a busy television schedule for the week ahead. "The Skin of Our Teeth" will be telecast at 6:30 tonight on KSD-TV, with Helen Hayes, Mary Martin and George Abbott in the star roles. The production of the Thornton Wilder play is the first presentation of the NBC-TV series of "color spread" spectaculars for the new season.

PERRY COMO . . . TO BEGIN VARIETY SHOW ON KSD-TV SATURDAY NIGHT.

Perry Como's new hour-long variety show will make its debut on KSD-TV at 7 Saturday night, with Rosemary Clooney and Frankie Laine among the guest stars on the opening telecast.

Arthur Godfrey and His Friends return for the new season at 7 Wednesday night on KWK-TV.

A new program dealing with medical research will start on KTVI at 8:30 tomorrow night, under the title Medical Horizons.

A suspense drama, "The Pit," will be seen on Studio One at 9 tomorrow night on KWK-TV.

The KSD-TV To the Ladies program will move to a new time, 12 noon Monday through Friday, starting tomorrow.

An audience participation show, Sweepstakes, will be telecast by KSD-TV at 1 in the afternoon Monday through Friday, beginning tomorrow.

New Drama Series

A full-hour dramatic series, Warner Brothers Presents, will begin on KWK-TV at 10 Tuesday night. The programs will run in cycles under the titles "Kings Row," "Cheyenne" and "Casablanca." Jack Kelly and Nan Leslie will be starred in Tuesday's opening "Kings Row" presentation.

NAN LESLIE . . . FEATURED IN 'KING'S ROW' PREMIERE ON KWK-TV.

William Bendix will start a new series of The Life of Riley programs on KSD-TV at 7:30 Friday night, with some new neighbors.

David Niven stars in a suspense drama, "The Lock," on the Four Star Playhouse at 8:30 Thursday night on KWK-TV.

A psychological thriller, "Woman in the Window," will be the Robert Montgomery presentation at 8:30 tomorrow night on KSD-TV. Robert Preston and Maria Riva will be featured.

Betty Furness and Franchot Tone will star in the Climax production of "Silent Decision" on KWK-TV at 7:30 Thursday night. The story deals with a physician who must decide whether to save the life of a man who is breaking up his home.

"Search for Beauty," a new program featuring beauty expert Ern Westmore, will be seen on KSD-TV at 9:30 weekday mornings starting tomorrow.

Carson in Original Play

Jack Carson will star an original Rod Serling play, "The Director," on Jane Wyman's Fireside Theater at 8 Tuesday night on KSD-TV. The story is that of a has-been actor who is trying to make a comeback.

The Spotlight Playhouse presentation on KWK-TV at 8:30 Tuesday night will be "The Closed Door," starring Gene Lockhart as a business tycoon whose ruthlessness catches up with him.

Paul Winchell and Jerry Mahoney return to KSD-TV at 9:30 Saturday morning.

Kirkwood food expert Marian O'Brien will be seen in a new cookery program for teen-agers starting Thursday night at 7:30 on KETC.

Radio Highlights

Clarence Darrow Story On KSD Tuesday Night

THE NBC Biography in Sound program on KSD at 8 Tuesday night will be "They Knew Clarence Darrow," a salute to the attorney who is particularly famous for his work in the Loeb-Leopold murder case and Scopes "monkey trial" at Dayton, Tenn. Those taking part in the program will include Roger Baldwin of the American Civil Liberties Union; Nathan Leopold, who with the late Richard Loeb was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Bobby Franks in Chicago; Darrow's law associate, William L. Carlin; Norman Thomas, and lawyer Jerry Geisler.

CLARENCE DARROW . . . TO BE SUBJECT OF BIOGRAPHY IN SOUND.

Arthur Godfrey will return to his Monday-through-Friday "Arthur Godfrey Time" on KMOX at 9 tomorrow morning.

The subject of discussion on The Citizens View the Public Schools at 2:05 Friday afternoon on KSD will be "How Can the Average Citizen Participate More Effectively in Improving Public Education?"

Magda Gabor will be the guest on Make Up Your Mind at 10:30 tomorrow morning on KMOX. Guests for the remainder of the week will be actor Tony Randall, Tuesday; opera star Roberta Peters, Wednesday; New York City postmaster Robert Schaffer, Thursday; and naturalist Ivan Sanderson, Friday.

A new animal program, "Hotel for Pets," will be heard on KSD at 2:30 Monday through Friday afternoons, starting tomorrow. The Claude Rains program formerly heard at that time will move to 2:05.

Alfred N. Goldsmith and Jacques Bazun will be guests on Clifton Fadiman's Conversation program at 7 Wednesday night on KSD, in Part Two of the discussion, "Do We Live in Atlantis?"

She Followed the Blueprint

Missouri's Jane Wyman Used an Old Formula to Reach the Top

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10.

JANE WYMAN'S rise to stardom is the result of an old but successful formula: natural talent, hard work and the ability to "see around the corner."

Her latest major move in the entertainment world is her own television series, "Jane Wyman's Fireside Theater," a half-hour anthology program on the NBC network (KSD-TV 8 p.m. Tuesdays).

Her bid for television acclaim has been as carefully blueprinted as her motion picture career, a story of screen accomplishment which makes her stand unchallenged as the most versatile actress in Hollywood. Whether it be comedy or drama she has won critical acclaim, collecting a total of three Academy nominations (the latest for "Magnificient Obsession"), plus the Oscar she won in 1948 as the year's best actress in Warner Bros.' "Johnny Belinda."

Jane Wyman was born in St. Joseph, Mo., and was named Sarah Jane Fulks. Her father, R. D. Fulks, was active in politics and served as chief of detectives and county collector. Her mother, whose maiden name was Emma Reise, was born in Saarbrucken, Germany, and came to the United States as a child.

JANE made her first bid for motion pictures as a child of eight in Hollywood. She was brought to the film capital expressly to be trained for an acting career. Already, Jane was an accomplished dancer, and it was on this talent that hopes were based.

The stay was short, and Jane was brought back home for more schooling and training.

JANE WYMAN . . . ONE OF THE FIRST IN HOLLYWOOD TO SEE THE POSSIBILITIES OF TELEVISION.

Seven years later, now a beautiful, brown-eyed girl of 15, Jane was back in the big town of film. This time she had added to her ability as a dancer.

While lunching at Sardi's one day, Jane was noticed by William Demarest, then in the agency business. He arranged an interview for her with LeRoy Prinz, the noted dance director. Impressed, Prinz suggested she augment her dancing ability with solid dramatic training.

Prinz sent her to a drama coach who made the terse judgment: "Your face doesn't go with your voice."

JANE forgot the comment and went after more interviews. Out of these came what looked like her best movie role to date . . . a part in "My Man Godfrey," with Carole Lombard and William Powell. Her part went on the cutting-room floor, but such setbacks merely made Jane try harder.

Her persistence began to pay off. There was a test at Warners, out of which came a contract. The wonderful year was 1936 and Jane's career was launched rocket-fashion.

She first achieved prominence as a comedienne, but then was suddenly offered dramatic roles which immediately spotlighted her as one of the top actresses in Hollywood. The pictures were "The Yearling" and "Johnny Belinda."

FOR the past few years, even while she was cementing her high reputation in Hollywood with quality performances, Jane was eyeing the television medium. Her far-sighted and practical comment on TV was: "An actress's function is to appear before audiences . . . and now TV has the largest audience of any medium in the entertainment field."

Eight years ago she quietly obtained TV rights when Warners renewed her contract, making her one of the first big actresses to recognize the mighty potential of television.

While others leaped into TV as fast as the medium itself expanded, Jane waited and watched. Backed by the solid conclusions she has made, she has now entered the field with her own Lewman Productions.

As a 9-to-5 business woman and full-time actress, Jane candidly says she will probably have to forego her hobbies of painting and golf "for a while."

Circus Visit, Uranium Tips On Monitor

Television Letter Box

THANKS very much for the Video Theater production of "Last Confession." It was a masterful presentation, and more programs of this type would relieve the religious bigotry so prevalent today. Thanks again. HY. G. EVERDING.

Tonight I saw the finest television play I have ever seen. It was presented on the Video Theater, titled "Last Confession." Thank you. J.R.W.

Thank you for making it possible for us to see the Lawrence Welk show on television Monday nights. It is the best musical variety show on TV. Please keep him on, as you will make yourself many friends by so doing. It might be that you could find a more appropriate spot earlier in the evening, as 11:15 p.m. is a little late for people who have to work the next day.
ROLAND ABERNATHY.

There are a lot of wrestling fans in St. Louis who miss those fine Saturday night exhibitions. Let's have wrestling back on KSD-TV. J. REAM.

Just a word of thanks to KWK-TV for The $64,000 Question on Tuesday evenings; it's exciting and I enjoy it very much. I hope it stays on the air for a long time.
SAUNDRA LEITH.

We enjoy the Midwestern Hayride, but it's on such a short time each week. Couldn't it be arranged for an hour-long show, especially more of Rudy Hanson and the square dancers?
MRS. WILLIAM R. SCULLY.

Just a line to tell you that the Lawrence Welk show on Monday nights is the finest hour of TV entertainment we have ever seen.
MR. AND MRS. A. J. WILD.

As Crosby Sees It

Big Giveaway Show Encourages Greed

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.

WHEN I went off on vacation, "$64,000 Question" was just another television show. When I came back, it was a national institution, each detail of the giveaway orgy being reported with the loving care usually reserved for White House press conferences. And it is watched, I'm told, by every man, woman and child old enough to stay up that late.

Well, that puts me in a minority of one, because I think "$64,000 Question" is a perfectly dreadful show, if show is quite the word for it. There has never been anything on television which irritates me so thoroughly since Senator McCarthy got off it. In fact, I find myself talking back to the screen, a deplorable and useless habit. Imagine a big, grown-up country like this staying up to watch a 12-year-old girl spell "antidisestablishmentarianism." I could spell "antidisestablishmentarianism" when I was half that girl's age but nobody gave me $16,000 or even 10 cents.

I must admit they have collared some pretty charming people to shower money on. But that's hardly any excuse for doing so. I have an idea that all these people are going to come to bad ends because of that money. Just possibly all the people who watch them are going to come to bad ends, too. It's hard enough to stifle the greed that rises up in the normal course of human affairs without having it artificially stimulated once a week by small girls spelling "antidisestablishmentarianism."

I MUST HAVE something missing in my makeup because all these shows glorifying avarice, from the days of Ralph Edwards and "Mr. Hush," have left me cold. If Hal March wanted to give me $32,000, I might view the whole thing more kindly. But the idea of sitting at home and watching somebody else acquire $32,000—well, I just don't see the fun in it.

When "$64,000 Question" started it was a fairly simple operation. March just dragged his contestants out on the stage and started plying them with questions, including some pretty tough ones. Now the show has been gimmicked to a fare-thee-well with flashing lights and bad jokes and one thing and another which makes the darned thing even more irritating. But it goes merrily on with half the country looking at it. How can you argue with 32,000,000 people?

"THE REMARKABLE FACT," says Newsweek magazine in a recent cover story, "is that practically everyone in the United States is intimately acquainted with the faces, background and behavior of Gloria Lockerman, Richard McCutchen, Gino Prato, Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer, and Redmond O'Hanlon, five apparently obscure persons."

WELL, WE MANAGED to survive midget golf. We got through the marathon dance craze and prohibition. We have managed to outlive a lot of silly nonsense and I guess we'll get this darned thing out of our system eventually, too.

'Greater Egypt' Ever Greater

By Howard Derrickson

CARBONDALE, Ill., Sept. 10.

FAST-GROWING Southern Illinois University, which last year attained an enrollment its officers had told the state legislature it would reach by 1962, is rather enjoying the experience of bursting at its seams. Growth, administrators point out, means greater potential for service to the 31 prospering counties of Southern Illinois. New Student Week begins Friday, with 2000 freshmen expected to swell total enrollment to 5500, or 1000 more than last year.

Granted for the next two years an operating budget only $2,000,000 short of the university's request, the administration has created a burgeoning new School of Fine Arts, composed of the old departments of art and music. This school, perhaps more than any other university division, is doing a public relations job for the university.

An art festival now in the planning stage will cap a series of special exhibits, Museum of Modern Art loan shows, panel talks, art and craft demonstrations, concerts and recitals by performing artists and musicians.

This work is essential if the nation's fastest-growing university is ever going to be able to move out of its "temporary" quarters in quonset huts and converted homes, points out artist Burnett Shryock, fine arts school dean.

Teachers we talked to believe the crowding will result in stiffening of academic requirements, with early crackdowns planned for any students not clearly working their hardest. In written expression, viewed as especially important for persons charting careers in the highly personal, often nebulous fields of arts, Southern Illinois youths are markedly behind those from the St. Louis and Chicago areas, administrators said.

AMONG ART CLASSES most in demand are ceramics courses, taught by Associate Prof. Carlton Ball. Such is the appeal of Southern's intensive accelerated course in pottery that young mothers have left their children with baby-sitters for weeks at a time in order to take the instruction.

Ball, appointed in 1951, spent last year on a Ford Foundation fellowship. He has served as a juror for many contests, including the Museum of Modern Art's Good Design show.

Among 26 exihibitions in which he took part the year before he started his travels was "American Craftsmen," touring display organized by the Smithsonian Institute.

Ball, whose new pottery is to be shown this fall at the university's Allyn gallery, derived fresh ideas and discovered new materials last year during a nation-wide tour. He is already back on campus.

Ball has told of visiting a generations-old Florida "jugtown," with a mule-drawn potter's wheel. He plans a similar project here. He also worked in the last year at the Brayer Foundation, Mont., Alfred (N.Y.) University, Tulane University and Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans, where he held a one-man show in a French Quarter gallery; visited colleges and pottery centers in California and Washington, and attended the National Craftsmen's Guild board meeting in New York.

WITH SHRYOCK GIVING most of his time as administrator to the music department and the fine arts school in general, direct charge of the art department falls to Robert McMillan, who came to Carbondale in 1950 after study at Washington and Columbia Universities.

Ray Grimm, Washington University graduate who studied pottery last summer at S.I.U. has returned this year to teach and to study for his master's degree. Interest in Carbondale grew in St. Louis after Ball and Shryock helped judge Artists' Guild shows and after the People's Art Center exhibited pottery by Grimm and his wife, Jere.

Stress here, however, is on service to Southern Illinois, where an increasing number of farmers are able to send their children to Carbondale if not farther. In summer school, 98 per cent of the student body came from Illinois. This fall tuition for out-of-state students has been doubled.

THERE IS NOW in Egypt a Texas-like zest that rubs off on visitors. Both Grimms were matched in quickly acquired school spirit by Siegfried Reinhardt and William N. Eisendrath Jr., who returned to St. Louis exclaiming about a "rural renaissance."

But no one so far has rivaled the implication of a state analyst writing in "Public Aid in Illinois," a booklet that told of the university's "Area Services" work, including all manner of projects to advance economic and cultural standing of the community.

In this Chicago-edited publication, Southern Illinois is termed not the conventional "Egypt," nor yet the rarer "Little Egypt" (after all, Chicago once had a gyrating Little Egypt of its own) but—in blissful oblivion of the Land of the Pharaohs — simply "Greater Egypt."

RUSSELL GERHART, LEFT, IS RETURNING FOR HIS FIFTH SEASON AS CONDUCTOR OF THE ST. LOUIS PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA. AT RIGHT IS JOSEPH KNITZER, WHO WILL BE SOLOIST AT THE ORCHESTRA'S OPENING CONCERT NOV. 17 IN THE KIEL AUDITORIUM OPERA HOUSE.

SHIRLEY PARNAS

Three Soloists Named by Philharmonic

THE St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra today named the three soloists who will appear in the 1955-56 concert series. The orchestra will open its ninety-sixth season on Thursday, Nov. 17 in the Kiel Auditorium Opera House. Directing the concerts will be Russell Gerhart, who is returning for his fifth season as conductor.

As usual four concerts will be presented. The first three programs will feature solo artists and a "pop" program will make up the final concert.

Concert dates and assisting artists are:

Nov. 17, Joseph Knitzer, violinist;

Jan. 19, Shirley Parnas, pianist;

March 15, James Wainner, tenor, and April 26, orchestral "pop" program.

Knitzer, nationally-known concert violinist who will be soloist at the opening concert, is joining the Eastman School of Music this fall as artist-teacher in violin. Formerly, he was chairman of the stringed instrument department of the Northwestern University school of music, and chairman of the violin department at the Cleveland Institute of Music for more than 10 years. Knitzer has appeared as soloist with many of the nation's major symphony orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia, Detroit and Boston.

St. Louis pianist Shirley Parnas, a winner in the Young Artists' Contest in 1953, is a junior at Lindenwood College. In addition to her organ and piano study here at Community Music School and Lindenwood, she attended the Organ Institute in Andover, Mass., and studied at the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music this summer. Her piano studies have been primarily under Mrs. Paul Friess, with earlier work under Florence Johnson and Edna Lieber.

Wainner, leading lyric tenor with the Midwest Opera Company of St. Louis, has done radio work in St. Louis. He is a soloist for Missouri Athletic Club concerts and also has appeared with the Laclede Little Symphony and Southern Illinois Symphony. As a student at the University of Wichita, he had leading opera workshop roles and appeared as a symphony and choral society soloist. Wainner's local music study has been with Doyne Neal, organist at Central Presbyterian Church, where Wainner is tenor soloist.

The final concert on April 26 will consist of an all-orchestral program featuring musical works from the field of the popular classics, Russell Gerhart conducting.

Auditions for new candidates as well as for present members of the orchestra will be held tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday and on Sept. 19, 20 and 21.

Rodgers-Hammerstein Musical to Open Rehearsal Sept. 20

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (UP)

THE newest Richard Rodgers-Oscar Hammerstein musical, their first in more than two years, starts rehearsals Sept. 20.

This is "Pipe Dream," the adaptation from John Steinbeck's "Sweet Thursday," which was a sequel to his earlier "Cannery Row" novel.

The production originally was projected for last fall, but the collaborators became so involved early in 1954 and throughout most of that year with the filming of their "Oklahoma!" that it had to be postponed. With the postponement went the plan for Russell Nype to play the role of Doc, and now Bill Johnson has the part.

Helen Traubel, former Metropolitan Opera prima donna, also has an important role in the show. A Broadway newcomer, Judy Tyler, familiar to TV viewers, will be the ingenue.

Plans call for opening the show in New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22, to be followed by a four-week engagement in Boston. The Broadway premiere date is Nov. 30 at the Shubert Theater.

'Bojangles' Biography

HOLLYWOOD — The biography of Bill (Bojangles) Robinson, the great Negro dancer, will be filmed late this year by Universal-International. Mr. Robinson was 71 when he died in 1949.

Groundwork For Opening of 'The Wooden Dish'

ST. LOUIS will take on a junior-size Broadway appearance tomorrow when New York theatrical technicians and a mechanical crew begin to set up the scenic and property effects of "The Wooden Dish" at the American Theater.

Three days will be required to have everything in order for the arrival on Thursday of the star, Louis Calhern, other members of the cast and Producer Armand S. Deutsch. Full scale dress rehearsals will begin that day. Meanwhile, daily rehearsals are being carried on in New York.

"The Wooden Dish," which is scheduled to reach Broadway next month, will open the American Theater's 1955-56 season with a one-week engagement beginning Monday, Sept. 19. The new Edmund Morris play will be the first in the Theater Guild-American Theater Society's current subscription series under the auspices of the Council of Living Theater.

POLLY ROWLES

The cast includes Polly Rowles, James Westerfield, John Randolph, Edgar Stehli and Gordon Tanner.

Donald Oenslager has designed the scenery and John Boyt the costumes.

At the Movies

By Edward Kosmal

IT'S ALWAYS FAIR WEATHER—Delightful musical with a plot that does more than just fill the void between the film's superb dance numbers. Three wartime buddies (Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey and Michael Kidd) learn what havoc a decade can do to a G.I. friendship. Also starred are Cyd Charisse and Dolores Gray. LOEW'S STATE.

THE VIRGIN QUEEN—Lured back to the screen after a three-year absence, Bette Davis as Elizabeth I finds herself confronted with a rather weak story about the exploits of Sir Walter Raleigh, played by Richard Todd. But Miss Davis gives the script a lift with her portrayal of the whimsical sixteenth century ruler. SHADY OAK.

LOVE IS A MANY SPLENDORED THING—A romance with an unhappy ending. Jennifer Jones, portraying a Eurasian doctor, and William Holden, as an American correspondent, battle convention for love's sake in Hong Kong. ST. LOUIS.

HOUSE OF BAMBOO—Run-of-the-mill gangster story transplanted to the Far East to bask in the colorful Oriental environment. Good photography, poor story and plenty of gunfire. FOX.

LADY AND THE TRAMP—Walt Disney cartoon all about dogs. Real cute, too, sometimes too cute perhaps, but on the whole sprightly and amusing. ORPHEUM.

MARTY—A heart-warming and touching little picture about loneliness among drab people. RICHMOND.

CINERAMA HOLIDAY—Sights and sounds of Paris, Switzerland and the United States in the sensational depth process. AMBASSADOR.

Movie Role for Nancy Sinatra

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10 (AP).

ANOTHER Sinatra has entered the acting business. This time it's Nancy, former wife of famous Frankie.

Nancy, who is pretty and petite with dark brown-reddish hair, is playing the role of a Red Cross worker in the Pacific war in Paramount's "The Proud and Profane." It's her first fling at acting.

Gallery Notes

CHARLES F. JAMIESON, St. Louis artist who recently earned a master's degree in art at Mexico City College, opened his second St. Louis one-man show yesterday with a reception at Petit Pigalle, 4207 Lindell boulebard. The exhibit will run through September.

The Kirkwood Open Air Art Fair, which opened yesterday on the Pitman School grounds, as part of the Kirkwood homecoming celebration, will move today to a grove of trees south of the tennis courts in Kirkwood Park. Hours of exhibition are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., with presentation of prizes totaling $660 planned for 3 p.m.

The Miraculous Mozart

By Thomas B. Sherman

MOZART'S "Cosi Fan Tutte" is so transcendently beautiful that you can hardly believe your ears when listening even to a moderately competent performance. The performance recorded under the direction of Herbert von Karajan, with Elizabeth Schwartzkopf and Nan Merriman as the two inconstant sisters, reaches well beyond competence to a level of near-perfection. (Angel, three 12-inch LPs, in album with libretto and explanatory notes.) All parts are beautifully sung but Miss Schwartzkopf, it seems to me, becomes a model for future singers who undertake this role because of her wonderfully fluent and finely inflected singing of line and phrase. The silvery texture of her voice is moving in itself; but its plasticity makes it amendable to the finest possible emotional subtleties. Leopold Simoneau, a light but warm voiced lyric tenor, is an effective Ferrando and the role of Don Alfonso is sung for once by an artist, Sesto Brusentiri, who has vocal as well as comedy gifts to recommend him.

The lightness of texture, overall finish, close integration, ease of movement, and rightness of pace all contribute toward making the performance as a whole and affecting demonstration of the high comedy style. All credit to Mr. Karajan, the Philharmonia Orchestra and the cast. Their performance is worthy of an opera whose miraculous invention can use even a farcical plot as a starting point for ethereal lyricism. The story incidentally says in effect that absence makes the heart grow fonder for Johnny-on-the-spot. But come to think of it, is this so faricial?

PIANO: A fascinating story is associated with the recording of Mozart's piano Sonata in B flat (K.333) and Six Sonatas for Keyboard by Domenico Scarlatti. The performer is Charles Rosen, an excellently qualified American pianist, and the instrument is the "Siena Piano." At this stage of its adventurous history the Siena piano is now in New York where it is being exhibited with pride by its present owner, a piano tuner and a citizen of Israel named Avner Carmi. The piano was made in the first decade of the nineteenth century by a family of instrument makers in Turin, Italy. Subsequently is was surrounded by a beautifully carved wooden case which replaced the original one. In the late '80s is came into possession of Umberto I, King of Italy. Thereafter it fell on evil days. Carmi salvaged the piano from a military dump at El Alamein during World War II but lost possession of it again to a group of entertainers, only to find it lying mysteriously on the streets of Tel-Aviv some months later. Since then he has managed to retrace and authenticate its fabulous history.

All that remains of the original Siena piano is its sounding board. It still has a lovely bell-like resonance and though its scale is not even this detracts little from its beauty. (Esoteric, one 12-inch LP in decorative album.)

ORGAN: As a successor to his recorded program made in some 14 European churches on organs that represented five centuries of organ building, E. Power Biggs no produces an even more distinctive novelty. He recorded the Bach Toccata in D Minor on the same organs and the record is now available for the delectation of organ students and enthusiasts. Mere Bach addicts will probably not be interested in hearing the same piece repeated 14 times even though the final performance on the organ of the Royal Festival Hall in London, includes the D Minor Fugue. At that it is quite interesting to note the differing timbres of these magnificent instruments. Incidentally the organ at Weingarten, Germany, is about a half-tone lower in pitch than the others. (Columbia, One 12-inch LP.)

CONCERTO: Jascha Heifetz, aided and abetted by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra under Fritz Reiner gives an impressively brilliant and cleanly articulated performance of the Brahms Violin Concerto. (RCA-Victor, One 12-inch LP.) The driving force employed in the first and third movements is not conducive, seemingly, to an ideal flexibility. In any case many opportunities for breadth and graciousness of phrasing are neglected. Many long stretches in both movements could be synchronized to a metronome. By contrast the slow movement is relaxed, serene and noble in its expression. The orchestra contributes notably to this result, particularly so in the introductory measures where the beautifully played oboe solo establishes the mood. Sound reproduction is superb.

Best Sellers

RAVEL: "Daphnis and Chloe," complete, played by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Antal Dorati conducting. (Mercury, one 12-inch LP in souvenir album.)

VIVALDI: "The Four Seasons," played by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Guido Cantelli conducting. (Columbia, one 12-inch LP.)

Cinderella Touch to Broadway

By William Glover

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)

CINDERELLAS, tourists and Frenchmen look like stars of the new Broadway theatrical season which got going this week.

They are the distinctive symptoms for the 1955-'56 show year, conspicuous among the normal quota of rosy promises which blossom each autumn along the main stem. This is the time when each angel, producer and player is sure he'll finally rub the lamp of fame and fortune.

The Cinderella influence stems from the inordinate number of fledglings who have been signed to lead roles in pending productions. That there will be more than a slight Gallic touch to activities is clear from the adapting of a dozen French scripts for showing here, as well as the number of Paris players booked to display their talents.

On the audience side of the footlights, there's a big new trend toward organized theatergoing for out-of-towners. Several organizations have sprung up to arrange train and plane trips from the far corners of the country. It's an enlargement of the show trip idea through which various newspapers have run periodic trips for fans. It can mean a lot at the box office.

IN ADDITION to such high points, the show months ahead include: visits from across-the-seas troupes including the Comedie Francaise, the D'Oyly Carte Minstrels and the Kabuki Dancers of Tokyo; new plays from long-absent Thornton Wilder and such controversial contemporaries as Arthur Miller of Brooklyn and Sean O'Casey of Dublin.

Putting things statistically, 35 productions have been committed to opening dates, entailing a frantic scramble for theater space. Of this number, 12 are dramas, nine are comedies and 11 are musicals, revues or plays-with-music. The others are the aforementioned visitors from France, Britain and Japan.

Sixty-nine other offerings are at more or less advanced stages of planning. For comparison, 55 shows actually arrived on Broadway last year.

AMONG the prominent players coming to town are Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn, Joseph Schildkraut, Shirley Booth, Faye Emerson, Carol Channing, Michael Redgrave, Eddie Albert, Van Heflin, Julie Harris, Shelley Winters, Boris Karloff and Rex Harrison.

In the production department, the season will be stamped above all others with the names of Roger Stevens, apparently out to surpass himself as the dean of impresarios with a dozen or more offerings; and Sol Hurok, veteran maestro of concert and classical bookings who has lined up an assortment for the Broadway theater including a Spanish dance troupe, the Comedie Francaise, the Kabuki performers and the Katherine Dunham Dance Co.

THE POST-LABOR DAY parade of shows got started last Tuesday with "Catch a Star," a musical review which emerged from the critical gauntlet a lot better than early September offerings usually do. Representative of the booking scramble, the show has had to arrange moves to two other theaters in the next few weeks in order to make room for other openings.

The floodgates will open wide next month with 13 items thus far slated for premieres.

Satisfactory Study Spot Is Essential

By Dorothy Brainerd

BACK TO SCHOOL they go, these youngsters that give real meaning to the word "home." And as their vacations end, there is a change in the operation of the household. There is a tightening of schedules and of discipline, perhaps more careful planning of meals as Mother goes about the task of helping Junior and Sister settle down to the serious job of learning.

But with all of the careful planning of school wardrobes and school lunches, there is one important thing that is too often overlooked in many homes. And it is a factor which may well make the difference to the student between mediocrity or excellent. It is the simple matter of a satisfactory study spot.

Of course not every home provides space for a separate study room. But in compromising with reality, try to choose a room or nook which is apart from the living room with its many distractions. And give thought to color and to lighting.

As far as possible, let the youngster help with plans for his study area so that he will feel it is truly his and be happy in it. If the room in which he is to work is scheduled for redecorating, now is the ideal time. Let him have a voice in the choice of the color, but guide it toward a shade with a high reflecting power.

Here is the way the National Paint, Varnish & Lacquer Association evaluates the light reflectance of colors: White is tops, returning 80 per cent of the light beamed in its direction. Light ivory and cream are second, with a score of approximately 70 per cent. Apricot beige and lemon yellow reflect around 65 per cent; ivory and light buff rate 55 to 60 per cent. Peach, salmon and light pearl gray give back 50 per cent of the light falling upon them: pale apple green 50 to 55 per cent. Then comes medium gray, light green and pale blue at 40 to 45 per cent. Steer junior away from dark rose (a mere 12 per cent), dark green and dark blue, which soak up all but eight and nine per cent of the light hitting them.

The Distinguished Service Foundation of Optometry recommends that as a general rule side walls should reflect from 50 to 60 per cent of the light reaching them. Obviously the ceiling color also should be taken into consideration, as should the texture of the paint. A smooth flat surface is a better reflector than a rough one, and flat paint will help gain proper light diffusion.

Of course the color of the walls is only one factor. Be sure that your young student has a comfortable chair in which to sit. Protect young eyes by giving thought to artificial lighting. Try to avoid glare (working on a light colored blotter is a good trick). Be sure that there is some general illumination so that the study spot isn't the only bright one in the room. See that the light comes over the left shoulder and that the lamp is high enough to light the work evenly.

In short, don't expect Bud or Sis to do a good job unless you provide a good place in which to do it. After all, they are entitled to the same efficient planning that is taken as a matter of course in Mother's kitchen or Dad's office.

SHEETS FRAYED at the top edge? Then here is good news; you can give them a new lease on life with colorful borders. New in St. Louis stores are packages of border trim all ready to sew on without cutting or hemming. You have a choice of a dainty flowered pattern, stripe or scallop design. The trim, which is quite inexpensive, also can be used on curtains, dust ruffles or dressing table skirts to give a bedroom that "decorator look."

HERE IT IS AGAIN, that ole debbil mildew. This time it is Mrs. E. L. who writes:

"Just yesterday I discovered mildew spots on the underneath side of a linoleum rug that we have on the basement floor. Can anything be done to correct this condition? I am afraid that in due time the basement may have a mildew odor."

About the only thing you can do with a mildewed linoleum rug is to wash it with mild soap and water, rinse with clear lukewarm water and place in the sun to dry thoroughly. Sun and air are the most effective weapons to use against mildew.

Incidentally, this type of floorcovering is not recommended for use in a basement because the moisture that comes through from the concrete floor will eventually cause the linoleum to deteriorate.

"BY MISTAKE one of my daughter's lambswool sweaters was put in the automatic washer. It has shrunk quite a bit and is slightly matted. Is there anything I can do to renew it?" asks Mrs. K. C. McK.

Afraid it is beyond recall, Mrs. McK. If a sweater has shrunk slightly it sometimes can be wet and blocked larger, but not if shrinkage is great and if it is matted. Sorry, ma'am.

Separate Collar

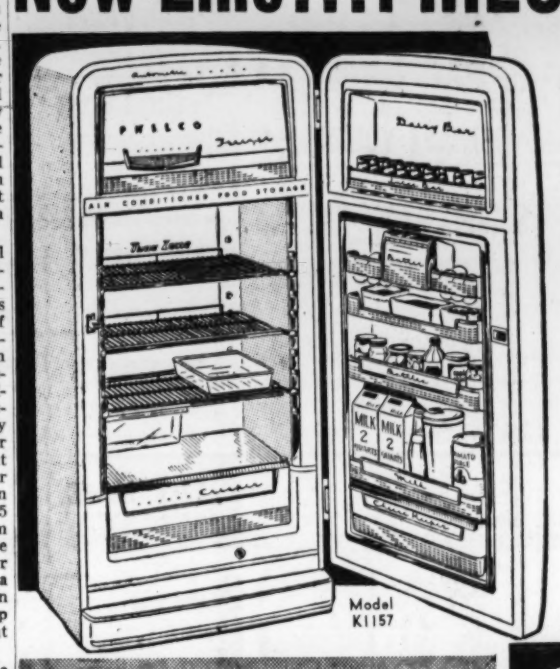

The vogue of wider collars on dresses and suits brings the separate collar into popularity. White satin is effective for these collars to be worn over the suit or dress collar. Linen and velveteen are two other fabrics that the designers are using in the same manner.

Fables Of the Famous

By E. E. Edgar

AMBITIONS: President Eisenhower was once asked by a friend if he had realized his boyhood ambitions.

"I can't say that I have," replied the President. "I remember when I was a boy in grade school, I had a close pal, and we often talked about what we would like to be when we grew up. I had my heart set on becoming a big-league ball player. His one and only ambition was to become President of the United States.

"I guess," concluded Ike wistfully, "neither one of us got his wish."

CONCEIT: When George M. Cohan and Sam Harris were producing plays together on Broadway, they once engaged a conceited actor for a leading role. The actor's arrogance was insufferable. He scornfully dismissed every suggestion made by the director and the producers, and was cordially hated by the other members of the cast.

One day at rehearsal, Cohan became fed up with these antics. He leaped on to the stage and confronted the leading man.

"Look here," he shouted, "I'm getting sick and tired of this foolishness. Just who do you think you are, putting on airs around here? I don't know why we ever hired you!"

GEORGE M. COHAN . . . HE WAS FED UP.

When Cohan returned to his seat, Harris jumped up, eyes ablaze.

"And that goes double for me, you ham!" he cried. "Don't get the idea that you're the only one who can play this part!"

The actor listened to them with a stunned expression on his face. Then just as suddenly, the shock passed and he smiled.

"Aw, come on, fellows," he said, "why don't you stop kidding?"

ADVICE: When artist Graham Sutherland was painting the portrait of Sir Winston Churchill last year, he was frequently asked by political leaders if Churchill, during the sittings, had dropped any hints as to his retirement plans.

"That never enters our conversation," staunchly insisted the artist.

"Then what do you talk about?" he was asked.

"When the P.M. does talk, it is not about anything political—unfortunately," replied Sutherland with a tinge of regret. "He talks mostly about painting. He is a painter himself, you know, and he constantly gives me free advice."

DELAY: Will Rogers paid little attention to his personal appearance. Never fastidious, he was content to wear the same suit for days on end.

At one time, he was invited by President and Mrs. Coolidge to dinner at the White House. Dinner was to be at seven, which meant seven on the dot, as the Coolidges were known for their promptness.

Rogers came down from New York on the afternoon train, which was delayed. When he arrived at the White House, the President and the First Lady were already entering the dining room. The humorist apologized for being late, and explained why he had been detained.

The President accepted his apology graciously. Then, with a glance at Rogers's rumpled suit, he said:

"No need to change your suit. Since we're ready to dine, we might as well do so."

To this, Rogers made no reply. Under his breath, however, he thanked his lucky stars that the train had been delayed. As usual, a change of attire had not occurred to him. The suit he was wearing was the only one he had with him.

PORTRAIT: American painter William Merritt Chase was for some time a teacher in the New York School of Art. Chase, who painted with great facility, had little patience with students who dawdled over their canvases.

One hot summer day, when a student protested that it was impossible to complete a portrait in less than a week, Chase decided to give a demonstration of his speed.

Borrowing a freshly killed fish from the corner market, he placed it on a table and began to paint it. In a little while, the painting was finished, to the last detail. When Chase returned the fish to the market, it was still fresh.

'My Opinion'

Wife Worried Over A Family Problem

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

RECENTLY, my husband's brother-in-law died in another city, leaving his wife and two small daughters. Now she is planning to come back to St. Louis and will stay with her parents until she can find a place. My husband's people are very demanding and imposing and my husband agrees with me on this. However, he is very easy-going and feels that if he doesn't do just about everything they say he is wrong and it gives him a guilty feeling. I'm afraid his sister will take advantage of this and neither my husband nor I knows how to cop with it. We recently bought a home and are expecting our first child. We can't afford any more expense at this time. I do think my husband's first duty is to his home and child.

WORRIED.

That's true, but a wise wife will not force her husband to turn his back on his other relatives. As I understand your problem, you are afraid his parents and sister will demand his time and attention—and perhaps his money—in helping her become settled in St. Louis. Maybe you're borrowing trouble, but remember, it is never easy for a widow to pick up the threads of her life and re-establish herself in a new situation. Be as kind and thoughtful as you can. As her brother, your husband should want to do what he can for her at this time. Later, you can help him stand up to any attempts on his family's part to impose on him, and the more understanding and sympathetic and generous you are, the more he will want to share this problem with you and work it out. Don't add to his sense of guilt by making him feel he is torn between two opposing households.

Dear Martha:

● I AM 18 and in love with a man of 22. He is in business for himself and is very capable but we cannot be happy because of my jealousy. I know he loves me, yet every time he looks at another girl on the street, or leaves me to talk with one when we are out, or worse yet, talks about the good qualities of another girl, I am almost overpowered with jealousy. As for him, he is an only child, spoiled and self-centered. We can't be together one evening without an argument. We broke up for six days then I called him. He says he loves me and we are still going together but he wants to date other girls, especially one he met while I was gone. He told me they didn't have a single argument. How could they when they don't know each other? Am I supposed to sit around and let another girl take my place? I told him he would have to choose between us. I told him if he went with other girls, I would date other boys. I really wouldn't but I wanted to make him feel I did when he told me about going with other girls. He said if he ever found out I dated some one else that would be the end of our friendship. Don't advise me to break up with him. FORLORN.

Well, if you insist on being a slave to his possessiveness and to your own jealous fears, I'm afraid my advice won't help. Maybe he's a little fed up with your jealousy, especially if you make him feel that he can't even look at another girl. Jealousy may be flattering up to a point—but it can get downright sickening and pretty soon the victim starts straining at the leash. It's the best way in the world to lose him. As to his dating other girls, can you force him to go only with you? Of course not. But you're letting him force you to refuse dates with other boys. Frankly, I don't think either of you is ready to think about marriage, and I'm afraid that if you do marry, with the situation as it is now, you'll be a mighty miserable person.

Dear Martha:

● I HAVE four boys and two girls, all married. All except one have children. Everything was fine until a few months ago when the husband of the one without children decided he disliked all children and told his wife she couldn't see her sister because he didn't like the sister's little girl. I can't believe a man could be that bitter toward children. Would you or some of your readers please help me solve this problem? MOTHER.

It doesn't make sense for him to turn completely away from children if he has cared for them up to this time, unless perhaps he has been nervous or ill and their chatter and noise bother him to such an extent that he doesn't want even his nieces and nephews around. Or, he may long for a child of his own and because he has no family has begun to take out his disappointment in bitter criticism of his in-laws. In that case, he and his wife might think of adopting a child or offering foster home care. But whatever it is, you as his mother-in-law, cannot solve the problem. That is up to his wife and him. It would be unfortunate, however, if she let his present bitter feeling keep her from the rest of her family.

Dear Martha:

● I HAVE DISCOVERED in an indirect way that there are plans to give me added responsibilities in a remote department of our organization. I don't like the idea. For many years I have done a good job at my present post. It is a struggle at times to find enough time to get out what I'm supposed to do. Shall I take a chance on refusing outright when this new assignment is offered? I positively refuse to be saddled with it, but I want to decline in a nice way as they have been treating me well all these years. Yet if I don't make it an emphatic "No," I am sure I will be stuck with something that will require more drastic measures to get rid of—i.e., to go elsewhere. That I wish to avoid. NOT FOR ME.

Why look ahead for trouble? Just wait and see what the added duties really entail, rather than get all steamed up over office gossip. Maybe when the boss explains it to you, it will be more appealing than it now sounds. At any rate, I should think you would consider it something of a tribute to your ability, rather than scorn it as a burden. Perhaps you can reorganize your work, taking more of the administrative responsibility for both your present assignment and the new one, and delegating minor details to others. When it comes up, don't say "No" without thinking it over. Then—unless you absolutely can't see your way clear to taking on more work—try to create a new and efficient plan of operation which will enable you to be of more value to your organization and yet won't make you the workhorse of the staff.

THE SWEATER BECOMES AN OVERBLOUSE WHEN ACCESSORIZED WITH SCARF AND JEWELRY. THIS BRAEMAR SWEATER IS OF CASHMERE.

THIS WRAP-AROUND BLOUSE CREATED BY GLENTEX MAY ALSO BE WORN AS A JACKET OVER A SLIM, SLEEVELESS SHEATH.

By Sylvia Stiles

THE woman who not only is fashion-wise but budget-conscious as well will find that there are many ways this season to create glamorous costumes with the minimum of expense and wardrobe items. Co-ordination is the keynote and it usually starts with the blouse.

Couture designers of complete ensembles have elevated the blouse to a new place of importance in the wardrobe. So well have they integrated it to the skirt and jacket that the effect is that of a unified costume Fabric, colors and styling have had a part in this change, giving an impression of a one-piece dress.

Many of the blouses for fall and winter appear in basic wardrobe shades so that they blend with the skirt with which they are worn. Fabrics, likewise, are often dress materials to emphasize a dressmaker aspect. Wool jersey, for example, is a favorite material for blouses. It is available in many different shades as well as black and white. Satin is featured for blouses that are festive while even the cotton materials have a silken finish and may be obtained in the jewel tones as well as the usual white and pastels.

In an effort to provide blouses that offer a maximum of service and style, the designers consider versatile features. Many of the blouses have finished peplums so that they may be worn as overblouses. The vogue of the overblouse is so pronounced that it offers much in giving the effect of oneness of the entire costume. Turn-about themes are of interest, too, as the designers introduce types that may be reversed so that the front becomes the back. The reversed feature also applies to blouses that are made to be worn inside out. Fabrics that are double faced are attractive especially if one side of the material has metallic threads to give a glitter to the surface. Blouses that are lined throughout are similarly serviceable. Wool jersey and satin are among the popular combinations.

Wool jersey blouses that have satin binding illustrate the dressmaker emphasis that is given to simple themes. Embroidered decorations and jewel trimmings are plentiful, too, although the plainer blouse offers most as a basic type to be enhanced with jewelery or scarfs depending upon the degree of formality. A jersey overblouse, for example, may become very festive by the addition of handsome costume jewelry, a jeweled collar or a contrasting satin tie. The same blouse, worn with scarf, is appropriate for use with tailored skirts or even with slacks. Sweaters, also, are playing the role of blouses this season and are used much as the simple jersey types for many different occasions.

Regardless of their tailored qualities every blouse seems designed with the idea of providing the wearer with a costume. Shirtwaists of tailored cottons have belts and ties that co-ordinate them to skirts with which they are worn and create the effect of a shirt-dress. There is a swing to color, too, in cotton blouses that makes it possible for the wearer to choose a shade to exactly match a skirt. This is seen in the collection of Shin'n Shore blouses that also have "gone fancy" with new cut collar and sleeevs and the use of striking fabrics. The Lord Byron collar, spread wide and in deep points at the throat, and the strap collar with an extension tab in its stitched waistband are among the styles. Many of the tailored blouses have three-quarter length sleeves, rounded over the elbows and closing with a stitched button-band just below the elbows.

The overblouse with the decorative hipband is frankly a costume type but has a minimum of bulk at the peplum so that it may be tucked in if the wearer prefers. The decorative emphasis is seen, too, in the glamorous emphasis given to such practical fabrics as broadcloth and gingham. Jewel-colored chevron stripes appear on dark gray woven cotton. Thick and thin stripes are in vivid contrast to the fine crossbar of blue and red in a tattersall pattern. Dacron is combined with broadcloth, to give a silky finish to many of the blouse materials.

If a woman wants a mannish emphasis to her costume, she will find that the man-tailored skirts with an English "accent" are effective and fashionable. The Lady Hathaway models have all of the details of tailoring associated with the finest quality of men's shirts. Accessorized with leather belts, jeweled studs and worn with tweed skirts they create a casual co-ordination that is fashionable.

She Danced at His Wedding -o- Serial

Donna Meadows Loved Arthur Prentiss, and, as Story Opens, He Marries Another

By Vida Hurst

"I'M GOING AS A MATTER OF DISCIPLINE, AND BECAUSE OF HIS MOTHER."

CHAPTER ONE

ENID MARCH and Arthur Prentiss were married in church and Donna Meadows, who had torn up the engraved invitation requesting the honor of her presence, was there. It would have been easier to attend Arthur's funeral, but pride would not permit Donna to be absent from the wedding which should have been hers.

How many times had she pictured herself starry-eyed in white satin and lace with her dead mother's prayerbook clasped in one gloved hand, pacing slowly down that same aisle which Enid was now approaching?

Donna's head was high. The pale pink dress bought for the occasion was flattering. The wide brimmed hat shadowed her pain-filled eyes. Blue eyes but darker than Enid's. Donna's skin was darker too, due to the burning sun of the recent Arizona summer.

Arthur liked her that way. One afternoon after they had been swimming together he had kissed the palms of her smooth little hands and said . . .

Stop it, Donna. Forget the things he said when he was in love with you. Words which had proved false. Promises which were worthless yet seeing him, tall and grave and handsome waiting at the altar for another woman, caused such acute pain that her hands clenched into fists.

The organ swelled into the traditional chords, and Donna tried to steel herself for the ceremony. She would faint—she would scream—she would die when she heard him repeating his vow to love, honor and cherish this stranger who had swept into his heart like a wild wind, destroying every other emotion.

I wish I had stayed home. Should have known better than to try it. But you're here, Donna, and it's too late to leave. You'd run into the bride. I'd like nothing better than to run into her, tear off her veil, stamp on her train . . . Cry aloud, "He's mine. He belonged to me before he knew you existed."

That was the trouble. He knew me too well. I was practically a member of the family. His parents are almost as upset about this as I am. . . . His mother sitting several pews ahead beside her husband lifted a handkerchief to her eyes. She wouldn't have done that if he were marrying me.

THE spectators rose now and turned to see the bride who was unattended but serenely sure of herself, knowing every stitch, visible or not, was exactly what a bride should wear. (And why not? Enid had been fashion editor of a well-known magazine.) Watch it, Donna. Just because she is more beautiful than you are . . . But is she? To her horror Donna discovered she could not see. A dark cloud blotted out the vision of loveliness which was Enid. A psychological trick, because Donna's eyes refused to see anyone in the place which should have been hers.

Knees knocking together Donna managed to turn with the others to face the altar. Then came the words she had dreaded. Her heart cried out at the desecration . . . Oh, darling, what did I do? How can you do this to me?

There was no answer, only the low response of two voices. Then mercifully it was over. The organ swung into its triumphant strains and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Prentiss passed down the aisle. Staring straight ahead of her, Donna repeated hysterically, "Whom God hath joined let no man put asunder. I must be losing my mind." Because it was herself, she meant not Enid. How stupid can a girl be?

Arthur's parents were next. His mother wearing a new lilac colored dress, had tears in her eyes. His mother could weep for the loss of her boy but his jilted sweetheart must smile and pretend it didn't matter. Pretend that their relationship had been strictly business.

OH, yes? Anyone who believed that was as foolish as Donna herself had been to think their romance could survive two years of separation. But it had for her. Young as she was—only 21—when Arthur had left for his service with the Navy — Donna had not even looked at another man. She had taken a job which paid practically nothing with the best interior decorator in Phoenix so she would be ready to help Arthur with the building project which he had planned. The money he had inherited from his grandmother would be sufficient to finance the venture but, fool that she was, Donna planned to contribute her own little nest egg which her father had left her.

Arthur had refused it when he admitted he was going to marry Enid. He had given Donna a chance to resign by saying, "I suppose you won't want to go on with the project. In any case I shall return your money. A friend of mine from New York wants to be my partner."

Arthur had supplanted her in more ways than one, Donna thought bitterly, but his mother hoped that if Donna worked with him she might revive his love which hadn't really died.

"Be patient, darling," Mrs. Prentiss had pleaded. "After all they aren't married yet. Who knows? If you work together he may forget about her."

It hadn't turned out like that. Arthur had been delighted when Donna told him she intended to stay in his office but neither of them had expected Enid to follow him to Phoenix. Arthur had decided to postpone the wedding. Partly out of consideration for Donna, partly because he wanted to devote all his attention to the new venture. He had been as surprised as Donna when Enid wired the hour of her arrival.

"Lonely without you. Meet me at airport."

Arthur was as thrilled as a child over his first Christmas tree. It was then Donna realized she hadn't a chance. Arthur was fond of Donna. He liked working with her but Enid was his girl.

Without consulting his mother, Donna fled to Los Angeles and remained until the day before the wedding. She returned, determined to follow the course she had outlined for herself during two weeks of sleepless nights and tear-soaked pillows.

She would behave as if they had never been engaged. It should never be said that she was carrying a torch for Arthur. She would go to his wedding and the reception afterwards. She would greet him with serenity. She would be introduced to his wife. Not even his mother should know how deeply Donna had been hurt.

In time the performance would have become reality. Working in Arthur's office, seeing him as Enid's husband would kill any illusions which might develop, persuading Donna that he had made a mistake; that he still loved her, etc. Yet all her briefing had not prepared her for the violent anguish of seeing him walk down the aisle with his bride, oblivious to everyone else. He had not even seen Donna.

Blind with tears she followed the other guests to the door. She had come in a taxi but there was none in sight now. As she hesitated a man she had not seen before said, "If you're going to the reception may I give you a lift?"

Donna smiled, "Thank you very much," she said.

As they walked to his car she saw that it had a New York license. She knew then, before he told her, that this must be Peter Grant.

Peter Grant was the friend who was to be Arthur's partner in the building project. They had met during their service in the Navy and agreed that Peter should come to Phoenix after a month in New York. Grateful for the ride which spared her the humiliation of having to speak to other people who might know the situation, Donna sat beside Peter trying to regain her shattered poise.

Peter was silent too until they had left the church beyond them, then he said quietly, "Do you always cry at weddings?"

Donna heard herself saying, "Only when I've been jilted."

What would he think of her? Did she care? He was bound to hear about it eventually. Perhaps he knew already.

"You're Donna Meadows," he said, so Arthur had told him. "My name is Grant. Peter Grant. I'm going into business with Arthur."

She nodded but the tears continued to flow. "I'm sorry," she apologized.

"Don't mind me," he said. "But are you sure you want to go to the reception? I'll take you home if you'd rather."

His swift glance caught only the side of one cheek beneath the floppy brim of her hat.

"I'm going as a matter of discipline. And because of his mother."

"She is extremely fond of you. Arthur told me his parents preferred you to Enid."

"They know me better," Donna said but she felt less desperate. "They wouldn't think of trying to influence Arthur and I wouldn't want them to even if they could."

Donna drew a deep breath in the silence which followed, then he said, "Would it be any comfort to know that there are two of us? What I'm trying to say is I'm in the same position you are."

THE shock of it dried her tears. "You were engaged to Enid? She jilted you for Arthur?"

"That's right, although we didn't call it an engagement. It was more just an understanding. We'd gone together for several years before the war separated us as it did you and Arthur." He added morosely, "You'd have been married long ago under normal circumstances."

"It didn't affect my love for him," she insisted.

"That's because you didn't cruise around trying to find someone to take his place the way Enid did. I came back to find her surrounded by admirers and one of them was my best friend."

"I'm surprised you went ahead with your plans, to go into business together."

Peter Grant shrugged. "Why not? As a matter of fact I didn't know it until after most of our arrangements had been made. But even if I had I would have gone on with it. Why let a busted romance ruin my life? There are plenty of other girls who would make just as good wives or better."

Donna considered this strictly a masculine point of view but his confession had comforted her.

And now for the first time she really looked at him. He was shorter than Arthur and not as handsome but more virile looking. His eyes were so dark they appeared black. Enid must have been obsessed to turn down a man like this for one whose love was incapable of enduring a few months' separation.

"It wouldn't have happened," Arthur had admitted after Enid had followed him to Phoenix, "if we could have stayed together. You seem different to me."

HE had seemed different to her, too. But she loved him too much to admit it. Foolishly she had believed the situation would adjust itself. For a while it seemed that she was right. They were falling back into the old pattern then suddenly without warning Enid had arrived. Donna would never forget that day nor Arthur's answer to her question, "Why didn't you tell me?"

"I intended to but I couldn't. At first you were so happy to see me and my folks were so pleased thinking we were going to be married. Don't look like that, Donna, please. I honestly believed we were in love or I wouldn't have asked you to marry me."

"But how could you have asked someone else when we were still engaged?"

Arthur had flushed to the roots of his thick, light hair, "I'd never known anyone like Enid. I told her I was engaged to you but she said it didn't matter. We would be together while I was in New York and say goodby when it was time for me to leave. But by then it became so involved—the situation I mean—that neither of us wanted it to end.

I asked her to give me time to explain to you but after I came home I fell into the old routine again and all that had happened in New York, including Enid, seemed unreal. But she missed me so much she gave up her job and followed me here."

"More likely she suspected the truth and deliberately burned her bridges."

"That's a catty remark if ever I heard one," he sighed. "Proving that I was mistaken when I hoped that eventually you two girls could be friends."

"I'd as soon make friends with a cobra," she had cried, thereby proving he had been wise to choose Enid instead of her. Enid was too gallant to have spoken like that under any circumstances.

"We're almost there," Peter Grant said suddenly. Donna had forgotten he was there.

"I'm sorry," she apologized. "Please forgive me. I'm not always like this."

"Let's leave early," he suggested. "We don't have to stick around all evening just to prove there are no hard feelings."

Poor fellow. He was suffering in his masculine way as much as she was, which made the ordeal easier. With him beside her she could face the ignominy of being introduced to Mrs. Arthur Prentiss.

Wanted: Ambitious People Who Like to Draw

If you like to draw—here is an opportunity to find out if you could make a living in art. America's 12 Most Famous Artists are looking for the "artists of tomorrow." They want to send you their 8-page art talent test.

Thousands of men and women have taken this test to find out if they could be trained for the many well-paid job opportunities in the field of art. A surprising number of these people were found to have valuable, undeveloped art talent. Many have since obtained good jobs after spare-time training right in their own homes. This good fortune could be yours . . if we find you have talent.

The Famous Artists Talent Test was developed by America's 12 most successful professional artists. It will give you a frank appraisal of your natural ability to draw; your sense of design, composition, form, originality and picture judgment. It will reveal whether you are the one person in a hundred who could share in the rich rewards of the glamorous, uncrowded field of commercial art.

Thousands formerly paid $1 to take this test. But if you sincerely like to draw we will mail it to you FREE. When you complete and return the test it will be graded and criticized for you, free of charge, by a professional artist. Mail the coupon below at once. You are under no obligation of any kind.

Today's Patterns

12—20;30—42

Note the dashing cut of the collar, the new bloused back, front-pleat skirt—these are the details that spell fall. Sew now and save.

Pattern 4759: Misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20; 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42. Size 16 takes 5½ yards 39-inch.

4629 14½—24½

Especially for the shorter, fuller figure — this slimming step-in accented by a new and dramatic collar detail. Picture this in crepe, faille or cotton.

Pattern 4629: Half sizes, 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½, 22½, 24½. Size 16 takes four yards 39-inch fabric.

Unbelted Dresses

Unbelted dresses that give the long line so fashionable now are adding decorative accents. One of these dresses that buttons at the front from neckline to hemline has scalloped details at the closing and horizontal tucks from bodice to hemline. Another, similarly styled, has a rib-seamed effect for decoration.

Soft-Toed Shoes

The Italian influence in footwear is seen in the many soft-toed types appearing this season. Tapering toes are featured and grained leather that has a dull finish is popular. The footwear with flat heels shares attention with the bobbed-heel types in the casual footwear. Several different shades, such as camel, red and green are included in the collections on display in the stores.

Couple Produces Homemade Movie

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 10 (UP) —One Hollywood couple has come up with a "do-it-yourself" movie that is netting them a small fortune. After eight years of working in studios, Andrew and Virginia Stone figured how to make a movie at home all by themselves.

They produced, wrote, directed and edited the film and never went near a studio. They shot the picture in real houses and on real streets, and even cut the film on a billiard table in their basement playroom.

The result: "The Night Holds Terror," a tidy, suspense picture released by Columbia Pictures. Critics praised it as one of the "sleeper" films of the year. And Hollywoodites are open-mouthed at the success of the well-made picture for the astounding budget of $78,000.

Teach Child To Hit Back When Abused

By Angelo Patri

JOHN HENRY, aged four, has been taught not to bite, nor kick, even if another child does so. A little friend comes to visit him and he both kicks, and bites, and into the bargain pinches. His finger nails are long, strong and sharp and his pinches leave black and blue and red marks. John Henry, knowing he must retort in kind, runs to his mother for help. As the small offender is a guest she is at a loss to know what to do. The child's mother seems not to notice at all.

No child is called on to take another's abuse. Of course, kicking, biting and pinching are to be classed with the foul blow, so, even in self-defense, they are not allowed. But what is to stop any child so mistreated from striking out with his fists? A few well-placed punches from John Henry to the ill-mannered guest would soon teach him better behavior.

IF SMALL CHILDREN could be gentle, sweet, law abiding and peaceable, it would be just fine but children are not like that. They are likely to be aggressive, likely to make themselves felt by way of physical contacts that are not likely to promote loving kindness among them. We teach them to be patient, kind, loving, but those fine qualities thrive best when practiced by all parties concerned. If one bites, kicks, pinches and otherwise abuses the gentler one, the code does not work and then the abused one must take the matter into his hands—his fists—and check the aggressor.

If he does not, if he stands and takes it, or runs off crying for help, he is creating a bully who is likely to torment him forever afterward, or until he is stopped. I teach boys to be friendly and helpful but I also teach them that taking abuse without defending themselves is bad for their health, for their character, for their happiness.

FORCE IS NOT LOVELY when applied in human relationships. We dislike seeing children who are so untouched by life's ugliness discovering it and its potentialities. Struggle, pain, sorrow follow its train but life is often a struggle against pain and sorrow, and submission to abuse, to the foul blows of ignorance, tyranny and wickedness, will not help any. We have to teach John Henry what he needs to know and so prepare him for the difficulties ahead. Patience under stress, kindness always, but acceptance of the foul blow, no. That needs to be met with a well-aimed fist.

A bad habit in a child should be replaced with a good one. How to do this is explained by Dr. Patri in his leaflet P-10, "Changing Habits." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, in care of the Post-Dispatch, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Fresh Corn Fritters

Ingredients: Two cups fresh uncooked corn pulp, two eggs (separated), one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth cup butter or margarine.

Method: To prepare corn, cut kernels down through the middle of each row with a sharp knife; with dull side of knife, scrape downward to extract pulp. Beat egg yolk until thick and lemon-colored; mix in corn pulp, salt, sugar, flour and baking powder thoroughly. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold into corn mixture. Use a heaping tablespoon of the corn mixture for each fritter and brown on both sides in hot butter; start with a tablespoon of butter in skillet or on griddle and add more as needed. Makes about 24 small fritters.

Double-Good Corn Muffins

Ingredients: One egg, one can (7 ounces) vacuum-packed whole kernel corn, milk, one package (12 ounces) corn muffin mix.

Method: Beat egg enough to combine yolk and white. Drain liquid from corn; add enough milk to corn liquid to make one cup; add to egg. Stir in corn muffin mix just until dry ingredients are moistened; do not try to stir out lumps. Stir in drained corn lightly. Bake in muffin pans according to corn-muffin package directions.

Apple Pie Still a Top Favorite

By Edith M. Barber

IT seems a little early in the season to be talking about apples. We usually consider these for late fall and winter. The apple growers, however, are interested in promoting the crop as it matures.

The International Apple Association convened recently in Detroit for a discussion of problems. Of course, someone on the program advised "An apple a day to keep the doctor away." The wives co-operated and presented samples of their favorite recipes.

Although 25 different dishes, with apples as a base, were served at the luncheon, old-fashioned apple pie remains the leader. In my opinion, and perhaps in yours, apple pie should be served hot out of the oven, or it can be reheated. A report from Florida mentions that at one good restaurant a small pitcher of hot apple juice combined with butter is offered with every serving.

This would also be delicious with hot apple dumplings. Most of us like cream or hard sauce with our dumplings. The apples may be flavored with nutmeg or cinnamon or a blend of the two spices. A small amount of grated orange rind also adds flavor.

Early apples are particularly good for sauce. In the short time the transparent apples are on the market I cannot resist them for this purpose. No matter what kind of apples I use I like to cook them with the skins on, in fact, I remove only the blossom end. After slicing I use just a small amount of water. Sugar is added after the apples have been pressed through the sieve.

APPLE DUMPLINGS: Two cups sugar, two cups water, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth cup butter, six apples, two cups all-purpose flour, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, three-fourth cup shortening, one-half cup milk.

Make syrup of sugar, water, cinnamon and nutmeg; add butter. Pare, core and quarter apples. Sift flour, salt and baking powder and cut into shortening. Add milk all at once and stir until moistened; roll one-fourth-inch thick; cut into six five-inch squares. Place one apple on each square. Sprinkle generously with additional sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg; dot with butter and fold corners to center, pinching edges together. Place one inch apart in buttered baking dish; pour syrup over and bake at 375 degrees about 35 minutes. Serve hot with cream. Yield: six dumplings.

Carl Lans To Direct Korea Task

Carl G. Lans, California architect and builder, has been appointed technical director of the building industry's "Homes for Korea"— a private enterprise "Point Four" program of technical assistance to South Korea—General James A. Van Fleet, U.S.A., (Ret.), honorary chairman of the Homes for Korea Committee, reports.

Earl W. Smith, El Cerrito, Calif., president of the National Association of Home Builders, and William Zeckendorf, New York City, president of Webb & Knapp, Inc., are co-chairmen of the committee which is under the auspices of the American-Korean Foundation.

The "Homes for Korea" program envisages the building of up to 1000 "pilot" homes in South Korea under the direction of Lans, who plans to fly to Seoul around Sept. 7, to start construction work.

Koreans to Be Taught.

"The homes will be built by Koreans and, to the fullest extent possible, with materials indigenous to South Korea," General Van Fleet said. "The objective of building these homes is to develop a home building industry for South Korea. This is a private enterprise technical assistance program which can make a real contribution to the welfare of the Korean people and to the South Korean economy.

"Under the direction and instruction of Lans, Koreans will be taught practical methods and techniques in home building by actually building houses. They also will be taught the operation of simple construction machinery and how to make the best of their own skills and resources.

"We are highly gratified to have an architect and builder of Carl Lans stature undertake the responsibilities of technical director for this important program. He has had wide experience in all phases of the home building industry and is prepared to spend as much time in South Korea as is necessary to insure the success of this private enterprise 'Point Four' program."

Proceeds to Revolve.

The homes built under Lans's direction will be turned over to a Korean housing authority for sale. The proceeds will be placed in a revolving fund for the financing of additional homes. The South Korean housing shortage is estimated at 1,000,000 units.

Lans, a member of the American Institute of Architects, studied engineering and architecture at City College of New York and Columbia University. After spending several years in private industry in New York and Miami, Fla., he joined the Department of Agriculture in 1938 as chief engineer inspector and directed the construction work for that department in 10 western states.

In 1938 he transferred to the Federal Housing Administration where he served as technical officer for 10 years. In 1948 he was appointed technical director of the National Association of Home Builders, a position which he resigned in 1952 to join the Earl W. Smith organization in El Cerrito, Calif., as technical advisor. During most of this period he has conducted a practice of architecture both as an individual and in partnership.

General Van Fleet's announcement was issued through the Homes for Korea Committee, 270 Park avenue, New York 17, New York, and the National Association of Home Builders, National Housing Center, 1625 L. street, N.W., Washington, D.C. N.A.H.B. is participating in the drive to raise $1,500,000 to finance the Homes for Korea program.

Two Commercial Properties Are Sold

Two adjoining commercial properties in the 7700 block of Carondelet have been sold, Edward L. Bakewell reports.

Property at 7726 Carondelet avenue was sold for Mr. and Mrs. John Ehrmann to Star Building, Inc., with Edward L. Bakewell representing the seller and Victor Sandrock representing the purchaser.

Property at 7722 Carondelet avenue was sold for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fitzmaurice. Title was taken in the name of Nell Bates. Bakewell represented the seller and Charles Stein Real Estate Co. the purchaser.

Architect's Perspective of Huge New Hardware Store for Big Bend and Kirkwood Road

This sketch from Architects Russell, Mullgardt, Schwarz, Van Hoefen pictures new store for Central Hardware for which foundation work is now going in on ground bought from the Society of Mary at southwest corner of Kirkwood road (Lindbergh boulevard) and Big Bend boulevard, at the edge of Kirkwood. They say it will be one of the largest hardware stores in the United States. Ground was acquired through the agency of Gladys Manion, Inc., and the Harry F. Fine Realty Co. Westlake has the general contract.

Big Bend, Lindbergh Job Begun

Grading has been completed and work on construction of the foundation has begun for a new store for Central Hardware, the first to be established in the southwestern part of Greater St. Louis, at the southwest corner of Big Bend boulevard and Lindbergh boulevard, at the edge of Kirkwood.

This will be the largest Central Hardware store of five, the others being located downtown, in south and north St. Louis, and in Wellston.

The new building will approximately 430 feet long and 125 feet wide, on a lot 300 by 700, or almost five acres. The long front will face Big Bend, and the store will be surrounded by a parking lot capable of holding 400 cars. There will be entrances both from Lindbergh and Big Bend to the lot.

It's Really Big.

Construction will be a skeleton steel framework with exterior walls of brick and alternating redwood and glass panels. The greater part of the building will have an eight and one-half foot roof overhang, and the main entrance will include eight automatic doors to provide easy pedestrain circulation and eliminate necessity of pushing doors open or closed.

A combination of underfloor and ceiling duct system will air condition the main sales area, which will cover the greater part of the 51,500 square feet to go under roof.

In addition, thre will be a basement to house the heating and air-conditioning equipment, and a mezzanine floor for offices, employes' lunch room and auditorium. Executives of Central Hardware know of no other hardwore store of this size in the United States.

The site is to be landscaped with shrubs and trees, and building and parking area will be flood-lighted.

Ready Next Spring.

Central Hardware Company was organized near the present site of the store that's on Sixth street north of Delmar during the St. Louis Worlds Fair, and celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1954. It is one of the largest hardware retail operations in the United States.

Ground for the new store was purchased from the Society of Mary, Province of St. Louis. Gladys Manion Inc. and Harry M. Fine Realty Company were agents in the real estate transactions, and Russell, Mullgardt, Schwarz, Van Hoefen are the architects. Westlake Construction Company is general contractor. Structural engineers are Milligan and Miklas, and mechanical engineers are Smith-Hanlon-Zurheide-Levy. Legal details were handled by Susman, Mayer & Willer. The store is expected to open for business next February.

Disaster Financing Talked Up

By William Kerwin

WASHINGTON, D.C. (INS)—The northeastern flood emergency has touched off twin efforts by government and industry to develop a program to ease financial distress when homes and businesses are destroyed by disaster.

Housing Administrator Albert M. Cole is leading a government effort to provide disaster insurance to help home owners recover their losses on property destroyed or damaged by floods.

And the National Association of Home Builders is conducting a searching review of the entire problem to develop "a general pattern of action" for use in future disasters. NAHB plans to pinpoint the benefits and shortcomings of federal and state disaster aid.

At this stage, Cole's study is limited strictly to the problem of providing low-cost insurance to cover flood damage to homes. Such insurance is not now available to the nation's home owners.

Possibility Minimized.

Also related to Cole's study is the problem of providing insurance for private atomic power plants to cover possible losses against home owners if a nuclear plant should go haywire and run out of control.

The Atomic Energy Commission has minimized the possibility of major explosion from nuclear power plants but the problem of providing adequate insurance still remains to be solved.

Officials say that Cole hopes to complete his review of flood insurance in time to make recommendations to Congress next January, although the matter has been considered previously with no action taken, officials believe congress will pass some legislation quickly in the next session.

NAHB leaders plan to discuss the flood problem in detail at the Association's board of directors meeting next month when hundreds of builders are expected to attend the opening of NAHB's new National Housing Center.

Need Rate Book.

Officials, who attended an emergency NAHB conference with government and Red Cross representatives on the flood damage, said they felt there was a great need for formulation of a disaster aid plan that could be put into effect in future emergencies.

Harvey Mott of the Federal Civil Defense Administration said: "major result of this particular disaster is the determination on the part of everyone connected with it to get a a standard book of rules of operations so that everyone concerned can be brought into it at once.

"The government needs a guide to use in the future so that they can function immediately."

Red Cross officials reported that the floods, which affected 35,000 families, had destroyed 1229 homes and badly damaged 4890 other dwellings. Some 15,529 homes sustained minor damage.

The NAHB meetling pointed up the fact that those families whose homes were washed away still were liable for the mortgages on the dwellings — whether they were insured by the government or not—unless the Red Cross provides financial relief.

Time to Plant Bulbs for Spring Blooming

Hyacinths are perfect flowers for glamorizing a rock garden. Here white hyacinths combine with leucojum, triandrus albus and primrose. Hyacinth bulbs for fall planting come from Holland in a variety of colors, including pink, blue, yellow and white.

Cable Firm's Lease Signed; Work Begins

Lease negotiations have been concluded between the Fyler Realty Corporation and the General Cable Corporation for a tract of ground at 4985 Fyler avenue and work has been started on erection of a new office and warehouse for the cable company on the site, Harvey, Klein & Co., Inc., reports.

George Winkler and Frank L. Thompson of Clayton have designed the new building and the Don C. Musick Construction Co. has been awarded the general contract.

The building is to have 1300 square feet of air-conditioned office space, about 5300 square feet of warehouse area, with truck docks, and with a railcar loading dock with a new spur track

Fyler Realty is a subsidiary of the Concrete Transport Mixer Co. and T. H. Fleming is president of both firms.

The lease, to run for 10 years, with options to renew, was negotiated by Harvey, Klein & Co., Inc., with Joseph S. Pitts, General Cable's Midwest district manager (St. Louis headquarters) acting for his company. General Cable now has an office in the Ambassador building.

When You Plant Bulbs This Fall Visualize The Bloom Next Spring

Commonest Mistake in Setting Bulbs Is to Line Them Up in Long Straight Rows Like Soldiers; Use Groups, Instead.

When you plant spring-flowering bulbs this fall, try to visualize in advance the way they will look when in bloom next spring. A dozen bulbs well placed often give a much more striking and attractive garden picture than half a hundred that are just put in where you can find space, without regard for the background or the flower companions they will have when in bloom.

The easiest way to do this is to create little pictures in your mind's eye, starting with shrubs, early-flowering perennials, a clump of trees or perhaps a big rock, which you already have. Often a hedge or a wall will make an excellent background for some of the earlier flowering bulbs, and at the same time afford effective protection from cold winds.

Take a Walk First.

A walk about your garden, making a search for such spots before you begin planting, will reveal many opportunities for such effective use of bulbs, and lift your garden, both for yourself and for visitors, out of the ordinary.

In creating garden pictures with bulbs it is important to keep in mind, scale. In front of a low stone wall, for instance, single early tulips (or some of the species and species hybrids) go very nicely; but robust growing Darwins and Breeders, with their flowers above the wall, would be wholly out of place. The low-growing species tulips, such as the Kaufmannianas, are ideal for the rock garden or a rockery.

Daffodils, so often seen in overcrowded, long, straight rows, are ideal for naturalizing in open woodlands. For grouping around a stand of white birches, or an individual tree, medium-height varieties such as most of the short-cups, are in better taste than the giant trumpets.

No Straight Rows.

Hyacinths, of all the spring-flowering bulbs, are—with the possible exception of white daffodils—most charming for poolside plantings. Combined with primulas and forget-me-nots (myosotis), which will send long sprays trailing down to the water's edge, they make a picture to stop any camera bug. Where there's no pool, a small group of hyacinths along the walk or against a rock will sup-

A.&P. Leases Store in New Shops Center

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. has pre-leased 12,750 square feet of space for a new food market in the Charles F. Vatterott Florissant Valley Shopping Center, a neighborhood development, on Highway 66 Bypass at Lafayette avenue, a spokesman for Vatterott reports.

Construction of the property, which will have a total of 24,630 square feet of floor area, is expected to get under way within two weeks.

Parking area in front and along side the building will provide for handling 225 cars at a time.

In addition to the food market, the property will provide for a variety store, a bakery, a dry cleaner's shop and laundry pickup, drug store, barber shop, beauty shop and a gasoline service station.

Buildings are to be of contemporary design, with buff brick facing on both Highway 66 Bypass and Lafayette avenue. Winkler and Thompson are the architects and Vatterott's own crews will do the building.

Lafayette is an old Florissant street which has been extended through the Vatterott home developments in the area to Highway 66 Bypass. This point is about half way between West Florissant road on the east and Graham road on the west.

The center has been designed primarily for a daily neighborhood service operations, the promoter said.

FHA or VA Mortgages On Homes Can Be Sold Like Top Grade Bonds

Federal National Mortgage Association Explains What Secondary Mortgage Paper Market Can Mean to Home Owner.

If there is an insured Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed Veterans Administration mortgage on your home the chances are the lien is as saleable as a Government or other high grade bond, declares the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie May).

The average home-owner may ask what advantage this may have for him; isn't his mortgage already set, and anyway what difference does it make if it is saleable? He realizes he is obligated to make his payments but he doesn't own the mortgage. So what?

But there is ano ther side to the mortgage problem, FNMA points out. It concerns the bank or lending institution that owns the mortgage. The free movement or the salability of the mortgage is so important to the owner of the mortgage and to segments of the economy of the nation that the Government assists in maintaining a market program where FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed mortgages of Aug. 2, 1954, or later, may be bought and sold.

The Government didn't create this mortgage market plan. The principle has been in existence and used by private mortgage concerns and home lending institutions for a long time.

Has Over Billion.

The need for a national mortgage market with wider organization became more pressing with increased home building across the nation.

To supplement the activities of private investors, banks, savings and loan associations and others, there was established in the Federal Government a secondary market facility for home mortgage financing, the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) often referred to unofficially as Fannie May.

The association present has access to funds for secondary market operations in excess of a billion dollars. It aims to provide a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, and in so doing, improve the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

The FNMA does not originate mortgages. However, once the mortgages are made, the association can acquire them. As the acquisition or resale is at least once removed from the originator and is a secondary process, any deal then would have taken place in the secondary market.

Why It Is Needed.

Why do lending institutions find it necessary at times to dispose of some of their home mortgages The answer is this. Funds for mortgage investment purposes have been depleted or are not available and the investing concern cannot take more of this kind of business. It has resources. It may reduce its mortgage portfolio through sale of some of its holdings, or it may curtail its home mortgage activities until more funds are available through deposits or mortgage payments. Even though temporary, the chain reaction may be serious to the local economy with a widening reaction if the situation became general.

The builder finds it more difficult to obtain financing for his interim operations and he then would erect fewer homes. On down the line the building supplier and others would be affected relatively and unem-

Payments On Loans Excellent

CHICAGO—Despite the concern in some quarters concerning rising consumer, installment and mortgage debt, payments by borrowers on mortgages are excellent, according to results shown in the national mortgage delinquency survey of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America covering the first six months of this year.

The sampling survey includes more than 2,000,000 loans held by all types of lenders nationwide and includes VA, FHA and conventional-type mortgages.

The G.I. borrower is continuing to set a splendid record of keeping his mortgage payments current, the survey showed. His delinquency ratio for loans three months or more over-due amounted to only .18 of 1 per cent. For two-months' delinquencies, the ratio is .33 of 1 per cent and for one month, 1.86 per cent.

Federal Housing Administration insured loan delinquencies run about the same, .12 of 1 per cent for three months, .25 for two months and 1.57 per cent for one month. Conventional-type loans, those without the Veterans Administration guarantee or FHA insurance, follow the same favorable pattern. Loans three months or more over-due amount to only .14 of 1 per cent, .26 for two months and 1.10 per cent for one month.

On a national average, the survey covering 2,092,454 loans shows 42,260 delinquencies and a deliquency percentage of 2.01 per cent. This compares with 1,781,955 loans a year ago with 40,535 delinquencies and a percentage of 2.27 per cent.

"Results of the survey for the first six months appears to indicate conclusively that the mortgage financing done in recent years has been on a sound basis," Wallace Moir, Association president said. "Covering, as it does, more than 2,000,000 loans, it is fully representative of the portfolios of the nation's lenders. One month delinquencies are due to many causes, but when a loan becomes three-months delinquent it is time for concern. The exceptionally low delinquencies for loans in this category attest to the stability of the present mortgage structure.

Truman To Get Historic Gavel Of Realty Men

Former President Harry S. Truman will address a Sept. 23 Constitution Day luncheon sponsored by the Real Estate Board of Kansas City, Mo., Herbert B. Patt, board president, reports.

Truman will talk on "The President's Responsibilities Under the Constitution." The former chief executive's speech comes a few days following the anniversary of the Constitution (Sept. 17).

Featured at the function will be the presentation to Truman of an historic gavel of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The gavel symbolizes some of America's honored tradition, being constructed of wood from George Washington's home at Mount Vernon and Thomas Jefferson's home at Monticello. The steel comes from the U.S.S. Missouri, the battleship on which the Japanese signed surrender papers ending World War II.

The N.A.R.E.B. gavel has been presented to many of its member boards throughout the country during Constitution Day ceremonies in its continuing campaign to focus attention on the meaning and importance of this famed document.

The function will be in the Muehlebach hotel.

Former St. Louisans Buy in Fort Lauderdale

Former St. Louisans, Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bohn have purchased this three-bedroom, two-bath, waterfront home at 2543 Gulfstream Lane, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and are now residing there. The purchase was made through the Fort Lauderdale agency of Jack Higginbotham, former vice-president of the Cyrus Crane Willmore organization here.

New Home of County Police Superintendent

This brick ranch house at No. 5 Carter Court in Warson View subdivision is the new home of St. Louis County Police Superintendent and Mrs. Albert E. DuBois. The home has three bedrooms, two baths, an all-electric kitchen, heated den, full basement, gas heat. It is on a half-acre lot. The B. F. Voss Realty Co. built and sold the property.

Clayton Corners Traded

In a three-cornered transaction, Harold W. and Melvin Dubinsky traded the southwest corner of Lyle and Forsyth, in Clayton, fronting 100 feet on Forsyth by a depth of 100 feet on Lyle, for the northeast corner of Brentwood and Forsyth, fronting 95 feet on Forsyth by a depth of 112 feet on Brentwood Boulevard owned by Oliver R. Burkart and Mabel C. Burkart.

Subsequently, the Dubinsky interests sold the Brentwood and Forsyth corner to Gutman's Inc.

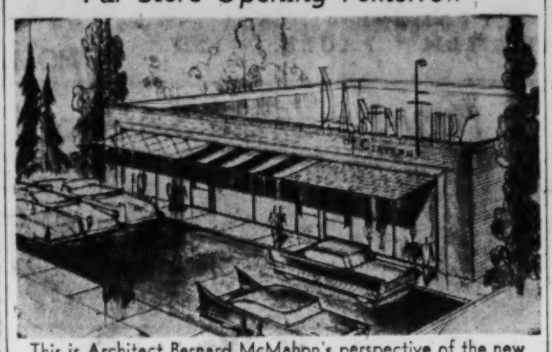

The Burkart's, who acquired the Lyle and Forsyth, own the property immediately West fronting on Forsyth, occupied by Garland's of Clayton. This corner lies in the heart of the new development between Famous-Barr and Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney. A number of nationally-known tenants are already located in this area, or are in the process of becoming established here.

The Gutman interests, who acquired the Brentwood and Forsyth corner, have occupied this location for a number of years as a parking lot in conjunction with their department store, which is at the east corner of the same Forsyth block. The Gutman's purpose in the acquisition is in keeping with their announced expansion program.

The Burkart interests were represented by Edward L. Bakewell, and the Dubinsky interests were represented by Jack Dubinsky & Sons, Realtors. The legal aspects for the Burkarts were concluded by Charles D. Long, of Rassieur, Long & Yawitz; and the Gutman interests were represented by Alfred H. Kerth.

Fur Store Opening Tomorrow

This is Architect Bernard McMahon's perspective of the new Raben's Fur Shop, and others in a building being completed by Builder Ben Pocost on Brentwood boulevard across from the new Stix Westroads Shopping Center in Richmond Heights. The fur store, Raben Furs of Clayton, is scheduled to open formally in the new location tomorrow. The store has vault space at ground level for 4500 garments, in addition to sales display area and fitting rooms. A private parking lot will accommodate 14 cars.

St. Joseph's Frees Space In Fontbonne

Many departments of Fontbonne College will occupy enlarged quarters when the fall session opens a week from tomorrow because the college will have full use of all buildings on the campus for the first time.

St. Joseph's Academy, with about 400 nonresident students formerly in the college at Wydown and Big Bend boulevards, has been moved to new buildings at Lindbergh and Litzsinger roads, Frontenac.

A new research laboratory for the chemistry department, an enlarged science library and a new curriculum library for the education department will be among the changes and expanded services at Fontbonne.

New Nursery School.

The third floor of the Fine Arts buildings, on the east side of the campus, has been remodeled for resident students. This will be in addition to Medaille Hall, four-floor resident hall on the south end of the campus, which houses 100 students.

A nursery school for boys and girls 3, 4 and 5 years of age, will be opened in the first floor of Ryan Hall (center building of horseshoe drive) in connection with a new course in early childhood education.

A model office will be a feature of the enlarged business department, which will occupy quarters on the second floor of the Science building (west building).

Buildings Renovated.

The gymnasium and swimming pool, which occupy one building, and the cafeteria, another separate building, have been completely renovated.

The art department will add two new studios—one for ceramics and crafts and another for oil painting.

There will be separate offices for the student council, alumnae and mothers' club and three lounges for nonresident students.

There also will be a larger press room for student publications.

Gift Store Opened

A Mark Bradley Gift store is the newest unit to be opened in the huge new Northland shopping center at West Florissant avenue at Lucas & Hunt road, Jennings.

The store was designed by the center's architects, Russell, Mulgardt, Schwarz, Van Hoefen, and faces the lower level parking lot of the 62-acre development. The front is 36 feet, all glass, the depth 108 feet, with a 70-foot stock room to the rear.

Fixtures are beige on black marbelized bases. One wall has 100 linear feet of greeting card show racks. A separate corner is devised to display artifical flowers. An 80-foot canopy along another wall displays lamps and lamp shades.

There's a gift wrapping booth at the rear.

Allan Harris is store manager.

Buys Store Property

Grace Olive Emerick, who recently took over the business of Kinnison's Market at 5501 Helen avenue, Jennings, has now purchased the property, also, from James J. Kinnison, who formerly operated the market, John H. Armbruster & Co., agents in the transaction, report. The property has living quarters as well as the store.

NOT PERMANENT

So-called permanent antifreezes aren't permanent at all, warns L. M. van Noppen, who supervises operations for one of the nation's biggest fleet of cars for Universal C.I.T. Credit Corporation. He says that if the anti-freeze isn't drained out of the car radiator every spring it can cause serious engine damage through rust.

Roof Deck Makers Organize Institute

Thirteen major producers of steel roof deck have organized the Metal Roof Deck Technical Institute and established an office at 53 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago. John T. W. Babcock has been named permanent secretary, G. M. Carhardt, (of the Truscon Steel Division of the Republic Steel Corporation) who's president of the institute, reports.

The institute has been organized to formulate technical recommendations for the improvement of roof deck construction.

E. A. Miller, manager of the Building Panel Division of the Detroit Steel Products Company, had been serving as part-time secretary of a loosely organized institute, on a voluntary basis, for seven years. Activities increased, however, to the point where it became imperative, Babcock said, to make the organization a permanent thing with an established headquarters.

Babcock, a nationally known fire protection consulting engineer, also acts as fire insurance engineering consultant to the institute.

Realty Firm Moves

The Westbrook Realty Co. has moved its office from its old location to new and larger quarters at 6212 West Florissant avenue. The firm, which does a general brokerage business, has increased its staff to meet demands of business.

Sketch Showing Bayless School Additions

Work is to get underway immediately on $223,975 of additions to Bayless District elementary school at Weber road and Hildesheim avenue in South St. Louis county, pictured here by Architect Kenneth E. Wischmeyer as it will look with additions completed. The Albers Construction Co. has the general contract.

Contracts On School Work Let

Contracts have been awarded by the Board of Education of the Bayless School District in St. Louis County in the amount of $223,975 to the Albers Construction Co. for the construction of a new addition to the present elementary school located on Weber road and Hildesheim avenue in South St. Louis county. Work will begin immediately to insure occupancy of the structure by September, 1955.

The construction comprises two additions to the existing elementary school and includes 10 new class rooms, cafeteria, kitchen addition, teacher's room, store rooms and toilet facilities. With the completion of this work, the Bayless Elementary School will have a total of 24 class rooms, together with a multi-purpose room and stage, and will complete this facility with no further additions contemplated.

Construction will consist of light steel frame with exterior walls of brick to match the present brickwork, steel joist roof with poured deck insulated and with built up roofing, plastered walls, acoustical ceilings, glazed tile wainscots, asphalt tile floors, aluminum windows and steel lockers.

Diffusing glass will be used in the upper section of the double hung windows with shades for natural light control.

Class rooms on the east will have fixed aluminum sash with aluminum hopper vents and venetian blinds.

Artificial lighting will be fluorescent with exterior flood lighting; heating will be unit ventilators from the present heating plant and plumbing will be of the latest design.

Included in the contract price is black top paving for the play area, sidewalks, and kitchen equipment.

Members of the board of education are Robert F. Wolz, president; Theodore J. Brecht, Elmer W. Groth, Herman F. Trofke, Mrs. Virginia Meier, Vearl E. Morris. Hugo E. Beck is superintendent of the Bayless School District.

Kenneth E. Wischmeyer is the architect, Leslie J. Bergmeier structural engineer and Harry F. Wilson, mechanical engineer.

TIMERS FOR BURNERS.

Gas range users now can have range timers for top burners; sets for a minute or an hour and "watches the pot" for the housewife.

Nordell Court Formal Opening

Formal opening has been planned for today of a new subdivision called Nordell Court. The tract is about a block and a half north of the town of Black Jack on Old Halls Ferry road, about 10 minutes from the Riverview-Halls Ferry Circle at the city limits.

The development is a real estate, rather than a builder's, promotion, one of few such presentations being made these days. Developers bought some 18 acres, included most of it in the subdivision of large "country-life" home sites.

The main street in the tract has been called Thadene Lane and the drive around a cul-de-sac at the deepest point in the development (a bluff that overlooks a vast lower area beyond) has been named Nordell Court, from which the subdivision gets its name. Some of the lots will front on Old Halls Ferry road.

General grading has been completed, the concrete streets made and storm water sewers installed.

Building line and construction restrictions have been set up, to insure some uniformity of value in finished properties. First floor minimums are to be 1100 square feet, heights not more than one and one-half stories.

The development is a joint venture of Hacker & Graupner and the Korte Realty & Loan Co., who say they were led to do the job by the extraordinary amount of building going on in the north part of the county, including the area around Black Jack, where fire protection recently was established.

Fannie May Explained

ployment would probably ensue.

To reduce or increase its mortgage portfolio a lending institution, for long range operations, needs an open mortgage market where it can buy or sell, depending on its requirements.

Dealing Circumscribed.

Investment capital for home mortgage financing has not been available in sufficient amounts at various times in various sections and localities of the nation, over the years. One of the objectives of the FNMA is to improve the distribution of home mortgage finance capital. It seeks to do this by buying home mortgages secured by the Government (VA or FHA) in areas where assistance is needed. On the other hand it will sell these same mortgages in areas where mortgage funds are in adequate supply.

FNMA does not deal in any home mortgages unless they are FHA guaranteed or VA insured.

"The average home-owner is not always aware that the lien on his home has been transferred or sold," FAMA declares. "It makes small difference to him. In most cases he continues his mortgage payments in the agreed amount to the same concern as originally. The collecting institution receives a nominal fee for this service from the owner of the mortgage."

The FNMA is not a new organization. It began in 1938, and was rechartered August 1954 with a broader scope of activities to better meet changed conditions. Among the purposes of rechartering was to enable the Secondary Market Operations of the Association to be financed by private capital to "the maximum extent feasible" and to provide a method for the eventual ownership by the shareholders of common stock.

Funds Re-employed.

Participants of the Secondary Market Operations subscribe to common stock equal to 3 per cent of the dollar value of the mortgage purchased by FNMA. These proceeds, plus general surplus, are providing capital for the replacement of initial funds obtained from the Secretary. When the obligations have been satisfied, recommendations for the transfer to private ownership are in order.

The extent of FNMA's operations in the past can be gauged from the volumes of its operations. Since its 1938 start, it has purchased approximately $4,900,000,000 of mortgages. More than 690,000 family homes have been provided through this assistance.

In Missouri the total purchases outstanding as of June 30, 1955, amounted to $32, 830,000. This does not include mortgages that already have been liquidated.

During the period of its existence to the above date FNMA has not only paid its own way but has made substantial profits, totaling approximately $188,000,000.

Besides the Secondary Market Operations, FNMA has two other main programs, namely, Special Assistance, and Managment and Liquidating. Each of the three is operated like a separate business as far as functions and accountability are concerned, but all are under the same directors and officers.

Special Assistance, as its name implies, covers assistance in special housing programs. Under it comes disaster housing, such as follows hurricanes, floods, earthquakes and fires. Also special assistance for housing for personnel of the armed services under certain conditions, co-operative housing, and urban renewal housing.

Not to be overlooked, says FNMA, is the authority of the Association under the Special Assistance Program to provide mortgage assistance to retard or stop a decline in mortgage lending and home building activities "which threaten materially the stability of a high level national economy." The exercise of this authority can contribute toward stabilization of the housing market.

The Management and Liquidating Program has as its principal objective the management and liquidation of the mortgage portfolio it acquired from its predecessor, the former FNMA. The assets amounting to about $2,500,000,000 and aggregating somewhat more than 350,000 mortgages as of June 30 are being liquidated as rapidly as possible in an orderly manner. In the last 10 months, sales from this portfolio have been about $200,000,000, the proceeds applying to the account of the United States Treasury. These mortgages are well seasoned and are attractive investments for immediate delivery to mortgage investors.

Convention Delegation Grows---Many on Program

The delegation of realtors and their wives represent metropolitan St. Louis at the annual national real estate convention in New York City the week of Nov. 6, continues to grow, Clarence C. Lang, executive secretary of the St. Louis Real Estate Board, reports.

Several weeks ago, the delegation was reported to number 144. Now the total is 165, with the newcomers including:

Mr. and Mrs. C. Virgil Manker, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Ruth Jr., Virgil Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Brownsher, Mrs. Anne T. Srenco, Mrs. William W. Dolan, Mr. and Mrs. August C. Beckemeier, Miss Edythe A. Kirchner, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Lederer, Mr. and Mrs. Ben J. Ruhl, R. C. Obermann, and Lester H. Kuhs.

Program Participants.

Several St. Louisans are active in the affairs of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and will have some part in the New York convention program.

Mrs. Lorraine M. Kuhs of the Edw. L. Kuhs Realty Co., is president of the Women's Council of N.A.R.E.B., and will preside over its meeting.

M. J. Slonim, of the Appraisal Institute, will deliver one of the keynote addresses at the opening session of the annual Real Estate Education Conference at Columbia University. He is a member of the executive council of the National Association's Educational Committee, in which capacity he will be in attendance at the conference in addition to representing Washington University's department of land economics and real estate, which he heads.

Daniel F. Sheehan, past president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, and chairman of the National Association's Membership Committee, will actively participate in the sessions of those two groups, as well as of the National Association's board of directors of which he is also a member.

Others Also Active.

Clarence M. Turley, past president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers; member of the National Association's executive committee and board of directors, and governor of the Society of Real Estate Counsellors, will be in attendance at the meetings of these groups.

Others active are:

Charles A. Kober Jr., a member of the governing council of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

Thomas H. Mize, member of the Admissions Executive Committee of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

Harold C. Simon, governor and regional vice president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

Charles E. Richardson, regional vice president of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

R. C. Obermann, director, and Frederic B. Martin, past president, of the Society of Industrial Realtors.

Morris F. Slupsky, secretary of the States Council.

SAME DURABILITY

More and more persons are installing steel cabinets in their kitchens simply because they want their storage units to have the same durability and permanence with which they have become familiar in their refrigerators, ranges, laundry equipment, and other appliances.

Briarcliff Residence With Southern Accent

This is Architect Adolph H. Felder's rendering of the new home he designed and which has been built for Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weissman at No. 62 Briarcliff, Ladue.

Montclair's Dining Room Is Remodeled

Extensive remodeling of the dining room, kitchen and cocktail lounge of The Montclair, 18 South Kingshighway, preparatory to the opening of its new restaurant this week, and the construction of a customers' free parking area on one of the apartment's adjoining terraces, is reported by Joseph A. Campagna for The Montclair.

The remodeling, completed at a cost of more than $100,000, according to Campagna, is based on a western motif. Called "The Frontier Room," the new establishment features two brick and copper barbecue grills for charcoal broiling steaks in the main dining room, a chuck wagon for serving hors d'oeuvres in the cocktail lounge, a large sculptured screen covered with stylized copper horses at the entrance, chairs covered with "pony skin," and cactus-filled planting boxes.

Four Main Sections.

The new restaurant has been divided into four main sections. The first is a low-ceilinged, partially enclosed space with textured plastic booths, wormy chestnut wainscote and painted walls. It is separated from the main dining room by planting boxes.

To the left of the main dining room's barbecue grills is an alcove, seating 12 to 16 persons, decorated with wood wainscote, yellow walls and pictures of western scenes. At the far end of the main dining room is a large alcove, with wood walls and a mural. It can be separated from the main room by folding doors.

An unusual feature is a dining room for the employes, located off the kitchen. It is colorfully decorated, air conditioned, ventilated and equipped for wired music.

Cantonese Equipment.

Kitchen furnishings include special equipment for the preparation of Cantonese dishes.

The customers' parking area, located on what was formerly the building's south garden terrace, has been enclosed by a low, brick wall along which garden lamps are mounted on posts. Part of the area, now used for parking, has planting boxes. A brightly lighted, functionally shaped canopy leads into the restaurant lobby. Several magnolia trees have been placed to the right of the canopy.

The restaurant will be managed by Tom Uyeda, well known restaurateur, for more than 40 years associated with Bridlespur, Bogey and St. Louis Country Clubs.

Remodeling architects were Nauman and Elkington, associate architects. Draperies and chair coverings were selected by Mrs. Al Tucker, Uyeda's daughter. Contractors were Wells and Wells, Inc., and John B. Gutmann Construction, Inc. Sculpture was by William Severson, and the dining room mural by James Cummins.

Southern Air Mark of Home In Briarcliff

An air of the hospitality of the Old South has been worked into the design of the newly completed home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weissman at No. 62 Briarcliff, Ladue. Weissman is executive secretary of the Peoples Liquor Co. and the Peoples-905 Liquor Stores, Inc.

The new home was designed by Architect Adolph Felder and has been built by the Lester Saenger Construction Co.

The house is a two-story structure of brick, with a one-story garage and utility wing.

The first floor is laid out in all-open fashion to facilitate entertaining and has living room, dining room, reception hall, kitchen and breakfast rooms, kitchen utility room, guest powder room, a "quiet room," a storage room for tools and garden equipment and a two-car garage.

The second floor has four bedrooms, three bathrooms and a dressing room.

In the basement there are laundry, heating and air-conditioning equipment room, a playroom, toilet and shower-bath.

Split-system heating and cooling units supply zoned indoor weather control the year around.

Should Wear Evenly.

Your hardwood floor should wear evenly. Ask your architect to state in the specifications that the floors shall be of one species only—not a mixture of the species. The hardness tests for hardwoods used for flooring rank northern hard maple, first; beech, second; birch, third. A mixture of these species will, therefore, not wear evenly.

It's Time To Rebuild The Lawn

By ELEANOR P. McCLURE
Post-Dispatch Garden Writer.

A glance at the calendar brings a reminder that it's now time for the annual renovation of the lawn. Would that there were some simple, sure-fire formula that would guarantee a fine year-round carpet of green. Unfortunately, in this mid-Mississippi valley area it takes much pampering to satisfy our best summer-and-winter lawn covering—bluegrass.

This year the lawn repair job promises to be even more arduous than usual, for those fine July showers brought bumper crops of weedy grasses. Since seeds that fall on dense mats of crab grass are wasted, the first task is to thin out the weeds, so that a proper seed bed can be prepared.

Lawns that now have an almost 100 per cent weedy covering can be spaded or worked with a rotary tiller. A less laborious method is to kill the weedy grasses with sodium arsenate or some similar crab grass killer. After a few days the weedy grasses may be thinned out, and the soil scarified with a rake (with tines sharpened by filing).

Apply Balanced Fertilizer.

Better still, of course, is to work the ground thoroughly with an aerifier, which not only makes deep holes but lifts out small plugs of soil. "Custom" aerating at a reasonable cost is now provided by a number of local landscape firms.

A next and very important step is application of a balanced fertilizer at the rate of 20 pounds to 1000 square feet (or 40 pounds in the case of new lawns). It is surely false economy to skimp on fertilizer, for the best way to assure a fine stand of grass is to follow a generous feeding with a light two-pounds-to-1000 square feet seed application. Over-seeding is not only wasteful, but also produces weak, hungry plants that just can't make a good turf.

When grass lacks food, the plants have such shallow roots that they are quickly heaved out by winter frosts. It is the well-fed plant that has resistance to cold and retains a fine green color in winter months.

Given part shade, it is possible to have a fine bluegrass lawn in the St. Louis area, provided the homeowner can resist the temptation to sprinkle the lawn. It is especially important to avoid over-watering during the hot months. The mower should be adjusted to a high cut, at least two inches and preferably closer to three, during the crab grass season between June and September.

Fescue Endures Abuse.

Although it is possible to grow bluegrass in sunny areas, as demonstrated, for example, by Ray G. Mills at his Creve Coeur home, many in the St. Louis area are now planting other types of lawn grasses. Alta fescue and Kentucky 31 fescue are fairly resistant to

Architect Tries Growing Grass

EXPERIMENT—Architect Harris Armstrong conducted an interesting experiment with grass on a small test plot at his home on South Sappington road in Oakland. First step, last year, was thorough preparation of soil. After fertilizer had been spaded in, the ground was raked and leveled to make a fine seed bed.

LIGHTLY SOWN—Merion bluegrass was sown lightly at the rate of about one pound to 1000 square feet. This stoloniferous strain has large seeds and is applied at about half the rate for ordinary bluegrass. After seeding, the plot was again raked lightly to bring the seed into firm contact with the soil.

PLUGGER—With a special tool called a plugger, two-inch holes were made in seeded plot, spaced about one foot apart.

PLANT FOOD—Into each hole went a teaspoonful of balanced fertilizer, to provide an extra supply of food for the plugs of grass that were soon to be planted.

PLANTING—Plugs of Bermuda and Zoysia grass were soaked in shallow pans of water for several hours before they were planted and then firmed into the soil. Both the plugs of these summer grasses and the bluegrass seedlings get off to a better start if given ample moisture during the first few weeks after planting.

Plant Lawn

crab grass. These fescues are not the ultimate in lawn grasses, but they do remain greener in hot weather and give a good effect in winter as well.

It is far easier to get a good stand with fescues than with bluegrass, and fescue turf will endure a world of abuse. It must be admitted, though, that it is rough and bumpy. Fescue blades are broad, and the plants have tough wiry stems. This grass must be mowed regularly, for if neglected it is really tough to cut.

For open sunny spots U-3 Bermuda grass makes a remarkably fast covering. In fact, this rapid growth can be a disadvantage, for like vagrant crab grass, Bermuda will take over the nearby walks, drives and flower beds.

One of the finest of lawn grasses is Zoysia matrella. It has the disadvantage of high initial cost and slow growth, since it can be started only from plugs. This grass tolerates more shade than Bermuda and has a much shorter season of winter dormancy. While the individual blades are coarse, zoysia makes a very tough turf that is as soft as a velvet rug.

Fertilizing Helps Zoysia.

It now seems that zoysia grass can be speeded up by good care. While it flourishes in almost any type of soil, plugs get off to a better start if they have no competition from weeds or other grasses.

Gardeners who enjoy a bit of experimentation might try a mixed grass plot similar to one planted last autumn by a St. Louis countian, Harris Armstrong. After seeding a small plot to B-27 (the Merion strain) of bluegrass, Armstrong then added plugs of both Bermuda and zoysia grass.

During the winter months the test plot was noticably greener than the rest of the lawn, which had been seeded to an ordinary commercial mixture. This summer, while the Armstrongs were on an extended tour of Europe, crab grass invaded the entire lawn. However, both the Bermuda and zoysia grasses were more weed-resistant. When the crab grass was removed from the test plot, the young plugs were found to have made considerable growth. In the rest of the lawn, however, the bluegrass had been almost completely smothered by the tight covering of crab grass.

Women Plan Fashion Show

Women in the real estate profession and their friends will have an opportunity to see what milady will wear this fall when the Women's Division St. Louis Real Estate Board presents a Fashion Show Thursday evening, Sept. 15, in the Rose Room of Famous-Barr. A supper will be served at 6 o'clock, followed by the modeling of daytime and evening fashions from the various fashion departments of Famous-Barr.

Mrs. Jayne Pulliam is president of the Women's Division. Miss Bettie J. Russell, program chairman, will be assisted in the show by Mrs. Clara Pendleton Welsch, first vice president of the division; Mrs. Frank Morris, Miss Rosamond Smith, Miss Ruth Bridgeford and Mrs. Shirley Wenzelburger.

Reservations may be made through Mrs. Wenzelburger, 705 Chestnut street, Main 1-2142.

Spinaio Realty Acquires Tract For New Homes

The Spinaio Real Estate and Building Co. has acquired a tract of nine and three-quarter acres on the east side of Bellefontaine road, beginning about 950 feet north of Chambers road (opposite Bissell Hills shopping corner) for development into a subdivision of homes.

Gus Spinaio, operator of the company, said the ground was purchased from the Martin Estate. He plans to develop it with two- and three-bedroom ranch homes, in brick, to sell in a middle-price bracket.

The area has sewers and other utilities.

Spinaio said he will call the subdivision "Villa Capri" and that street names will correspond. Work of development is to get under way within 60 to 90 days, he said.

ATTENTION!
Here's why turf experts recommend that Zoysia Grass be planted in round plugs. Sprigs die easily and when you cut sod, you lose material and damage the roots.
1. ROUND PLUGS are easier to plant. It's always easier to dig a round hole than a square one. The round plug fits right into the round hole just like a cork goes into a bottle—makes a surer transplant.
2. ROUND PLUGS contain many more square inches of thick underground root system.
3. ROUND PLUGS reach you in better condition—they're compact and don't fall apart.
4. ROUND PLUGS offer more rapid growth. IT'S EASY TO PLANT AMAZOY. Use any tool or our handy Plugger. Simple and complete instructions with each order.
EACH AMAZOY PLUG SUPPLIES 50 TRANSPLANTS YEARLY
Once you plant all your AMAZOY plugs and they grow to the point of covering your planted area solidly, you can transplant plugs. Simply take 20 to 25 plugs per sq. ft. twice a year, from the original planted area, and place them in the new area to be planted.

CLEANUP FEATURE

After-meal cleanup is simplified with a special convenience accessory on some steel undersink cabinets. When the door of a cabinet is opened, a refuse receptacle pops out, lid raised. It's a handy arrangement even if you install an automatic garbage disposer in your sink, for there always are some wastes that can't be put in the disposer.

16 Groups Preparing Fall Show

Sixteen garden organizations are co-operating in preparing for the third annual Greater St. Louis Harvest Show, to be held at the Missouri Botanical Garden's floral display house next Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 17 and 18. On exhibit will be innumerable classes of flowers, vegetables and fruits. No entry fees will be required, and exhibitors need not be members of any of the garden groups.

The show will be open to the public from 1 to 9 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday. Entries may be submitted Friday evening or before 10 a.m. Saturday.

Among the educational by-products of the show will be demonstrations of methods of propagating orchids and African violets, disbudding chrysanthemums, and preparing compost. The St. Louis Horticultural Society, sponsor of the show, will provide horticulturist-guides for organized tours.

Dan R. O'Gorman is general chairman of the show, with W. H. Scott Jr., G. W. Pennewill, and Ed. J. Gildehaus as co-chairmen.

The section chairmen include: Mrs. Fred Tretter, African violets; Miss Flora Hartwig, annuals and perennials, Mrs. Oliver Branneky and Mrs. William Grimm, arrangements by individuals; Mrs. George Pring, arrangements by garden clubs; Ladislaus Cutak, cacti and succulents; Ralph Rabenau and Harold Hartman, chrysanthemums; Hubert Sandefur and Ray Horrell, dahlias; Homer E. Marti, gladioli; Mrs. Edgar Anderson, herbs; Armyn Spies, house plants; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Palmer, iris; Mrs. Marie Whitaker, junior section; W. H. Schawacker, orchids; Frank McMath, roses; Mrs. D. Von Hahn, shrubs and vines, ornamental; Arthur Krueger, Nelson Clark and Edgar Wiekhorst, vegetables and fruits.

Groups co-operating with the Horticultural society include: Affiliated African Violet Societies of Greater St. Louis; Farm Bureau of St. Louis county; Federated Garden Clubs of East Central Missouri; Greater St. Louis Dahlia Society; Greater St. Louis Iris Society; Henry Shaw Cactus Society; Illinois Gladiolus Society, Edwardsville Chapter; Landscape & Nurserymen's Association of Greater St. Louis; Missouri Botanical Garden; Missouri Gladiolus Society; Orchid Society of Greater St. Louis; Regional Council of Men's Garden Clubs of Greater St. Louis; Rose Society of Greater St. Louis; St. Louis Chrysanthemum Society; St. Louis Herb Society; Women's Committee of Shaw's Garden.

Signs to Buy Farm

Contract has been signed and earnest money paid on purchase of a 360-acre farm southeast of Monroe City, the Harry Callison Agency of Clarence, Mo., reports.

The property, known as the Kimes Farm, is being sold by George Hardwick to James Blair of Grass Lake, Mich., who plans, the agent said, to move his family to the place about Oct. 1.

Consideration of $35,000 was reported in the transaction, with Callison negotiating the sale.

Plant Bulbs

ply pleasing color and fragrance.

Commonest of all mistakes in planting spring bulbs is to set them in long, straight rows, like a single or double file of marching soldiers. Whatever bulb planting you do, or however hurriedly you have to do it, place the bulbs in groups instead of in rows. The only exception is those you may want for cutting—to make bulb pictures indoors. These may well be set, three to four inches apart, in rows, in the vegetable or cutting garden, or in any other convenient place where they can readily be cared for.

Try Blue and White.

Perennials which flower early, and are therefore good to use in combination with spring bulbs, include creeping phlox (P. subulata)—try blue and white varieties as well as the usual pinks and reds—and blue phlox divaricata; myosotis; myrtle (vinca minor); alyssum saxatile citrinum, a pale primrose yellow "basket-of-gold," much better for this purpose than the usual harsh yellow; arabis and iberis (perennial candytuf); pansies and violas; and, to give height, doronicum and bleeding heart (dicentra spectabilis).

Award-Winning Roses Blooming In Shaw Garden

Specimen plants of the new prize-winning floribunda rose, Spartan, are in full bloom at the Missouri Botanical Garden, reports Dr. Reino Alava who is in charge of the rose garden there.

Though this variety will receive its formal introduction to America's home gardeners this fall, the local planting was made here last spring. The plants were donated by the developer.

Spartan already has received three national and international awards—the gold medal from Baden-Baden, Germany; the President's International Trophy from the National Rose Society, London, England, and the Gold Certificate from the International Rose Test Gardens, Portland, Ore.

It was originated by E. S. Boerner, plant research director for the Jackson & Perkins Co., who considers it one of the very best floribunda roses he has ever produced. Boerner has had more roses patented under his name than any man in history.

One of the reasons why Spartan is garnering awards is its unusual color, a vibrant warm, light orange-red that attracts attention in the garden and in the home.

But the trait that will appeal most to home gardeners is its vigorous growth, which produces masses of flowers on a hardy, bushy plant that is both disease and insect resistant.

Like all floribundas, Spartan provides blooms both in clusters and on single stems. The flowering begins in June and continues throughout the season until killing frosts in the fall.

Autos Have Great Year-- What Next?

By FRANK SNYDER

DETROIT, (INS)—The greatest year in the automobile industry's history is in the making—but what about 1956?

Production of passenger cars January through August already has passed the five and a half million mark. The full year's output should easily topple the 1950 record of 6,674,933 by several hundred thousand.

New model changeovers have slowed down production considerably but the pace will pick up again later this month and go back into high gear for the balance of the year.

The amazing demand for 1955 model cars still has everyone talking—perhaps even forgetting about what might happen to the new car market next year.

To begin with, 1956 is not the year for a complete changeover of models. Except for Lincoln and one or two other models there will be only a facelifting—new grills, ornaments and rearrangement of the chrome trim, plus some "safety" improvements.

Clean-up Job Next.

Thus, this important factor of newness is not going to be present to spur car sales next year. In addition the dealers have a tremendous clean-up job to do on their 1955 inventories of new cars.

Another factor that might influence the new car market in 1956 is possible economic uneasiness in a presidential election year. Since the end of the last war there is only one other national election year on which to base any prediction. That was 1952 when production dropped to 4,337,481 cars, the lowest since 1948.

In 1953 production rebounded to the second highest in history—a total of 6,134,534 units—and in 1954 leveled off to what industry spokesmen said is about the right number to satisfy the replacement market and keep the economy at an even keel.

Dealers Loaded Down.

But that 5,509,550-car output last year—even if it were duplicated in 1956—could play the dickens with employment and everything else. Conceivably, a poor automotive production year could influence the outcome of the election as well.

To some extent the production of 1955 model cars was predicted on the threat of strikes that never materialized when the companies bowed to union contract demands this summer. Dealers allowed themselves to be loaded down with new cars—just in case.

With the supplemental unemployment benefit plans for auto workers going into effect beginning next June the companies no doubt will be working on plans to stabilize production as well as employment. How this might affect the new car picture next year is yet to be seen.

Back In "Big Three"

Chrysler Corp. has sold its one-millionth "forward look" car to mark its return as a full-fledged competitor in the "big three" auto circle. According to Charles L. Jacobson, Chrysler vice president in charge of sales, 65.4 per cent of the million 1955 cars sold so far were powered by V-8 engines. He said automatic transmissions went into 66.1 per cent, power steering in 24.6 and power brakes in 21.5 per cent. Nearly 10 per cent of them were air-conditioned.

New Safety Features.

Both General Motors and Chrysler have followed close upon Ford Motor Co. with announcements of new "safety" door latches in the upcoming 1956 model cars.

The G.M. Fisher Body Division says it has developed a new type of safety interlocking device to prevent automobile doors from being forced open in the event of a collision.

Chrysler said that its press preview of the 1956 automobiles Sept. 12 will feature a "lifeguard" door latch.

First Aid Kit May Save Life In Auto Wreck

A knowledge of first aid measures—along with a readily-accessible first aid kit—can keep many serious highway accidents from becoming fatalities, according to safety experts.

Highway safety experts of the Institute for Safer Living, an accident reduction group of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. of Boston, say such knowledge and equipment could help prevent this year's death toll from topping the figure last year.

"The most important time to stop a fire is in the first two minutes, and the same need for prompt action after a highway accident is often the difference between life and death," says the Institute's safety experts.

"Too often the bad accident happens on the open road, miles from a doctor or drug store. With the compact, inexpensive first aid kits available today, no motorist should plan a long trip without one.

"This year, for the first time, even the kit itself is becoming accident-proof. In one instance, sturdy metal tubes of combination burn and antiseptic ointment are replacing the glass vials of antiseptic that can break and ruin the other kit items.

"Keep one of these first aid kits in your glove compartment," advise the safety experts. "It may save your life."

Ben Stepman Appointed New Hudson Dealer

Ben Stepman 6250 Page, St. Louis, has been appointed a Hudson dealer, N. K. VanDerzee, vice president in charge of sales for the Hudson Motors division of American Motors Corporation, reports. Ben Stepman heads the new dealership, latest addition to the Hudson division's nationwide retail sales organization.

Formal opening was observed yesterday.

Commenting on his appointment as a Hudson dealer, Stepman said: "We've taken a big step forward by becoming members of the large family of Hudson dealers throughout the United States. We've seen all that the motor-car industry is currently offering the public, and it seems certain to us that Hudsons for 1955 get public approval in this area.

Hudson Motors division builds and distributes Hornets, Wasps and the Rambler.

Dodge Agency For S. Grand Area Chosen

A new automobile sales and service agency called Vicart Motors, Inc., has been established, with headquarters at 3905 South Grand boulevard, and has been granted a Dodge Division dealership.

The company gets its name from its principals, Art Holdenried, who is president and general manager, and Vic Langenberg, who is vice president and sales manager. Both men have many years of automobile sales experience in the St. Louis area.

Joe Fitzhenry has been chosen as their service manager. Selection of the dealership was reported by L. F. Desmond, Dodge general sales manager.

New District Manager

Edward S. Theismann, St. Louis Terminal manager for Brady Motorfrate, has been named district manager in St. Louis, J. J. Brady, president of the 52-year-old motor carrier, reports.

A veteran of motor freight operations and sales, Theismann has been affiliated with the Brady operation since 1953, when he joined the sales force. In 1954 he was promoted to terminal manager.

A former semipro baseball star and a professional soccer player for two years, Theismann is a well-known bowler in the St. Louis area. A participant in 13 A.B.C. tournaments, Theismann is a member of the C.E.S. Truck Line team which won the Traffic League trophy and holder of the high series for three games in league competition this year.

Furrier's New Clayton Home

This is the new home of Leppert-Roos, furrier, at 7720 Forsyth boulevard, Clayton. The building, one time real estate office, later interior decorator's salon, has been extensively remodeled. Interior now has quarry-tiled floor, appointments creating outdoor atmosphere for showing of furs. A huge new fur vault was built in.

Former St. Louisan To Head Training

Russell O. Crocker has been named manager of the General Motors Training Center on Lindbergh boulevard at Kirkwood, replacing Roy W. Nelson. Nelson has been transferred to Hinsdale (Ill.) General Motors Training Center, Myrl E. St. Aubin, director of the G.M. Service Section, reports.

Born in Goodwater, Mo., Crocker is a graduate of Central High School, St. Louis. He joined General Motors in 1940 as field service representative, Fisher Body Division. In 1952 he became the Buick dealer in Jackson, Tenn., remaining in that post until he was appointed manager of the Golden Valley (Minn.) General Motors Training Center.

Crocker and his wife, Mrs. Agnes E. Crocker, will reside in the St. Louis area.

St. Louisan Cited

I. A. Albrecht, Albrecht-Burke, St. Louis, has been named the outstanding Packard dealer in the state, Dan O'Madigan, general sales manager, Packard division, Studebaker-Packard corporation, reports.

The official said that the award, a trip to Bermuda, was based on the excellence of the dealer's service and car demonstration programs.

The dealer's performance has paced the continued gains by the division in the luxury car field in this state during the year. This is reflected in national production totals for the first seven months of the year which were 122 per cent over the same period in 1954, O'Madigan said.

SPEED CAUSES MOST FATAL CRASHES IN AREA

State Patrol Survey Shows Straight Stretches of Road Are Most Hazardous.

A study of traffic fatalities in St. Louis county and St. Charles, Jefferson and Franklin counties showed yesterday that most accidents occur on straight stretches of major highways where drivers are apt to speed.

George Thurmond, safety officer of the Missouri Highway Patrol, looked over the records for the 18-month period ended last June 30 and concluded that the most common causes of fatal crashes are excessive speed and lack of attention to driving.

Of a total of 134 fatalities, only one was listed for U.S. Highway 50, a two-lane highway until this year. In most of the area now that route coincides with another and the accidents are recorded under the latter designation.

The route with the greatest number of deaths—35—is U.S. 66, which has three-lane, four-lane and divided sections. U.S. 61, with four lanes, was next with 29.

St. Louis county has the greatest volume of traffic, and it had the most fatalities, 66. Jefferson county had 30, Franklin 22 and St. Charles 16.

There were 114 fatalities on U.S. highways, the major routes, and 30 on state highways. Scenes of the accidents were scattered, and no especially dangerous stretches were evident.

St. Louis county had 1282 accidents, in which 809 persons were injured; Jefferson 868 and 663; Franklin 540 and 344, and St. Charles 250 and 202.

Red China Seeks to Introduce Birth Control, Limit Population

If Present Growth Continues There Will Be Billion Chinese in 30 Years—Industrialization Plans at Stake.

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio, Copyright, 1955.

HONG KONG, Sept. 10—The Communist rulers in Peiping are introducing birth control in an effort to slow down the growth of China's population which they already number at roughly 600,000,000.

This attempt to curb multiplication of perhaps one-fifth of the human race can have profound consequences. Communist schemes to industrialize and make China a self-sufficient great power on the Pacific are at stake, and the level of life of the Chinese people will be intimately affected.

Peace in Asia is hard to visualize if China's population continues to increase at the present rate. The ancient fear of China's neighbors that the "middle kingdom" will crowd them out reflects a conviction that there is not room at home for all Chinese.

First Modern Census.

Fourteen months ago the Communists took China's first detailed modern census. Even the Red leaders seem to have been disturbed by what they learned. They counted the population of the mainland of China at 582,593,417. Equally important were the figures assembled on the rate of increase. When Britain's former Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee and his mission visited Peiping they reportedly were told that the mainland Chinese were increasing at a net rate of 12,000,000 every year.

An annual net increase of 2 per cent, as indicated by the Communist figures, seems possible under present Chinese circumstances. The Chinese population of Formosa now is increasing at a net rate of better than 3½ per cent annually. However, if the Communist reports based on their census were accurate, it means that a continuation in the present rate of growth within 30 years would give the mainland a poplation of more than 1,000,000,000 Chinese.

The dilemma that these figures suggest is largely a recent phenomenon resulting from the application of modern medical science. Two hundred years ago China's population, according to the imperial records, numbered about 150,000,000. Since then it appears to have increased at an average rate of less than three-fourths of one per cent nnually. Although the birth rate seems to have been more than 40 per 1000, natural increase was held in check by high infant mortality, widespread infanticide, epidemics, famines and wars.

Limitations Reduced.

During recent decades these limitations upon China's rate of population growth have been successively reduced. The Western medicine that missionaries and others labored so hard to teach China has almost made epidemics a thing of the past. Knowledge of modern sanitation and prenatal care has sharply reduced infant losses. The introduction of antibiotics has had even more radical consequences in China than it has had in the west.

The Chinese Communists have themselves speeded China's rate of population increase. They have boosted grain production and are distributing it more efficiently. Many Chinese have been on starvation rations lately but the mass deaths characteristic of earlier famines have been less common.

Foreigners who have come out of China report that a major achievement of the Peiping regime has been its massive sanitation program. Schools, factories and offices have all been forced to collect their quotas of flies, rats and other harmful pests.

Originally, the Communists refused to recognize the implications of China's population growth; they argued that only capitalism made this a problem and socialism would soon create enough for everyone. There was an easy precedent for this in China. Sun Yat-sen, the great modern revolutionary, had urged the Chinese to expand their population in order to achieve greater influence among the foreign powers, and the Kuomintang party in its day of authority fostered similar ideas.

During the past year, however, China's new rulers seem to have become increasingly disturbed by the consequences of the growing population.

Grain Needed for Export.

Hungry children have been asking for the grain the Communists wanted to export to pay for the five-year-plans. Shao Li-tse, one of the Nationalist leaders who stayed to work with the Communists, began arguing publicly that the new regime could never educate all the children being born. The consequences of halting infanticide evidently impressed many doctors and women's leaders. Among the peasants of west China the wives usually had 15 to 18 pregnancies in their fertile years.

The birth control program the Communists now have begun is being pushed primarily through their mass organizations such as the All China Federation of Women. The emphasis is upon convincing Chinese women especially of the value in "spacing" children and the need for having only as many offspring as the family can support. The Red regime is encouraging the use of both "natural" and "man-made" means of limiting pregnancies.

Population control in China, however, is no simple task. Children have long been the principal form of old-age insurance. Only a large family could support their parents in leisure. Also, in order for a Chinese to have prestige he has had to have many sons and grandsons. Even immortality has traditionally depended upon having numerous descendants who could worship at the ancestral shrine and sweep the graves.

If the Communists are to slow the rate of increase in China's population, they must find answers to these and many other problems.

U.S. MEDICAL TEAM TOURING AFRICA

Checking Needs of Jungle Missions in Long Helicopter Flight.

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo, Sept. 10 (UP)—An American medical expedition took off this week for the "most diseased area in the world" to make an on-the-spot check of the medical needs of Christian missions in Equatorial Africa.

It is the first attempt to cross the African continent by helicopter.

The medical expedition is going first to Catholic and Protestant missions on the Atlantic coast and then will turn eastward with its eventual goal Mombasa on the Indian ocean.

The expedition will fly a total of 2800 miles, much of it over dense jungle and bush, using airports, jungle strips and sometimes clearings near missions as landing fields. It is regarded as the most ambitious helicopter flight ever planned.

Karl Jensen of Lederle laboratories in New York who arranged the expedition said its purpose was to discuss the medical problems of Central Africa—the Belgian Congo and Tanganyika—with missionaries who deal directly with virulent diseases which ravage the district. After the expedition files its report, Lederle will make available to these missions thousands of dollars worth of the latest antibiotics.

Flying with Jensen are Dr. Said Kinany of Cairo, an expert in tropical diseases; Col. James Paterson of Kansas City, Mo., who will observe the performance of the helicopter, and Capt. Hassoldt Davis of Boston, explorer and author who knows the area.

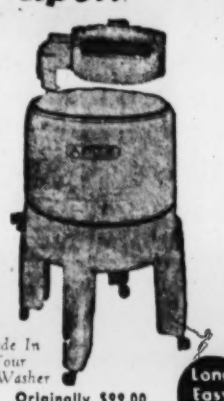

"The economic progress of this area depends on eradication of disease," Kinany said. "The Belgian Congo is one third the size of the United States and while the Belgian government is working wonders in its own program, when a territory is so vast every little bit helps."

Tanganyika is one and a half times the size of Texas but huge areas are uninhabited because of the disease-bearing tsetse fly.

Kinany said the expedition would introduce a new antibiotic, stylomycin, which preliminary tests have shown is effective in combatting sleeping sickness, spread by the tsetse fly. He said other major diseases are trachoma, yellow fever, smallpox, filiariasis, chronic dysentery and fungus diseases.

EVIDENCE OF ICE AGE HORSE

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 10 (AP)—Remains of an ice age horse which roamed North America 10,000 years ago have been found in a gravel pit near Fort qu'Appelle, 80 miles from here. Horses of this breed were wiped out in the ice age, paleontologists say, and no horses were seen on the continent until Spanish explorers reintroduced them.

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE OPENS TODAY, BEGINS 129TH YEAR

Lindenwood College will open its 129th year today when students begin arriving for a one-week program of orientation and registration. Classes begin Monday, Sept. 19.

Students are enrolled from 24 states and from Greece, Japan, Austria, Taiwan, Korea, Argentina, Turkey, Mexico, Guatemala and the Philippines.

Dr. F. L. McCluer, college president, has announced appointment of four new faculty members. The teachers and their appointments are: James A. Gardner, assistant professor of history and government; Miss Emma Purnell, associate professor of office management; Mrs. Richard Gildehaus, instructor in office management; and Miss Betsy Severson, instructor in art.

U.S. TO HELP YUGOSLAVIA PAY FOR NEW BRIDGE

BELGRADE, Sept. 10 (AP)—The United States in effect will pay more than half the bill for a new steel bridge connecting Belgrade with western Yugoslavia.

The United States Government has approved release of $5,000,000 in counterpart funds for the bridge. The counterpart fund is composed of credits accruing to Yugoslavia from sale of goods by the United States in this country the past three years.

TITO PLANS TO VISIT FRANCE SOON, DATE NOT SET YET

PARIS, Sept. 10 (AP)—President Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia will make an official visit to France soon, French Foreign Ministry officials report, but no date has been fixed.

United Nations and Big Four meetings will keep Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay busy until November, the officials said, so it is unlikely that Tito will come before then.

BUSINESS IS RELYING ON NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING TO KEEP SALES CLIMBING

In 1955's first half, newspaper advertising has made its biggest contribution on record to the continued growth of American business.

In the first six months, business invested more dollars in newspaper advertising than in any half-year in history.

Manufacturers' advertising set a new record.

So did retailers' advertising—including the department stores, chain stores and all the rest.

So did classified advertising—mainstay of real estate, used cars and many another business.

Manufacturers and retailers alike are profiting from the salespower of newspapers—the salespower that stems from the fact that newspapers are the shopping medium—where consumers look eagerly for advertising—and from the fact that nowhere else can manufacturers' ads and retailers' ads work together so effectively to increase the productivity of both.

IF YOU ARE • a manufacturer • a retailer • a distributor • a merchandise broker • a manufacturer's salesman

...ASK YOURSELF: Is newspaper advertising being called on to do all it can to keep my sales going up?

HERE'S THE RECORD*
1955 VS. 1954

	June	1st Six Months
National advertisers	Up 15.9%	Up 9.5%
Retail advertisers	Up 8.9%	Up 6.8%
Classified advertisers	Up 17.8%	Up 14.4%
All advertisers combined	Up 12.5%	Up 9.2%

In each category—Biggest June on record—Biggest six months on record

*SOURCE: Media Records 52-City Index. Available data from 291 smaller newspapers reporting to the Bureau of Advertising, ANPA, indicate substantial gains in these newspapers, too—e.g. national advertising in these 291 smaller newspapers was up 13.8% for June; up 4.8% for the first half—vs. 1954.

EARLY AUTUMN DAYS LOVELY IN COLORADO

Autumn is the most beautiful of all seasons in Colorado, in the opinion of many residents and visitors. The aspen trees turn golden; deer, elk and waterfowl abound in the mountains; and there's a tangy autumn crispness to the mountain air.

The atmosphere is invigorating and fresh with the scent of pines. The bright sun by day and the clear star-studded sky by night add a final touch to make it the ideal spot for an autumn vacation.

The all-year highways that in the spring and summer are bordered with wildflowers, are framed with the gold of the aspen as the mountain slopes take on their autumn hues.

Colorado is a land of adventure and romance. Uranium hunters, armed with geiger counters, abound in areas suspected to be radioactively "hot" with uranium; buffalo run wild in parks only a few miles from Denver; and abandoned mine tunnels yawn beside the highways.

In the highlands the elk and deer are on the move as hundreds of hunters hike and ride horses into the high back country after game.

Hotels, motels and mountain lodges around Denver are noted for their picturesque charm and western hospitality. Complete travel information can be secured from the Hospitality Center, 225 West Colfax avenue, Denver, Colo.

HOW TO HAGGLE

Arabs love to haggle. If you find yourself in Baghdad soon, you'll want to know the key words.

"La" means no, "ghali" means too much and "ruh" is go. Some things worth haggling for are hand-woven carpets at six dollars, pieces of "Mina" silver at 50 cents and goat-hair Kurdish blankets in two-color designs at $15.

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS BUSILY PREPARING FOR ALOHA WEEK

High on volcano slopes and low on coral beaches, Hawaiian tutus (grannies) are stitching sarongs for hula dancers to wear for Aloha week.

Polynesian papas are dyeing red and yellow chicken feathers for hula gourds, while keikis (kids) string seashell and candlenut leis to top off costumes for Hawaii's biggest festival.

Inter-racial committees have plotted dates on five scenically different resort islands. Oahu's celebration is Oct. 16 through 22; Hawaii Island, Oct. 23 through 30; Maui, Oct. 30 through Nov. 5.

The two smaller islands of Kauai and Molokai are holding brilliant one-day pageants, the former, Nov. 5; the latter Oct. 15.

Missouri Caves.

Missouri has 350 recorded caves.

INDIA'S HOLIEST CITY

The holiest place on earth, in the eyes of the Hindus, is Banaras, India's greatest place of pilgrimage and one of the most interesting and colorful of all her cities.

Hindu mythology described the site of Banaras as the first dry land to arise from the waters of creation, and when the great deluge came one of the gods supported it on his trident to hold it above the devouring waves.

Versatile Washington.

Washington is one of the few states where motorists can drive from the seashore, through forests, across snow-covered mountains and into the desert in a single day.

DEER IN MONTANA

Deer and antelope populations in eastern Montana have increased to the point where they have become a problem to the ranchers and farmers in that area.

In an effort to reduce these herds, Montana will issue nonresident hunters special licenses to hunt deer and antelope for $20 each. Out-of-state hunters wishing to hunt in other parts of the state will pay the usual $100 fee.

Largest Pagoda.

Largest pagoda of its kind in the world is the Shwedagon in Burma. It towers 326 feet from a hill near the heart of the city and serves as a landmark. Buddhists from all parts of the world visit it.

SUMMER NOT OVER IN MIAMI BEACH

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—While Labor day marks the end of summer vacations in most sections of the United States, Miami Beach ignores the calendar with its mild climate, inviting beaches, outdoor sports and entertainment features to give a bonus holiday to September and October visitors.

There remains another eight weeks of official summer in this resort where rates, rather than dates, mark the passing of the seasons. And summer, when prices for luxurious accommodations are at their lowest, does not become autumn until Nov. 1, when an increase of some 25 per cent goes on hotel rooms and apartments.

Aside from the ease and convenience of travel to this island playground where the highest American standards of cleanliness are maintained and the sole industry is the entertainment of vacationers, Miami Beach's big appeal currently is its economy. Few resorts, foreign or domestic, can begin to match the comfort and pleasure the dollar will buy here.

Miami Beach has 375 hotels and more than 2000 apartment buildings. Even without reservations, the visitor at this season is assured of no difficulty in finding a suitable place to stay. At the finest hotels, models of luxury and eye-appeal that are being copied in numerous offshore places, the top price for a double room is less than $100 a week.

Theaverage weekly rate for two, however, is from $50 to $60, which buys accommodations in an oceanfront hotel that is modern, air-conditioned, luxuriously appointed and complete with swimming pool, cabana colony and sun terraces. For half this price comfortable rooms are available in offocean hotels a block or two from a public beach.

Rest and relaxation beneath the palms that shade beach or pool always is at hand, with the lullaby of a gentle surf as background music. Golf, fishing, tennis, boating, sightseeing, shopping and dancing are some of the pleasures to which the vacationer may turn for more active hours. And high adventure may be found in some of these.

Fishing, for example, need not be confined to the excitement of playing a sailfish or the thrill of a bonefish strike. You can, if you desire, go under water to stalk the finny game with spear gun in the clear, blue depths that have been opened to exploration by portable breathing devices. While the song of a good breeze through the stays is enough for the sailor, and the speed and spray of good salt water enough for the power boat enthusiast, the young and the young at heart must skim the water on skis.

Beauty, both native and that gathered from far places, is on display for the sightseer too. The visitor can, by car or bus, watch exotic birds fly and perform in native jungles, or see how the orchid is grown from tiny seed to gorgeous bloom. In the Everglades National park one may glimpse alligators sunning in the dark swamps or the big blue and white herons stalking minnows in the slow-moving streams.

The fishing, golf, tennis and night clubs are but minutes from any hotel or apartment on Miami Beach. The sightseeing may be varied from a quiet cruise through the city's inland waterways to all-day trips on the nearby mainland.

Restaurants and shops of many kinds are conveniently close, so the vacationer who chooses Miami Beach always is in the comfortable, modern center of urbane entertainment, yet not far removed from an adventurous frontier still but half tamed.

ROCKS, CLIFFS AND SEA ENHANCE CHARM OF TRIESTE

As the traveler approaches the Gulf of Trieste by sea from Venice, he sees the picturesque outline of the coast between Grado and the lighthouse of Salvore opening in front of him in a panorama, gradually varying from the soft, low contours of the lagoons around Grado to the first gray hills of the Carso farther north, the whole broken here and there by turreted Venetian hamlets.

Behind this entrancing natural picture towers the majestic chain of the Julian Alps and the Dolomites. In front, on the Adriatic's northernmost point, the breath-taking spectacle of Trieste, with its hoary old castle of San Ciusto, comes into view as the vessel passes Grado and enters into the Gulf.

Starting in October, a new way to reach Trieste from New York will be offered by the Italian Line, which will reactivate a popular pre-war route with an itinerary covering calls at Lisbon, Gibraltar, Palermo, Naples, Patras and Venice, en route to Trieste.

To American tourists leaving the northern Atlantic seaboard Trieste will strike a pleasurable note, for few are the cities of the world that inclose so much sea as Trieste, with its many streets, rich in architectural contrasts, opening up fan-wise onto the harbor.

'Over the Hill.'

When you go "over the hill" in Nassau, you move into the colorful native section, where the Calypso beat offers a distinctive musical thrill for visitors.

Fun in Surf

Gentle surf at Miami Beach is just right for playing in the sea, with temperatures pleasant enough for one to remain in the water as long as desired.

INTERESTING HISTORY

Historians will be interested to know that five flags have flown over the thermal waters of Hot Springs, Ark. They include the Spanish unfurled by Hernando DeSoto when he and his followers visited the open hot pools in September 1541, led by friendly Indians. France's fleur-de-lis was planted by La-Salle in 1682.

During the War between the States the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy substituted briefly for "Old Glory." Arkansas attained statehood in 1836, and the official state flag was adopted by the General Assembly of 1913.

High Spot.

The highest point of land in Metropolitan Miami is only 50 feet above sea level. It is manmade and stands in Greynolds park.

SEPTEMBER A MONTH OF EVENTS IN MISSOURI

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—September is the last "big" month of special events in the 1955 tourist season, according to the Missouri Division of Resources and Development.

There are still some top events scheduled for October and November, but September marks the last highly active month. It is especially the time for fairs and festivals.

Heading the list of special events for September are the Sikeston Cotton Carnival, and the Pony Express Rodeo at St. Joseph.

The Southeast Missouri Fair, one of Missouri's largest, will celebrate its Centennial Sept. 12-17.

"Miss Missouri" will be chosen as part of the eighth annual National Soybean Festival at Portageville Sept. 20-24.

Here is a listing of September special events in the state:

12-17—Southeast Missouri Fair, Cape Girardeau.
Fifteenth annual Stoddard County Homecoming, Bloomfield.
14-16—Bates County Fair, Rich Hill.
15-17—Southwest DeKalb and Northwest Clinton County Fall Festival, Stewartsville.
17-20—Webb City Fall Festival.
20-24—Eighth annual National Soybean Festival, Portageville.
21-24—Concordia Fall Festival.
21 —Feeder Calf Sale, Marshfield.
22-24—Monroe City Fall Festival.
Waverly Apple Festival.
Sikeston Cotton Carnival.
23-25—Pony Express Rodeo, St. Joseph.
26-Oct. 1—Gideon Cotton Festival.

'VALLEY OF VAPORS'

Hot Springs National Park, Arkansas, named after its 47 steaming springs, is one of the nation's most famous health and pleasure resorts. Hernando DeSoto and his Spanish followers arrived at the "Valley of Vapors" on Sept. 16, 1541, according to the bronze marker placed on a huge tufa boulder in Arlington Park near the north end of Bath House Row by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The springs have an aggregate flow of 1,000,000 gallons of hot water every 24 hours.

LACE-MAKING

The ancient art of lace-making, nearly forgotten elsewhere, is still a flourishing business in the seaside town of Vila Do Conde, Portugal. Deep borders for handkerchiefs, edging for lingerie, lavish trimmings are available at prices that aren't too much of a strain on the tourist dollar.

If you don't mind waiting, the skilled needleworkers of this and other towns along the coast will execute special orders.

BERLIN AIRPORT

Berlin's Tempelholf Airport handles 236 scheduled passenger flights weekly. Three airlines fly into Berlin: Pan American Airways, Air France, and British European Airways.

The airport is a ten-minute drive from downtown West Berlin. The subway stops right at the airport.

DEMOCRATS ACT TO FIX POLICY ON CROP SUPPORTS

Leaders Split—Decision Could Influence Party's Choice for Presidency.

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The high price support wing has grabbed the control wheel in determining strategy of the Democratic party on the farm issue—at least until the party holds its convention next year.

What this wing does during the next six months could well have far-reaching influence on the party's choice for the presidential nomination.

The Democrats, like the Republicans, are split on the question of how far the federal Government should go in supporting agricultural prices. One group wants high, rigid supports of the Truman administration restored as a means of bolstering falling farm prices and incomes.

The other wants to give the flexible price support program of the Eisenhower further trial. Congress last year replaced the high supports with a sliding scale support program for major crops. Under this system, supports may be lowered in times of surpluses to discourage production and raised in times of shortages to encourage production.

In a significant action, Democratic national headquarters has set up a special committee to review the farm situation and to outline strategy in attacking Eisenhower administration farm policies.

Wickard Chairman.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard was named chairman of this committee. Wickard, who served as secretary under both former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, is a staunch advocate of high, rigid supports, and has been making speeches bitterly criticizing the administration and Secretary of Agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson.

Another named to the Democratic committee was former Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan. He is the author of a controversial farm plan advanced in 1949 which would have provided even higher farm supports than were authorized under the Truman era law repealed last year.

In addition, Brannan proposed a broad use of Government subsidies to achieve a dual goal of high returns to farmers and cheaper food for consumers. The plan was never accepted by Congress, but farm leaders generally agree that it still has many supporters.

The Wickard-Brannan element is opposed in the Democratic party by a group headed by Senators Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, himself a former agriculture secretary, and Spessard L. Holland of Florida. This group helped push the Administration's flexible support program through Congress.

Clashed in 1952.

These two wings clashed over the price support issue at the party's national convention in 1952, with the high support group coming out on top.

Influential in putting the high-support element in charge of the party's farm policy committee was House Speaker Sam Rayburn, a powerful figure in the party.

Should the issue of farm prices and income shape up as a major issue in next year's campaign — as now appears likely—influence of the high support wing would be great in determining the presidential nomination.

This wing is closely associated with leaders of organized labor active in the party and with "progressive" elements in the party. The CIO, for example, has given its backing to high farm supports and to the Brannan subsidy plan.

Adlai Stevenson, the party's 1952 standardbearer, is not likely to get enthusiastic help from this group unless he changes his publicly - stated views on the price support controversy.

In a speech before a Democratic farm conference at Sioux Falls, S. D., a year ago, Stevenson aroused the enmity of the high support wing by saying that he did not believe that either high price guarantees or flexible price floors would provide a permanent cure for the farm problem. This conference was attended almost wholly by advocates of high farm supports. They included Wickard, Brannan, Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, former Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa and a number of candidates for Congress in last year's election.

Some Like Harriman.

Some of these leaders look with more favor on Gov. W. Averell Harriman of New York than Stevenson. The New Yorker has been more closely associated with the so-called "liberal" wing of the party than has the former Illinois governor.

But Stevenson's position on the farm question may be more clearly defined in speeches he plans to make in the midwest later this fall. A 4 per cent decline in farm prices in the past two months and prospects of further setbacks as the season's marketings reach their peak later in the year have projected the farm question to the forefront as a domestic issue.

Just how the Democrats plan to go about capitalizing on the situation may be determined at a meeting of the Wickard committee in Chicago Sept. 19. This session is expected to draw party farm leaders from all sections of the country.

Work of the Wickard group could have considerable influence on farm legislation in the session of Congress which convenes in January.

Advocates will press the Senate to pass a House-approved bill to restore high level supports even though it would face a probable veto by President Eisenhower.

Passage of this measure by the Democratic-controlled Congress would pretty well put the party in a position where its national convention would have to indorse high supports in its platform.

Viet Nam Officers Graduated.

CHURCHES, SCHOOLS HAVE SCOUT DATA

Boys Living in 13 Missouri Counties Around St. Louis Can Join Also.

Information for St. Louis area boys 8 to 18 years old about joining Cub, Scout or Explorer units this fall will be available at local churches, schools and the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, it was announced yesterday.

Boys living in the 13 Missouri counties surrounding St. Louis also are eligible to join a unit of the council.

In areas where no Cub, Scout or Explorer units are organized or organized units are overcrowded, the council will instruct parents on how to start new units, a Scout official said.

Information about any of the 950 units now organized in the council, their sponsoring organizations, leaders and meeting days and places can be obtained from the council, 505 Chemical building. The telephone there is CHestnut 1-7856.

A council membership committee announced recently it would seek to enroll 4500 new Cub, Scouts and Explorers before next Dec. 15. A committeeman pointed out that an invitation to join any unit of the council is not necessary. Any boy may join at his request.

Copies of the 1955-56 camp regulations, containing rules for use of council properties from now until next summer, can be obtained from the council's camping department in the Chemical building. The regulations govern Irondale, Lions' Den and Beaumont Scout Reservations and Camp Brereton, a Sea Explorer base.

All members of units and their leaders of Pioneer District were invited to attend a district picnic with their families next Saturday at the farm of District Chairman Elmer E. Marx, off Highway W, one mile south of New Hope, Mo.

Families must provide their own lunches and dinners except for soft drinks and ice cream. Recreation, including fishing, boating, swimming, tennis and horseshoes, will be provided.

Reservations for den mothers of South District to attend "Playhouse Party," a KSD radio program, at 11 a.m. Sept. 26, may be mailed to Larry Knopfel, 4335 Potomac street; he is district activities chairman.

The program will be broadcast from Pevely auditorium, 1101 South Grand avenue. A luncheon, prizes and entertainment will be included in the program. Reservations will be limited to the first 130 requests, a Scout official said.

A handicrafts workshop for den mothers of Pioneer District will be held from 9:30 to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Friday and the following Tuesday in the parish house of the Grace Episcopal Church, 325 North Taylor avenue, Kirkwood.

All members and prospective members of units in Bourbeuse District, Franklin county, were invited to attend with their families a party at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at St. Francis Borgia Parochial School in Washington, Mo.

Basic leadership training courses for Cub, Scout and Explorer leaders of Ozark Trails District will be conducted at the Farmington (Mo.) Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow and at the Crystal City (Mo.) Elementary School at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Cub and Scout leader courses will include eight sessions on successive weeks at the same times and places. Explorer courses will include five sessions, also on successive weeks. Ozark District includes Jefferson, Ste. Genevieve and St. Francois counties.

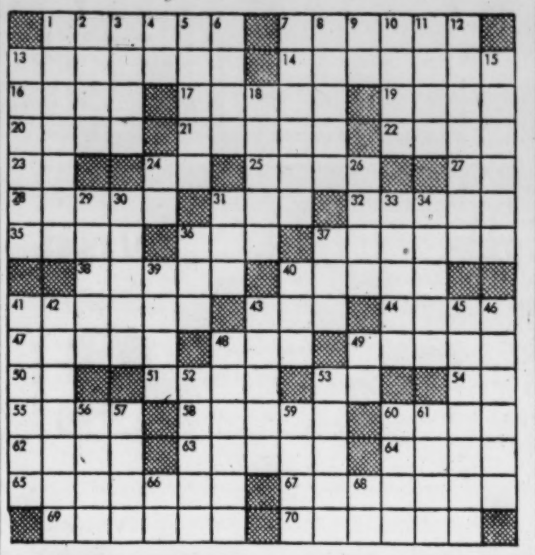

Eagle rank, Scouting's highest advancement honor, will be awarded to Scout John Arco in a ceremony to be held by Troop 369 at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Overland Lions Home Association, 2358 Lackland road, Overland.

At the same time Scout John Bequette will receive an Eagle badge in a ceremony at the Farmington Memorial Methodist Church. Bequette is a member of Troop 471.

Two other Scouts will receive Eagle badges in separate ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. They are David Jones, 33 St. Mary lane, St. Ann; and Cordell Andrews, 933 Tuxedo boulevard, Webster Groves.

Girl Scout News

A total of 2721 Girl Scouts was enrolled in the 21 day camps operated by the St. Louis Girl Scout Council this year, Mrs. W. P. Kundermann, chairman of the day camp committee, announced yesterday.

Of the total 1556 were Brownies; 989 Intermediates; 176, Seniors, and 416, adult leaders. Committee members were to meet tomorrow to complete plans for a camp evaluation meeting scheduled at 10 a.m. Sept. 22, at the Union Avenue Christian Church.

Senior Weekend activities at Camp Cedarledge, near Pevely, Mo., were concluded today with a Scout's Own ceremony, a nonsectarian devotion service.

Four program groupings in Girl Scouting will be discussed at a Volunteer Trainers' Institute from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. next Friday at the Third Baptist Church.

The first fall meeting of the Tower Grove District committee will be held at Camp Cedarledge Sept. 29. Additional information may be obtained from Mrs. Oliver J. Weinkauff, district chairman, PRospect 1-5134; or Mrs. James W. Click, PRospect 6-3966.

The Clay-due District committee will meet tomorrow from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at Clayton House.

Three members of Girl Scout Troop 1589 have completed 11 suggested activities required to receive Rocks and Minerals badges. They are Carolyn Heideman, Phyllis Roettger and Sheila Gore.

BI-STATE AGENCY HARBOR TO BE DEDICATED SATURDAY

The new $1,500,000 Bi-State Development Agency harbor on the Chain of Rocks canal at Granite City will be dedicated at 1:45 p.m. next Saturday, with participation by many public officials of Missouri and Illinois.

Shortly before the ceremony there will be a river parade of commercial and private craft from Eads bridge and up the canal. Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois has indicated he will attend, and Gov. Phil M. Donnelly of Missouri will be represented.

The program is being arranged by the Bi-State Development Agency, the Tri-Cities Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, the Army Corps of Engineers, and St. Louis Terminal Warehouse Co., operator of the public part of the harbor.

HOSPITAL COMMENCEMENT

Commencement exercises for graduates of City and Homer G. Phillips hospitals will be 4 p.m. Tuesday in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. The graduating class consists of 27 young women at City Hospital and 51 at Homer G. Phillips Hospital, including 11 in the February section.

STABILITY MAKES LIFE IN MEXICO EASIER FOR ALL

But It Still Has a Corn-and-Beans Economy Overlaid With U.S. Luxuries.

By LAURANCE F. STUNTZ.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 10 (AP) —After more than a century of almost constant internal disturbances which slowed its development, Mexico is growing up and life is easier all around.

Mexico was settled by Europeans almost 100 years before the United States. Even before that it had a whole mosaic of Indian cultures, some of them very advanced. Its national university is older than Harvard and Mexico was printing books while the Jamestown settlers were still wondering if they could hold out.

Yet Mexico has always been overshadowed by its bigger, richer, and generally happier, neighbor. Its industry and trade are modeled on the United States (although its banks and older retail stores follow French customs). The United States is Mexico's best customer and best supplier. Millions of Mexicans have lived in the United States and the United States influence is stronger here than in any other foreign country except, perhaps, Canada.

Luxuries and Corn and Beans.

Mexico's living is a two-layer matter—United States luxuries overlaid on a basis of Mexico's corn-and-beans way of life. The average Mexican eats corn tortillas and goes to Hollywood movies. He wears sandals in the country but when he travels he goes by Detroit-made busses. The farmer may plow with oxen or burros, but he plants the newest hybrid seed corn.

Despite this terrific cultural pressure from the north—not deliberate — Mexico has remained a Latin, Catholic country. Lengthy and late lunch hours are still the custom even in United States advertising agencies, those bridgeheads of American energy. Mexico has its own movie industry and its best films are good. Politics is noisy, not notoriously honest. Newspapers still publish poetry.

New roads and airlines have reduced the hills. Water running off them has been turned into electric power. New crops have made the valleys more productive.

Mexico is taking other things avidly from the outside: new power plants, new roads, new trains, new factories. Not all of them are economically sound. But in general they are paying their way in the form of easier living.

Population Up 40 Per Cent.

In 15 years Mexico has increased its population 40 per cent. It's national income, the total value of all farm and factory goods, has doubled in that time. That means that 40 per cent more people and 100 per cent more goods and everybody is eating more, dressing better and spending a little more on luxuries.

Basically, the reason for all this improvement is political. Mexico is enjoying the longest period of internal peace in its history. It has gone longer without a revolution than any other Latin American state.

The Mexican revolution went on for seven years, beginning in 1910. When it ended, everybody had a little bit of what he fought for. The government is basically pro-labor, so labor is happy. It has agrarian aims, so the landless farmer has at least a hope of getting his own land as additional acreage is brought under irrigation. The government is not socialistic, so the business man is confident. A middle class, that great dampener of violent social movement, is beginning to form.

Maturity and peace, in turn, have made it possible for the government and private enterprise between them to get busy on welfare.

Cotton Earns Dollars.

Irrigation, has increased cotton production, now the chief dollar-earning export, with coffee close behind. These crops grow fresh every year, unlike exports of silver, lead and zinc which have gradually exhausted the mines.

Internal peace also has given Mexico a terrific income from tourists. The 400,000 North Americans who visit here every year are one of the country's chief sources of dollars.

The return of migrant farm workers after helping with United States harvests has had a big effect on Mexico, socially and economically. Probably one of every 20 Mexicans has visited the United States. They bring back not only the dollars they earned but, generally, an admiration for American ways.

Peace and comparative plenty make Mexico's present picture a pretty one, but there are still dangers. Neither its peace nor its prosperity are on any guaranteed foundation.

Health is still a problem. The death rate in childbirth, to cite one example, is down from 50 deaths to 30 deaths per 10,000 in 15 years. The United States rate is only nine deaths. Too many Mexicans are still drinking contaminated water, particularly in the capital. There are too few doctors, particularly out in the country.

Education Is Insufficient.

Education is still insufficent. Many children, even in the capital, cannot go to school because of a shortage of buildings and teachers. The situation is worse out in the country. Illiteracy is still around 40 per cent despite the government's best efforts—and they are very good.

Mexico City is too big for the rest of the country. It has 3,000,000 inhabitants — about a tenth of the entire population. The next biggest city has less than 500,000.

Mexico City doesn't have enough water for its present population. It is short of electric power and housing and paving and telephones. Its size gives it too much to say in the political life of the country. Congressmen are likely to be swayed by the demands of the capital—whose inhabitants are allowed to vote—as against the interest of the rest of the country.

Inflation is another cloud on the horizon. The value of the peso has dropped from 22 cents in 1939 to 8 cents now. Every time the trade balance goes against the country, the government has dropped the value of the peso again. This makes imported goods cost more and reduces imports, thereby balancing trade again. It can't go on indefinitely because it raises the price of imported necessities.

The labor-type government is devoted to the principle of a directed economy. It figures that available capital should be directed into the industries which the country most needs. It results in too much government interference in business and too slow a government. You have to have too many permits to do too many things, and it takes too long to get a permit.

Another danger in Mexico's present economic status is the delicate nature of the tourist trade. Tourist dollars are essential to the country, but the tourist trade could be cut off overnight.

Proof of the fugitive nature of the tourist business came several years ago. Mexico, during a polio epidemic in the United States, ordered all tourists to show medical certificates proving they had not been exposed. The flow of tourists was cut by one third within three days, because tourists figured it was too much trouble to get the certificate. Mexico hastily rescinded the order and the business went back to its normal proportions.

Costly Process Involved in Converting Lignite —'Socialist City' to Be Nearby.

By DAVID M. NICHOL
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

BONN, Sept. 10—A mammoth new industrial project, of the type dear to the hearts of Communist planners, is beginning to take shape in the southeast corner of the Soviet zone of Germany near Hoyerswerda.

The installation, to be called the "schwarze pumpe," literally "the black pump," takes its name from an isolated guest house on the road between Hoyerswerda and Spremberg. The name is fitting in more ways than one.

The "schwarze pumpe" will be devoted to the making of industrial coke from the brown coal or lignite that is Eastern Germany's principal natural resource. Power, gas and important by-products for East Germany's chemical industry will also be produced, according to the planners.

In more normal times when no Iron Curtain divided Germany in two, what is now the Soviet zone drew its coke from the hard coal riches of the Ruhr valley in Western Germany.

Now, at enormous expense, processes have been developed for making coke from the cheaper brown coal to supply the East zone's artificial steel industry. The cost of the "schwarze pumpe" itself is referred to only as "billions" of East marks, nominally worth about four to one dollar.

Preliminary work began early this month at the site about 12 miles north of Hoyerswerda. Actual construction of the plant is scheduled to begin next July and its three sections will come into operation, according to the planners, in 1961, 1962 and 1963.

The project was foreshadowed by a decision of the Communist party's Fourth Congress early in 1954 that East Germany's "energy base" must be broadened. It has now been made one of the principal projects of the second five-year plan which begins in 1956.

In addition to the plant itself, the program calls for construction of a new "Socialist city," the second in East Germany, in which there will be no private business or private ownership of land.

The first was a hastily-erected settlement called Stalinstadt on the Oder river near Fuerstenberg to house the workers of a vast new foundry and mill. The planners admit now that they made some mistakes.

The new effort, they say, will be better.

It will be located across the Elster river from the present city of Hoyerswerda. One thousand dwellings will be made available in the old city. Presumbaly, their present inhabitants will simply be turned out. The city now has a population of only about 7000.

Another 7000 dwellings will be built in the new city and Hoyerswerda in 10 years time is expected to have 27,000 inhabitants.

Among other features it is scheduled to have a "high house," or skyscraper to offset the sixteenth century palace in the old city. Moscow has given up the building of "high houses," but the East German planners seem to be undeterred.

Much was made at the formalities early this month of the claim that this was "people's property" which never would revert to private ownership or control. Among the participants were two units of the armed "workers' militia," Communist-led groups which are being set up to "protect the people's property."

These are in addition to the army formations which continue to be called "people's police."

TWO-PARTY SYSTEM SHAKEN IN TURKEY

Prime Minister Has Muzzled Press, Used Dictatorial Methods.

Copyright, 1955, the London Observer.

INSTANBUL, Sept. 10 — Turkish democracy and its two-party system are being shaken by the activities of Prime Minister Adnan Menderes.

Menderes has not only tried to silence the opposition, but has even expelled a deputy of his own Democratic party for having made remarks displeasing to him.

Opposition meetings have been either forbidden or dissolved before the speaker had a chance to state his views. The few who did manage to carry on were prosecuted later for alleged derogatory remarks regarding the Prime Minister, the Cabinet or the Parliament.

The troubled domestic scene was stirred with the arrest in mid-August of Kasim Gulek, secretary-general of the People's party, the largest opposition party in the Turkish Grand National Assembly.

Although Gulek was held only three days on charges of making derogatory remarks about the government, his imprisonment served to focus the Turks' attention on their arbitrary government.

An intimate collaborator of Kemal Ataturk, the late founder of modern Turkey, Gulek said, "This is the end of all attempts at developing Western democracy and freedom of speech as initiated by Ataturk when he introduced the two-party system in Turkey. Mr. Menderes is putting the clock back to the black days of police terror under the dictatorship of Sultan Abdul Hamid II."

Reaction has set in against the Menderes methods in his own party.

Ten Government party deputies, in spite of Menderes's protests, have prepared a bill for the next session of the National Assembly relaxing the Prime Minister's press libel law. This law, during the past year, has muzzled the Turkish press and led to the sentencing for "press crimes" of more than 30 prominent Turkish journalists.

Many followers of the Democratic party believe Menderes is acting from fear. He is unable to control the economic crisis which his over-ambitious economic development schemes have brought about, and he resents criticism.

St. Louis University Orientation For Freshmen Starts Tomorrow

School Beginning Its 138th Year—Upperclassmen to Register Wednesday, Thursday.

About 850 new students will begin freshman orientation at St. Louis University tomorrow, marking the start of the school's 138th year.

The orientation schedule will include lectures, aptitude tests, conferences with counselors and social activities, which will be highlighted by the crowning of a "Freshman Queen" at 10:15 p. m. Wednesday in the university auditorium.

Registration for freshmen in the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Commerce and Finance, Institute of Technology and Nursing School will take place at 1 p. m. Thursday in the gymnasium.

Upperclassmen will register in the gymnasium from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday. Students who will attend classes on Saturdays only will sign up between 8:30 a. m. and noon Saturday in Du-Bourg Hall.

Classes will start Monday, Sept. 19.

Registration for evening classes will be from 7 to 9 o'clock nightly, Monday through Friday, Sept. 19-23. Students in the College of Arts and Sciences and the Institute of Technology will report to Du-Bourg Hall. School of Commerce and Finance registration will be in the commerce and finance lounge.

The university's adult education division will hold registration tomorrow through Friday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at 3670 West Pine boulevard.

Classes will begin the week of Sept. 18, with each class meeting from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock one night a week for eight weeks.

Fontbonne College, which is affiliated with the university, will start a two-day orientation program for freshmen and other new students Thursday at its campus in Clayton. Registration for all students will be Saturday, and classes will start Monday, Sept. 19. Sister Anne Edward Quinn has been appointed registrar.

PUBS ON WANE, SOME ARE DRIVEN TO SOFT DRINKS

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP) — Britain's social revolution is catching up with the pubs.

Treasured landmarks are vanishing in the country's general prosperity and faster tempo. The government is concerned. During the past year nearly 400 pubs — or inns, as some are known—have been tabbed for preservation because of historic or architectural importance. These buildings cannot be altered without official authorization.

For centuries the pub has been a neighborhood club—a place to visit and argue as well as to drink. But the atmosphere is changing.

There are 73,422 pubs in England and Wales—fewer in proportion to population than the 24,000 in the time of Queen Elizabeth I 300 years ago.

The nightly gatherings for drink and talk are fading away. Television, more automobiles and coffee bars are largely responsible, along with rising costs for upkeep.

Brewers own most of the pubs. They are taking drastic measures. Several have installed special soft drink bars, some now sell ice cream. One brewer is working up a side trade in packaged groceries.

SAIGH SAYS POLICY WAS CONSERVATIVE

Ex-President of Cardinals Explains Basis for U.S. Tax Claim.

The St. Louis Cardinals baseball organization was operated on a financially conservative basis when Fred M. Saigh was president, he said yesterday in a statement concerning tax litigation between himself and the Internal Revenue Service.

Saigh has asked the United States Tax Court in Washington to redetermine back taxes and penalties against him and his wife amounting to $19,785. The court also was asked to redetermine a government claim of $12,217 against the Cardinal organization.

"The government's claim against me and my wife," Saigh said, "is based on a difference of opinion. My financial affairs were in the hands of a national auditing firm which advised me that if I filed my final return by Jan. 15, an estimate (of income for the next year was unnecessary. The Government differed and that is the issue to be tried (in court).

"If the $19,785 claim is upheld, then I would be paying for the mistake of the auditing firm."

Concerning $2000 paid to Saigh by the Cardinals as "scouting expenses," he said, "I signed dozens of players while president of the Cardinals. The $2000 was no doubt paid to some player for his signature. The money did not reach my pocket."

The Government's claim of $12,217 against the Cardinals includes scouting expense items which Government tax experts claim should be on the income tax returns of some of the farm teams and not on the Cardinals' return, Saigh said.

Other items the Government disputes as legitimate expenses are $1082 for a party for sports writers of St. Louis, New York and Brooklyn, he continued, a bill from Stix Baer & Fuller department store for a silver service for Stan Musial and $1500 for an original portrait of Musial.

Saigh, who served six months of a 15-month sentence for income tax evasion, said if his expenses "are compared with those of any other president or a National league baseball club owner, it will be found that the Cardinals were the most conservative of all."

AGE OF WONDERS BASED ON METAL BELIEVED NEAR Wall Television, Space Travel, Automatic Factories Are Predicted.

By EARL UBELL
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10—An extremely pure metal makes possible a wristwatch radio. A rare metal is responsible for the development of useful power from the atom. An alloy of metals able to withstand high temperature sends a jet plane streaking across the nation.

These are only forerunners of a new and great age of metals now on the industrial horizon. That age will see wall television, truly automatic factories, refrigerators without refrigerants, space travel and wonders beyond the imagination.

In perhaps 20 years, names like zirconium, silicon, germanium, berylium, titanium, lithium and sodium will fall as easily on the tongue as copper, nickel and chromium do today. Industry will look back on our present era of steel and aluminum as somewhat primitive.

These possibilities were on the minds this week of the metals scientists who moved into General Electric's new $5,000,000 laboratory at Schenectady, N.Y., devoted to metals and ceramics.

Began in 19th Century.

The growth of metallurgy started in the last quarter of the Nineteenth Century with improved methods of smelting copper, zinc and other metals and the development of a primitive knowledge of alloys. In general, metallurgy was directed toward the obvious use of metals: Steel for strength, aluminum for lightness, copper for electrical conduction, chromium for shine, tin for plating and cobalt, nickel, tungsten, manganese for alloying.

Less than 100 years ago most of the metals produced were either in negligible amounts or in the several-thousand-ton range. Today world production is in millions of tons of each kind of those early metals.

Now scientists are looking into the curious properties of metals. They want to know, for example, how they conduct electricity and how to adapt those special conducting properties to new devices.

There is a whole class of metals, including gallium, indium, silicon and germanium which have the property of being partial conductors of electricity. Purified to a high degree by special electrical and vacuum melting processes, they have been turned into an amazing series of devices called transistors.

Transistor Described.

These transistors, which are no bigger than a hound's tooth, have the ability to do almost everything that an ordinary radio tube can do, plus having the advantage of using very little electric power. As soon as the mass production problems of these devices are worked out, you may expect to see:

Miniature television sets, wristwatch radios, every home protected against fire with an alarm system, automatically driven automobiles on automatic highways, telephone systems run on solar electrical power and telephones without dials or operators.

Besides the transistors, there are a group of metal compounds known as ferrites, which, in the shape of doughnuts, can remember electrical signals. Such devices, which are about as big as transistors, can form the memories and working elements of the huge electrical computers necessary to operate automatic factories, keep track of business inventories, run defense radar systems, solve Army logistics problems.

Special alloys of copper, which grow cool when electricity is passed through them, have been suggested for refrigerators. Now in the development stage are such cooling devices. The advantage would be the absence of poisonous refrigerants and the ability to disperse a refrigerating system throughout a house without costly and cumbersome refrigerating tubes and compression motors.

High temperature alloys have opened up the era of jet travel. They may form the basic structure of space ships. At present, there are scores of high temperature alloys which use metals which were comparatively unknown 20 years ago.

Role in Atomic Energy.

But it is in the atomic energy field that metallurgy has seen and will see its greatest tests. The design of a nuclear reactor requires rare metals of the highest purity and in considerable quantity. Berylium, zirconium and molbydenum are just three of the more useful ones.

The reason for the rare metal use is that the nuclear reactor is sensitive to certain metals which absorb neutrons, those atomic particles that make uranium split and release its energy. Berylium, zirconium and molbydenum are metals which do not absorb neutrons and therefore can be used in the structural elements of the reactor.

In addition a whole new metallurgy has been developed for handling the metals that are made radioactive in an atomic pile and cannot be approached by human beings. Plutonium, a completely man-made metal, must be handled at the end of a 10-foot pole behind a lead wall.

It seems clear now that the whole economics of atomic energy rests on metallurgy: The ability to create the right structural metals, to handle radioactive metals and remove and refashion the fuel for reactors. In fact, certain nuclear reactors are now under design which are in themselves complete metallurgical units and have been created to cheapen the metallurgical process and nothing else.

In spite of this growing role of metallurgy, the number of young men entering the field has dropped about three-quarters of 1 per cent each year since 1953. In 1950 only 5 per cent of the 520,000 professional enginneers in the nation were in metallurgy and mining. About 2.3 per cent of the engineers graduated this year will enter the field and next year it will be 1.6 per cent.

DEMOCRATS FEEL SURE OF KEEPING CONGRESS GRIP

Majority of 1952 Delegates Answering in Poll Expect to Gain in Senate.

By CHARLES B. CLEVELAND
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10—While Democrats look for a tough fight for the presidency, they are confident of retaining control of Congress next year.

Thirty-six per cent of the 1641 delegates to the 1952 Democratic national convention have replied to a Chicago Daily News poll.

Sixty-four per cent of those replying said they believe the Democrats will win their home districts for Congress. They are confident of re-electing Democrats to 15 of the Senate seats at stake and expect to defeat some of the 17 Republicans who will be up for re-election next year.

Outlook by States.

Here, in the opinion of the delegates replying to the poll, is the outlook for the Senate races:

California—About half give the Democrats a good or excellent chance of unseating Senator Kuchel (Rep.); half rate their chances as only fair or poor.

Colorado—Eight out of 11 replying think they can defeat Senator Milliken (Rep.).

Connecticut — Delegates are optimistic about winning the seat of Senator Bush (Rep.)

Idaho—Delegates are evenly split on their chances against Senator Welker (Rep.).

Illinois—Democrats are confident of defeating Senator Dirksen (Rep.).

Indiana—Evenly divided on the outlook against Senator Capehart (Rep.).

Iowa—A tossup on Senator Hickenlooper (Rep.).

Maryland — Delegates confident of unseating Senator Butler (Rep.).

Ohio—Democrats are optimistic in their second try against Senator Bender (Rep.).

Pennsylvania—Twenty out of 26 delegates replying believe they will defeat Senator Duff (Rep.), however, a number noted that tax policies of Gov. Leader (Dem.), are unpopular and have hurt the party's chances.

Utah—Democrats are hopeful against Senator Bennett (Rep.).

Wisconsin — Opinion was about evenly split on unseating Senator Wiley (Rep.).

Little Hope in 5 Races.

Democrats give themselves only an outside chance of defeating Republican Senators Carlson of Kansas, Cotton of New Hampshire, Young of North Dakota, Case of South Dakota, and Aiken of Vermont.

They are confident of retaining their seats in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina and Washington.

The Oregon seat is now held by Wayne Morse, who switched from Republican to Independent to Democrat during the Eisenhower Administration.

Here is the breakdown of the delegates' choice for President:

Stevenson—38.5 per cent.
Kefauver—23 per cent.
Russell—12 per cent.
Harriman—11 per cent.
Others—15.5 per cent.

'WRITING FOR ARTISTS' NEW COURSE AT WASHINGTON U.

"Writing for Artists," a new English composition course of a kind believed offered nowhere else, will begin this fall under the auspices of University College, extension division of Washington University, Acting Dean Earnest Brandenburg announced yesterday.

Registration for all courses in the division, about 350 in all, will be Sept. 19 through 24. Classes will start the week of Sept. 26. Classes in the new course will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:10 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. The instructor will be Howard Derrickson, a Post-Dispatch reporter, formerly a full-time member of the university English department.

Discussion will center on contemporary thought in the field, new books and exhibits, student-artists' statements of their aims and proposed execution of commissions and the writing of publicity material about artists, exhibits and the teaching of art. Enrollment is limited.

MALAY APES BACK IN TREES, TOO BIG FOR POLIO VACCINE

SINGAPORE, Sept. 10 (AP) —The monkey business in Malaya is bad.

The reason is that Malayan monkeys generally weigh over 6 pounds, and Indian monkeys, averaging 3 to 6 pounds, have been found more suitable for making anti-polio vaccine. Dealers had gathered up thousands, hoping to sell them in the United States.

One monkey business man now has turned loose 1000 in the Johore state jungle where they originated.

PEIPING STEPS UP EFFORTS TO WOO MOSLEMS

Follows Earlier Program Seeking to Build Ties With Buddhists of South Asia.

By ALBERT RAVENHOLT

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

HONG KONG, Sept. 10—The Chinese Communists are making energetic efforts to win friends and influence in the Moslem world.

This new emphasis in Peiping's foreign policy follows an earlier program of seeking to build ties with the Buddhist peoples of South and East Asia.

Both of these programs capitalize on the presence in China of important communities of Moslems and Buddhists of many schools, such as the Tibetan and Mongolian lamas and the Chuan Buddhists who have much in common with Zen Buddhism in Japan. The aim apparently is to present the Communists as the protector of Asian culture. The targets of this new approach are the populous Mohammedan lands of Indonesia, Pakistan, the Middle East, Egypt and Africa.

Mecca Pilgrimage.

In July 19 prominent imams and other Moslem leaders left Kunming, China, by air for Mecca to make their pilgrimage. They included Imir Makhdum who is the vice chairman of the China Islamic Association and leaders of the Uighur and other minority peoples of Chinese central Asia.

At the same time Peiping was host to delegates to the world peace assembly from Lebanon, Iraq, Syria, Sudan and Jordan. They were received and entertained by Burhan, who heads the China Islamic Association and has been a key figure in arranging acceptance of the Chinese Communists by the often nomadic Moslems in the deep hinterland. Apparently, the Middle Eastern delegates were given the full treatment, including conducted tours and speeches intended to persuade them that Mao Tse-tung and his followers were really protectors of the Mohammedan faith.

The estimated 60,000,000 Moslems in Indonesia have been a special interest of the Peiping Government. The Moslem-run Masjumi party is the most powerful single political organization in Indonesia and the principal obstacle to the extension of the fast-growing Communist party there.

Many Indonesians have been invited to Communist China on cultural and sport missions and through other devices. The limited information coming out from the mainland indicates that while trying to sell the new order to these visitors the Chinese Communists have been particularly anxious to persuade them that Chinese Mohammedans were well off.

Special Concessions.

Internally, the Chinese Communists have made numerous special concessions for the Moslems whom Peiping numbers at about 10,000,000 although earlier estimates indicated there were twice that number.

By classifying the Mohammedans as members of "national minorities" they have exempted them from many harsh features of the Communist-engineered revolution.

The Mohammedans have been permitted to keep more property than ordinary Chinese.

Ancient cultural customs including the practice of a man taking several wives have been tolerated for much longer than among the Han or Chinese, who compose the great bulk of the population.

Despite this relatively tender treatment, the Chinese Moslems have been quick to resist the new rule. Some of the best organized and bloodiest revolts the Red army has put down in the last five years have been led by Moslems in northwest China.

Peiping's new moves now to win Moslem friendship abroad are essentially tactical. Although the Chinese Communists on paper guarantee religious freedom, in practice they are scornful of non-materials faiths. The approaches being made to the Mohammedan world are directly linked to the Chinese Communist bid for more leverage to use on the international scene.

South Korean Capital Still Shows No Symptoms of Recovery

Seoul Depressing — War-Ravaged, It Is Dirty, Overcrowded—Main Thoroughfare in Need of Repair.

By MURRAY FROMSON

SEOUL, Sept. 10 (AP)—The little boy with the runny nose corners the waiting American. "Shoeshines? I give number one shoeshine!" he says.

The American turns away, only to be accosted by an elderly woman with a baby strapped to her back. Pleadingly, with hands outstretched, she asks, "Money, money . . ." In a barely audible voice.

Encounters like this used to take place in front of Seoul's PX, or the Victorian Central Station where G.I.s rode the "Eusak Express" between Seoul and Pusan. Since the war, only the locale has changed.

Now they occur daily in front of the plush Bando hotel, Mecca for foreign business men and the new social center of town.

This is Seoul—war ravaged, dirty, odor filled and alive with humanity. It has not changed much since the day the Marines first marched back through its smoked filled streets in September 1950, to recapture it from the Communists.

Hopeless Task.

The shoeshine boy and the old woman perhaps are not representative of Seoul or Korea itself. They do capture the one impression that is inescapable, even for old time foreign residents here: Seoul is depressing.

Trying to find hope for better things in Seoul is almost a hopeless task.

There was much talk when the fighting stopped two years ago that Seoul would be rebuilt, that the once paved streets and semi-modernistic buildings would be repaired, but it has been mostly talk.

Seoul's population has swelled to about 1,500,000 according to unofficial estimates. More people come every day by oxcarts and small trucks. They tear up the already beaten roads so that it always feels like a ride in wartime—even on the main thoroughfare. The Koreans watched the army fix roads in the war. Now they patch, patch, patch and it is hard to tell them that this is not the way to fix a road permanently.

Off the roads, life goes on in countless thousands of paper shacks and mud huts.

It is a difficult life. Korean workers, who may have to support a family of six or seven persons, find it almost impossible to pay an exorbitant rent and provide the monthly rice staple too.

A spiraling inflation has gripped all of Korea and in Seoul, where the cost of living is even higher, the burden is heavy. However, there is another side to the street in Seoul—for shrewd business men, politicians and foreigners who have the money.

Dancing Illegal.

Public dancing is illegal in South Korea and President Syngman Rhee has continually called for an austerity program for his people which calls for less entertainment and more buckling down.

Yet there are two thriving night clubs in Seoul that exist on dancing and drinking. They have been operating for 16 months.

Drinks are high priced and so are the girls who will sit at a table with a customer for about five dollars. Americans, who once frequented these places in great numbers, have turned their backs on both clubs and now look to the Bando. This modern, government-subsidized hotel, refurbished at a cost (said to be $1,200,000) offers a Sunday night dance in an atmosphere far more pleasing than the Korean night clubs. "Ki-sang" girls, equivalent to Japanese geisha, do a big business—which is kept alive by party-loving Korean business men and their foreign guests.

This gay life is only for a few. Just existing is the preoccupation of most Koreans. The war took away many things and trying to replace them has been the big job.

Americans helped put Seoul back on its feet transportation-wise. Old streetcars were contributed by Atlanta and St. Louis. Busses were turned over by the American Korean foundation and now travel the Seoul-Inchon route.

NEW PERMANENT PAKISTAN CAPITAL

Gadap Chosen for Climate and Health Considerations.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

KARACHI, Sept. 10—Gadap, where the new permanent capital of Pakistan will be established, was selected on the basis of climate, health considerations, communications and the possibilities of future expansion.

A committee of experts, appointed by the Pakistani assembly and the central government, selected Gadap after considering numerous other sites and hearing the pleas of the various localities.

The new site—about 25 miles from the center of the present capital of Karachi—is 471 feet above sea level on a rising plain of 50 square miles. The humidity there averages about 53 per cent as compared with 78 for Karachi. Four miles to the southeast of the center of the new area is a hill about a half mile in length and 570 feet in height which may provide an imposing site for the houses of parliament and other public buildings.

In the eastern part of the area run two rivulets and the soil is adaptable to truck farming which should supply a large part of vegetables for the new capital's residents.

Actually Gadap will be a part of Greater Karachi, portions of the present capital extending about 18 miles toward the new federal area.

Karachi covers an area of 812 square miles and had a population of 1,126,417 when the 1951 census was taken. Today the figure is estimated at 1,500,000.

From 1941 to 1951 Karachi's population increased 158 per cent.

The development of the new federal area at Gadap will ease congestion in Karachi and provide an appreciable contrast between its green landscape and the sultry desert atmosphere of the old capital.

COURSE ON MASS FEEDING WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

An instruction course on mass feeding will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. tomorrow through Thursday and at 8 a.m. Saturday at the St. Louis County Health Center, 620 Brentwood boulevard, Clayton, it was announced yesterday.

The course, sponsored by the Women's Council of Civil Defense of St. Louis county, will include a demonstration of food preparation and construction of outdoor cooking ovens.

Instruction will be given by members of the St. Louis County Health Department under the direction of John Sullivan, member of the department's staff.

NEW ACCIDENT-FREE MARK SET BY ORDNANCE PLANT

A record of more than 5,000,000 man-hours worked without a lost time accident has been compiled at the United States Defense Corp., operator of the ammunition division of the St. Louis Ordnance Plant, it was announced yesterday.

Lt. Col. J. H. Bash, commanding officer, and B. E. Bassett, general manager, said this record makes the corporation eligible for the National Safety Council's award of honor. It is the third successive year the corporation has qualified for the award.

STUDY HABITS FOR ADULTS TOPIC OF 2 CAMPUS TALKS

Effective study habits for adults planning to take courses in University College, Washington University's extension division, will be discussed in special sessions beginning tomorrow and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Brown Hall Auditorium.

"Planning Work and Study Programs" will be the topic of Kingsley Wientge, the division's adult counseling director, who will speak at tomorrow night's meeting. On Tuesday, Acting University College Dean Earnest Brandenburg will speak on "Effective Study and Work Habits."

Individual students' problems will be discussed at both meetings, which will end at 9 p.m. Classes begin the week of Sept. 26, with registration scheduled for the Sept. 19 through 24.

THOMAS JEFFERSON SCHOOL OPENS 10TH YEAR TOMORROW

Thomas Jefferson School, a private school for boys, will begin its tenth year tomorrow with a capacity enrollment of 33 boarding students and eight day students.

The school, Lindbergh boulevard and Robyn road, Sappington, will have a student body composed of boys from 12 states, Alaska and Italy.

Four new faculty members will begin there this year. They are: Mrs. Dawes Potter, who will teach English and mathematics; John Graham, ancient history and French; Henry Whittier, English and American history, and William Cox, Latin and Greek.

LIGHT ENGINEER HONORED

C. Carter Lewis, chief illumination engineer for Union Electric Co., will receive a certificate of election as a Fellow of the Illuminating Engineering Society at its national technical conference tomorrow in Cleveland.

Lewis, who also is commercial sales manager for the St. Louis firm, was elected with 11 other society members. Of the organization's 8492 members, 78 are Fellows.

JUNIOR C. OF C. TAKING MEN OF YEAR NOMINATIONS

The St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce is receiving nominations for the annual competition in which 10 outstanding young men of the year are chosen nationally, it announced yesterday.

Men over 21 years of age and under 36 are eligible. Selection of a St. Louisan for the national contest will be based on talent and initiative, and the man's contribution to his work and community welfare.

Nominees and a summary of their qualifications should be sent to the awards committee, 224 North Broadway, no later than Sept. 24.

PERSIANS BUY GERMAN RUGS

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 10 (AP)—Executives of the annual fall international trade fair here have been astonished to find Iranian buyers ordering thousands of dollars worth of German rugs, most of modern design. The explanation offered was that the rugs of Oriental design for which Iran is noted have become too expensive for its average householder and imported ones are cheaper.

Wardoc Just Another Name For The Jones Boys Here

Wardoc, said Walter Lerch, is just another name for the Jones boys. They've been going by that name quite awhile now, in fact ever since they started building homes around the St. Louis area and formed a company to carry on.

The name, Wardoc Construction Co., is a compound of the first name of one and a nickname of another of the Jones boys, Lerch said. "War" comes from Warren, that's one of the Jones boys, and "Doc" is the nickname of the other. Put together, the names have served very well as a trade style, for the company has been going strong now for 30 years in University City, Webster Manor, and Valley View.

As a rule, Wardoc has built luxury type homes. The Wardoc home for display during National Home Week is in a new subdivision in an area of luxury living . . . the big little city of Town and Country.

The home is No. 1 Clayton Estates, a subdivision on the south side of Clayton road, three-tenths of a mile west of Bopp road.

The house has seven rooms, is done in a contemporary ranch styling, but with top-quality materials and workmanship, as well as design. The foundation walls are 12-inch thick poured concrete, on wider footings.

A club, or playroom, is finished with cork tile flooring. Cork tile has higher resilience than some other floor coverings, will take a high polish, too.

Walls are of brick, with wet plaster interior finish and some wood panel finish. Interior decoration has been engineered by professional decorators.

This home is a big one, with 2032 square feet of floor space, is on a lot of more than one acre.

Oil-fired forced air heating has been installed, with output capacity of 115,000 B.T.U. Insulation and fans have been installed.

Hot water is from an 82-gallon electric heater. Baths have over-tub showers. Floors are oak in all areas, save kitchen and bath, where linoleum and ceramic tile are used, and in the clubroom.

The kitchen is completely equipped.

PAPER AND PAINT

If your walls are now papered and you wish to paint over the wallpaper, make sure the paper is adhering firmly at all points. If it is, it's probably safe to go ahead and paint. But before you do, make a test application on a square yard or so of the papered wall area. This will tell you if the coloring matter in the paper bleeds into the paint, if embossed patterns show through or, if the paint loosens the paper.

If any of these things happens, you had better remove the wallpaper with a steamer, then wash off any paste that remains with warm water. Any cracks you discover should, of course, be filled.

Luxury Home in Clayton Estates Subdivision

This is the luxury-styled ranch home in Clayton Estates, south side of Clayton road between Bopp and Ballas roads, being built by the Wardoc Construction Co.

Luxury Styled Home in Cricklewood

Finished just in time to serve as the display house for National Home Week is this residence in Cricklewood, the English-named subdivision of the L. John Moresi Realty & Building company, on the south side of Clayton road just west of Geyer road. It's a big house.

Cricklewood Subdivision Named as One in England

The L. John Moresi Realty & Construction Co. has selected as the name of it's newest subdivision—being opened formally today in connection with the beginning of National Home Week—the name of a suburb of Southampton, on the road to Winchester, in England. The name is Cricklewood. It recalls fond memories, memories with romantic overtones, to a younger member of the construction company who spent some time there while in the armed services.

The Cricklewood of this area, however, is not on the Winchester road, but on the Clayton road, on the south side of it, to be exact, beginning about 600 feet west of Geyer road, in Frontenac. It is an historic tract of land, all the same, having been held by one family for many years. It was purchased, before subdividing, from the widow of Otto Greater, who started farming there before the Civil War.

The street in the subdivision has been called Cricklewood place. It is blacktop finished.

A major part of the 28-acre tract lies in the "Two Mile Creek" sewer district and homes in that district will have sanitary sewer connections. Some of the homes, not in the sewer district, will be equipped with county approved septic tanks.

For the National Home Week demonstration, Moresi has graced a 161 by 265 foot section of the ground with a home that is a true colonial adaptation of modern living. The home was designed by George Hayden.

Began As a Graduate.

The one-story residence, definitely in the luxury class, has seven rooms, three of which are bedrooms. There are two baths and a lavette, and the basement garage can accommodate two automobiles.

The elder Moresi, who has been building homes now for 39 years, has constructed them in all parts of the city and county. He says you can't stay in the business that long unless you do a good job at it.

It was always Moresi's desire to be a part of the permanent building progress of St. Louis, and with that in mind when he finished school, he took his first step to realize that ambition. He's never regretted it.

As is done in most luxury-type homes, Moresi has built in a room that is devoted to recreation hours of the entire family. In the Cricklewood home he calls it the "activity" room.

The interior of the home is decorated in a discreetly planned combination of wallpaper and paint. Pains have been taken to decorate each room so that it complements an adjoining area. All walls are lath and plaster finished.

The 3200 square feet of floor space in the house are covered by carefully selected coverings. The activity room has a terrazzo finish, bath has ceramic tile and the kitchen has linoleum. All other rooms in the home have hardwood flooring.

Virtually loaded with modern servants, the kitchen in the Cricklewood home has almost every appliance that the present day homemaker desires. There's a gas range, an electric refrigerator, and a garbage disposal with water flow switch. In addition, the home is equipped with automatic washer and dryer.

Heating and cooling the home is the job of a combined unit with a BTU output of 125,000. There's an automatic gas water heater, too.

Heat Controls Are Decorative

You may have a hard time finding the thermostats in some of the homes being displayed during National Home Week. But that will be because they are the latest in heating and air-conditioning regulators.

Round thermostats have now been introduced by one of the leading regulator companies, and are designed so that they may be either painted or papered to match interior decor.

In addition, the new thermostat controls are geared to handle both heating-cooling systems and those which provide cooling alone.

Dust-proof, sealed-in, mercury switch electrical contacts guarantee performance that is as trouble-free as the new thermostats are decorative.

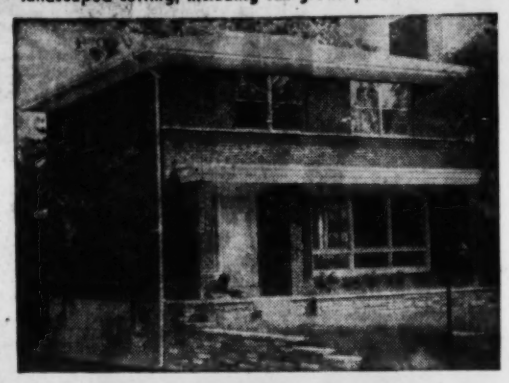

IT'S EASY TO PANEL.

Lumber manufacturers have made it easy for today's home owners to do their own wood paneling with either solid lumber, which comes in tongue and groove boards, or plywood panels. Both are easy to install and are available in a wide price range.

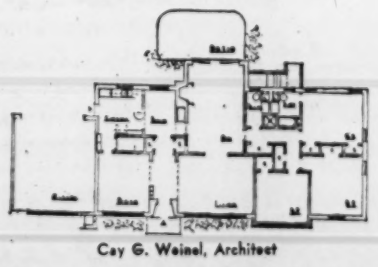

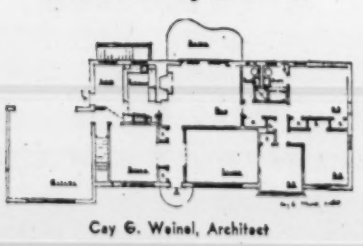

More and more lumber yards are offering wood for home jobs in softwood and hardwood boards and softwood and hardwood plywood, thus giving the home owner a variety of species from which to select for his do-it-yourself job.

WOOD GOOD INSULATOR.

Wood is a cozy material—warm in winter, cool in summer. According to the Forest Products Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture, wood siding helps to keep the interiors of homes cooler in summer yet has nearly 25 per cent less heat loss in cold weather than other types of exterior finishes.

Mayor Tucker Proclaims Home Week Here

National Home Week Chairman

Smiling his pleasure at the success of National Home week, assured in advance by the extensive participation of members of the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis, is Clarence Wilson, chairman for the year's observance of the occasion. Wilson, developer of Glasgow Village, has, of course, a display home in his own subdivision for National Home Week.

BRUSHING HOW-TO

Use semi-circular strokes when you're painting a wall with a brush. When you're within six inches of a window or door frame, work with vertical strokes to within one inch of the frame. Then turn your brush sideways and finish with long, steady strokes.

League Sees Loan Money 'Plentiful'

The supply of home mortgage credit, although a bit tighter than at the start of 1955, will be ample to finance a high level of building and buying through the remainder of the year, J. Howard Edgerton, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, said yesterday.

In a statement issued in connection with the start of National Home Week, Edgerton said that prospective home buyers with moderate down payments and the ability to pay off their mortgages in a reasonable number of years, would experience little difficulty in obtaining home financing.

The league official described as a "myth" statements by some groups that there is a shortage of home mortgage credit.

Approves Tightening.

"There is plenty of mortgage money available," said Edgerton. "The only complaints come from those who seek to provide or achieve home ownership without a down payment requirement, or on mortgage terms that extend over an excessively long period of years."

And he also expressed the belief that the national Administration was correct when it recently boosted down payments on FHA and G.I. loans by 2 per cent, and shortened the length of these mortgages from 30 to 25 years.

"These mild restrictions actually will serve to help American families who are planning to buy homes, since they will work against rising building costs and the higher housing prices that result," said Edgerton.

The league president pointed out that families do themselves no favor when they buy homes with no money down and on the longest possible terms.

Urges Privilege Clause.

"The smaller the down payment is, and the longer the term of the mortgage, the more the home buying family will have to pay in interest and the longer time will be required to build up an equity," he said.

By way of illustration, Edgerton pointed out that on a $10,000 mortgage loan, a home buyer with a 20-year loan would have paid off nearly $4000 of the principal in 10 years. In contrast, the buyer with a 30-year loan would have paid off little more than half that amount.

Edgerton also strongly urged families who are planning to buy homes this fall to secure home mortgages with a full "prepayment privilege." Under this plan, the borrower may pay as far ahead on his mortgage as he wishes.

"In these years, when prosperity is general and incomes are high, families will be well-advised to take advantage of the prepayment privilege," he declared. "This insures protection in future years when the family income may decline, because of illness or any of a variety of problems that can trouble a family."

GROWING EVERYWHERE

Urban and rural populations of the United States are increasing at approximately the same rate, the Census Bureau reported recently, according to a story in the weekly news letter of the National Association of real Estate Boards. Between April, 1950, and April, 1954, the rural civilian population increased by 6.3 per cent, and the corresponding figure for urban civilian population was 5.6 per cent.

WOOD LIKES PAINT

Keep your wood painted and it will withstand the ravages of weather indefinitely. Unpainted wood, however, actually wears away at the rate of about a quarter inch per hundred years.

Loans Not Quite So Plentiful

The supply of mortgage money is not quite so plentiful as it was, and terms for financing a home are not so easy as they have been in the last few years, nevertheless this is still one of the best times in American history to purchase a home, Wallace Moir, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, and president, Wallace Moir Company, Beverly Hills, Calif., said in a National Home Week statement.

"Mortgage money has tightened since early this year and will become even tighter in the months ahead, due in part to the great demands from industry and other sectors of the economy for capital funds.

"Terms and rates are not so easy as they have been. An increase of 2 per cent in Federal Housing Administration down-payments has been made and minimum down-payments of 2 per cent instituted for Veterans Administration loans, thus eliminating the no down-payment loan. The excessively long 30-year loan has been abolished.

Ought to Have Equity.

"These measures help rather than hurt the home buyer today because they give him an equity in his VA home—and with FHA, a more substantial equity. Every home buyer ought to have an equity in the home he buys. The shorter maturities mean less costly financing and this step away from the excessively easy mortgage financing of the past strengthens our economy at a time when it was needed.

"By all standards of the past, except those of the last two years, the modern facilities offered to the prospective home buyer, including terms and costs are more in his favor than they have ever been before. Add to that the fact that the house which today's builder is offering incorporates the results of great technological improvement, modern functional design and advanced features of livability, and the wise home buyer may well conclude that he will make no mistake in purchasing today."

Rates Are Steady.

"Nationally," Moir said, "the mortgage market has tightened considerably during 1955 with institutional lenders of all kinds scrutinizing offerings more carefully and insisting on conservative mortgages with adequate down-payments and no excessively long maturities. Rates have changed little so far, but with the continued tighter money market, this condition cannot be expected to remain indefinitely.

"It is certain, however," Moir said, "that the supply of mortgage money over the next 12 months will be ample to meet all legitimate financing needs.

San Fernando Homes Have Varied Sizes

Almost every family should find the type of home and proper price range in San Fernando Hills in Florissant or St. Charles Borromeo Hills in St. Charles. Both subdivisions are being developed by Charles F. Vatterott and Co.

There are various floor plans in each development and the prices range from low to upper middle bracket.

Exterior walls are of brick veneer and/or frame, and foundations are of reinforced concrete. Interior walls are finished in oil paint in a new swirl design.

All the homes have cut stone sills, full-length screens, storm doors front and back and Philippine mahogany doors. They also have gas heat and automatic hot water heaters. Copper plumbing is used throughout along with certified adequate wiring.

San Fernando Hills can be reached by going out Graham road for five blocks north of Highway 66. A display house is at 50 St. Walter lane.

St. Charles Borromeo can be found by following the signs after crossing the Missouri river bridge and turning right at the first cross street. Display homes are located at 2201 and 2207 Park avenue, near Blanchette park.

Here are the floor plans available in San Fernando Hills:

The Balboa—Design provides for spacious living, particularly the large comfortable kitchen plus many more desirable features usually found in more expensive homes.

The Santa Monica—Convenient, versatile and compact; built so that it may be used as a three-bedroom home. Has 890 square feet of living space, closet space and work area, with large, old-fashioned kitchen. In brick or asbestos shingle, with or without car port.

The San Fernando—Designed for those who seek an exclusive six-room home with spacious kitchen, living and dining area. Has three bedrooms, with half bath for the master bedroom.

Two floor plans are available in St. Borromeo Hills. The Lafayette incorporates many of the features of the Santa Monica in San Fernando, while the Blanchette is virtually the same as the San Fernando home.

Some of the kitchens in the developments are equipped with dishwasher, garbage disposal and exhaust fan. Baths have showers over the tub and ceramic tile floors. The kitchen floor is asphalt tile while floors in other rooms are hardwood.

Air conditioning is optional in St. Charles Borromeo. This development also features mix 'n' match kitchen cabinets. Attic fans are installed in some of the homes.

Borromeo Hills was named for Charles Borromeo after whom the town was named.

Hilltoppers Get Namesake In Subdivision

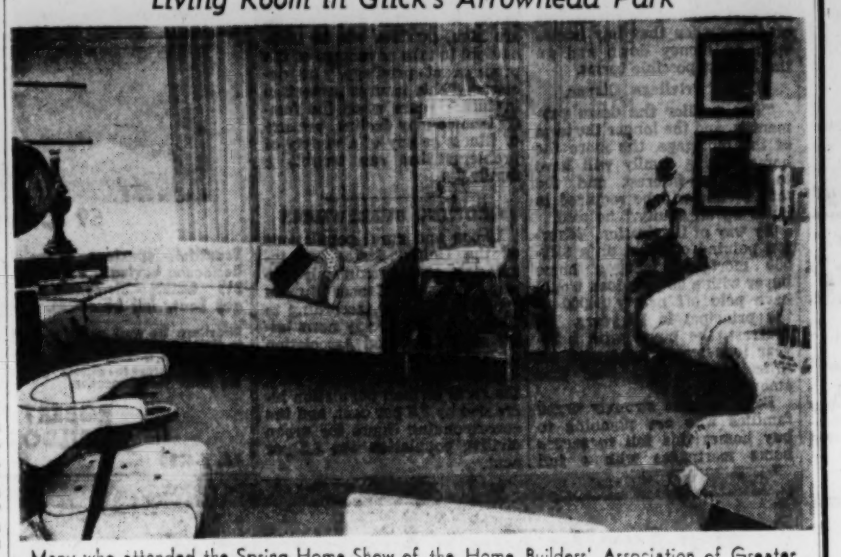

The Hilltoppers of Washington University have achieved the distinction of acquiring a permanent namesake. It is a new subdivision called "Hilltop Terrace Subdivision, Inc." being developed and built up with homes in Overland. The display house in the tract for National Home Week is at 9600 Miriam avenue. That's four blocks north of Page boulevard on Woodson road.

Westward Realty, Inc., the builders and promoters, is an organization of Harry Sander and Michael Levinson, both of whom were graduated from Washington University. They have named their subdivision for the nickname of the school's athletic teams.

Westward is erecting a specially designed factory fabricated house, which is produced to their own specifications by the Best Homes fabricating company of Effingham, Ill. The home is a six-room structure with three bedrooms, full basement, truss roof, asbestos shingle siding. Forty-two electrical outlets are being installed.

Financing has been arranged through the Bank of St. Louis.

Living Room in Glick's Arrowhead Park

Many who attended the Spring Home Show of the Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis saw this home at the Arena. This same style of home is being built in the Melvin Glick development off Olive street road in Olivette and may be visited there, where it is to be lived in, this week. As are all of Glick's homes, it is air-conditioned.

Melvin Glick Has Become 'Mr. Home Air-Conditioning'

Melvin H. Glick, president of Melvin H. Glick and Company, Bildors, has gained national fame as "Mr. Home Air-Conditioning of St. Louis" for his pioneering of central air-conditioning as standard equipment in moderate priced residences.

Arrowhead Park, the latest Glick-built air-conditioned subdivision in Olivette, will be open to the public during National Home Week. The display home in the big three-bedroom home development is situated on Hilltop avenue one block north of Olive Street road. It is the same home which attracted more than 100,000 visitors when a full-sized model was exhibited at the Bildors Arena Home Show last February.

Glick, who was one of the first builders in the nation to offer central year-round air-conditioning as a standard part of moderate-priced homes, was honored last fall by a national television program, which was carried by KSD-TV, for his contribution to better home living. "Industry On Parade," sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers, said, "Glick is constructing the house around the air-conditioner, demonstrating some of the revolutionary improvements in living comfort this new approach to home design can mean."

Many Luxury Features.

Recently, Glick was made a member of the "Weathermaker Century Club" at a special presentation at the National Association of Honor Builders convention in Chicago. John M. Bickel, vice president of the Carrier Corporation, a leading manufacturer of residential air-conditioning equipment, presented the award plaque, "in recognition of his work in creating a new kind of living comfort and convenience through development and construction of large numbers of centrally air-conditioned homes."

The Arrowhead Park home combines many so-called "luxury features," quality construction, and moderate price. It is a spacious home of contemporary design on a sodded lot. The home contains three bedrooms, large picture-windowed living room, adjoining dining room, kitchen with built-in plastic-top kitchen cabinets and disposal unit; tiled bath, and sliding door closets. Construction features include brick, asbestos and wood siding exteriors, copper piping, and hardwood floors throughout.

Optional features available are an extra tiled half bathroom and connecting carport. Isadore Shank is the architect.

Shopping Center Too.

The Arrowhead Park subdivision is the latest accomplishment in a long-range master development plan for Olivette which Glick has been executing for the last several years. Glick-built projects in the north St. Louis County will ultimately include a number of residential sub-divisions in all price ranges, containing some 2000 air-conditioned homes and a $4,000,000 Olivette Shopping Center of 30 air-conditioned stores and parking space for 1000 customer automobiles. Construction of the shopping center is currently under way.

"We feel that air-conditioning is a definite part of modern living in the St. Louis area," Glick asserts. "Regardless of the size of the home, it cannot properly provide for the comfort and enjoyment of the family unless it affords year-round temperature control. We consider air-conditioning as essential in a new home as central heating, and we began installing such year-round weather-making as standard equipment in our homes as early as 1952."

In proof of the popularity of this principle, the original homes planned for Arrowhead Park were sold "from the drawing board" before the start of construction. As a result, the Arrowhead Park sub-division had to be doubled in size to satisfy the demand.

Wife Saver Kitchens in Ellisville

Kitchens in Clayton Oaks, being developed by Burton and Lee Realty Co. in Ellisville, are designed to save the housewife as many steps throughout the day as possible. The kitchen is equipped with large cabinets and an exhaust fan.

The 925 square feet of floor space in the home is divided into six rooms, including three bedrooms. There is one bath which has a shower over the tub and shower doors.

The development can be reached by proceeding out Clayton road to Hutchinson road west of Ellisville. The display home is on the left side of Hutchinson.

Each of the large lots on which the homes are located is landscaped. There is a drive leading to the attached carport. The inclusion of the carport is just one example of the value which the builders are attempting to build into the homes.

Exteriors of the homes are frame and shingle with brick-like fronts. This gives the homes a deviation from the stereotyped subdivision.

Both plaster and drywall are used for interior wall construction. Most of the floors are of hardwood, although kitchen and bath are tiled.

Heat is provided by a 75,000-B.T.U. furnace and hot water by an automatic gas heater. The builders have installed bulk insulation in the ceiling.

The homes have full basements, concrete foundations.

Glick-Built developments stand for Better Community Living!

McKNIGHT HEIGHTS—69 beautiful modern homes at 1100 North McKnight Road—was the first Glick-built air conditioned development and pioneered central year-round residential air conditioning in the St. Louis area.

BON HILLS—36 handsomely situated homes on Price Road—was the first Glick-built residential development with central air conditioning as a standard feature. This outstanding group of homes initiated Glick developments in Olivette.

OAK ESTATES—90 fully air conditioned three-bedroom homes just off Olive Street Road—attracted national attention as an outstanding contribution to modern residential development. Every home was sold before completion.

OAK ESTATES ADDITION—35 more air conditioned homes situated adjacent to Oak Estates—were built to satisfy the great demand created for the Oak Estates homes. They offered many luxury features at moderate price.

Our Business Is Building HOMES —not just houses.

A HOME is much more than bricks, boards and nails. A HOME is the place where a family lives and grows—a source of comfort and pride to every member of the family. It is part of a pleasant community of good neighbors and convenient shopping facilities, transportation and schools. It is built for enjoyment today and for many years to come.

Each "Glick-Built" Home is truly a HOME in every sense. It is planned for family living and comfort. It is soundly constructed for years of satisfaction. It is situated on adequate grounds for beauty and privacy. It is located in a good neighborhood. It is part of a community in which you will enjoy living.

Our organization was proud to pioneer in making central year-round air conditioning a standard feature of every "Glick-Built" HOME, and we have added many other modern conveniences as standard built-in parts of every "Glick-Built" HOME. We have helped in the development of Olivette as one of the outstanding residential areas of Greater St. Louis. We have built a variety of different types of homes for every moderate price range. We have planned for the future as well as the present—both to assure happy family living and to provide lasting property values.

That is why hundreds of St. Louis families are happy and proud to be living in "Glick-Built" HOMES.

Tough on Finishes

The formulation of protective finishes for aircraft is one of the most challenging problems in the constant war against corrosion. A plane in flight—especially at today's high speeds—is subjected to many deteriorating conditions in a short period of time. For example, a plane may take off in blistering desert heat and, in just a few minutes, be at an "arctic" altitude. The thermal shock, thus created, causes rapid contraction. In other cases, the plane may fly through a variety of weather conditions, including hail and rain storms. Even "soft" rain drops are like bullets to a moving plane. Manufacturers of industrial chemical coatings, members of the paint, varnish and lacquer industry, supply finishes especially designed to meet these destructive forces and defeat them. These coatings keep maintenance at a minimum.

Builder Here Presents Magazine's Prize House

This is the open-planned living room and dining room (divided by free-standing fireplace) of the Woman's Home Companion award-winning "House for Family Living" which Home Builder Everett Schneider has erected as his National Home Week display house in the Bennett Hils subdivision (north side of Manchester road, just west of the Warson Woods Village development). The address is 817 Renderer drive.

AID VISION IN OFFICE.

In a dark office that needs the maxumum aid that light-reflecting surfaces can give—where all desk workers face the same way—it is sometimes advisable to paint the wall they face in a restful tint of blue-green. The other three walls and the ceiling may then be coated in a color with high light reflectance.

Still another means of bringing the greatest amount of natural light into a dark office is to carry the white of the ceiling down onto the upper wall areas.

Almost without exception, it is advisable to utilize the celing area in an office at its light-reflecting best. This would mean coating it with a flat white paint which reflects light evenly, smoothly—without eye-intruding highlight.

Prize Home Keyed to Family Life

Home Builder Everett Schneider has erected The Woman's Home Companion's award-winning "Home For Family Living" in the Bennett Hills subdivision as his presentation for National ome Week, and the house is to be opened formally to the public today for the first time. It is at 817 Renderer drive. That's north of Manchester road and a little way west of the Warson Woods Village shopping center (beyond Sappington road).

In keeping with the growing feeling that a family's life revolves about the kitchen, this home was designed to star a built-in kitchen.

The family room, which has a built-in TV, is separated from the kitchen by a center counter containing a built-in range. Included in this area is a skylight, which means natural lighting even on a dull day. In addition to all the other built-in appliances, there are also dishwasher and garbage disposal units.

The laundry area is located on the main floor to avoid necessity of running up and down steps, and to enable mother to keep an eye on the youngsters while doing the laundry.

Lots of Glass.

The liberal amount of glass area used throughout the house lends a new-found dimension of space and light.

A two-way, free standing, fireplace divides the living and dining rooms so that, while the rooms are virtually separate, the spacious look is maintained.

The plan makes further use of bringing the outdoors inside by utilizing the same Georgia marble that sets off the entry in the fireplace too. In addition the identical bricks used for the exterior of the house comprise two interior brick walls.

A large breezeway off the living and dining rooms contains space to accommodate everything for outdoor entertaining and casual living.

Three cheerful bedrooms include windows located for convenience of furniture placement. Of particular interest to women are many walk-in closets with sliding doors.

Two full baths, finished with ceramic tile, are equipped with custom-built vanitories and and shower doors.

Decorated by Scruggs.

The home is heated and cooled by a year-round air-conditioning unit to provide unvarying service every day in every season. Walls are 13-inch masonry and there is a full poured-concrete basement.

The roof is covered with white shingles to reflect rather than absorb heat; and there is a roof overhang around the entire perimeter of the house, breezeway and garage that acts as a shield from the elements.

The home has been decorated for National Home Week by Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney.

All the rooms present a combination of unusual furnishings arranged for comfortable living. A Dorothy Draper grouping in hushed tones of green, pink and charcoal was chosen for the living room. A scenic wallpaper mural adorns one wall of the dining room, as well as the foyer. The entire house is moderately traditional, yet contemporary in feeling. The decor is softly subtle, as well as bright and cheerful.

As an attraction for children during National Home Week, Disneyland movies are to be shown in an adjoining home, so parents may inspect the display home undisturbed.

Schneider is about half way through the building of the big Bennett Hills subdivision, with another year or two of building there. Earlier Schneider subdivisions include Sheridan Hills in Richmond Heights and the Carleton subdivision in Webster Groves.

INSTALL HINGED PANELS

If your home features "open planning" and you want to vary the arrangement, noted architect Frank Lloyd Wright suggests this method of shutting off your kitchen from the living-dining area: install a series of hardwood plywood panels joined by piano hinges. The panels fold flat against the wall when not in use. They may be finished to match the wood paneling in the living room or the wood cabinets in the kitchen.

LUMBER TIP.

When selecting plywood panels, experts recommend that a "good" grade be used for natural finish paneling and home furniture projects; a "sound" grade for surfaces to be painted; and a "utility" grade for backs of furniture and concealed construction. Hardwood plywood panels are available in two to four foot widths and three to eight foot lengths.

Grace and Symmetry in Twin Springs Home

Grace and symmetry mark the long, low brick ranch homes in the luxury-styled Twin Springs Estates subdivision of the Fred W. Ahlmeier Construction company, on the east side of Warson road four-tenths mile south of Clayton road. Romance of Old N'Orleans is combined with the charm of old-brick through the use of ornamental iron in the decor of the exterior.

Subdivision Named for Old Estate

Fred W. Ahlemeier, 620 North McKnight road, University City, has been a builder for 25 years. During this time, he has concentrated primarily on the luxury type home, throughout Clayton, University City, and Ladue, and has developed many of the large subdivisions of fine homes in this area during that time.

His subdivision of Twin Springs Estates is on the east side of Warson road, four-tenths mile south of Clayton road, and just north of Litzsinger road, and takes its name from the old Henry McRee Estate, which was known as Twin Springs Farm, of which this subdivision is a part.

Upon entering the gates of Twin Springs lane off Warson road, one immediately has the feeling of the luxury of privacy and seclusion that goes with a small estate. Here one will find country living with all the conveniences of being close to the metropolitan center.

Ahlemeier's new display house at No. 12 Twin Springs lane, which is opening for National Home Week is a good example of one of Ahlemeier's homes. The architecture is traditional in design having the warmth of old brick with lacy wrought iron grill work mellowing the facade. The appointments of the interior have been carried out in the same traditional manner, yet the layout, the room arrangement, and the equipment installed is strictly functional for modern day living.

One enters the house through a tile floored entry hall into a spacious center foyer, off of which the whole house seems to open up. To the left and rear of the foyer is a large living room, opening onto the terrace area. Beyond the living room, is a formal dining room.

There is also a large game room with massive fireplace; and, for the convenience of the family and guests at this end of the house, is located a powder room.

To the front of the house and connecting both dining room and game room for easy serving is a complete electric kitchen. Even the refrigerator and deep freeze, plus stove, oven, dishwasher, disposal, fans, cabinets are all built into the wall.

Besides having a full basement, there has been installed a complete utility room on the first floor, equipped with washer and dryer. To this end of the house has been attached an oversized two-car garage having a large area for storage of garden equipment.

To the right of the center foyer, one enters the bedroom hall, off which is the master bedroom suite, together with private bath and dressing room having over 300 cubic feet of storage space. Two other spacious bedrooms, the main bath and powder room combination are located in this wing of the house.

Besides many other large homes, this is the eighteenth of the luxury type homes built by Ahlemeier in the last two years in Twin Springs Estates.

Palletizing Pays Off.

Brick supplier Jake Kutchal saves suburban Detroit homebuilders as much as $25 per house by delivering their orders on pallets, reports HOUSE & HOME, magazine of the homebuilding industry. The supplier loads 650 to 720 bricks on each pallet directly from the freight car; after they are trucked to the building site a lift-fork truck deposits the pallets at strategic points around each separate house, within the reach of the masons. Dumping breakage is reduced, and the expense of wheelbarrow shifting of the bricks to houseside from curbside, if they had been dumped there.

PIGMENT SUSPENDED.

Paint derives its color and opacity from particles of pigment. These particles are suspended in a vehicle that binds the coat of paint to a surface.

CHECK HOME WIRING

Be sure to check a home's electrical set-up before you put your name on the dotted line. Faulty wiring, not uncommon even in some new homes, can cause fires and serious accidents. Kitchens carry an extra-heavy electrical load and a fireproof surfacing for counter tops, walls and floor is a precaution. Here's a quick way to check for faulty or inadequate wiring: 1. Will you need long cords to string around the room for lamps and appliances? 2. Will electrical outlets hamper varied furniture arrangements? 3. Will it be necessary to enter a room or hall in the darkness because of the absence of wall switches?

Regimented Appearance Is Avoided

In the city of Creve Coeur there's a scenic tract of land on Emerson road. It is claimed to be one of the highest points in St. Louis County, from which one can see for miles around. This is the ground on which the Rosenblum Construction Co. is building its Emerson Court, a development of priced brick homes.

The development is located about five miles west of Lindbergh boulevard. To reach it, one can go west on Olive Street road to the heart of Creve Coeur, just past it to Emerson road, then one-half block south.

Although the subdivision is situated in the west end of the county, it is convenient to schools, churches and shopping area. St. Monica Catholic parish is only about a block away and public schools are just a bit farther away. The business section of Creve Coeur is within walking distance.

Homes have full seven and one-half feet high basements with poured concrete foundation and walls. The house has a total living area of 1008 square feet, plus the basement. The living-dining room alone measures 23 by 12 feet.

Schuermann "Homes of you More of what you w

YES, the attractive, modern ranch homes in Schuermann's Bissell Hills and Northland Hills were designed just as you told us you wanted them, with extra convenience and luxury features that guarantee more value for your housing dollar. There's a Schuermann-built home within the reach of almost every family.

Schuermann "Homes of '56" are soundly constructed of high quality materials to maintain value. Upkeep costs are usually very low, a fact largely due to the care lavished on structural details which often escape the attention of the average home buyer. Because of this sound construction, the purchaser of a Schuermann home may fully expect that for many years to come, his home will still retain the attractiveness which so impresses him today.

Think of the convenience afforded by the roomy, full basement, standard in every Schuermann home! It's completely equipped for automatic washer and dryer. Gives you a place for laundry, a game room for the children, a rathskeller or workshop. And we have yet to see a woman who wasn't thrilled with the colorful, new "Mix 'N Match" kitchens! VISIT OUR 7 NEW DISPLAY HOMES

During National Home Week

•IN BISSELL HILLS, display homes are on Chambers Road, east of Bellefontaine Road, at 700 Chambers. Phone UNderhill 7-8500.

•IN NORTHLAND HILLS display homes are a short distance south of Chambers Road on West Florissant Avenue. Phone VIctor 7-4935.

Display homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., including Sunday. Saturday only, hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Thicker Floor Tiles.
Asphalt tile, rubber tile, and vinyl asbestos tile all are now available in a heavier weight. Research has shown that an 80-guage thickness of these materials—28 per cent thicker than the conventional one-sixteenth-inch product—is now preferred for home installation.

Home Buyer Saves Miles, Hours

James J. Waller, a tool designer employed at the McDonnell Aircraft plant at the Municipal airport, has purchased this home in the Fernbrook subdivision of Florissant, J. Ben Miller's development of National Homes off Mullanphy street, and will now be about 10 minutes from his work. Waller, his wife Mildred and family, have been living at 7815 Water street, which is in South St. Louis just west of Broadway, a good hour and a half drive each way from Waller's work.

CHANGE BY LANDSCAPING
Wise landscaping can change your narrow building lot into one perfect for recreation and relaxation. Most important of all, plan for variety and privacy. You can install an easy-to-clean quarry tiled terrace for outdoor entertaining. With shrubs or a flower bed, you can divide the smallest lot into formal and play areas. Surround the formal area with a narrow walk and plant an herb garden at the far end. A small vegetable garden is fine for the far end of the play area. As for play, badminton or croquet requires very little space. Finally surround the entire lot with high shrubbery for privacy.

Fall Painting Advantages.
Fall is an ideal time for exterior painting projects. In many areas weather is more constant. Surfaces of various types have a chance to dry out thoroughly.

Schuermann Displays In Two Subdivisions

Norman Schuermann, who heads the Schuermann Building and Realty Co., might be considered somewhat of an expert in the construction of the budget-priced two and three bedroom home. His 31 years in the building field have been devoted largely to this type of construction, with a majority of homes having been built in St. Louis county.

Schuermann has numerous display homes open during National Home Week this year. Several are in Bissell Hills, the north St. Louis county subdivision Schuermann has been developing since 1951. Located at 700 Chambers Road, 706 Chambers Road and the corner of Chambers and Hayward Ave., they can be reached by going north on Bellefontaine road to Chambers road and then east on Chambers road.

The other display home is in Northland Hills, a new Schuermann development, which is north on West Florissant avenue, past the big new Northland Shopping Center and the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. plant. The display house is a short distance south of Chambers road on eWst Florissant avenue.

Wide choice of types and prices in the two subdivisions draw many buyers to the developments. Homes have two or three bedrooms and are either of shingle or brick construction. Walls and ceilings are insulated with bulk material.

Homes are fundamentally the same in Bissell Hills and Northland Hills. Lots have a minimum frontage of 75 feet. All homes have full basements and attached garages with every lot in the subdivision completely landscaped. Some homes have breezeways connecting house and a garage. All streets are paved and have curbs and gutters, while walks and drives on the lots are improved.

The Mix 'n Match electric kitchens are something that the lady of the family will be entrigued by. She can either mix or match her steel wall and base cabinets, sink with its dishwasher and garbage disposal unit, clock and even the counter top.

Interior decorating is left to the discretion of the purchaser. Color charts are provided, from which the buyer may choose for each room in the house. Modern slab doors are found throughout the homes.

Each home has a gas furnace, the size of the home making a difference in the size of the furnace, which carries a one-year warranty. And, in order to help ease temperatures during hot summers, an attic fan has been installed.

Kitchens and baths both have tiled walls and color choice is left to the buyer. Floors in the homes are of select hardwood, with the exception of the bath, which is of tile, and the kitchen, which is covered with linoleum tile.

Each home has combination storm and screen doors and full aluminum screens. Copper plumbing is used throughout.

WOOD FACES WEATHER.
Wood possesses some unique qualities that make it ideal for long-time service as house siding, according to the Forest Products Laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture.

One of these is its great stability in the face of wide fluctuations in temperature and weather.

Temperature changes that affect other materials have no perceptible effect on the size of wood, and properly installed wood siding also can withstand any range of moisture change from high humidity to prolonged drouth.

Windows to Taste.
A new window unit, made of ponderosa pine, offers the housewife a choice of three ways of opening: awning, casement or hopper. Nice note is that regardless of position, these windows can all be washed from the inside of the house.

Display home open today!

The floor plan above shows the essential simplicity of design which makes the Companion House for Family Living so livable for the modern family. Look at the plan as five living areas: the breezeway terrace, the living- and dining-rooms, the kitchen-family room central section, the laundry set off from the rest of the house by vinol tile flooring, the bathrooms and the bedrooms. From the center area there is easy access to all other parts. The house opens to the outdoors on three sides—front door (from foyer), back door (from family room), living room doors onto breezeway.
Below: Family room.

Bennett Hill . . .

is the location of this Award-Winning display house. Bennett Hill, a section of Warson Woods, is a planned suburban community which reflects an individual trend of thinking. This unique community was built on the theory that the Home Owner requires and should have an individual feeling about his "castle." Therefore, no two homes in close proximity are exactly the same. Much of the rolling land was left in its natural state so that each Bennett Hill Home Owner is the proud possessor of different and impressive views.

HOUSE FOR FAMILY LIVING

DESIGNED AROUND A KITCHEN THAT HAS ROOM FOR ALL TO SHARE THE DAY'S ACTIVITIES

Today more and more of a family's life revolves about the kitchen. It is the gathering place for children and parents. for family and friends—the true heart of the house. Here we make a room not just a kitchen but a place where a family can all be together, where the children can play without being underfoot, where mother can work without being cut off from the rest, where all sorts of projects can be laid out. This house for family living has its kitchen anchored like a floating island in the central section of the house—this central section a family room tying together the two other main areas of the house. THE SKYLIGHT OVERHEAD BATHES THE KITCHEN IN A SOFT BUT CLEAR DIFFUSED LIGHT.

PARDON US IF WE BOAST!!!

Yes, we humbly apologize—but we're just a little bit proud of our new Award-Winning Companion display house. And . . . who wouldn't be proud to have had a hand in the creation of a plan so perfect that it embodies every convenience and luxury for the Home Owner right down to the smallest detail?

Here . . . the man of the house doesn't have to feel like a "bull in a china shop", a woman can be "queen of the May" and the children can feel "free as a breeze." We realize these are over-used time-worn cliches but, honestly—what else can we say? We are sure you'll agree that the life of a Homemaker is a busy one. A wife must also play the part of mother, companion, hostess and whatever other role she is called upon to fulfill. After all—she is in sole charge of running the house, feeding her hungry spouse and children, cleaning, laundry and all the million and one things today's capable modern housewife must undertake. Can you imagine what this all built-in kitchen with the latest Gas equipment means to her! This bright cheerful working area will save her hours of labor so that she will always have time to look her party-prettiest. Nor does she need to worry about her Cowboys and Indians getting underfoot while she is working. The conveniently situated family room and laundry area have made short work of that problem!

Just think! Now Mother can cook, clean and do the family washing while the children are out of her way but never out of her sight!

As for the family room—now you're talking a man's language! Here is the perfect spot for Dad to relax in his shirt-sleeves and slippers, watch TV, lazily digest the newspapers and . . . well, just generally be himself. Here, too, the entire family can gather for those important carefree casual hours of fun where the livin' is easy.

And—speaking of fun . . . do you like to entertain? We all love to have our friends in from time to time but so often we find our home will not accommodate more than two or three people at one time. Here . . . in this spacious, gracious home of more than 2000 feet, we find all the room we need to entertain luxuriously or casually in every season. The charming living room with its graceful glass area has that "just right" look for leisure and conversation. An elegant marble fireplace dividing the living room from the dining room lends beauty as well as warmth when winter winds blow. And for summer—the roofed-over breezeway enables you and your guests to dine in comfort on alfresco meals even if the wind shifts. And . . . for your added pleasure, this home has year-'round air conditioning throughout.

So you see—your slightest wish has been anticipated, even down to the heavenly-hued ceramic tile full baths. As an added attraction just for the women, every bath has a custom-built Vanitory to hold cosmetics and all the little things that go into creating a "glamour girl."

Well, now—do you blame us for boasting? You'd feel proud, too, if you were the owner of a spacious, livable home in beautiful Bennett Hill.

HOUSEWIFE HIDES KITCHEN. There are times when today's housewife wants to shut her kitchen off from her living-dining area, but finds it difficult with the popular "designed for open living" type of house. Architect Frank Lloyd Wright has solved this problem with a series of hardwood plywood panels joined by piano hinges. When not in use, the panels—which match living room paneling and kitchen cabinets—fold flat against the wall.

This Is Westridge Acres Home

This is the Fernbrook of National Homes Corporation as built in the Westridge Acres subdivision of the St. Louis Construction Co., at Ballwin, out Manchester road or out Clayton road beyond Lindbergh boulevard. The huge subdivision extends all the way from Clayton road to Manchester road, at Kehrs Mill road.

NO OVERBUILDING

Despite the fact that residential construction is rolling along at a rate in excess of 1.3 million units a year, there is as yet "little evidence of overbuilding," a committee of the United States Savings and Loan League said today.

The findings of the League's Committee on Trends and Economic Policies were reported in the committee's annual mid-year report. The committee, in discussing the question "Are We Building Too Many Houses?" cited several "important factors" in support of its belief that today's high rates of home building were not excessive.

Section 4 Westridge Is Opened

Section four of the big new subdivision called Westridge Acres is being opened formally today in connection with the beginning of National Home Week. Westridge acres comprises more than 400 acres of ground on the site of the old Ganahl Dairy farm, and, already it has become something of a community, for more than 250 homes have been built and occupied. It is a project of the St. Louis Construction Co., of which Dale J. Notestine is president.

The company is building, not only in the St. Louis area, but at other points in Missouri. Last month a new subdivision was opened in Columbia, Mo., and 25 homes were sold the first weekend, Notestine said.

Westridge Acres is a rolling, wooded property extending almost a mile and a half from Clayton to Manchester roads. Entrances have been established on Clayton road, Kehrs Mill road, and Manchester road. Another entrance, to Section four, will be put in on Kehrs Mill road.

Streets are being named Crestland drive, Ganahl Lane, Lindell drive, Strieff Lane, in honor of the former president of the board of trustees of Ballwin, Mo., Rauscher drive, Hillcrest drive, Sunset drive, and Huntleigh drive. Streets will be concrete, with curbs, gutters, storm sewers.

National Homes (Indiana) newest 1955 custom-line home, the Fernbrook, is on display for National Home week. It was designed by Charles M. Goodman, A.I.A., famous for his achievements in the residential housing field. Goodman has designed more than a dozen new exteriors for these homes from "Ranch" to "Ranger" styling. The "Ranger" style is contemporary in design and the "Ranch" style is a modernized version of the classic "Cape Cod" homes of earlier years. Both styles may be had with the new Fernbrook.

Each Color-Styled.

Each home in the subdivision is being color-styled by Beatrice West of New York City. Miss West, one of the nation's foremost color consultants in the housing field, has achieved fame through harmonizing subtle colors, with just a touch of sharpness in the accents.

"We are proud to offer this new home," said Notestine. It is a wonderful family plan and readily financed.

The Fernbrook is a three bedroom house with basement. It is featured here with a ranch design No. 56 exterior. It is traditional in style and displays shutters, flower box and front porch with a trellis arrangement in front. This is typical of the Cape Cod styling.

The interior has large living room with horizontal sliding picture window in front. The guest closet is just to the side of the front door.

Each bedroom has its own individual entrance, and floor-to-ceiling closet with sliding doors. In the master bedroom theer are twin closets.

Cross ventilation is provided by aluminum horizontal sliding windows. A third bedroom with access to the kitchen may be used as a dining room, den or T.V. room. A double window arrangement in this room has the effect of a picture window in the rear, making it suitable for a dining room.

Indoor-Outdoor Theme.

The kitchen features steel enameled sink, base cabinets, and wall cabinets and hard plastic surfaces. The kitchen and work areas are designed around a big window. The dining area will accommodate eight persons.

The bath is conveniently located in relation to the bedrooms and has modern fixtures; linen closets; medicine chest with sliding mirror doors, built-in lighting, tiled walls and an enclosed shower with sliding door.

There are patio-carport arrangements, "Window-walls" of insulating glass, low pitched roofs.

Indoor-outdoor living is the main theme with these designs. Privacy in the patio is provided by the wood screen fencing. Financing has been arranged in this subdivision through the Bank of St. Louis.

New churches and schools are proposed within a mile of the subdivision and new shopping centers are going up along Manchester road in Ballwin, Mo., and Ellisville, Mo.

A new industrial plant is to be constructed soon about one mile east of Manchester, along Manchester road. If the new addition to Daniel Boone Highway is completed a direct route from this subdivision downtown would be made possible. At present a St. Louis county bus travels along Manchester road providing transportation to Kirkwood and Maplewood.

OPEN ONLY WHEN BAKED

Modern gas ranges have glass-door ovens and snap-on lights so that you needn't open the oven until the pie is baked.

200 Shades Of Color in Clay Tiling

National Home Week exhibit houses feature kitchens that employ one or more of 200 shades of color produced by the clay tile industry.

One effective way to introduce color into a kitchen is with the use of clay tile, which has the double advantage of being practical as well as decorative. And, with more than 200 shades of tile from which to choose, kitchen decorators have an almost unlimited opportunity to create unusual workshops for homemakers.

In fact, with today's kitchen so frequently a part of the living area of the home, its color plan should be as carefully studied as that of any other part of the house. Interesting decorative effects can also be attained by co-ordinating the kitchen colors with those in the living area.

The tile can be used to pave counter tops and window sills, and for the wall above the stove. The latter is a place where the steam and smoke from cooking automatically collect. The tile will prove easy to keep bright and shining, requiring only an occasional wipe-off with a little soap and water.

Caulking Prevents Loss of Comfort

In the interests of comfort and economy, wise home owners these days are checking to see that their houses are just as weather-worthy as it's possible to make them. Of great aid, in this connection, are the caulking compounds. These pliable materials provide important protection and are exceedingly easy to apply. With them, cracks and crannies that admit moisture and chilling drafts can be easily filled.

You're likely to find pocket-robbing crevices in the areas where masonry, porches or steps meet wooden siding. They may lurk where the butt joints of siding meet corner boards. You'll be wise to make sure that they do not exist next to the flashings and fittings about the chimney and along some types of roof joints. The areas next to window and door frames and to outlets for electrical wiring, telephones, radio or television antennae, plumbing installations and gas pipes should also be carefully watched. Unnecessary openings, unfilled, can act as agents for your enemy, moisture. They can allow the entrance of destructive dampness which will not only raise your fuel bill but will cause much damage that will necessitate expensive repairs.

Actually, it's a simple procedure to plug up such openings with caulking compound.

Prime Forest On Bopp Rd. Is Subdivided

"The opening of Frontenac Forest for home sites has introduced a new era in St. Louis suburban living," declared Leonard Adreon of Siteman-Adreon, Inc., yesterday. "Frontenac Forest was developed with the idea that a man's home should blend with and complement the natural beauty of its surroundings. And, in Frontenac Forest we are doing exactly that—luxurious modern homes built to blend with nature's settings. Distinctive styling in each home is the keynote in Frontenac Forest," added Adreon.

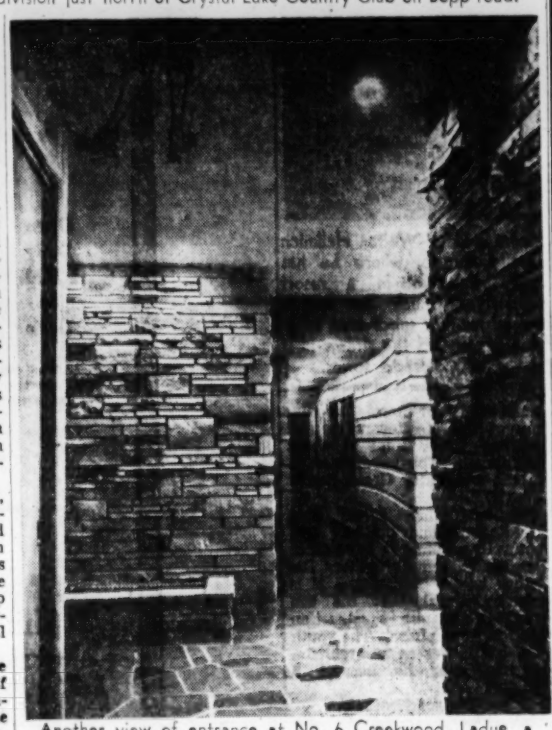

Officially opened July 31, Frontenac Forest is being developed on what is considered the last sizable tract of virgin forest available in St. Louis County. The wooded 70-acre development is located on Bopp road a half-mile south of Clayton road, just north of Crystal Lake Country Club.

It is located in the Ladue school district. Zoning laws of Town and Country, and Frontenac within those respective corporate limits the development lies, control the area.

Site owners in Frontenac Forest may build to their own specifications, or choose from plans designed by Robert G. McMahon for the area. These are luxurious ranch homes featuring three or four bedrooms, full basements, oversized two-car garages, and five-ton central air-conditioning units. Other features of these homes include a picture window living room, separate dining room or a living-dining room combination, paneled den, 10 roomy closets, most of which have sliding doors, custom-built fireplace, and two baths with showers.

Highlight of the homes is a "wife-saver" kitchen with built-in stainless steel oven. The range with stainless steel top, metal cabinets, dishwasher, food waste disposal unit are all built in. Customized accessories and a continuous plastic counter top complete this all - automaitc "dream kitchen."

A divided pavement parkway marks the entrance. Visitors will be given a map of the 70-acre area at the entrance. Features of the homes being built are full insulation, complete weather stripping, optional choice of interior colors, blacktop driveways, all-copper guttering, hardwood floors, wiring approved by specifications of the Adequate Wiring Bureau, post light and entrance light, vinyl plastic tile flooring in kitchen and breakfast room, paneled dens with cork tile flooring, smooth coat plaster walls, sand swirl finished plaster ceiling, two full ultra-modern tile baths, colored or white bathroom fixtures with custom built-in plastic topped lavanettes.

Another view of entrance at No. 6 Creekwood, Ladue, a Jaffe light engineering job on Siteman-Adreon built home.

Sappington Acres Estates

This is the display home of the Cavenah Construction Co. in Sappington Acres Estates, the Baudendistel development, Baptist Church road and Lindbergh boulevard northeast of Ronnie's Drive-In Theater. The Harvey Vatterott Real Estate Co. is promotion agent. House is on Valdemere drive.

Streets Get Town Names From West

Brinwood, a 60-acre subdivision in northwest St. Louis county being developed by Walter F. Hellmich, Inc., was named after a guest ranch in which Hellmich has an interest in Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado. Many of the streets are named after towns in the vicinity of the ranch, such as Aspen, Boulder, Estes, Greeley and Loveland drives.

The display home is located at 1000 Mullanphy road, a name significant in St. Louis's own history, and given to this street before Hellmich began his Brinwood development.

The display house can be reached by going north on Highway 140 for two miles past the intersection with Lindbergh, then turning north for about three blocks, then west on Mullanphy road for about two blocks, in Florissant.

National Home week really marks formal opening of this subdivision. There are two homes completed and foundations are in for more. Installation of separate stormwater and sanitary sewer lines is about completed. The subdivision is in the Coldwater Creek Sewer District.

Hellmich has found that architecture and building just naturally go hand in hand since one stems from the other. His father was a builder and it is rather natural that his son would enter the construction field in some phase. The youth did, but it was as an architect. It was later he became a builder.

In Budget Brackets.

As an architect, Walter naturally liked to design and, as time went on, he found he wanted to develop ground and build. He began to build homes and has never regretted the step, having been at it now for about 26 years. He has built all over the metropolitan St. Louis area.

Brinwood homes are in the budget-price category, designed to appeal to the large family with modest income. Maintaining the tone of Colorado street names, the houses are styled in western ranch motif. They all have three bedrooms. There is one bath, and some of the homes have an attached breezeway and garage. All told, the livable area of the home is 960 square feet of floor space.

Lots Landscaped.

Lots in the development have a minimum width of 65 feet and a minimum area of 7500 square feet. This gives room to do some outdoor living. The lots are landscaped and the driveway is concrete.

Automatic heat is furnished by a forced-air, gas-fired furnace. Bulk insulation material has been installed above the ceilings.

The bath, which has a shower over the tub, has clay tile floor, while the kitchen floor is asphalt tile. All other floors are of oak.

Likes West

Home Builder Walter Hellmich likes Colorado, where he has part ownership in a resort property, so much, that he has named his new subdivision after that resort, and the streets in it after Colorado towns.

Builders Plan Model Houses Design Contest

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Third Annual Model Home Contest for Secondary School Students, with a grand prize of a $1000 scholarship, is reported by Ernest B. Norman Jr., chairman of the Educational Committee of the National Association of Home Builders, sponsors of the competition.

The contest, Norman said, is open to students of grades 7-12 in public or private schools in any part of the continental United States. In addition to the $1000 scholarship, the grand prize includes a trip to Chicago for the winning student and his teacher - sponsor. Other prizes include nine cash awards, plus several plaques to be given to schools represented by winning students.

"There is a wealth of latent talent in architectural designing, landscaping, home building, home planning and decorating to be found in the industrial and vocational arts and home making classes in the schools of our nation," Norman said. "It is the purpose of the National Association of Home Builders to bring to school youth an opportunity to test this talent in an exciting competition that will demonstrate their skills in a practical way."

The national contest will be preceded by local model home building contests conducted by Home Builder Associations affiliated with the NAHB. Students interested in the competition, Norman said, should contact the Home Builder Associations in their own area for information about the local contests.

Contest regulations for the national competition may be obtained through these Associations or by writing to the Model Home Contest Director, National Association of Home Builders, National Housing Center, 1625 L. Street, N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Deadline for submission of entries in the national contest is Aug. 31, 1956. Nationally prominent architects, home builders, educators and government housing officials will act as judges.

Says Buyer Should Expect Very Best

Today's home buyers have the right to expect the best houses ever built, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

Lumber is in plentiful supply so that "the right grade for the right use" is available for proper construction, the Association reported.

"In addition, sound construction techniques have been so well established that today there is no excuse for a poorly built house," the Association said.

Lumber production in the first half of this year has been at the highest rate in the 21 years since the Association began publishing monthly estimates of production, the NLMA stated.

"Lumber production in relation to housing starts shows an ample supply," the Association said. "Our domestic lumber production was 33 per cent greater in the first half of 1955 than for the same period of 1950, the record housing year. Lumber imports were up 18 per cent in the first half of 1955 over the first half of 1950.

"Against these increases in supply, the housing starts rate has dropped four per cent.

"The lumber industry wants homeowners and homebuilders to clearly understand that lumber is available in all sizes and grades therefore making it unnecessary to accept substitute materials for any desired end use."

Picture Yourself on a Robinwood Patio

View of a summer evening at a Robinwood home, off Derhake road in Florissant. The fountain (right) at edge of patio, was made from the head of a discarded boiler. It is equipped with an electric powered pump which circulates the water. Lights in and on exterior of house are supplemented by portable yard lights. Patio slabs are concrete. Robinwood is a development of Contemporary Homes, Inc., which has a National Home Week display unit open.

Designers 'Thrilled' By Buyers

The two top officials of Contemporary Homes, Inc., President Fred M. Kemp and Vice President Robert R. Edwards, experience a tremendous thrill every time they see a buyer's reaction to the design of the homes in their development, Robinwood.

As the firm name implies, homes in the development are contemporary in styling and quite different from other new homes being offered in the same price class.

"We are attempting to offer an exciting new concept of indoor and outdoor living," Kemp explains. "From floor plans, textures, landscaping, color styling and even to the shape of the lots, we have homes that are fresh and yet retain individuality."

Kemp says that prospective buyers are pleasantly surprised with the low and sometimes rambling architecture and are even more surprised when they learn the price bracket in which the homes are offered.

Located in Florissant, Robinwood can be reached by driving along the Highway 66 by-pass to a point one-half mile east of the Ferguson-Florissant road then turning left where signs will guide the way to the development. The variety in floor plans is evidenced in that there are five different display homes and eight elevations.

Recently featured in the August issue of House and Home Magazine, the homes have exterior walls of frame construction. There are a few bricks, but the majority are frame, painted in refreshing combinations of colors.

In order to attract the large family, the builders have made sure that every plan includes three bedrooms. Many homes in Robinwood also have two baths.

Lots have been planned to retain individuality. Lot sizes average about 7500 square feet and the lots are fully landscaped. Other on-site improvements include a walk and drive.

Living area in the homes averages about 1200 square feet, which means there is plenty of room for that new concept of interior living of which Kemp speaks. For outdoor living, the builders have constructed patios for some of the homes. These patios frequently open off the living room through glass doors.

Because the homes have no basements, all floors are finished with asphalt tile, since radiant heat is utilized. Heat in the radiant system comes from hot water that is circulated through copper pipes installed in the concrete floor slab.

Some of the kitchens have built-in gas ranges, and all of them are equipped with garbage disposal and exhaust fan. Interior walls are of drywall construction.

These homes can be air conditioned at optional cost.

FOR HOME PROTECTION

On new construction, where clapboard or other type of wood siding is used, the siding should be end-painted and butted tightly against the outside window or door casing. Where there is evidence of leaks around windows and doors of existing construction, the openings should be thoroughly caulked and sealed.

Cassily Bros. Present Two Home Styles

Continuing to build in Affton, the Cassilly brothers, William and Edward, have come up again with a subdivision of moderately priced homes this year.

Called Valcour Hill, the development may be reached by going out Highway 66 to Laclede Station road then going one-fourth mile south to the subdivision.

Last year the brothers teamed up to offer one type of home to the public—this year they're offering two altogether different homes. Edwards is one story, and William's is one and a half stories.

William's home has seven rooms, of which four are bedrooms. The second floor contains two bedrooms and a complete bath. There is also a bath on the first floor. Some of the residences have breezeways while all have attached garages.

Many Options.

Interior decorating has been left to the imagination of the buyer, who has his choice of colors as to painting of walls, the tile, roofing, cedar shakes on the exterior, kitchen cabinets and other items. The buyer also has his option as to additional equipment, such as air conditioning, dishwasher, oven and range.

Edward's home has six rooms, including three bedrooms. The house has a "do it yourself" rathskeller, which can be finished later by the owner. The kitchen has many built-in features.

As is the case with William's home, choice of colors in Edward's house is left to the purchaser.

Floors are of hardwood in all rooms but the kitchen and bath which are finished in linoleum.

Edward figures he has packed quite a bit of value into his home since he is offering three bedrooms, porch, garage and rathskeller for a moderate price.

On the other hand, William points out that he is offering 1485 square feet of floor space at a square foot which he claims is less than any house being built at the present time in the area.

He has finished his floors in hardwood with the exception of the baths and kitchen which have vinyl tile floors.

The house is so planned that one may go from one room to any other in the house without going through a third room by means of a hall that leads to all seven rooms.

All homes in the development have forced-air furnaces with 100,000 B.T.U. output. They also have gas water heaters. Lots are landscaped and the homes are insulated.

EASY DOES IT.

The Department of Agriculture reports tests prove the gas clothes dryer won't fade colored fabrics like sun drying.

The Profile Home, which takes its name from the important new furniture style used in its interior decoration scheme, has three bedrooms, two baths, and an activity room. It represents the finest efforts of leading architects, builders, engineers, and decorators who have produced the home to meet the needs of your present requirements and your plans for the future, too. It is contemporary in feeling throughout, yet it has a definite link with the traditions of the past . . . and it is ageless . . . with so many advanced features that it will be a home to treasure with pride for years and years and years. The D.M.T. Development and Construction Co., the builders, are proud of their achievement and join with the other co-operating firms in inviting you to inspect the All Electric Profile Home for 1955, confident that far beyond your fondest expectations, it will fit your plans . . . fit your place in life . . . fit your purpose . . . and best of all, will fit your budget.

All Electric Kitchen by Westinghouse

Westinghouse steel cabinets in color . . . Westinghouse automatic dish washer . . . Westinghouse food waste disposer and the brand-new built-in refrigerator, freezer, and built-in range units shown below:

Built-In Refrigerator and Built-In Freezer

Today's modern living accents functional design in home planning, so naturally the Profile Home shows more Westinghouse firsts. Both these units are available in three colors and brushed chrome with ultra-modern features. This food storage pair provides 14.6 cubic feet of storage and saves hours in food preparation and housekeeping . . . bringing to the Profile Home more leisure for today's living with tomorrow's newest appliances.

Built-in Separate Range Units

Outstanding in distinctive styling and de luxe features, these units . . . the oven, 24 in. wide inside, all automatically controlled and the cooking platform with its built-in controls . . . brings you speed-electric cooking that's cool, clean, flameless, fast!

The Heat Pump— Air Conditioning All Year 'Round!

It cools in summer, heats in winter, and air and electricity do all the work! No water, no fuel to buy or store, and no flame. Pioneered and perfected by Westinghouse, it requires no coils buried in the yard or outside equipment to mar your home's appearance!

The Precipitron— Reduces Air-Borne Dust, Pollen 90%

Here's another Westinghouse first. Installed in your main air duct, it ends the homemaker's chase after dirt. Less dirt—less cleaning—and less wear on your smart upholstery, rugs and draperies. Hay fever sufferers rejoice, too, with 90% less pollen.

New Low Voltage Multi-Control Wiring System

The most modern method of controlling electric circuits. Operating on low 24-25 voltage, it's safer and through the use of small relays, master switch controls at strategic locations operate several circuits for extra convenience and flexibility.

Interior Decorating and Furnishings by Famous-Barr Co.

Introducing Profile by Drexel

Famous-Barr Co.'s interior decorators have wrought pure magic with this exclusive new Profile furniture. Fine grained walnut with silverplated drawer pulls—as graceful as sterling spoons. Unheard of at such reasonable prices—and available only at Famous-Barr Co., in the Greater St. Louis area.

REDDY PLANNED LIGHTING. In the Profile Home is not a matter of random use of lamps and fixtures . . . it is a carefully planned installation. Look for all the special features, look for ample outdoor lighting for fun and safety at night.

REDDY PLANNED WIRING. This means one thing, enough electrical capacity outlets and switches to use your present and future appliances whenever and wherever you may choose.

REDDY PLANNED KITCHEN. Here, everything is planned to save steps, time and energy. The flameless electric range truly takes the cook out of cooking. The flameless electric refrigerator and electric food freezer give you safe, economical food storage. The electric dishwasher and waste disposer save you hours of work.

REDDY PLANNED LAUNDRY. Here, clothes are washed, rinsed and spun practically dry in the washer . . . then get sunshine-fresh drying in the flameless dryer and are ready for ironing.

REDDY PLANNED WATER HEATING. The flameless electric water heater gives you all the hot water you want, when you want it . . . automatically for only pennies a day. You needn't worry about turning it on or off, once it's installed you can forget it and have hot water 24 hours a day, year after year.

REDDY PLANNED COMFORT. Indoor "weather" will be perfect all year 'round. Air will be kept cool in the summer, warm in the winter . . . always clean and fresh by the wonderful electric heat pump.

Round Table Recommends Two-Foot Module Be Used For Kitchen Equipment

Architects, Builders, Manufacturers Get Together Under Magazine's Sponsorship to Develop Standards of Procedure.

Kitchen materials manufacturers, distributors, home builders and home buyers would be able to save many millions of dollars a year by standardization of kitchen dimensions and all kitchen equipment on a two-foot module recommended at a Round Table jointly sponsored by the American Standards Association, the Research Institute of the National Association of Home Builders and House & Home, the magazine of the homebuilding industry.

The Round Table, which also included participants representing the American Institute of Architects, the Building Research Advisory Board, the Cornell University Housing Research Center and top executives of many leading manufacturing firms, also recommended industry-wide acceptance by producers and biulders of the following specific kitchen dimensions as standard:

Ceiling height — — —	8 ft.
Counter height — — —	36 in.
(Exceptional: an optional 32-inch high mix center)
Counter thickness — —	1½ in.
Counter depth — — —	25 in.
Base cabinet depth — —	24 in.
Cabinet width module —	24 in.
half module — — —	12 in.
Clearance between counter and upper cabinet —	16 in.
Back splash height — —	4 in.
Toe space height — —	4 in.
Toe space depth — —	3 in.
Upper cabinet depth, including 1-inch door thickness — —	13 in.
(Exception: some upper cabinets might slope out from an 8-inch minimum, because 80% of all items stored in upper cabinets are less than 8 inches deep.)
Sink drain roughing height to allow for disposer — — — —	18 in.

Would Bring Savings.

"The merchant builder's best new selling tool is the built-in, fully equipped kitchen, sold under the package mortgage," says the complete report on this Round Table in the September House & Home. "It is the neatest way to offer what many women want most of all, easy housekeeping. Its appliances lighten every work load, and it is easy to keep clean.

"It is a natural for that other new best seller, the open kitchen that lets the housewife share the life of the family, enjoy her guests, and keep an eye on the children while she works—for the open kitchen calls for much more than just knocking out a wall. It calls for making the kitchen cooler. It calls for acoustical treatment to make the kitchen quieter. Above all, it calls for redesigning the kitchen to look right as part of the living area. All these advantages can be planned in better with built-ins.

"Today it costs quite a bit more for a new house with a kitchen fitted with built-ins instead of free-standing appliances, says the Round Table report. One of the biggest reasons for this, it explains, is that built-ins still come in far too many sizes that are not properly co-ordinated.

"So the one best way to cut the built-in kitchen's cost is to finish standardizing its now half-standardized dimensions," declares the report, "concentrating on a few sizes to maximize the savings of quantity production and minimize the cost of warehousing, sizing all the kitchen components to fit together for easy installation, sizing the room to fit the sum of its components."

Manufacturers Adopting.

The conference listed six reasons why participants consider it almost inevitable that built-in cabinet and appliance widths will soon standardize to fit a 24-inch module, including the following:

"Twenty-four-inch and 12-inch are the only modules that will work with both the 3-inch and 4-inch modules. The steel cabinet makers have spent millions of dollars tooling up for the 3-inch module. Other manufacturers have invested millions on the American Standard 4-inch module sponsored by the American Institute of Architects, the National Association of Home Builders, and the Producers Council. Neither group can afford to retool to the other dimension. With 12-inch and 24-inch modules neither would have to.

"At least two of the biggest appliance manufacturers will soon announce a complete line standardized on a 24-inch module. The architects, builders, and prefabricators among us all believe this will have such sales appeal that other manufacturers trying to sell the builders' house market will have to bring their dimensions in line."

Would Cut Costs.

Architects and builders care much less what kitchen built-ins cost f.o.b. factory than what they cost installed, the Round Table report observes. This means manufacturers can sell a lot more built-ins if they can help builders get installation costs down. The report cites seven ways this could be accomplished through its standard dimension recommendations, including the following:

"1. Builders can plan to save space (which means money) by sizing their kitchens to fit the 24-inch cabinet closely (although a lone dissenting panel member 'doubted the wisdom' of this suggestion). If prefabricators can work to less than ½-inch tolerance in the 40-foot length of a house, is there any good reason why builders using framing templates cannot work to a ½-inch tolerance in assembly half a dozen cabinets to form a 12-foot kitchen wall; i.e., is there any reason why they cannot work to a tolerance small enough to cover with a molding, with no need of filler pieces to make the cabinets fit together?

"2. Builders can plan to save the whole cost of a wall behind their built-ins when their cabinets fit wall to wall and floor to ceiling. Cabinets can then be attached directly to studs.

"3. Builders can plan to save half the cost of their floor covering by stopping it at the toe space line 21 inches from the wall. On an 8-12-foot kitchen with cabinets all around the walls except for 6 feet at the doors that would reduce the finished floor area from 96 sq. ft. to 50 sq. ft. Only the most durable materials should be used on kitchen floors, which get far more constant wear than any other surface in the house. For 50 sq. ft. the best floor covering will cost no more than a cheap one for 96 sq. ft. wall to wall.

"4. Manufacturers can help builders cut costs by designing all appliances for one easy connection to gas, electricity, water supply, and drainage lines. Connecting upt the wiring should involve nothing more than a two-pronged or three-pronged plug-in. The Research Institute of NAHB should work out predetermined standard locations for these connections with the American Gas Association and the National Electric Manufacturers Association (which also had representatives participating in this Round Table).

"5. Builders can plan all water-connected appliances to fit along the wet wall, all appliances needing heavy electric wiring (which costs $1 or more per foot) to fit together close to the entry box, all appliances using gas for short pipe areas.

"6. Every new house should be roughed in for a dishwasher, a clothes washer, and a disposer and, of course, a water heater. It should have gas and-or electricity connections for range, oven, and dryer. All this will cost far less as part of the original construction than tearing out the walls to put it in later, but it is practical only if the builder can be sure that the connections he provides will fit any make of appliances the owner may select to build in later on.

"One big advantage of standardized dimensions is to make storage cabinets and appliance cabinets interchangeable for easy substitution of appliances not included at the start.

"7. Manufacturers and builders must both plan appliances for easy inexpensive replacement as they wear out or become obsolete. Otherwise a kitchen which starts out as a fine selling feature may become out-of-date and unsalable within 10 years and so cut down the trade-in value of the whole house. This easy replacement cannot be planned unless we first establish standard dimensions and standard connections.

"Built-in appliances should cost less to replace than free standing because it should not be necessary to replace the case."

Color Standards Foreseen

Turning briefly from the subject of dimensions, this Round Table also noted in passing that some color standardization or coordination in kitchen equipment and appliances will soon be needed.

"The kitchen in color is one of the year's most effective new selling tools," says its report, "but some of the architects and builders among us view with some alarm the appearance of some 40 uncoordinated colors, with each manufacturer picking his own hues, many of which go very badly with those offered by his competitors.

"Some of us believe the kitchen cabinet and appliance makers might very profitably follow the example set by the bathroom fixture manufacturers, who got together years ago and agreed on a few basic colors to which all would adhere. Others among us think there is no use trying to get all the manufacturers to use the same colors (it took 15 years to get agreement on what is white). All of us agree that at the very least all kitchen manufacturers should agree on a color and scale and a common language of color."

Mutual Advantages

Pointing out how producers and builders would both gain great advantages through adoption of this Round Table's recommendations, the House & Home conference report says:

"This is the builders' and manufacturers' big chance to work together. The manufacturer can help the builders sell far more houses. The builders can help the manufacturers sell far more appliances and far more cabinets.

"Low prices and big discounts are not the most important thing manufacturers can offer builders. Equally important are services and trade-ins on the home buyer's present appliances. Most important of all is the selling help the manufacturers can give (when builders advertise their new projects), for among them are some of America's biggest and smartest sales and merchandising operations, with advertising budgets running into millions of dollars a year.

"To kitchen manufacturers 1,000,000 new houses next year may be as important as 50,000,000 old ones, for the new house sets the style and standard for what the public wants. The builders' model house can be the manufacturers' best display room. Millions of families who first see built-in kitchens in new houses will want built-in kitchens in their own houses too. This makes the new house doubly important to the appliance and cabinet makers.

"In the past the new house builders have felt they were not getting proper consideration from the kitchen manufacturers, that they were being told to take a product designed for the old house and like it.

"Now for the first time many of the best and smartest manufacturers are designing new products especially for the new-house market, making an all-out effort to give the builders what they want, and offering to help the builders on all their selling problems.

"That makes it the builders' turn to meet the manufacturers half way and show it is well worth their while to focus creative effort on the builders' house market."

Rivers' Ridge Line Home Site

Home Builder Joseph Leopold's newest subdivision, which gets its formal presentation to the public beginning with National Home Week today is called West Point Lane . . . not because he wanted to create a memorial here to the famed military academy, but because the new subdivision is on the ridge line of the watershed in St. Louis county, from which rainfall runs off in one direction toward the Mississippi and in another toward the Missouri river.

The new subdivision is on the east side of Ballas road and just a short distance south of Clayton road, not far from the Country Aire subdivision, in which Leopold has been building now for several years. Like Country Aire, the new subdivision also is in the sparsely settled little Big City of Town & Country, and the subdivision and the houses are luxury styled.

He Has a Critic.

The display house is No. 2 on the lane, and starts on others have been made.

Leopold points out that because he is building luxury bracket homes, only top quality materials and workmanship have been permitted and, as for the planning, Leopold looks well to the things that women want in such homes. One of his most worth-while critics, Leopold declares, is Mrs. Leopold. She's quick to detect when things don't come up to top standards. The Leopolds moved to a house in his own Country Aire subdivision a few years ago and as a result neither Joseph or his wife are very far away when supervision in the subdivision development and building is in order.

There are not many builders who construct luxury houses on a speculative basis (that is, putting the house up and hoping for a buyer when the job's done . . . instead of building to order of someone who's bought in advance, but Leopold is among the more successful of those who do.

Larger than many luxury homes in the same price range the West Point Lane house has 2725 square feet of floor space in its eight rooms. Three of the large rooms are bedrooms and there are two and one-half baths. The baths have showers over the tub and shower stalls.

Breezeway for Relaxing.

Landscaped, the lot measures 250 by 170 feet. On-site improvements include a walk and driveway. The ranch-style home has a hip roof covered with asphalt shingles. Exterior wall construction is brick veneer, which is reputed to be the best for insulating qualities. The wall is insulated with blanket material, while the ceiling has bulk insulation.

For those comfortable evenings when just plain relaxing is in order, a breezeway has been provided, with an attached two-car garage. The home has full basement with concrete foundation and walls.

The kitchen is equipped with two modern labor saving devices—a garbage disposal unit and a dishwasher.

Not to be overlooked in this home is a paneled club room for entertaining, study or relaxation.

Darr Likes Skyscraper Foundations

Frank Darr Jr., head of a building firm that has been specializing in multiple family residences for some time now, says that, in the particular area in University City where the firm is now building, it has been found advantageous to use skyscraper construction, driving piers to bedrock for the foundation.

During National Home Week, the Darr firm is presenting two double-family residences at 7029 Amherst and 7300 Tulane, in University City. The homes are located off Midland blvd. a few blocks north of Delmar.

Darr has been amazed at the number of persons who watch his buildings going up, he said, who take time to comment favorably on the pier buildings. To Darr, its routine rather than something to exclaim about.

Somewhat unusual, compared to the single-story, ranch style, one-family home, the two-family flat, in contemporary design, serves the family which needs both home and steady income.

Each of the structures on display this year has six rooms upstairs and six rooms down. Each of the units has three bedrooms and a bath and there is an extra half bath in the basement. The flat on Tulane has a two-car garage entered from a side street, while that on Amherst has a basement garage entered from the front.

The flats have 13-inch walls, brick exteriors; asphalt shingle roofs. Interior walls are finished with insulating perlite plaster, except for a bedroom in each unit which is wood-paneled.

Built-in features include chest of drawers, vanitories, shower doors and traverse rods in living room and dining room. There is a large sliding door closet in the master bedroom of each unit and an extra large closet off the living room. There are closets and cabinets elsewhere.

Electric garbage disposals are in kitchen sinks. Space has been provided for the installation of dishwashers by interchanging with the cabinet next to the sink.

Units in each flat are heated by individual gas heating plants and the whole heating system is engineered for addition of air-conditioning.

Floors in baths are ceramic tile, while asphalt tile, worked into special designs, covers the kitchen floor. The remainder of the floors are of oak, except for the entrance, which is covered with a special plastic tile that resembles terrazzo in appearance.

Darr has a "very special" interior decorator for his buildings. He has found that Mrs. Darr has ideas on decorating that buyers like. Some wall papers are brought in from New York on special order. All interiors aredesigned to harmonize.

Glasgow Village Already Home to More Than 1000

Glasgow Village, Clarence T. Wilson's development on the river bluff near Chain of Rocks Park, already is home to more than 1128 families and one of the livest communities in the Metropolitan area. Wilson still has another couple of years of building ahead in the Glasgow Village area.

The Glasgow Village Improvement Association, which functions almost in the capacity of a city government, but also in other community-wide efforts, keeps something going in the village all the time.

There are innumerable sports activities, street dances at appropriate times, carnival times, club activity, softball, baseball, bowling, soccer teams, a 'Teen club, 11 Khoury league teams, six or eight girls' softball teams, Boy Scouts and others.

The village has six ball fields and several parks. There's a high school, a grade school, a parochial school, a Catholic parish, Pius Tenth; a United Presbyterian chapel called The Village Church.

There are some neighborhood stores in the village and the whole area is not far from some big, new shopping centers that are under construction.

The display house of Glasgow Village is a Wilson home, product of the Wilson factory-fabrication plant, patterned after the one that was built on the Arena lawn last January for the Bildors' Home Show. There are two houses open for National Home Week, both on Spring Garden drive, the street that leads up from Riverview boulevard into the subdivision. Air-conditioning has been engineered into the Wilson house and it is being shown with three bedrooms, in two styles.

Glasgow homes are of shingle exterior construction with interior walls of drywall. Average size of the lots on which the homes are situated is 55 by 130 feet. These lots are sodded and landscaped and include such improvements as paved walk and drive.

Three of the six rooms in the Glasgow Village home are bedrooms. Floors in these three bedrooms and in the living and dining rooms are of hardwood, while those in the kitchen and bath are linoleum. For those who prefer a shower to a bath for the old Saturday night chore, there's a shower over the tub.

Unlike some new homes, being sold today with only one coat of paint on interior walls, the Wilson home has two coats of sand finish paint on the interior. Likewise, the outside trim is covered with two coats of paint.

The distaff side of the family will find the kitchen, in addition to plenteous cabinet space, also contains a garbage disposal unit and exhaust fan.

There's a 75,000 B.T.U. automatic forced air furnace and two-ton air conditioning unit. These two facilities are implemented by an insulated ceiling.

The Wilson home contains about 960 square feet.

Rudy Steib Achieves an Early Desire

About 30 years ago, Rudolph Steib came to the United States from Germany, where he had attended grade and high school. Steib went to trade school and night schools here and developed an ambition to build, particularly homes. But in 1929 the only job he could get was in industrial construction. He stayed in that field for 16 years and then could resist the impulse of building homes no longer.

So, in 1945, with homes much in demand, Steib moved out on his own in the home building field. He's never regretted it. To him, it is like being an artist or sculptor, it requires making an important creative effort.

Steib has been concentrating most of his home building activity in the south St. Louis area. His National Home Week display home is at 6442 Lawnside drive in Affton. To reach this home, go out Gravois to New Hampshire, then north to Lawnside, turning east one block to the home.

Steib has built a five-room home with three bedrooms. The home contains close to 1000 square feet and in addition, there is a carport.

This home has a full basement and a concrete foundation. Exterior walls are of brick, while the roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Interior walls are of colored perlite plaster.

Size of the lot on which the display home is situated is 60 by 140 feet. There is a drive that leads to the carport. The street is paved and has storm gutters.

The kitchen has garbage disposal unit and exhaust fan.

A gas-fired, forced-air furnace, with 80,000 B.T.U. output, provides heat. The ceiling is insulated. Hot water comes from a 40-gallon automatic gas heater.

Oak is used as flooring in living room, bedrooms and hall. The bath has floor of ceramic tile and the kitchen floor is vinyl tile.

WANT THINGS? WATCH THE WANT ADS!

They Teamed Up to Build It

The men who built the big new Jacy office building in Clayton and a long-time real estate agency of St. Louis teamed up to develop and build a subdivision of lower priced homes in Florissant Park, off Mullanphy in Florissant, northwest of Patterson road. This is the display house of Jacy-Perlmutter Construction Co., 760 Babler Drive. It has three bedrooms.

Home With a Second Floor

This story and one-half house of brick has three bedrooms. It is a display home for National home week in St. George Court subdivision, a development and building program of J. Harvey Vatterott.

Two Firms Join to Do Building Job

Florissant Park subdivision, a development of modern ranch-type homes, is being constructed by a company that was formed for the particular purpose of building the project. Jacy-Perlmutter Building Co. was formed by the Jacy Construction Co. and Perlmutter Realty & Investment Co., two firms which have a long experience in the building and realty field.

Jacy Construction Co. has constructed homes ranging in price up to $65,000 and recently completed the large Jacy office building in Clayton. Perlmutter Realty & Investment Co. has been in the real estate business for more than 30 years. The firms teamed up to build homes at a moderate price.

These Florissant homes have long, low architectural lines, highlighted by the utilization of large windows. Low, standard roof forms an unbroken line along the entire house. Three large windows form a picture window effect looking out from the living room. The front of the home is brick veneered up to the height of the sills. The remainder of the exterior is frame and shingle.

Named for Valley.

Florissant Park was named by the ground developer because of its location in the Florissant Valley area. The district has a rich history that dates back several centuries.

The display home is numbered 760 Babler drive and can be reached by going out Highway 66 (Lindbergh Bl.) to its intersection with Highway 140 at the Mercury automobile assembly plant, then turning north to Patterson avenue. After driving on Patterson, turn left on Mullanphy to the subdivision.

Three of the six rooms in the home are bedrooms and there is one bath which has a shower over the tub. Walls of the bath are finished in clay tile as are those in the kitchen. There are colored fixtures in the bath and colored kitchen cabinets. The kitchen has a garbage disposal unit and a kitchen exhaust fan.

For Air Conditioning.

Although the first homes in the development were not built to accommodate air-conditioning units, the remaining homes are so designed that a central air-conditioning unit can be installed at optional cost. Heat is provided by a gas furnace and there also is a 40-gallon gas heater.

Drywall is used for interior wall construction. Walls other than those in the kitchen and bath are painted in pastel shades.

Upson Builds Hickory Hill Display Home

An "exquisite" kitchen is featured in the home being displayed this week by Charles S. Upson II in Hickory Hill. Kitchens are frequently overlooked in a luxury home, since prospective buyers of such properties are paying more attention to other features.

But Upson has chosen a plan that has a distinctive kitchen in it because he knows that family members may often make use of that part of the house themselves, not depending on help.

In addition to cabinets and sink, the kitchen has a built-in range, range-hood and oven. Two other items are a garbage disposal unit and a dishwasher. Upson believes he has a kitchen of which any woman would be proud.

Hickory Hill is west of Lindbergh blvd., and south of Clayton road. To reach it, go out Clayton road one-half mile west of Lindbergh to Geyer road, then proceed south on Geyer for about one mile until the development is reached.

With Other Builders.

Upson is presently developing the first section of lots in the area with builders Robert M. Berkley and Robert E. Salisbury. The area is part of a 165-acre parcel which was the old John Snyder estate Upson's display house is located on lot number seven.

Beamed ceilings are becoming increasingly popular in homes these days and Upson's is no exception. His display home has a colonial touch in its architecture and is highlighted by the beamed ceilings. Other homes in the subdivision presently being built are colonial.

The livingroom has an exceptional touch in the form of insulating glass walls all the way to the roof-gable in one end of the room. Floors are carpeted, giving the home a luxurious appearance.

Wife Supervises Decor.

Upson has not avoided the outdoor living of the present generation. He has installed a patio, made of used brick for an antique touch, in the form of an "L" which provides a parking court.

Exterior wall construction is of brick veneer and frame, while interior walls are constructed of drywall material. Interior walls, ceilings and woodwork are painted and decorated under terms outlined by Mrs. Upson, the builder's wife. She supervises all interior decorating in Upson homes.

Totaling an area of more than one acre, the lot is landscaped

Pennant Again Building 'Idea House of the Year'

Pennant Construction Co., which displayed the "Home for All America" during National Home Week last year, has come up with another Better Homes and Gardens magazine selection, the "Idea Home of the Year."

One of the outstanding features of the home is that it has not one, but two patios. There is what might be described as the "regular" patio in the rear yard and then just to add that little something to outdoor living there's a private patio off the master bedroom.

Charles W. Anderson, who heads Pennant Construction Co., is an advocate of leisure living. As a matter of fact, he claims that's his one goal, to furnish the public with places to live and enjoy leisure hours. Thus the drive behind the construction of the "Idea Home of the Year."

The display home may be reached by going out Olive Street road to Warson road, then north one-fourth mile to Grandview drive, thence 500 feet east to No. 1 Forsythia lane.

The frame home, with low pitch roof of asphalt shingles, is situated on a plot of ground that measures 145 by 66 by 192 by 210. All told there is 1960 square feet of floor space in the home, which contains seven rooms, three of which are bedrooms, and two baths. The two-car garage is detached from the house.

Decoration of the interior is from plans in the Better Homes and Garden magazine. Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney furnished the home for display.

Comfort-plus is the theme of the Pennant home, and to achieve this weather-wise, automatic heating and air-conditioning units have been installed. Hot water is provided by an automatic gas water heater.

The kitchen includes gas range and refrigerator, garbage disposal unit and an exhaust fan.

Although the home is of frame construction, outside walls are covered with scored five-sixteenths-inch hardboard which is then painted. Both walls and ceiling of the home are insulated.

All rooms, other than the bath and kitchen, have hardwood floors, some of which are covered with wall-to-wall carpeting. The floor in the bath is of ceramic tile while that in the kitchen is of vinyl tile.

Mrs. Anderson has helped in much of the planning in the display home and is readily given credit for her work by her husband.

Des Peres Meadows Brand New

Des Peres Meadows is a brand new subdivision that gets its formal opening with the beginning of National Home Week.

A project of Bernard McManus, it is located on the south side of Manchester road a short distance east of Bopp road, in Des Peres, thus its name.

McManus is building medium price-range houses of 1054 square feet of floor space, on the average, on 75 by 130-foot lots. That's space for three bedrooms and bath.

The subdivision so far has one concrete paved street with integral saucer lip construction. Sewers have been installed.

Homes are frame on full-poured - concrete basements. There are attached garages with side drives, and the lots are all to be landscaped.

Interior walls are of one-half inch thick drywall and are decorated to the buyer's own taste. A built-in gas range is being used in the kitchen, along with garbage disposal unit and built-in cabinets.

Insulation is placed in walls and ceiling. A 30-inch attic fan is used to cool the homes in the summer.

Hardwood floors are used throughout with the exception of two rooms, the kitchen and bath, which are tiled.

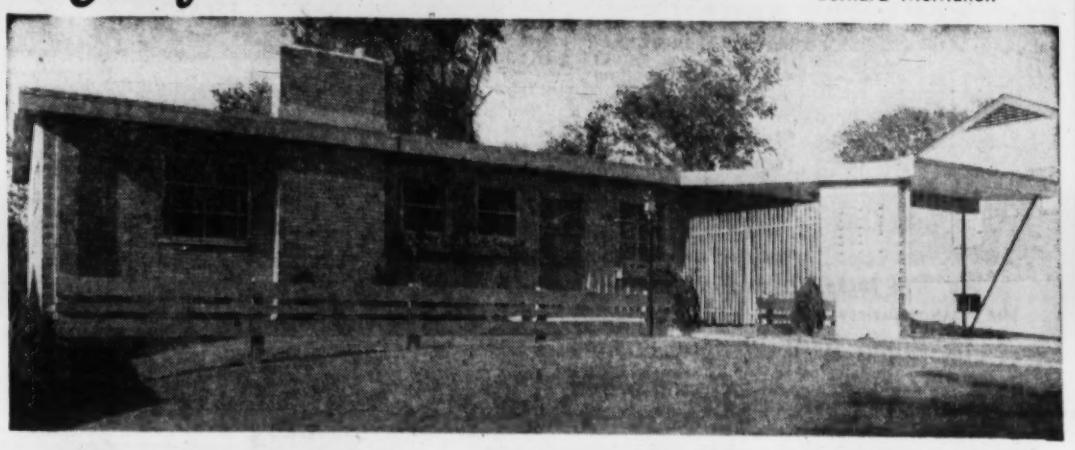

FORTY-THREE STATES LICENSE

Minnesota earlier this year became the forty-third state with a real estate license law when the Governor signed the legislation, the National Association of Real Estate Boards reported. The only states now lacking a law requiring licensing and regulating real estate brokers are Massachusetts, North Carolina, North Dakota, Rhode Island, and South Carolina.

NATIONAL HOME WEEK SEPTEMBER 10-18

The most important idea incorporated in these homes is... living better electrically! Electricity is your modern servant. It heats and cools, lights, cooks and entertains... helping to make your life healthier, easier, and happier.

NATIONAL HOME WEEK SEPTEMBER 10-18

Reddy Planned LIGHTING... Lighting is carefully planned and carefully placed to assure better light for better sight... to banish glare and gloom from every room. Lighting is planned as part of the decoration... and ample outdoor lighting is planned for fun and safety at night.

Reddy Planned WIRING... This means two things to you—enough electrical capacity provided at the service entrance panel... and enough outlets and switches to use your present and future appliances whenever and wherever you may choose.

Reddy Planned LAUNDRY... Clothes are soaked, washed, rinsed and spun dry in the washer... then get sunshine fresh drying in the flameless dryer and are ready for toe-touch ironing on the electric ironer.

Reddy Planned KITCHEN... Everything is planned to save steps, time and energy... The flameless electric range, refrigerator, food freezer, dishwasher and waste disposer will save you 730 hours of human energy every year.

Reddy Planned WATER HEATING... The flameless electric water heater gives you all the hot water you want, when you want it... automatically for only pennies a day. No worry about turning it on or off. Install it and forget it.

Reddy Planned COMFORT... Let electrical power provide warmth in the winter and cooling in summer... maintaining even temperatures, controlling humidity, and filtering the air for healthful year 'round "indoor weather."

Pleasing Aspect of Home in Delbrook

This is the entrance of an L-shaped home in the Delbrook subdivision at 7923 Lafon avenue, two blocks south of Delmar boulevard, off Old Bonhomme road, built by the Arrow Construction Co. and open for National Home Week.

This is the dining nook in the Arrow Construction Co.'s display house at 7923 Lafon.

Full Control Of Climate Inaugurated

Full and constant control of the indoor climate is to be built into the new homes of Hathaway Manor, the Vorhof-Duenke organization's newest and probably largest subdivision development.

Construction already has been started on a vast acreage at the east side of Old Halls Ferry road, a short distance east of Highway 66 By-Pass and the Hathaway Manor homes are open for display during National Home Week.

A recently new, St. Louis designed and manufactured air-conditioning system, centrally installed in the heat ducts, is being installed in the new homes, in connection with a package that includes the furnace, the conditioner, which also provides for humidification in winter as well as an air-drying process in summer; an electrostatic filter to catch and hold dust particles from the air; and an electronic air purifier, all linked into automatic operation with electronic switches and thermostatic devices.

Airborne dirt always is present in the environs of a big city (sometimes in country areas as well) and it takes a heavy toll in home cleaning bills. In St. Louis the fall of dirt is said to average 600 tons per square mile per month, year-round. Filters can take most of this out of the air in a home.

Air purifiers, coming increasingly into use now, strip the air of bacteria, pollen and odor bearing moistures, and are said to lessen chances for spread of diseases, viruses and molds.

Humidification in winter keeps the glue in furniture from drying out and as a result favorite pieces don't warp or fall apart.

Heating in the unit, all installed by Harvey-Hill, who recently came up with the air-conditioner that uses only nine gallons of water a day (against 3500 gallons used by some types of operation), is by a device that can handle commercial gas, propane or oil, with minor adjustments, as need may require.

GIVE YOURSELF ROOM.

Experts say the housewife needs 15 inches of work space beside her refrigerator; 36 inches to the right and 30 inches to the left of the sink; 24 inches next to the range.

California Styling in 'Delbrook'

California ranch-type styling keynotes architecture in the Delbrook subdivision, being featured during National Home Week by the Arrow Construction Co. Taking a page from home builders on the West Coast, Arrow has built a rambling type home to conform to the modern theme of living.

Delbrook has been designed with extremely deep lots, so that the homes can be set back a considerable distance from the streets. Usual lot depth today is 125 feet, but Delbrook lots run something like 230 feet, with 65 feet of frontage.

The development is located on Old Bonhomme road, two blocks south of Delmar boulevard. The land was once owned and controlled by the Bernard estate, established by a family active in the Clayton-University City area.

Styled by Porter.

Delbrook homes contain seven rooms and two baths, and including three bedrooms.

There is an attached garage and a full basement with poured concrete foundation. Altogether there are 1470 square feet of floor space in the homes.

Speculating that someone in the paint industry could do a good job or decorating the interior of a home, the builders went to the Porter Paint Co. to ask for help. As a result, the homes are styled and completely decorated by Porter. Furniture and drapes in the display home have been furnished by the builders.

Designed by architect Bernard McMahon, the homes have many interesting features, including an exceptional kitchen. It is complemented by an electric refrigerator, gas range and garbage disposal unit.

Close to Clayton.

Walls are of plaster and all floors, with the exception of those in the bath and kitchen, are finished in hardwood. The bath floor is clay tile and that in the kitchen is vinyl tile.

There is a 40-gallon gas water heater in each home. The heating plant is a gas furnace with 110,000 b.t.u. output. Temperatures in the homes are kept more moderate by blanket insulation in the ceiling.

Delbrook is only four blocks from the Clayton courthouse and the Clayton shopping area also is near.

The builders offer a one-year warranty to purchasers.

In the display home place cards explain construction features.

Pays Double Dividend.

To develop some minority housing that no individual members would undertake, the Tyler, Tex., Home Builders Association helped 12 members buy a site co-operatively and put up more than 100 houses that the Dallas FHA office calls "the best planned minority group in the Southwest," reports HOUSE X HOME, magazine of the homebuilding industry. The "ay off: benefits of the co-operative land buying and planning were so great that other Tyler builders formed a group to buy and develop land co-operatively for their regular production programs.

Plastic Floor Tiles.

Surveys show that vinyl plastic floor tile, lng popular in commercial buildings because it soon pays for itself in upkeep savings, is now winning top flavor with homemakers. Ninety per cent of the homemakers with this type floor give it only an occasional soap and water washing. No finishes are required.

If you'd get the best service from your clothes washer, follow the manufacturer's instructions and don't overload it.

Bildor Will Uses Studio Ceiling Idea

Bildor A. J. Will is erecting homes of distinctively designed two-bedroom brick rambler type that incorporates many features usually found only in more expensive homes. His display home, in Lindbergh Terrace subdivision, is on a half-acre corner lot at Lindbergh and Sappington Barracks road, a half-mile east of Lemay Ferry road.

Will's latest design has the popular L-shaped living and dining room arrangement, with studio ceilings. In the living room is a wood-burning fireplace with a raised hearth design. Particular attention has been given to closets and storage features.

The kitchen equipment is steel, with a new styled sink and cabinets. The latest type exhaust fan, using a hood over the range, is standard equipment. There is a full basement.

Exterior design emphasizes the long-low look, with unbroken roof line and deep overhangs. The home has a unique carporch and a large single-car garage. The carporch doubles as a covered patio or open breezeway for entertaining, and as an extra car shelter in bad weather. It is a popular feature in contemporary home design in other parts of the country, but has been seldom seen in the St. Louis area.

Long Look at Profile House in Bayberry

This is a long look at the Profile House in Bayberry Hills subdivision off Bopp road north of Manchester road. If it didn't have a fireplace it wouldn't need a chimney at all, for it's a completely electric home.

This Is Profile of the Profile Home

Floor plan of the all-electric "Profile" home in Bayberry Hills, east side of Bopp road north of Manchester road (south of Clayton road, joint project of D. M. T. Development Corporation, Westinghouse, Union Electric and Famous-Barr. It is open during National Home Week.

Bayberry Hills Profile Home Is an All-Electric 'House of Your Dreams'

Push-Button Control Brought to the Ultimate Marks Joint Presentation by Builder, Utility and Suppliers of Products.

Opened formally about a month ago and being continued open this week for the benefit of the thousands who will be visiting houses during National Home Week is the all-electric "Profile" home at 1318 Marlann drive, in Bayberry Hills. That's off the east side of Bopp road a short distance north of Manchester road, a little greater distance south from Clayton road.

The display house is a project of the D.M.T. Construction Co. in a co-operative promotion with the Union Electric Co., the Westinghouse Electric Corporation and the Famous-Barr department store. The house takes its name "Profile" from the styling of the furniture and interior decor.

The house uses, for heating and air-conditioning, an air-to-air, electric-motor powered heat pump. Because of this there is no chimney, no fuel storage space, and there are no attic fans or others, no water connections, and there is no need of porches or breezeways for comfortable living. Nor are there any screens, for windows don't need to be opened.

Low Voltage Circuits.

There is a completely automatic laundry built into the wall in a passage between bedrooms and bath. In the kitchen there are electric dishwasher, food waste disposer, built-in range and ovens, refrigerator and freezer twin units, built-in cabinets and continuous plastic-topped counters.

There are nine individual low-voltage wiring circuits, with silent control switches on lights.

Installed just inside the front door, and in the kitchen near the rear exit, a master control regulates lights for the hall, dining room, kitchen, family room, garage, outside front and rear, and one bedroom with a single rotary switch. The control is marked by numbers, and to turn on or off all that is necessary is to press the off or on portion of the control and sweep through all nine positions, or to any particular light circuit.

An ultraviolet air purifying lamp also has been installed in the Profile Home. It produces two different wave lengths, one of which destroys airborne bacteria, germs and viruses, the other which attacks odors and eliminates staleness. There also is an electronic air-cleaner in the heating ducts which removes particles of dust, dirt, etc., by catching and holding them on an electro - magnetic filter screen.

Plenty of Radios.

In the house, too, are an electric water cooler, a special bathroom heater for chilly times when other heat is not required in the house; electric water heater.

Installed in the "family room" are high fidelity radio, phonograph and TV; in the master bedroom a clock radio with built-in automatic calendar, alarm and appliance plug-in; in the girl's bedroom a portable three-speed radio, record changer; in the boy's bedroom a brown clock radio with alarm, in the kitchen a black clock radio.

Profile identifies the walnut and pecan wood modern furniture installed in the display house. Designed by John Van Koert, the line is one of the most complete ever developed.

There are more than 35 dining room and 25 bedroom pieces; also, living room furniture, including upholstered chairs, sofas, a loveseat and ottomans. Van Koert is known for the sculptured effect of his designs in silver and this same effect is apparent in the furniture, even to the silvery hardware selected for the group.

Pecan wood is used to supply extra strength needed in underpart construction. Of 5,000,000 feet of walnut, only 10 per cent measured up to the furniture requirements. The finish is a soft, sable brown that harmonizes with either lighter or darker finishes. The pieces are scaled to fit today's smaller houses and apartments.

There are no abrupt angles. Tapered legs curve gracefully into the tops of tables and backs of chairs. The "sculptured look" is emphasized in case pieces by the gentle curve that joins the case to the top, the latter extending slighly ouward both in the front and the back. This not only allows the piece to fit around a wall moulding but gives the effect that the top rests solidly against the wall—actually it is designed to "just miss" so not to leave marks. At the same time the feet of the case rest flush with the baseboard. This feature is emphasized by dining room deck pieces. Both the pier deck with panel door and top slightly slanted toward the front, and the full-size deck are designed to meet the extended top of a buffet at the back and so the whole top section appears to touch the wall.

The "sculptured" feeling is apparent in the supper table and pyramid units—occasional pieces easily moved from room to room. Upward curved edges of the pyramid shelves and cross bar at the top of the three-shelf unit facilitate lifting it.

Real Handy Bed.

There is an unusual bed called the seat-foot with a simply designed headboard and, instead of a footboard, a free-standing shelf at the level of the bottom of the mattress. Bedding can be folded back to rest on it. It also is made to sit on. It's a handy catch-all, too, for reading material or the miscellany that one must remember to do something about.

The utility bed has a snap-in pillow rest that props you up at the right height and a comfortable slant for reading.

New and different occasional pieces include a lady's desk which is a modern version of the old-fashioned school desk with a slanted roll-top and single drawer; a snack table with tapered back legs curving into the table top while front legs are set back from the edge so that the table can be drawn close for a more comfortable eating arrangement. There is also an open, spindle lamp table with glass top which resembles an elongated drum. It has an air of "lightness" that looks well against upholstered pieces.

COATINGS REPEL MOISTURE

There are clear, water-resistant coatings for masonry which repel moisture but do not change its appearance. Frequently used on stone or brick surfaces, these may be very pale varnishes, solutions of waxes or silicone compositions.

Gas Display Home Shows Innovations

Homes on exhibition during National Home Week display for the first time many innovations designed to make home ownership more desirable. Among these are the best of the 1955 home appliances—many gas operated.

Gas for heat has long been popular, since it is clean and economical. However, there is a virtual parade of gas appliances other than heaters.

The gas industry, reports the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, has made many improvements in gas ranges. They are styled for the modern kitchen—have plenty of units and big ovens that you can see into. There are gas wall ovens now, also. One of the best innovations is an automatic gas lighter that strikes like a match. Ranges have automatic controls, timer and griddle tops.

There are silent gas-operated refrigerators, gas water heaters, gas-operated clothes dryers and gas incinerators.

The Bennett Hills display home has been developed as an all-gas demonstrator home. It has built-in kitchen range, oven and broiler with automatic lighting, clock control of the oven and a wide range of cooking speeds," or heats. The gas refrigerator has the automatic ice-cube maker, which cuts off the cubes and dumps them free into a basket when they're hard enough. Water for this device is piped in, so trays never have to be refilled.

There's a gas-fired dishwasher, gas refrigerator, gas water heater for laundering purposes, gas heating plant and a gas-fired incinerator.

Koeddings Open Big, New Tract

Last Home in Ladue Manor Is Display House

This ranch-style home at No. 12 Ladue Manor, west side of McKnight road between Ladue and Clayton roads, is the last of the builder's houses in the subdivision. Goldberg & Co., the developer and builder, will keep the house open through this week. Homes by Goldberg also are on display in Kingston Manor, on Price road, which also is nearly completed. Plans are being made for development of a new subdivision.

The Koeddings, father and sons, still are busy in the fifth section of the Forestwood subdivision, five blocks north of Chambers and West Florissant, but are more concerned, for National Home Week presentation, with the launching of their big, new subdivision, Grand View Meadows.

Grand View Meadows lies between Highway 66 By-pass and Derhake road, in Florissant, and is to have, not only many, many houses, but also a shopping center on Highway 66, of major proportions. This is a mile east of Washington street in Florissant.

Grand View Meadows is being done by a corporation the Koeddings call "Northwest Developers, Inc." to distinguish the operation from their other building pursuits. In the venture are A. F. Koedding Jr., A. F. Koedding III and William F. Koedding.

Two display homes have been erected, three-bedroom frame structures with two full-tiled baths and full poured concrete basements. Some homes in the area are to have porches with screening, some carports, some garages.

Unusual t oday, since most county subdivisions dispense with them, will be four-foot-wide public sidewalks. Koedding says they're needed for use by children with wheeled toys, that it's the only way to keep them out of the streets.

Some two years of work lies ahead in Grand View Meadows, but the Koeddings hope to have some houses finished and people in by Christmas. Work on the shopping center is expected to begin in the spring.

The tract is in the Coldwater Creek watershed and will have sanitary and storm sewers, part of a major system there.

Streets, of which there will be several new ones, will be finished with concrete and integral saucer-lip curbs.

Brick Used With Single Siding Decor

One of the few homes in a lower price range to have brick elevations is on display during National Home Week at the Lynn Meadows subdivision in Florissant, which is being developed by Hardesty-Johnson Builders, Inc. Construction methods utilized by the Hardesty-Johnson firm has enabled the company to use some brick on the exterior of the five-room, three-bedroom house, and still hold to a price.

When E. J. Hardesty and J. L. Johnson were looking for a name for their development, they took into consideration its location and topography. From these two features they arrived at a name—Lynn for Lindbergh boulevard, off which the subdivision runs, and Meadows for the meadowland on which the development is situated.

Concrete streets and gutters have been built in the area.

The display home is located on Washington street, which can be reached by going out Lindbergh, to three blocks east of Florissant road.

Homes in the development have attached garages and landscaped lots of about 7500 square feet. Full basement of poured concrete are used. Interior walls and ceilings are of drywall construction, decorated with sand finish paints. Kitchens are equipped with garbage disposal and exhaust fan. The kitchen floor is finished with asphalt tile as is that in the bath, while other rooms have hardwood floors. Walls and ceilings are insulated. Air-conditioning can be installed.

Brick and shingle exteriors of the homes are complemented by the landscaped lots. Other on-site improvements include paved walk and drive.

WANT THINGS? WATCH THE WANT ADS!

Bach Finds Reaction Surprising

Home Builder Walter Bach, who heads up the Walter J. Bach Construction Co., finds the home buyer continually surprising. Sometimes what a builder would think was one of the most insignificant features in a home proves to be the thing that's significant to a buyer. Take a sunlamp for instance. Not strictly a part of the structure, itself, it nevertheless has proved to be an item of importance in Bach-built homes, even though those homes are in themselves luxury-styled and luxury-constructed properties.

Acceptance of a sunlamp fixture has proved so overwhelming in the past that there certainly will be one in Bach's National Home Week Display house this year.

Bach has started building in the 90-acre Radcliffe subdivision, which the Federer Realty Co. is developing (extending from Clayton road to the Daniel Boone Highway) partly in Frontenac and partly in Town & Country.

East End First.

Bach Construction Co. expects to do the building on about 40 to 50 per cent of this big subdivision and a new field office for the company has been setup at 11459 Clayton road. Ralph J. Crause is in charge there.

For National Home Week a display house has been erected at 2931 Devondale place. This runs in line with Devondale place in the Higginbotham subdivision of that name on the south side of Clayton road, east of Bopp road.

Initial development and building is being carried forward in the easternmost 42 acres (more or less) of the 90-acre tract, which is in the Frontenac section of the subdivision. Development of the Town & Country area is to follow later, although preliminary work, such as sewer lines, etc., have gone in there too, in the initial development. Storm sewers have been installed.

The whole subdivision is in the Metropolitan Sewer District. Gas has been brought in from Spoede road.

Land planning has been done by Pitzmann's engineers.

The house has full basement, seven rooms (three bedrooms, two baths), a total floor area of 2400 square feet. Designing, in contemporary style, has been done by Architect W. H. Mills.

Garage, Carport, Too.

In addition to the sunlamp, another unusual thing about the home is that it has a two-car garage, a carport and a breezeway. The breezeway is attached to the house and the carport lies between the breezeway and the garage. A small, hedge-bordered patio lies just outside the breezeway.

A huge-ceiling-high fireplace graces the living room. The kitchen has a built-in electric range, disposal unit and exhaust fan. The baths also are equipped with exhaust fans. These designed to cut down the moisture load, increase the efficiency of the air conditioning plant. Air conditioning and heating are in a 180,000 BTU plant controlled by zoned thermostats and inside - outside weather anticipating thermostats.

Foors are hardwood, except in the baths they are tile and in the kitchen vinyl finished.

Max Barken Still Busy in Spoede Hills

Luxury housing at moderate prices is the theme of Spoede Hills subdivision, which is being featured during National Home Week by the Barken Realty & Construction Co. Development of a large tract of ground holds down costs, says Max Barken, president of the company.

Spoede Hills can be reached by going north off Ladue road onto Spoede road, then driving for about three-quarters of a mile to the development, which is on the east side of Spoede road.

Impressed by the rolling, hilly terrain, Barken determined that "hills" had to be in the subdivision name. Then using the apparent relationship of Spoede road to the region, he combined the two.

Barken has been building homes for just about 10 years and has discovered that in the luxury home architectural style is an important factor.

Most of the exteriors of the homes are brick. Built on concrete foundations, the homes are located on landscaped lots approximating one-half acre. Streets in the subdivision are paved and curbed. On-site improvements include paved walks and drives.

Interior decorating is left to the discretion of the buyer.

The single-story display home contains seven rooms, three of them bedrooms. There are two baths and a den. A basement garage will accommodate two automobiles.

Comfort was also in the builder's perspective when he decided to install a huge 42-inch attic fan. In addition, air-conditioning equipment is optional. Heat is provided by an oil furnace, and hot water by an electric heater.

The kitchen has a garbage-disposal unit and exhaust fan.

All floors in the homes are finished in hardwood, with the exception of the kitchen, den and bath. The first two are covered with plastic tile, while the latter's flooring is ceramic tile. All homes have certified adequate wiring.

John Parnello Likes Brick in Home He Builds

Advantages of a brick home are many, says John B. Parnello, head of Pauline Construction Co., which is developing Pauline Park in Ferguson. Brick, Parnello says, does not need as much maintenance as other type exterior wall covering. In addition, with the right type of insulation, brick can be cooler in summer and warmer in the winter. Frequently the life of a brick home is longer than that of another type, he declares.

Homes in Pauline Park have exterior walls of brick.

The display home this year is located at 808 Hentchel place and can be reached by going north on North Florissant road through the Ferguson business district to Olympia drive and then west on Olympia drive to Hentchel.

Pauline Park is within walking distance of the Ferguson shopping area and near schools and churches. Parnello took this into consideration when he began the development of Pauline Park, which is now in its fourth stage.

Three different size lots are available. All of the lots are about 165 feet in depth, and have such on-site improvements as walks and drives. Streets in the subdivision are paved and have concrete curbs and gutters.

Voss Says Prices to Go Higher

"Buy your new home now to enjoy the satisfying feeling of owning a well-built, modern home at the lowest cost." That's the advice of William U. Jackson, of the B. F. Voss Realty Co., which is participating in National Home Week with a display home at 5 Carter Court in Warson View subdivision, Olivette. Jackson says that prices are going up and believes that they will continue to go up gradually.

The Voss Realty Co. has been building homes for 20 years, some in the city, others in the north part of the county, in University City and Northwoods.

The Carter Court subdivision is reached by going west on Olive Street road to Warson road, turning north on Warson road, and then going one-fourth mile to Grandview drive. Signs point the way to the display home.

This home has a planned electric "built - in" kitchen, meaning the surface unit and oven of the range are built into the wall and also that there is an under the counter electric dishwasher and large size garbage disposal unit in the sink. Installed in the kitchen is an exhaust fan with built-in hood. The floor in the kitchen is of vinyl tile.

Another de luxe feature of the home is a five and one-half foot built-in vanette in the bathroom. This appointment adds grace to the bathroom, which also has glass shower doors and Eljer fixtures. The bathroom floor is clay tile.

Situated in a 20 by 12 foot living room is a marble fireplace, designed to add dignity to the room. All rooms in the house are large, as are the nine closets located throughout the home.

All told, there are seven rooms in the home, three of them bedrooms. Off the dining room in the rear of the home there is a 17 by 11 foot den that has nine windows that reveal the view to the rear of the house. The den is paneled.

Located on a 100 by 237 foot lot, the brick ranch-type home has a two-car attached garage. There is a full basement enclosed by a concrete foundation. The lot is sodded and there is a macadam drive and paved walk leading to the house. Black - topped roads honeycomb the development and utilities available include gas, electricity and water.

Interior walls, which are plastered, are painted and both the kitchen and bath walls are tiled. The house has marble window sills and aluminum windows.

Heat in the winter is provided by a gas-fired, hot-air 130,000 B.T.U. furnace and hot water by an automatic gas heater. A 30-inch attic fan helps to cool the house in the summer and insulation in both the walls and ceiling help to moderate temperatures throughout the year.

COLOR NOTE

You can give your house a brand-new look without repainting it if your window frames and exterior doors are made of wood. A paint job on these areas in a bright, different color works wonders.

This Is Hellmich Built Home in Lynnbrook

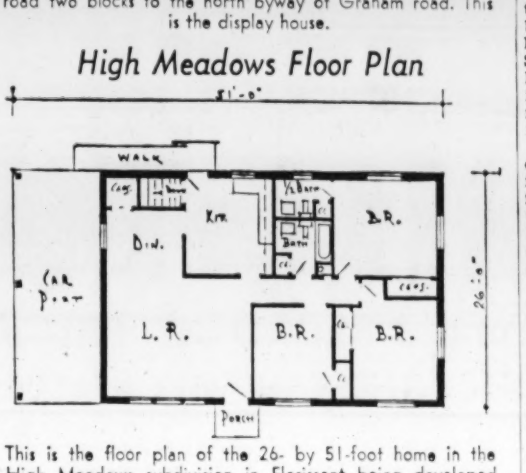

Ranch-style display home in the Lynnbrook subdivision, Warson road just above the Daniel Boone Highway (opposite Horton Watkins High School) is built by Walter Hellmich, Inc., which developed the subdivision.

Color Styling in Rose Lane

This is typical of the homes being built in the new Rose Lane subdivision of the Schmersahl Construction Co., off Airport road two blocks to the north byway of Graham road. This is the display house.

High Meadows Floor Plan

This is the floor plan of the 26- by 51-foot home in the High Meadows subdivision in Florissant being developed and built by the Kaizer Realty & Construction Co.

Rose Lane Honor for His Wife

Joseph G. Schmersahl, who heads the construction company bearing his name, had a purely sentimental reason for naming his new subdivision in Berkeley "Rose Lane." His previous subdivisions had been named for their geographical location or historical background of their sites. This time Schmersahl decided it was about time that he named one of his endeavors for his wife, Rose. Thus it was done.

Located near one of the main business sections of the city of Berkeley, the subdivision can be reached by going out Airport road to Graham road, then turning north for two blocks to the subdivision on Haltonia lane.

Schmersahl decided it was time to name the development after his wife since she not only helps with such items as interior decorating, but also does the bookkeeping work for the construction firm.

Although the homes are in the medium price range, the builder thinks that he has a home with plenty of eye appeal. Schmersahl is a person who likes to give a home individuality and who claims that the most interesting thing to him is developing a new subdivision.

Homes in "Rose Lane" subdivision have exteriors finished in shingle and redwood. This is in line with Schmersahl's motif of individuality in the homes. Interior walls are of one-half inch drywall and are decorated in sand finish paints.

The display home is located on a 65- by 125-foot lot, which is typical of the size of all lots in the development. All sites are landscaped and include other improvements such as a walk and concrete drive. Floor space in the home itself is 864 square feet.

The National Home Week residence on Haltonia lane contains three bedrooms, with kitchen and living room. There is one bath, which has a shower over the tub, and flooring of asphalt tile. The kitchen floor is covered with asphalt tile, while floors in other rooms are covered with oak.

Heat is provided by a gas-fired, forced-air furnace. In addition, the home has bulk insulation in the ceiling to keep heat in the home during the winter and to keep summer heat out. Another feature used to cool the house in the summer is a 24-inch attic fan. The residence is also equipped with a gas hot water heater.

A small item in the kitchen will not be overlooked by women who pass through the display house. They will notice that an eight-inch exhaust fan expels unwanted odors and grease fumes from the kitchen.

Make Moonlight

Do-it-yourselfers can easily bathe their backyards with soft lights after dark. They'll need a few lengths of wire, a handful of lighting fixtures, and some 75 to 150 watt light bulbs. Shielded outdoor lights which can be placed in trees or on poles can now be purchased, or may be made at home from stovepipe shields by the more ingenious. Eight to 10 lights make a pretty night-time picture on the average lawn. For an interesting dramatic effect, one or two lights may be pointed upward from ground level.

13-Acre Site In Affton Is Developed

In Affton, a 13-acre tract of land is being developed into a modern subdivision by the Lammers Realty and Construction Co. E. W. Lammers, who heads the building firm, says it's the most interesting experience he's had to date.

The homes, in the medium-priced bracket, in Larkin Acres are located on East Concord road, 550 feet off Vontalge and Lindbergh roads. To reach them one must take Highway 21 or Gravois road to Lindbergh, then east to East Concord. Or it is possible to reach Larkin Acres by taking Lemay Ferry road or Union road to Lindbergh, then west to East Concord.

A choice is available in either the two-bedroom or three-bedroom floor plan.

The one-story, brick homes are all located on at least one-half acre, which is fully landscaped. Other improvements on the lot include a drive and walk.

An award winning kitchen has electric range, built-in oven, refrigerator and freezer. There's also a garbage disposal unit in the sink, an exhaust fan over the range.

An unusual feature, not usually found, is an exhaust fan in the half bath, which supplements the full bath in the home. The full bath, which has three passageways into it, has a shower over the tub. Floors in the baths are finished in ceramic tile.

Three of the six rooms in the larger house are bedrooms, while the smaller house has two bedrooms. The larger house contains about 1400 square feet of floor area. All the homes have full basements and a carport.

Propane gas is used as the heating agent for the 100,000 B.T.U. forced hot-air furnace. The residence is cooled in the summertime by a 30-inch ceiling fan. Insulation has been installed in both walls and ceiling.

Interior walls are of perlite plaster.

Floors other than those in the baths and in the kitchen, which is of vinyl plastic, are of hardwood.

The homes were designed by St. Louis architect P. John Hoener, who is known for his church, school and commercial buildings.

several builders other than the Riegels also are busy and also are planning new developments.

The area's grade schools, both public and parochial, are being expanded now. Last year a new high school was built in the area and now new churches are being planned.

The Riegel company has in the planning stage a new development which will be called Broadlands. It will be a 40-acre tract south of Trampe Lane and east of Bellefontaine road, a little to the eastward from Lake Village.

Large frontage lots have been planned and work on the first group of houses is expected to get under way within a few weeks.

Lake Village Has Achieved Mature Look

Lake Village, the big subdivision on Trampe Lane and Bellefontaine roads in which the Riegel Realty & Development Co. has been working for about three years now, has taken on the aspect of a mature community. The reason is that the work there is almost finished, with only a few more homes to be built, and with those that are completed all occupied, some for a long time now. The Riegels soon will get to work in a new subdivision, not far away.

Lake Village has its own neighborhood shopping center with a hardware store, a bakery, a tavern, a television service store, a snack bar, and the office of the development company.

With good weather this year, the lawns have greened up remarkably, the flower beds have done well, and trees also show the effect of the season.

Lake Village is one of the more rapidly growing sections of St. Louis county where sev-

Barbecue, Fireplace Back-Back

More and more builders make provisions for patios and similar features into their new homes to attract the family that intends to put in a great deal of time living outdoors during the fair weather months.

One of the building groups looking to this trend is the firm of Homer R. Patterson, senior and junior. In the home at 14 Graeser road, which they have on display during National Home week, they have included a 12 by 24-foot open patio, which fans out from a barbecue pit built into the wall of the house. The barbecue pit is back-to-back with the fireplace in the home.

The display home can be reached by driving out Olive Street road one mile west of Lindbergh to Graeser road, then going north on Graeser.

The father-son team has bought several lots in this area and has several homes under construction.

30 Years Work.

The senior Patterson has been in the home building business for about 30 years and when his son was dischargd from service after World War II he took the youth into the business. Both think of home building as a challenge, since they are constantly striving to develop new beauty and utility.

Composed of six rooms, the display home has three bedrooms and two baths. For the two-car family, the builders have constructed a garage that will accommodate both cars. It is heated, too.

The home is situated on a lot that is nearly an acre in area. One end of the home faces Graeser road. This and the front are brick veneered to sill height. The remainder of the exterior is redwood.

The home has radiant floor panel heating using hot water in copper pipes. An 82-gallon electric heater provides bath and dish water.

Walls and ceilings are of plaster and the home is decorated with white ceilings and colored walls. Both the walls and the ceilings are insulated with blanket type material.

White steel cabinets and double bowl sink with plastic top highlight a large kitchen. There is also an exhaust fan installed in the kitchen.

Floors in the home, which contains 2106 square feet of area, are all of asphalt tile. The bathrooms are large and one of them contains a 36-inch vanity.

The Pattersons believe they are buiding in one of the prettiest spots in St. Louis county. The area at one time was an Indian reservation, it is claimed.

Interested in Interest.

"Consumers never know what interest rates they're paying and couldn't care less. It's how much a month on the installment plan that dictates present-day buying." At least that's the opinion of James Downs Jr., president of the Real Estate Research Corp., of Chicago, as quoted in September's HOUSE X HOME, the homebuilding industry magazine.

Four-Square, Two Stories

This is the display home of the Pokres Construction Co., open for National Home Week at No. 1 Hanley Downs. That's on the west side of Hanley road between Clayton road and Eager road in Richmond Heights.

Quiet, Please.

Take a tip from the United Nations and install some wood paneling in your house if you're finding it too noisy. The U.N. auditorium has two walls made of gigantic wood slats to absorb and deaden sound.

George Karr Proud of His New Homes

George C. Karr Jr., who has built luxury residences in St. Louis Hills and St. Louis County, believes in providing space in and about a home for leisure living. In this respect, his display home at 7357 Navarre Circle in Forest Haven contains a den and is situated on a lot that measures about 100 by 200 feet.

The subdivision may be entered at Laclede Station and Rock Hill roads. At present, Karr is building homes in an upper middle bracket price range, but the display home ranges higher. Three of its seven rooms are bedrooms and it also contains two and one-half baths.

The den is paneled in birch and has a Georgian marble stone mantle with stone plaster boxes at each side. The dining room wall is covered with mural type paper. There are two fireplaces to grace the interior.

Karr's homes in St. Louis Hills and the county have earned him a reputation as a quality builder. But, he says, his display home this year is one of his finest achievements. He especially calls attention to the brick exterior.

Forest Haven is one of the few subdivisions that was laid out with virgin timber left nearly intact. Each house sits on a natural roll of the ground surrounded by imposing oak tree. The rear yard of the display home has a patio surrounded by these huge oaks.

Included in the construction is a five-ton air-conditioning unit.

The home is equipped with a 40-gallon water heater and a forced-air gas heating unit capable of an output of 160,000 B.T.U.s.

In the kitchen are automatic dishwasher, garbage disposal unit, and exhaust fan. The garage will accommodate two cars.

The house has about 2000 square feet of floor space, which means all rooms are large, there is lots of closet space.

Windows and doors are completely storm-sashed. Floors throughout the home are oak with the exception of three rooms. The bath is covered with clay tile, the kitchen with linoleum, the den with asphalt tile.

Conventional Colonial Style In Clermont

This house being presented for National Home Week by Robert M. Berkley, was built by the Pollock Construction Co., and while Pollock realizes that there is considerable furor over the modern house, his love of the conventional colonial architecture was the determining factor in designing and building a four bedroom and three and a half bath colonial style ranch house in Clermont lane.

There is a stairway to the second floor and space on the second floor for additional rooms.

In this house, Pollock designed all rooms and closets to be especially spacious. The house is completely air conditioned throughout the first floor.

The lot is slightly under an acre.

"THE WHITE CROSS MAN" and what he can do for you?

The White Cross Man in your neighborhood is a good man to know, not only in an emergency, but before emergencies occur. If we were to sum up in one sentence what he can do for you, we might say: "He can bring Peace of Mind to you and your family." Just how can he do that? By setting up an accident and health program that is tailored to your own personal needs under the White Cross Plan. Here are just brief outlines of some of the advantages he can bring you — features that distinguish the White Cross Plan from all others — features that have attracted five million men and women policyholders who receive well over a million dollars a week from Bankers Life & Casualty Company, sponsors of the White Cross Plan.

Don't let this happen to you— your neighborhood White Cross Man can help you prevent it!

You CAN be covered for almost all types of expense—even including loss of income—at rates so low almost any family man can afford the additional units of protection!

It happens every day—a thousand times: Bitter disappointment when the policyholder leaves the hospital and discovers his old style of "hospitalization" covered only certain things and was limited to certain amounts.

It's only natural, too. You take out an ordinary insurance policy for hospitalization. You think, "Now I'm safe." As the weeks go on your mind enlarges the facts until you get to feeling that you're covered for everything. You forget that your policy specified it would pay $5.00 a day for room rent. You've been in a $12.00 room. You forget that your policy didn't provide anything for doctor bills or special medicines. You owe the doctors $100, the druggist $35. And you forget that there was a limited number of days of your hospital residence.

Don't take these chances. Know what you have. Don't depend on a policy. Build a Plan —a Plan designed to fit your needs. You can apply for all or any part of the White Cross Plan. Fill in with the extra protection you need. Review your entire accident and health program with your friendly, helpful White Cross Man. Keep your present policies and add only those extra units of protection you will value highly in time of financial need.

The brief list of benefits provided by a few of the many policies available under the White Cross Plan, as given in this advertisement, are not intended to be complete descriptions. Each policy has plainly printed in it, in large bold face type, whatever limitations or exceptions apply. For example, Unit 701 does not include hazards covered by Workmen's Compensation or Occupational Disease Laws. Benefits for most illnesses begin 30 days after date of policy (except those few illnesses on which there is a six months waiting period); benefits for accidental injury begin from first day. Your White Cross Man wants you to be fully informed; wants you to know exactly what you have and what additional protections you need. Ask him to explain all details of each unit of protection so you can build a plan tailored to your needs.

YES, what the public calls "hospitalization" insurance has undergone a face-lifting modernization that brings many new and additional cash benefits at lower rates than ever quoted before.

And, as in the past, Bankers Life & Casualty Company has again shown the way under its famous White Cross Plan. Today you can get financial protection for anything —for everything!

Your neighborhood White Cross Man is prepared to give you information about the new White Cross Units of Protection. They are so wonderful, that, many insurance officials, even as little as two years ago, said they could never be offered at rates people could afford.

For example:

A unit of protection that pays cash if you are sick or injured and gives you money back if you stay well

Our new NC 701 (PA) is called the "wonder policy of 1955." And it's easy to see why. Here's a unit of protection that is Guaranteed Renewable to age 75 or until its full face value has been paid to you in benefits or as a refund at maturity—as much as $5000 in cash. If you are sick or hurt, it pays you specified amounts for the SEVEN MAJOR EXPENSES; if you stay well, you receive a cash refund at maturity of almost all the premiums you've paid in. Just like having a lifetime of protection at almost no cost. With this protection unit, NC 701, rates can never be raised. The benefits can never be reduced. And, if you die or drop the protection for any reason—after the third year, you or your heirs receive a cash refund for the residual cash value it has built up—like having money in the bank. Available to wage earners up to 64½ years of age and good to age 75, this new unit created a sensation among insurance men as well as with the public. You may have read about it in your newspaper. As this is a brand new unit of protection, it is not yet available in all states. Ask your local White Cross Man about it.

A unit that pays for the family's living expenses when your pay check is cut off due to accident or illness

Millions of people have "hospitalization" that helps pay hospital room bills, but they never think of what the family would do for rent, food, for payments on the car or the home if their own pay checks were stopped. Our unit P 16 provides for payment of as high as $200.00 a month for the families of wage earners who are totally disabled because of accident or illness and confined under a doctor's care regardless of whether the breadwinner is in the hospital or recuperating at home. The payments continue for a whole year for illness and two years for accidents, with one half again added for the first two months in the hospital. Here, too, the rate is low as your local White Cross Man will show you.

A unit of protection that starts paying where others leave off

Most of the ordinary accident and health insurance limits the amount that will be paid for any one accident or illness. With our P 86 unit you can be protected for as high as $5000.00. These special units of the White Cross Plan are based on the well known "deductible" principle which has been successful so many years in automobile insurance. If your present coverage protects you up to $500.00, you can apply for a $500.00 deductible P 86, so it will start paying where your ordinary policy leaves off. The deductible principle combined with a 25% co-insurance feature makes the rate on this unit of protection so low it is almost foolhardy to be without it, for yourself and each member of your family.

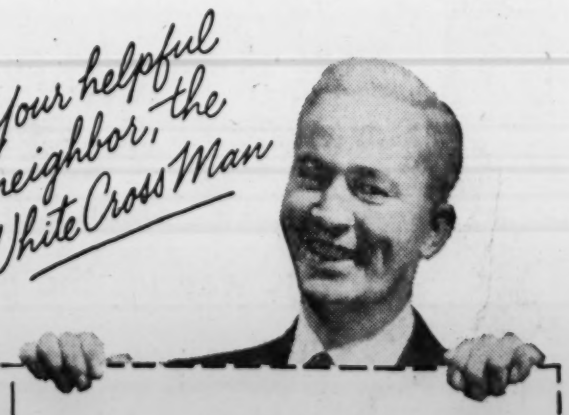

Units of protection for every purpose

Under the White Cross Plan there are units of protection to cover mortgages, to provide education for the children, to provide extra retirement income, to pay for the care of the children who lose their mothers, to insure lives of each member of the family for one low premium payment a year. All issued by an old line legal reserve stock company that is, today, paying out well over a million dollars a week to its policyholders and bringing peace of mind to more than five million people.

An invitation from your local White Cross Man

"Friends, the White Cross Plan is not an insurance policy —it is a plan so flexible that it permits you to pick exactly the kind of protection you need at the rate you can afford to pay. I'll be glad to tell you about each and every unit we offer and then help you build your own Plan, tailored to your personal needs. Let me sit down with you in a friendly, family conference and when we get through you'll know why so many people say, 'The White Cross Man has a personal plan—a Plan that's tailored for you!' I'm a family man, too, building my future in this community. I pay taxes here, my children go to school with yours. We have the same common problems. The only difference between us is that I've got my own White Cross Plan and I've been trained to help you build a Plan that will keep you from having the bitter disappointment that comes to so many other people. Mail your name and address on this coupon. Our home office will send it to me so I can arrange to tell you about the wonderful White Cross Plan."

Your helpful neighbor, the White Cross Man

Maids of Honor for Veiled Prophet Ball

THIS is the time for conjecture as to the personnel of the Court of Love and Beauty for the annual Veiled Prophet ball. Every summer, as soon as the list of new debutantes is published, the guessing begins, and as each new social season starts friends try by any means at their command to pry the secrets from those they think might wear the jeweled crowns presented to the queen and her four special maids of honor.

Invitations have been received by members of this year's court, and today is presented a list of girls in the adopted city of His Majesty of Khorassan who have been summoned to his throne Tuesday night, Oct. 4, in convention hall of Kiel Auditorium. The coronation of her new majesty will provide a glittering climax to the festivities. In accordance with a custom established several years ago, the queen and her special maids will appear in the annual parade which the prophet leads through the streets of St. Louis the night after the ball.

The following are the names of the girls to whom invitations to be maids have been sent, together with those of their parents: Miss Jean Harwood Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Alexander; Miss Almira Steedman Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baldwin; Miss Margaretha Hager Belz, daughter of Henry Belz; Miss Myrtle Lambert Boehmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave H. Boehmer; Miss Kate Thompson Borders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Borders; Miss Anne Douglas Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ingram F. Boyd Jr.

Miss Frances Farish Brodhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brodhead; Miss Frances Reith Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Barrett Brown; Miss Barbara Schofield Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gamble Burton; Miss Elizabeth Overton Busch, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Overton Busch and August A. Busch Jr.; Miss Caroline Compton Clarkson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Turner Clarkson.

Miss Jane McNeely Cochran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNeely Cochran; Miss Mariella Cartwright Coe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Coe; Miss Louise Sikes Conant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dozier Conant; Miss Mary Diana Depping, daughter of Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt Jr., Miss Joan Margaret DeWitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Miss Margaret Hanford Cowdry Is Married At Chapel Service to Howard Franklin Park III

MISS MARGARET HANFORD COWDRY, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Vincent Cowdry, 4961 Laclede avenue, and Woods Hole, Mass., became the bride yesterday afternoon of Howard Franklin Park III. Only members of the families and a few close friends witnessed the ceremony performed at the chapel of the Church of St. Michael and St. George by the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Penniman, a canon of Christ Church Cathedral and director of research of the Educational Center of the Episcopal Church in the Missouri diocese.

The bride wore a lace veil originally belonging to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Nathaniel Harrington Cowdry of Walford, Paget, Bermuda, and worn two years ago by the bride's sister, Mrs. Drew William Luten Jr. (Alice Moira Cowdry) at her wedding. Yesterday's bride wore a simply designed off-white satin gown with a low round

Miss Olin Is Introduced at Tea; Miss Schlueter Bows at Dance

MISS EUNICE WHITNEY (JUDY) OLIN, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Truman Olin, was presented to society yesterday afternoon at a tea at the home of her parents in Fairmount, Alton. Friends of Mrs. Olin were entertained at the tea, the first of two coming-out parties for the debutante who will meet her contemporaries Dec. 29 at a hall at St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Olin and her mother received guests in the living room of their home which was decorated, as were other downstairs rooms, with roses in a tearose shade. The debutante's organza gown was in the same subtle tone and was worn over matching taffeta. Designed with a square neckline bound in taffeta, the dress had a molded bodice with cap sleeves and a full, short skirt. Miss Olin carried an old-fashioned bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Her mother was in Nile green chiffon, the dress fashioned with a square neckline and a full, flowing skirt. She wore a corsage of tearoses.

In the dining room yellow roses adorned the tea table. Assisting were Miss Mimi Belz, Miss Barbara Burton, Miss Louise Conant, Miss Glenn Johnson, Miss Susanne Woods, Miss Sonya Wotka, all of St. Louis, and Miss Barbara Nixon and Miss Elizabeth Richards of Alton.

Assisting Mrs. Olin were her daughter, Mrs. F. Morgan Taylor Jr., Mrs. Ernest S. Houx, Mrs. B. E. Bassett, Mrs. Roy Beall, Mrs. William Akin, Mrs. E. N. Jacquin, Mrs. James Duncan, Mrs. Eben Rodgers Jr., Mrs. H. P. McCuistion and Mrs. E. P. Waterhouse.

Dorcas Taylor To Be Married To Lt. D. P. Amos

MISS Dorcas Langford Taylor gave a spinster dinner Thursday night in honor of Miss Mary Catherine Geissal, who was married yesterday to John Sykes Martin, at which the hostess's own engagement to Lt. Donald Perdue Amos was announced. Miss Taylor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delwyn Langford Taylor, 8035 Park drive, Hampton Park. The prospective bridegroom, who is stationed with the 432nd Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Truax Air Force Base, Madison, Wis., is the son of Mrs. Huntington Amos of Evanston, Ill., and the late Mr. Amos. The wedding probably will take place next June.

Miss Taylor was graduated in June from Northwestern University where she became a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and served as editor of a sorority paper. Before entering Northwestern, she attended Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., for two years and served as secretary of her senior class as well as president of the Briarcliff Riding Club. An outstanding horsewoman, she has won many ribbons and trophies in the Midwest. Her preparatory school was John Burroughs.

The bride-to-be was a debutante of the 1952-53 season. She made her debut at a dance on the Starlight Roof of the Chase Hotel, sharing honors with Miss Geissal and Miss Virginia Poindexter. She also was guest of honor at an elaborate Hawaiian party given by her grandmother, Mrs. Julia K. Taylor, and an aunt, Miss Emma Bobb. During the summer of 1950, Miss Taylor toured the European countries.

Lt. Amos, an alumnus of Castle Heights Military Academy, Lebanon, Tenn., where he was graduated cum laude, received his B.S. degree from Northwestern University. His fraternity is Kappa Sigma.

Martin-Geissal Church Wedding

MISS MARY CATHERINE GEISSAL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo M. Geissal, 788 Yale avenue, University City, was married last night to John Sykes Martin. The Rev. Dr. Roy Calvin Dobson performed the ceremony at First Presbyterian Church. White gladiolas and chrysanthemums interspersed with blue blossoms adorned the church and lighted tapers were attached to pews along the center aisle.

Attending Miss Geissal were Miss Dorcas Langford Taylor, maid of honor, and Diane Geissal, a niece, junior bridesmaid. Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters-in-law, Mrs. Richard Lee Geissal, Butler, Mo., and Mrs. James Wesley Geissal; her former roommate at Sullins Junior College, Miss Kay Eckford, Starkville, Miss.; her cousin, Mrs. James Curtis, Waco, Tex.; Miss Monica Pesenmeier, Huntington, W. Va.; Mr. Martin's sister-in-law, Mrs. Douglas Vass Martin III, and Miss Margaret Klein.

Mr. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas V. Martin Jr., 8 Black Creek lane, Ladue, had his brother, Douglas Martin, as best man. Ushers were Richard L. and James W. Geissal, Robert E. Salisbury, Paul Beisman II, George H. Streiff Jr., Frank T. Schleicher and Lawrence C. Manchester.

The former Miss Geissal wore for her wedding an off-white taffeta gown with re-

Clifford-Reilly Engagement Told At Supper Party

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM H. KNIEP, 7125 Pershing avenue, University City, gave a cocktail supper last evening at which announcement was made of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Louise Reilly, to Frederick Zeibig Clifford. Mr. Clifford is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Morton Clifford, 11 Hortense place.

The wedding is planned for late winter.

Last night's party was in honor of Miss Dorothy Esson Johnson, who will be married Oct. 29 to Robert F. Rodriguez.

The buffet table in the dining room was decorated with a silver bowl filled with white roses and lilies of the valley, and white candles in silver candelabra entwined with smilax. The same flowers combined with white chrysanthemums adorned the living and music rooms on the first floor and the upstairs television room. Small tables on the lawn were centered with hurricane lamps and greenery.

Miss Reilly received her early education at the Academy of the Sacred Heart and was graduated from Villa Duchesne and Maryville College. At Maryville she became a member of Eta Sigma Phi, classical honorary. Granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John C. Reilly, Pittsburgh, Pa., she is a niece of Mrs. Maurice A. Neville, West Lafayette, Ind.; James A. Reilly, Corsicana, Tex., the late Mrs. Carter Bell, Houston, Tex., and the late Mrs. James A. Butler, Indianapolis. Her cousin, Mrs. Carl O. Bartelson of Terre Haute, Ind., accompanied by Mr. Bartelson and their son, John Kemmer Bartelson, were here for the engagement party.

Mr. Clifford is the brother of Miss Mary Frances Clifford, Oliver Morton Clifford Jr., Santa Barbara, Calif., and Charles Churchill Clifford, Chicago. His grandparents, none of whom is living, were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Zeibig and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clifford. Through his father he is a nephew of Mrs. Edith Clifford Saxton, Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom, Mrs. Wilbur B. Jones, all of St. Louis, and Arthur M. Clifford, Pasadena, Calif. His maternal aunts and uncles are Mrs. Edwin E. Stith, Charles Hunt Zeibig, Mrs. C. Powell Whitehead and Douglas Zeibig, all of St. Louis, and Mrs. John Young Brown, New York.

After competing his primary education at Barat Hall, Mr. Clifford was graduated from Country Day School and Yale University, class of 1949. He served for a year with the Army in Japan. The prospective bridegroom is a member of Bachelor and Missouri Athletic Clubs.

Marcia Briner To Be Married

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES EDWARD BRINER, 20 York Hills drive, Brentwood, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marcia Jean Briner, to James Alvah Creelman Jr.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Clayton High School, has returned to Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo., to complete her senior year. Her sorority is Alpha Xi Delta of which she is chapter secretary. Miss Briner spent the last summer traveling in Europe with friends. She has one brother, Charles Dean Briner of Little Neck, N.Y.

An alumnus of Kirnwood High School, Mr. Creelman is also a senior at Culver-Stockton College, where last year he served as chapter treasurer of his fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha. He was on duty with the Army in France for 13 months. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Creelman, 940 East Big Bend boulevard, and the brother of Mrs. Ross Miner of Plainfield, N.J.

Evans-Pahmeyer Wedding Is Event At Ladue Chapel

MISS MARY LOUISE PAHMEYER and Samuel Marshall Evans were married shortly before noon yesterday in Ladue Chapel by the Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell, and later went outside to the church garden where they received their friends informally.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert O. Schaefer Jr., 1 Westridge Court, University City, with whom she lived, and John Roger Pahmeyer, 4 Douglas lane, Kirkwood, who gave her in marriage. Mr. Evans is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Marshall Evans, 20 Upper Ladue road.

It was a simple wedding, with only two attendants, Miss Mary Virginia Harms, a debutante, as the bride's only attendant and Mr. Evans as his son's best man.

The bride wore a short white satin gown on princess lines with small cap sleeves and a scoop neckline trimmed with lace and seed pearls. A pearl circlet held her shoulder-length veil. She carried a colonial nosegay of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Harms was in old rose taffeta and a headband of the material and her flowers were matching pink roses, arranged in a nosegay.

With her royal blue chiffon dress Mrs. Schaefer wore matching slippers and a corsage of white orchids, while the bridegroom's mother was in gray faille with a small

Stanza-Brown Engagement Told At Luncheon and Family Dinner

THE engagement of Miss Jane Hamilton Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Barrett Brown, 40 Kingsbury place, to Robert Don Stanza was announced yesterday at a luncheon and later a family dinner, both at the Brown home.

Luncheon guests, friends of the prospective bride, learned the news in the entrance hall where two large rabbits, suggesting Miss Brown's nickname, Bunny, (she was born on Easter Day), toasted each other. One wore a wedding veil and held a bouquet while the other wore a top hat and a boutonniere.

Miss Brown returned a few days ago from a summer in Europe with her sister, Miss Frances Reith Brown, a debutante of this season. A graduate of Mary Institute, the bride-to-be attended Bradford (Mass.) Junior College for one year and then entered Washington University where she will be a junior this year. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Miss Brown, who made her debut during the season just past, was presented to society at a dance at Bellerive Country Club sharing honors with a cousin, Miss Cynthia Anne Dietschi of Rio de Janeiro At last year's Veiled Prophet ball, she served as a maid of honor. She is a provisional member of the St. Louis Junior League.

Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. Frank Reith Phillips; Dr. Brown's mother is Mrs. Albert Sidney Brown of Rochester, Minn.

Mr. Stanza is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Stanza, 7201 Greenway drive, University City, and the grandson of Mrs. G. William Schaefer and the late Mr. Schaefer and of the late Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Benjamin Stanza. He has one brother, Earl G. Stanza Jr.

The prospective bridegroom, a 1950 graduate of Washington University, served in 1952 and '53 as a first lieutenant with the Army in Korea. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity and of the Bachelor and Missouri Athletic Clubs.

Phyllis Cytrin Plans Wedding in Summer

MR. AND MRS. HYMAN CYTRON, 1131 Backer street, University City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Phyllis Lee Cytron, to Marvin Sandweiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nat Sandweiss, 6664 Kingsbury boulevard, University City. The wedding is planned to take place next summer.

The prospective bride was graduated from University City High School and attended the University of Missouri. She has three sisters, Miss Barbara, Miss Mimi and Miss Margo Cytron.

Mr. Sandweiss also attended Missouri University, where his fraternity affiliation was Sigma Alpha Mu.

Miss Peterson Is Fall Bride

LADUE CHAPEL was the scene last night of the marriage of Miss Beverly Dianne Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Magnus F. Peterson, to Thomas Haldon Martin. Woodwardia fern and bouquets of white chrysanthemums provided decoration and candles tied with white satin bows marked the center aisle.

The bride's ivory peau de soie gown was designed with a wide, deep neckline, short sleeves and an extremely full skirt. The inverted pleats at back extending into a train. The gown's only trimming was a rose point lace polonaise. More of the rose-point was gathered to form a cap and fell to the bride's shoulders over a train-length tulle veil. She carried a shower of white orchids.

Mrs. Franklin C. Gilbert served as her sister's matron

MISS PEGGY RUTH HUME

Florence Kennedy Is Married to J. E. O'Toole Jr.

MISS FLORENCE MARY BERNADETTE KENNEDY and Joseph Edward O'Toole Jr. were married yesterday morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in a setting of white fall flowers and candlelight by Msgr. Edward A. Rogers. The bride, called Fawncy by her friends, is a daughter of Mrs. Thomas R. Kennedy, 7263 Forsyth boulevard, University City, and the late Dr. Kennedy. Mr. O'Toole's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. O'Toole, 1245 Orchid avenue.

Dr. Francis L. Kennedy gave his niece in marriage. Her gown was heirloom princess lace over ivory tulle and satin styled with long sleeves and a round neckline finished with a lace bertha. The skirt, gathered to a slim bodice, spread into a train. The ivory illusion veil cascaded from a coronet of satin overlaid with princess lace. The bride carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Carroll Dean Kennedy was maid of honor for her sister, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Mary Julienne O'Toole, was bridesmaid. They were in tulle dresses over satin in a bittersweet shade designed with square necklines, short sleeves and full skirts which fell from satin sashes to the floor. In their hair they wore matching tulle bands studded with pearls and finished with brief flared veils. They carried shower bouquets of talisman roses.

The bridegroom's cousin, Raymond L. McLaughlin, Moline, Ill., was best man. Guests were escorted to their pews by Leo H. MacDonald, William P. Hamilton, Leo E. Gerritzen and Robert L. Spies.

Following the wedding there was a family breakfast at the Congress Hotel and early in the afternoon additional guests attended a reception in the hotel's Tower room.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Toole went south on their wedding trip and will live in St. Louis. The bride, a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, attended Maryville College. Mr. O'Toole, a graduate of St. Louis University High School, will start his senior year at St. Louis University this fall.

Carlyn Wegner Becomes Bride

MISS ELIZABETH CARLYN WEGNER, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl R. Wegner, 7404 Carleton avenue, University City, was married yesterday evening to Navy Ens. John Adams Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edwin Hopkins of Barrington, R.I. The ceremony, which took place at Second Presbyterian Church, was performed by the Rev. Chester C. Carnahan.

The bride was gowned in white silk peau de soie, with bands of silk and re-embroidered Alencon lace edging the off-shoulder neckline. She wore a fingertip veil attached to a juliet cap trimmed with seed pearls and carried a cascade of white roses and Fuji chrysanthemums.

Miss Mary Lee Wegner, who served as maid of honor for her sister, was dressed in mist green taffeta and held talisman roses and Fuji chrysanthemums. In similar attire were the bridesmaids, Miss Gretchen Wegner, a cousin from Wellesley, Mass.; Miss Cherry Collins of Montclair, N.J., Mrs. Wade A. Watts of Aurora, Colo., and Mrs. James A. Reynolds.

Mr. Hopkins was his son's best man. Ushers included the bridegroom's three brothers, George Bruce, Paul Jeffrey and Charles E. Hopkins Jr., all of Barrington, and the bride's brother, Donald Gordon Wegner.

After a reception in the church parlors, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins departed on a wedding trip. They will live in Newport, R.I. The bride is a graduate of Pembroke College, Providence, R.I. and her husband of Brown University.

Anniversary Party For Theater Guild

THE Kirkwood Theater Guild is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary this year and to mark the occasion will give an open house and tea from 6 until 8 o'clock this evening at Grace Church Parish House, Washington and Taylor avenues, Kirkwood. Past presidents and charter members will take part in a program. Mrs. Kingsley Suits is president of the guild for the 1955-56 season.

After the tea tryouts will be held for the first play of the season, "Harvey." Al Renje is casting chairman for the play. He will be assisted by Lambert Kalman, Theater Guild director.

Miss Hume Fiancee Of Joseph J. Wesner

MR. AND MRS. GARFORD HUME, 5301 Olene drive, Normandy, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Peggy Ruth Hume, to Joseph James Wesner of Boston. The wedding will take place Sept. 24 in Blessed Sacrament Chapel of Boston's Holy Cross Cathedral.

Miss Hume, an airline hostess based in Boston, attended Boston University. She is the sister of Mrs. Richard Burnett of St. Louis.

Mr. Wesner is the son of Mrs. Leo Wesner and the late Mr. Wesner and the brother of Leo Wesner, all of Boston. A graduate of Boston College, he served for two years in the Marine Corps.

The Hume family will go to Boston for the wedding.

Buffet Supper Tuesday.

A buffet supper Tuesday evening will be the first meeting of the season for alumnae of Gamma Phi Beta. It will be at the home of Mrs. Robert Stocko, 12 Wild Rose drive, where Mrs. Florine Magruder will speak on furs. The long buffet table and individual tables will be decorated with fashion figurines draped in miniature fur stoles. A fur lapel pin will be an attendance award. Mrs. Everett W. Brooks Jr. will preside.

On Caribbean Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lieber, 6313 Waterman avenue, University City, have returned from a 16-day Caribbean trip. Traveling on board the Alcoa Cavalier, the Liebers visited Venezuela, Trinidad, Jamaica and Curacao.

MRS. JOHN F. FAURE

Miss Kriegshauser J .F. Faure Married

THE wedding of Miss Mary Joan Kriegshauser and John F. Faure took place yesterday at St. Peter's Church, Kirkwood, at a noon ceremony performed by the Rev. Bernard Kramer of Our Lady of the Pillar Church, Creve Coeur. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kriegshauser who gave the subsequent reception at their home, 4 Lynnbrook road, Frontenac. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Faure, 323 East Bodley avenue, Kirkwood.

The former Miss Kriegshauser was gowned in antique silk with long sleeves, a rounded neckline and a fitted bodice highlighted by chantilly lace. The same lace trimmed the bouffant skirt and edged the cathedral train. A lace and silk cap held her tulle veil in place. The bridal bouquet was stephanotis, lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Mrs. Robert A. McNulty was matron of honor with Mrs. Paul Adams Jr., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Dorothy Maher and Miss Zoe Striegel as bridesmaids. They wore soft pink and lilac shades of crystallette, ballerina length, and carried pink rosebuds except for the honor attendant who had yellow roses.

Paul Adams served as best man for his brother-in-law. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Robert E., George W. and James J. Kriegshauser, Mr. McNulty, Joseph Zickel and John Cronin.

The bride's niece, Catherine Ann Kriegshauser, was flower girl.

Miss Hartnett Is Married at Church Service

THE marriage of Miss Mary Susan Hartnett, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leo Joseph Hartnett, to Army Lt. George Arthur Van Der Bosch of Chicago took place yesterday. Bishop Leo C. Byrne and Msgr. Donald Hartnett, Fort Worth, Tex., uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony at the Church of the Immacolata. White stephanotis and feathered carnations, greenery and lighted candles provided a setting for the ceremony.

Miss Mary Lee Hartnett served as her sister's maid of honor and Miss Deborah Bair, Miss Joanne Kearns, Miss Patricia Van Der Bosch, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Olive Mary Fox, Chicago, and Miss Patricia Atwell, Washington, were bridesmaids. They wore champagne-colored gowns with lace bodices and chiffon skirts. Velvet sashes, a different pastel tone for each young woman, matched their hats and bouquets of shattered carnations.

The bride wore an eggshell satin gown overlaid with chantilly lace. The neckline, cut to a V at front, formed a cowl in back. Her veil was secured by a lace cap trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried stephanotis, lilies of the valley and split carnations.

Lt. Van Der Bosch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Van Der Bosch of Chicago. His brother, Laurence Van Der Bosch, was his best man and two other brothers, Thomas Van Der Bosch of Chicago and Richard Van Der Bosch of Arlington Heights, Ill.; Leo P. Finn Jr., Stuart Harvey, James Shurr, Richard Allison and Robert Carrane, all of Chicago, were ushers.

The reception was given at the Hartnett home, 34 Ridgetop drive, Richmond Heights.

Lt. Van Der Bosch and his bride will visit Sea Island, Ga., and Florida resorts on their wedding trip. They will live at Fort Benning, Ga.

Elizabeth Cobb Becomes Bride

A BRIDE of yesterday is Miss Elizabeth Ann Cobb, whose marriage to Robert Alan Stuart took place in Royal Oak, Mich. The morning ceremony was performed in St. Theresa's Chapel, Shrine of the Little Flower. Afterward the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Stuart Cobb of Birmingham, Mich., gave a breakfast at Devon Gables. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jonathan Kludt, 501 South Warson road, Ladue.

Maid of honor was Miss Ann McGinnis of University City, and bridesmaids were Miss Jean Beatty, St. Louis, Miss Polly Uliet and Miss Betty Aldred, both of Birmingham, and Miss Jane Lawler of Detroit, a niece of Mrs. Kludt. The young women were gowned in powder blue lace and carried yellow Fuji chrysanthemums combined with ivy.

A floor-length gown of white lace and tulle was worn by the bride who had a tulle veil attached to a crown of pearls and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white orchids, roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Jonathan Kludt served as best man for Mr. Stuart. Ushers were John Bray of Independence, Kan., Neill Knott of Conway, Ark., John H. Siegel of Belleville, Ill., and Donald Buercklin, Webster Groves.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, who have departed on a southern honeymoon, will live at 7512 Cromwell drive, Clayton. Both the bride and bridegroom are former students of Washington University, where she became a member of Delta Gamma sorority and he of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Among the St. Louisans who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Alex P. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. T. Cal Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kelly.

Arlene Zacher, Jack H. Miner Are Married

MISS ARLENE ZACHER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henry Zacher of Chicago, was married yesterday afternoon to William Harding Miner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harding Miner, 2041 Briargate lane, Kirkwood.

The double ring ceremony took place at the Salem Baptist Church in Chicago with the Rev. Bruce Fleming officiating. The bridal attendants were Miss Sherrel Seeley, maid of honor, and Miss Joan Farwell and Miss Janet Sommers, bridesmaids. Miss Sally Miner, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. Both Miss Seeley and Miss Farwell were classmates of the bride at The Principia College.

Mr. Miner had Ross Hampe as best man. His brother, Jack Slayton Miner; the bride's brother, Donald Zacher; Terry Coggan, Hal Milton and John Swanson were ushers. Mr. Milton and Mr. Swanson are Theta Chi fraternity brothers of Mr. Miner.

The bride was in a tulle over lace gown designed with a neckline trimmed with seed pearls. Her veil was held in place by a pearl juliet cap and she carried phaleonopsis and stephanotis. Her attendants wore coral chiffon, ballerina length, except for the junior bridesmaid who was in white organdy with a coral sash. They all held white Fuji chrysanthemums.

A reception was given later at the Beverly Hills Country Club.

After a honeymoon in Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Miner will live in Lafayette, Ind., while he completes work toward his degree in political science at Purdue University.

Miss Hiken Engaged.

Announcement was made recently of the engagement of Miss Prisella Hiken, daughter of Mrs. Isadore Hiken, 1255 Purdue avenue, University City, and the late Mr. Hiken, to Myron J. Grodsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grodsky of East St. Louis. Miss Hiken, a graduate of University City High School, is a student at Jewish Hospital School of Nursing. Her fiance, who was graduated from East St. Louis High School, attended the University of Illinois.

MISS MARILYN AFF

Wilson-Williamson Engagement Told; February Wedding

DR. AND MRS. OSCAR E. WILLIAMSON gave a buffet supper at their home, 16 Godwin lane, Ladue, Thursday night, to announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edna Mildred Williamson, to Olen Cooper Wilson Jr. of Amarillo, Tex. Guests were limited to the families and close friends.

News of the engagement was revealed by a mantel arrangement of two dolls standing at either side of a large engagement ring. One was dressed as a nurse, representing the bride-elect, a senior in Washington University School of Nursing, and the other as a doctor for Mr. Wilson, a senior at Washington University School of Dentistry.

Miss Williamson attended Oberlin (O.) College for two years before enrolling at Washington where she is president of the Student Association. Her fiance, who is active in Delta Sigma Delta dental fraternity, attended Denver University for two years. Although his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olen Cooper Wilson, were unable to be present for the party, his sister, Miss Elizabeth Jane Wilson, came to St. Louis for the occasion.

Feb. 18 has been chosen as the wedding date.

Miss Doyen Fiancee Of R. R. Ramberger

ANNOUNCEMENT has has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Doyen, 3106 Allen avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Joan Frances Doyen, to Russell Robert Ramberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ramberger of Bethlehem, Pa.

Miss Doyen is a sophomore at Washington University where she is enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts. Her fiance, who also attends Washington University, is a junior in the School of Engineering. He is secretary of his fraternity, Sigma Phia Epsilon.

Miss Alice Wallace, J. B. Nutter Married

MISS ALICE ANNE WALLACE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clifton Wallace, Collinsville, and James Bertrand Nutter were married at the First Presbyterian Church of Collinsville Aug. 27. The Rev. Dr. William H. Sill officiated at the candlelight ceremony.

MRS. JAMES B. NUTTER

Mr. Wallace gave his daughter in marriage. She was attended by Miss Margaret Dillingham, Shreveport, La., maid of honor, and Miss Ruth Young, Omaha, Nebr., bridesmaid. Mr. Nutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nutter, New Orleans, had Charles Fenner McConnell, New Orleans, as best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, Charles William Nutter; Dick Mullin, St. Louis, and David Larsen, Peoria, Ill.

The bride wore a white Chantilly lace gown and an illusion veil gathered to a pearl coronet. She carried white Fuji chrysanthemums. Her attendants were in pale blue crystallette dresses and held bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. Nutter are living at Rogers, Ark.

Miss Aff Fiancee Of W.G. Erselius

THE engagement of Miss Marilyn Aff to Walter George Erselius was announced at a homecoming tea last Sunday afternoon by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Aff, at their home, 1 Denny lane, Huntleigh Village. Miss Aff, who will be graduated next June from Washington University School of Medicine with a B.S. degree in occupational therapy, returned last week from Denver where she was assigned to occupational therapy student clinical training at Colorado General Hospital.

For last Sunday's party an enlarged photograph of the engaged pair stood in the reception room and as guests arrived they were presented match books, imprinted with pictures of Miss Aff and her fiance, by Miss Mary Beth Westenhiser who was dressed as a cigarette girl. The tea table was decorated with a pink bird cage, laden with pink roses and white chrysanthemums, holding two love birds on which were the names of the engaged pair.

The bride-elect, an alumna of Mary Institute, is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. Mr. Erselius is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Erselius, 4960 Loughborough avenue, and a brother of Mrs. Vernon Wilkie and Kenneth Erselius. He attends Washington University School of Architecture.

The wedding is planned to take place the latter part of next June.

Miss Cecile Shmuger Prospective Bride

THE engagement of Miss Cecile Shmuger, daughter of Mrs. Jake Shmuger, 6425 Cates avenue, University City, and the late Mr. Shmuger, to Bernard Tobin has recently been announced. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Tobin, 7234 Colgate avenue, University City.

The bride-to-be is an alumna of University City High School and is now a sophomore at Harris Teachers College. She has one brother, Stanley Shmuger. Miss Shmuger and her fiance plan to be married next summer.

Mr. Tobin, who is a graduate of St. Louis University, has served two years in the Army in the Korean campaign and was stationed in Europe. He is the brother of Miss Marcia Tobin and Eugene Tobin.

Married in Sitka

MR. AND MRS. MARK MEREDITH

Alaska Wedding For Sydney Hert, Mark Meredith

NEWS has come from Sitka, Alaska, concerning the marriage there last June 21 of Miss Sydney Judith Hert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hert of Mount Edgecombe, Sitka, to Mark Meredith, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John Wesley Meredith, 5545 Maple avenue. The Rev. Henry Chapman performed the evening ceremony at St. Peter's-by-the-Sea, a tiny Episcopal Church, which was decorated with white stock and lighted by many candles.

The bride wore a lace and tulle wedding gown and a tulle veil caught to a pearl crown. She carried bride's roses and stephanotis.

Miss Melinda Hert, her sister's maid of honor, wore pink nylon net and a broad-brimmed lavender picture hat. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies. James Reeder was best man for Mr. Meredith, whose ushers were William Boettcher and John Abell.

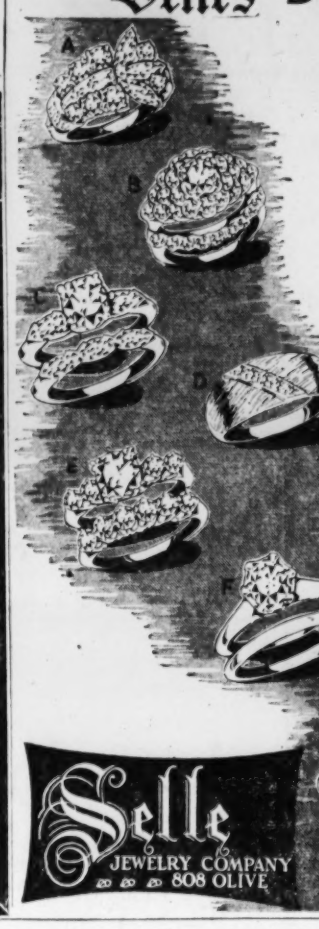

After the wedding a reception was held at the Elks Clubroom. For the present Mr. and Mrs. Meredith have an apartment in Sitka.

Both the bride and bridegroom attended the University of Colorado. She is a graduate of Sitka High School. Mr. Meredith, whose father for 24 years has been pastor of the Maple Avenue Methodist Church, is a graduate of Soldan High School. At college he studied at the School of Fine Arts and became a member of the Pentagon Club and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Some of his art work has been shown in the Forum Gallery, New York. He is the brother of Mrs. Norman J. Merritt, Centralia, Ill., and John W. Jr., and William Sterling Meredith, St. Louis.

Barbara Glaser Becomes Bride Of M. A. Lewis

MISS BARBARA GLASER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Glaser, 7464 Cromwell drive, Clayton, and Marlin A. Lewis were married last night at Westwood Country Club by Rabbi Samuel Thurman. Guests remained for a reception and dinner.

The ceremony took place in the small lounge before an altar improvised of white flowers and woodwardia illuminated with white tapers in wrought iron candelabra. An aisle was marked with hurricane lamps garlanded with greenery and satin ribbon.

Mr. Glaser gave his daughter in marriage. Her cousin, Mrs. David E. Steinberg, was matron of honor and another cousin, Miss Joy Solomon, Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Libby Goodman, Wichita, Kan., were bridesmaids, Allyn Jane Presberg, also a cousin, was junior bridesmaid and the bridegroom's niece, Linda Sue Lewis, was flower girl.

Mr. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Lewis, 200 Brighton Way, Clayton, was attended by his father as best man. Ushers were the bridegroom's brothers, Henry and Bernard Lewis; the bride's brother, Louis Glaser; Noel Gordon, Robert Rosenblatt and Bruce Horowitz.

The bride wore a white satin princess gown. Bands of re-embroidered alencon lace sparkling with sequins and pearls was lavishly appliqued over the bodice and extended in panels down the full trained skirt. A Brussels lace juliet cap held the bride's illusion veil in place. She carried a family Bible adorned with moth orchids and lilies of the valley. The adult attendants wore Limoges blue velveteen princess gowns, and short veils fastened to matching velvet hairbands. They carried baskettes of white split carnations. The junior bridesmaid and flower girl were in white dotted nylon frocks and held French baskets of white blossoms.

Mr. Lewis and his bride will go to Acapulco and Mexico City on their wedding trip and will live in Clayton. A large group of relatives and friends from out of town were here for the wedding.

Miss Berry Married To William E. Bott

MISS HELEN DIANE BERRY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar A. Berry, 626 East Jackson road, Webster Groves, became the bride of William Emile Bott in a candlelight service performed last evening at First Methodist Church of Webster Groves by the Rev. Wilburn S. Yoder, pastor. White chrysanthemums and fern decorated the chancel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white tulle and lace worn over pale pink. Her fingertip veil was gathered to a cap of sequins and pearls. An orchid adorned the prayer book she carried. A pearl necklace, worn by her mother, grandmother and great-grandmother at their respective weddings, completed her costume.

Miss Barbara Lee Brown of West Hartford, Conn., was maid of honor while two former University of Missouri roommates, Miss Mary Ellen James of Brookfield, Mo., and Mrs. Walter Alton Vogler, were bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of sea green pongee and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums matching the flowers in their hair.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bott, 2915 Adie road, St. Louis county, was attended by his brother-in-law, Charles Stith of Kansas City, as best man. Ushers were G. Glenn Buermann and James Arthur Lawler.

The wedding reception was given at the Berry home.

On their return from a honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Bott will live at 6235 Southwood avenue, Clayton.

The bride, who received a bachelor's degree in journalism, is a member of Gamma Alpha Chi sorority. Mr. Bott attended Washington University.

7720 FORSYTH • CLAYTON 5, MISSOURI

Dear Friends:

We've known St. Louis for 89 Years. We've watched it grow...stretch out...become so big, that the "heart" of St. Louis is no longer a designated area...but a community spirit...shared by all St. Louisans, city and suburban! That's why we feel our beautiful new Clayton store is extremely close to the "heart" of St. Louis.

There we will continue our tradition of superlative quality and fashion in furs and ready-to-wear and maintain our many customer services: charge accounts, fur storage, cleaning, repairing and remodeling...as well as the largest collection of furs west of the Mississippi.

We celebrate our Grand Opening the week of September 12th...and I hope our friends will all drop in and see us.

Sincerely yours,

embroidered alencon lace outlining the neckline and finishing the long sleeves. A large lace motif was appliqued on the full skirt. Heirloom lace from her mother's wedding gown formed the bride's headband and a short veil which fell over tulle. She carried an heirloom lace handkerchief with a cluster of stephanotis.

Her attendants were in iridescent blue taffeta gowns cut on princess lines with tulip skirts. Covering their hair were short, matching veils. They carried pale blue Fuji chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Geissal chose an ice blue lace and tulle gown embroidered with iridescent sequins and pearls. With it she wore a small hat in the same tone. The bridegroom's mother was in cocoa lace and a matching velvet hat. Both wore orchid corsages.

The reception was given at Glen Echo Country Club. Guests were received on the terrace in a garden setting created with white wrought iron gates and flower boxes. White flowers bedecked the bridal table and hurricane lamps provided centerpieces for the small supper tables.

Mr. Martin and his bride, who have taken an apartment in Manhassett Village, will spend their honeymoon at Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.

neckline, long sleeves and a full gathered skirt extending into a train. She carried lilies of the valley.

Miss Mary Gessner (Polly) Park, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant wearing a white brocade gown featuring princess lines. She carried a bouquet of white stock and wore a wreath of the blossoms in her hair.

Mr. Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Park Jr., 5257 Westminster place, had Henry Reed Heebner Jr., Wynnewood, Pa., his former roommate at Yale University, as best man. Ushers, former classmates, were Forrest Roger Hemker of St. Louis and Joseph R. Siphron of Cincinnati.

Those who attended the wedding were joined by additional guests for the reception at the Women's Building on the campus of Washington University. Mrs. Cowdry greeted her guests wearing a navy taffeta dress and a beaded velour hat while Mrs. Park was in Dior blue peau de soie and a hat of jewel tone velour.

Out-of-town guests included the bridegroom's grandfather, Howard Richard Gessner, Wynnewood; his aunt, Mrs. John E. Fricke Jr., Merion, Pa.; his grandmother, Mrs. Howard Franklin Park, Philadelphia; his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morgan Parsons, Washington; the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. E. Claudy and son, Nicholas H. Claudy, Washington; her former roommate at Radcliffe College, Miss Jean Shaw, Washington, Conn.; Dwight-Hall Townsend, New York, and Gavin Young III, Menasha, Wis., who attended Yale with Mr. Park.

Mr. Park and his bride have departed for a wedding trip. They will live at the Westminster place address. The former Miss Cowdry, a provisional member of the Junior League, will continue her studies at Washington University while her husband will enter the Air Force as a second lieutenant early in January.

of honor and Miss Sandra Mudd, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Charles Mosby III, Miss Cynthia Hein, Miss Jean Vogler, Miss Louise Newhouse, Mrs. Charles R. Walter, Mrs. Robert W. Butler, Bryan, Tex., sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Helen Van Hartman, Carthage, Mo. Their ivory taffeta gowns featured bell-shaped skirts over hoops and scoop necklines edged with fine pleating. Bands holding white veiling were their headpieces; their bouquets were composed of lavender orchids.

Mrs. Butler's young son and daughter, Robert William Jr. and Doyle Ellen Butler, were ringbearer and flower girl. The little girl was in a white organdy and black velvet picture frock and held a basket of rose petals.

Mr. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jeffries Martin who were here from their home in Austin, Tex., had Mr. Gilbert as best man. Ushers were Mr. Butler, Charles R. Walter, Wilbur C. Kirchner, David D. Edwards, Ralph Edwards, Warren Lee Hanna, Pueblo, Colo.; Henry C. Ellis, Norfolk, Va.; Edward G. Dewein, Freeburg, Ill.; Gale H. Grossenbacher and Dr. James McFadden.

The reception was given at the Peterson home, 43 Fair Oaks, Ladue. Guests were received before the living room mantel which was adorned with woodwardia fern and white chrysanthemums. On the patio, sheltered by a marquee, was the buffet table which was covered with white satin and centered with an epergne holding white roses, lilies of the valley and tuberoses. Small tables on the lawn held hurricane lamps set in clusters of white pompons.

The bride and bridegroom, after a wedding trip, will return here to live in an apartment in Clayton.

Rid your dog of fleas forever!
K-9 Guardian Flea Killer Collar
Keeps your dog healthy and happy 2.98
Pooch pests are a thing of the past when you buckle on the K-9 . . . the collar that wags your dog's tail! Constant head-to-tail protection from fleas, ticks, and lice make your canine a cleaner, happier house guest. It's truly a handsome collar of fine natural color saddle leather lined with comfortable foam latex. It works by applying the K-9 ointment inside the collar, thereby generating an odorless vapor detested by parasites. This vapor is absorbed by the dog's fur, providing "head to tail" protection. Order by size of dog's neck.

MISS SHIRLIEANNE BERTELS

Shirlieanne Bertels, E. J. Mee Engaged; News Told at Tea

A TEA and an evening party were given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. John Stephen Bertels at their home, 436 West Point court, University City, to announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Shirlieanne Bertels, to Edward Joseph Mee. Mr. Mee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mee, 7155 Plateau avenue, Richmond Heights.

Miss Bertels, sister of the late John Stephen Bertels Jr., attended Webster and Fontbonne Colleges. She was graduated last year from Quincy (Ill.) College where she became a member of Theta Phi Alpha sorority.

The bridegroom-elect is the brother of Jerry and John Mee and Mrs. Joseph Corea. An alumnus of St. Louis University, he served with the Army in the Southwest Pacific in World War II. He and his fiance are making tentative plans for a spring wedding.

Coming-Out Parties For Two Debutantes

at John Burroughs School and a graduate of Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn., will depart next week for her second year at Smith College.

MISS BARBARA SCHLUETER'S coming-out party, a dinner dance, took place lated in the evening. The party was given at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Newell S. Schlueter, 2 Litzsinger lane, Ladue.

Tables on the lawn were covered with dark green and centered with lightly frosted autumn fruit. The buffet table, in the dining room, with a dark green cloth, was adorned with a white cornucopia spilling more of the fruit and lighted with candles held in crystal and gold candelabra. Debutantes and their escorts danced in the garden, where a floor was constructed and sheltered with a dark green canopy.

For her debut party Miss Schlueter wore a white organza gown. Strapless, it was simply designed with an elongated bodice and a full short skirt. She carried a bouquet of star of Bethlehem blossoms. Mrs. Schlueter chose a beige linen dress woven with a metallic thread. A sheath gown, it was trimmed with brown velvet.

Miss Schlueter, a graduate of John Burroughs School, will return later this month to Connecticut College for Women, New London, for her second year.

Besides the coming-out parties there were two affairs yesterday in honor of debutantes. Miss Jean Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Alexander, was guest of honor at a breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. Holton R. Price Jr., Mr. and Mrs. T. Middleton Levis and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peyton Daniel. The party, which had an undersea theme, was given at the Price home, 48 Godwin lane, Ladue.

Fishnet covered the buffet table which was centered with an arrangement of driftwood, while the smaller tables, also with net coverings, had centerpieces of leaping frogs on green leaves. Shells served as ashtrays and starfish and coral as decorations throughout the house while cutouts of fish climbing trees adorned the walls. A lifesize mermaid, on which was superimposed a photograph of Miss Alexander's head, dominated a seascape covering one wall.

Later members of the debutante set were entertained by Mrs. C. Norman Jones, 4638 Pershing avenue, who gave a cocktail party in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Carol Bond Jones. Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert N. Jones. She is a Skidmore College student.

A party today will honor Miss Margaret Lamy Averill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollis Averill. Hosts and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. John Barlow and Dr. and Mrs. William B. Lytton, uncles and aunts of the debutante. The party, a breakfast, will be given at the Barlow home, 13 Hortense place.

Tables will be set on the brick terrace and adorned with yellow and white flowers. Overhead a frame woven in yellow and white, trimmed with greenery and white and yellow flowers, is suspended from the house to shield the guests.

Membership Tea.

The Ben A'Kiba Aid Society will have a membership tea Wednesday, Sept. 28, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Saul P. Seligman, 7604 Fairham avenue, University City.

EXCLUSIVE GROUP OF Hekman TABLES

Here's the table collection designed with YOUR needs in mind! The delightful styling in modified Italian Provincial . . . sleek enough to compliment Modern pieces and elegant enough for the most Traditional interior. The lines taper to a graceful line, tops have mitered crossgrain banding. The scale is suited to today's smaller rooms . . . yet these tables have a solidity and balance that withstands use in a busy, active home! The wood is cherry in a bland, honey color with shadings that point up the fine wood grains. And isn't it nice to find so many versatile table styles PLUS a wonderful table desk in matching design? Now it will be easy to coordinate a setting . . . all through the house!

FEATURING FURNITURE BY KINDEL

AT Lammerts ... an exclusive collection in the

Lammert Galleries

Kindel of Grand Rapids knows how to translate the beauty of French and Italian antique pieces into furniture ideally suited to today's active homes. All the exquisite detailing and romantic charm is retained ... PLUS those Kindel niceties which have made their name a standard for furniture quality. Marvelous woods are used ... fruitwood veneers selected for handsome markings are lovingly hand-coaxed to a satiny smoothness that delights your touch! Drawers are glove-fitted to glide into your hand ... with interiors left aromatic with good wood bouquet! Young homemakers know that the Kindel they invest in today becomes the proudest possession in their home for years to come.

FUTURE STAR: Joe DiMaggio, aged 17, is snapped in his first Seal uniform.

I'll always remember . . .

THE MAN BY THE FENCE

by JOE DIMAGGIO

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each of us has some moment (or moments) in life that we can never forget. Often it is something not guessed even by those who know us best. Today PARADE brings you the first of a series of such moments, culled from the memories of men and women known to all America.

Today's unforgettable moment comes from a man who stands for the best in our national sport — baseball. Now retired, Joe DiMaggio is remembered by every fan as the "Yankee clipper," a superb player at bat and afield. But Joe was not always a Yankee . . .

It was late in the summer of 1932, and I was a kid of 16 selling newspapers on a corner in San Francisco. I wasn't making too much money — sometimes $1.50 a day. Whatever it was, it went to help the family.

There were 11 of us — Momma and Pop, five brothers and four sisters. Everybody pitched in. My oldest brother Vince, 19, had broken into professional baseball that year with Tucson in the Arizona-Texas League, and we were all pretty proud of him. But things weren't going too well there, either, and the team suddenly folded up.

When he returned home, Vince fortunately was invited to play outfield for the San Francisco Seals. We all longed to go out to the park to watch him, but we didn't have the price of a seat.

There was a fence along the right side of Seal Stadium, and one day I found a crack in it. Squeezing my eye up against the boards, I found I could look in and watch my brother.

One afternoon while I was glued to the crack, I felt a tap on the shoulder. I looked up. Standing beside me was a man wearing an ominously serious expression. Frightened, I had a sudden impulse to run. I figured he was a cop who was going to run me in for "knotholing."

While I was trying to make up my mind, the man spoke. "I've been watching you."

My heart sank.

"Don't you realize that you can get bloodshot eyes looking through a knothole like that? Bloodshot eyes are no good for a ball player."

'Come Up and Meet the President'

I stared at him, bewildered. "Who are you, anyway?"

"My name is Spike Hennessey," he said "and I'm a scout for the Seals. You're a pretty good ball player for a kid," he went on. "You don't know it, but I've been watching you play Sundays on the sand lot. I think you ought to come upstairs and meet the club's president."

Unbelievingly, I followed him. A few minutes later I found myself in the office of Charley Graham, president of the Seals. Spike told Mr. Graham about finding me at the crack; he said he thought I might be able to help the Seals one day. Then he asked me, could I play shortstop?

My heart jumped. That was exactly the position I'd been playing as a sand-lotter. The next time I was at the park, they offered me a tryout; and I broke into the lineup for the last three days of the season. My first time at bat, I hit a triple! The next season, I was on my way.

I later found that Augie Galan, the Seals' regular shortstop, had been given permission to go to Honolulu three days before the season ended, and that Vince had talked to Jim Caveney, the team's manager, about me. So a lot of credit belongs to Vince.

But today, as I look back on all the marvelous things that have happened to me since, I remember how I felt that day. And whenever I see a kid who appears a little afraid or uncertain, I try to encourage him not to run away, but to stand his ground. Because my whole life might have turned out differently if I hadn't stood and listened to the man by the fence. ■

MATRIMONY is a subject about which a sailor had his own ideas.

One good turn....

by PAUL STEINER

Virtue is its own reward, and all that a would-be Good Samaritan has a right to expect is a little brighter shine on his Heavenly crown. Herewith, some examples of the extended "helping hand" — and its quite unexpected aftermath.

THE GOOD DEED: Learning from a woman constituent that the Navy wouldn't let a sailor leave his ship at San Diego to marry her daughter, a Congressman conscientiously contacted the ship's captain. THE SEQUEL: The Representative got a note from the sailor demanding, "Why don't you mind your own business?"

* * *

THE GOOD DEED: Happening on an opossum beset by a pack of pursuing dogs, a Cleveland policewoman sprang to the hapless animal's rescue. THE SEQUEL: The opossum bit her.

THE GOOD DEED: After leaving a police station where he had just turned in $90 he'd found, a Van Nuys, Calif., man was about to enter his car when something caught his eye. THE SEQUEL: In his absence, the vehicle had been ticketed for illegal parking.

THE GOOD DEED: Noting two women motorists apparently having car trouble, a Charlotte, N. C., man pulled up beside them on the highway to see if he could help. THE SEQUEL: The woman held him up and robbed him of $272.

THE GOOD DEED: Braving smoke and flame which overcame 20 firemen, a San Francisco patrolman dashed into a burning apartment house and rescued a small boy unharmed. THE SEQUEL: A few days later the cop wound up in the hospital — the boy had mumps.

THE GOOD DEED: After leaping from a bridge to retrieve a woman's purse which had fallen into the river beneath, a Des Moines man was met at the water's edge by a cop. THE SEQUEL: The man was charged with intoxication and fined $5.

THE GOOD DEED: Worried that his dog might suffer from the cold, a Green Bay, Wis., man installed an electric heater in his dog house. THE SEQUEL: Fire, resulting from a short circuit, destroyed the dog house and did more than $200 damage to the man's home.

THE GOOD DEED: Pursuing a friend whose car lacked a speedometer to warn him he was driving too fast, an Elizabeth, N.J., man was overtaken and forced to stop by a traffic cop. THE SEQUEL: He was fined $15 and costs for speeding.

THE GOOD DEED: After helping to prevent a $1,400 robbery, a Louisville man was pictured as a hero in local newspapers. THE SEQUEL: He was recognized from his photograph by police, who arrested him on a three-year-old grand larceny charge.

THE GOOD DEED: Seeing a pair of pheasants crossing a highway, a Weston, Mass., woman stopped her car to allow them to pass. THE SEQUEL: She was hit from behind by another motorist. ■

THIS IS A

White House Squirrel

and FRED BLUMENTHAL
PARADE WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENTS

Six months ago there were so many little fellows like this on the lawn that President Eisenhower's golf practice was interrupted. Front-page stories resulted — but no one seemed to know why those squirrels were so numerous. At last PARADE has unearthed the facts, exclusive and uncensored. Just turn the page . . .

® NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

SQUIRREL TRAPPER Don Glassie, who heads a design-engineering company, reveals his handiwork across the street from the White House (background).

WASHINGTON TOURISTS try to tempt White House squirrels to the fence with peanuts. Thanks in part to Don Glassie, there usually are many takers.

There was an engineer who had a wife. She liked to feed birds...

WASHINGTON, D.C.

It was last March when the great White House squirrel mystery made headlines here and all over America — only to be dropped for lack of information. One day President Eisenhower, swatting golf balls on the lawn, became aware of the unseemly number of squirrels scampering across the grass, darting up and down trees, peering through the foliage.

"Where," he demanded, "do they all come from?"

Six months later the answer can be revealed. It traces in large part to a quiet, broad-shouldered engineer named Don Glassie. Among other things, Glassie designs booby traps for the Army. He also, it turns out, has designed a trap for squirrels.

It happened when he was living in Chevy Chase, about six miles from the White House. His wife, a bird-lover, used to put tidbits in a trough outside her window for her small feathered friends. When free-loading squirrels started beating the birds to the goodies, she asked her husband for help.

Glassie tried fitting a metal umbrella over the trough. The squirrels simply climbed in under it. Glassie would not consider either poison or shooting. Then it came to him: a simple, humane trap. And when he had built one and set it out, he realized the best place to deposit the occupants would be the White House grounds. In that celebrated squirrel refuge the little creatures would thrive undisturbed, adding to the pleasure of tourists and helping to keep Nature alive in the heart of Washington.

MISSED PUTT shows squirrels' impact on Ike and aides in March 27 drawing by Herblock, noted political cartoonist.

On his way to work in the mornings, Glassie began emptying his trap through the White House fence. He kept it up until at least 100 squirrels had thus been transferred. As expected, they were happy in their new home. They also began, as squirrels will, to be fruitful and multiply.

By last March the results were only too apparent. The President's White House putting green was, for all practical purposes, overrun with squirrels. Anxious aides began trapping them and deporting them to nearby Rock Creek Park which, ironically, extends at one point to within a few blocks of Glassie's home in Chevy Chase.

It was this aspect of the story that made the front pages. Squirrel-lovers, aided by a Senate speech delivered by Sen. Richard Neuberger (D., Ore.), cried that the squirrels should be allowed to stay at the White House. And finally the President agreed.

The controversy still lives in some quarters. Take the Boy Scout delegation that won a trip to Washington and the right to lunch with any Senator. They picked Neuberger, who modestly asked why. "Because," came the reply, "you're a friend of the squirrels."

But the man who really deserves a Boy Scout merit badge is an unsung engineer named Don Glassie. ■

George E. Williamson, 66, 5'6", 135 lbs. Arrested in Miami Beach in 1952 for vagrancy; released.

Margaret Williamson, 47, 5'8", 145. Arrested in Norwalk, Conn., in 1953 for Irish-lace fraud.

YOUR DOORBELL RINGS. A well-dressed, cheerful man is standing there. He's got "the bargain of a lifetime for you."

Folded in his arms is a bolt of luxurious fabric — "all wool and yards wide" — which you can buy for a fraction of its price. The reason? Well, he's a salesman from Scotland, touring this country to display the wool at fashion shows. Now returning home, he's reluctant to take the cloth back to Scotland, since he would have to pay duty on it. Besides, he burrs winningly in his Highland accent, he's a wee bit short of cash.

The deal is made on the spot. For anywhere from $20 to $50 you buy what appears to be cloth worth $100 to $200. The "Scotsman" pockets your cash or check, hops into his expensive car, swivels around the corner, is gone.

And the "terrible Williamsons" have struck gold again.

This is the first complete story of the Williamson gang — probably the slickest and most successful gang of bunco, flim-flam and confidence artists in the U.S. today. Uniquely, the entire group — numbering at least a couple of hundred, at most a couple of thousand — seems to belong to the same family, founded apparently by Robert Logan Williamson, who came to this country from Scotland as a boy. Descendants and relatives, strengthened by fresh blood from Scotland, Ireland and elsewhere, make up the scores of Williamsons, McMillans, Stewarts, Johnstons, Keiths, McGavins, Carrolls and others now known as "the terrible Williamsons." By any name, they show an incredible knack for lifting dollars — perhaps several hundred thousand a year — from American pockets.

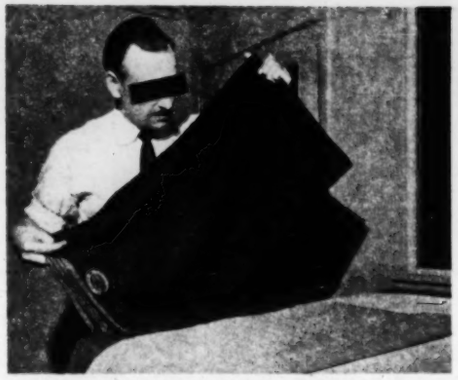

For two months this summer, PARADE hopscotched across the country, following a trail of angry — but strangely silent — Williamson victims, came back with these facts:

- The Williamsons are strikingly similar to gypsy families: they have the same itch for travel, craze for fancy cars, morbid love of opulent funerals — and the same talent for larceny in their womenfolk. Yet the Williamsons despise gypsies, won't come within a mile of their camps.

staggering sums. Here's a current report on an amazing gang

VICTIM of the fake-wool racket — though unwilling to be identified — displays half-rayon fabric he bought.

liamsons can put on a Scottish burr, an Irish brogue or a British accent at the drop of a sucker. These dialects sound so real that Williamsons have posed as Scotswomen to sell "wool," come back to the same city a few years later as Irishwomen and sold "lace" just as easily.

• Riding mostly in high-priced Buicks and Cadillacs, the Williamsons swarm out of the South each spring. They roll through the East, Midwest and West during spring, summer and fall, many basing their operations in Cincinnati. Comes the first sting of winter, however, and they pour out of their motels (their favorite stopping places) and head South. Their winter headquarters: Florida and Texas.

• Their principal rackets today are peddling "imported wool" for $50 a bolt that's actually mostly rayon worth $4 or $5; "Irish lace" or "linen" that's usually low-quality domestic or Chinese cotton; "aluminum paint" for roofs and barns that's mostly either crankcase oil or gasoline; and "lightning rods" that may be pieces of rope treated to look like metal.

• The Williamsons have been caught in the act probably hundreds of times, yet the combined bungling of their victims and the law has let them escape justice. For at least 40 years the Williamsons have successfully thumbed their noses at police, courts, Better Business Bureaus, the American Wool Council, the Federal Trade Commission, even the FBI.

The nose-thumbing, however, goes on secretly — like almost everything else about the Williamsons. PARADE tracked them across half the continent, couldn't find one willing to be interviewed. Finally four phony-wool peddlers were cornered in court in Hartford, Conn. PARADE was promised an interview at the end of the trial. As soon as the four had been found guilty (of false advertising and peddling without a license; fine: $240), they roared out of town in their new car, leaving the interview in mid-air.

But some people will talk about the Williamsons — a little. The Roselawn section of Cincinnati is where the gang holes up in motels and furnished rooms when in town. (One reason: It's near the cemetery where they bury some of their dead.) A gas-station operator told PARADE he knew the Williamsons; then, like a frightened character in a "B" picture, he clammed up.

"Don't monkey around with this bunch, mister," he said nervously. "You're looking for trouble if you do. I ain't got any more to say; I like to keep healthy."

Chattier, if equally fearful in a different way, are the letters Better Business Bureaus have been receiving off and on since 1937. The early ones were in longhand; current examples have been typed; among the signatures have been "Charles Williamson," "John Burns" and "William Ross." But similarities of style and spelling suggest that all may come from the same individual. Presumably a Williamson who wants to go straight, he apparently prefers anonymity to possible retribution from the gang. In any case, the letters paint a vivid picture.

"The terrible Williamsons," one said recently, "are traveling in big 1955 late model cars and some have big house trailers and put up at Motels and Trailer Courts . . . They teach their children from infancy up the rackets and con games. They have a head man that guides and keeps them in line [and tells them] where . . . the rackets are good. Each Williamson family pays the Big Boss so much each season according to their take and they do not dare to gyp him . . . as he has three muscle men that make their rounds with the Boss Man and collect [from] each family . . .

'I Am Ashamed'

"The Big Boss [is] Uncle Isaac and his wife [is] the Black Queen, Jennie . . . They live in Florida all winter . . . These people live in a world by themselves and only mix with the public when they are out fleecing . . . Williamsons only marry Williamsons and don't mix . . .

"This Williamson racket is not a 5-10 dollar racket . . . Two of them fleeced $28,000 in 3 months in Iowa and Minnesota . . . As a Williamson myself I am ashamed the way my people live and I want to . . . stop these . . . con games."

That seems to be a tall order — for the Williamsons have developed an acute ability to hover a fractional inch on the sunny side of legality. Yet for 40 years the law has had its share of shots at them, and flopped badly. Here, for example, are typical Williamson swindles, taken from police files across the country:

Roanoke, Va.: On April 5, 1951, police arrested Mrs. Mary Jean Williamson, 57, for attempting one of the gang's oldest swindles — "the old Irish lace con game." This dodge goes roughly as follows:

Dressed shabbily and accompanied by a child similarly tattered, a gentle old lady tells the housewife — in a thick Irish brogue — a pitiful tale. The "lace" she holds in her trembling hands is an old family heirloom, "made by me mither in County Cork when she was just a lass." It's worth hundreds of dollars, but she's desperate — "Me man is sick and the child hasn't had a lick of food in a week" — so she's willing to sell it for a song. After some polite dickering, the housewife — though conscience-stricken at taking advantage of the poor woman — shells out $75 or $100. Days or weeks later, she discovers the lace is cheap cotton.

One Roanoke housewife, however, wasn't fooled: she had Mrs. Williamson arrested. Police suggested the latter be held in $250 bond, but it was actually set at $51.50. Mrs. Williamson quickly posted that comparatively tiny sum and never even showed up for trial.

Evansville, Ind.: Flashing a clipped English accent, a salesman — "going home after showing my wools here" — sold six different patterns for $50 to a local doctor. The wool bore a label, "Bradford, England," with a charming print of a Scotsman and two sheep and the legend "Galashiels" (a Scottish city). PARADE

TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT

In presenting these facts on the Williamson gang, PARADE casts no reflection on the thousands of decent Americans named Williamson, Stewart, McMillan or any other name used by the gang. Nor does PARADE wish to damage the good name of door-to-door selling, a practice of honorable tradition run largely by honest men making honest livings. This story is aimed at stopping those few Williamsons — those few door-to-door salesmen — who are fleecing the public in the ways described here.

HEADLINES in papers across the nation have spotlighted Williamsons' swindles.

"Window test" proves blue Cheer washes so white you can see the difference!

because only Cheer has the Blue-Magic whitener!

Cheer's Blue-Magic whitener is not just a bluing . . . it's more than a bluing . . . it's a new, better whitener for all your wash.

One look tells you . . . blue Cheer brings a new whiteness to your wash. And this simple yet dramatic "window test" proves it.

Just take some Cheer-washed clothes to your window. In that revealing light (or even on a gray day), you'll see a startling new whiteness in all your wash. And on hardest-to-whiten things like nylon, you'll see a real difference in whiteness never possible before Cheer.

What's more, blue Cheer washes dirtiest work and play clothes crisply clean, adds new brightness to colored washables, too. And you really know Cheer's in a class by itself when you see the difference in whiteness Cheer gives you.

TRY CHEER in your automatic washer. Remember that blue Cheer has the active, hard-working kind of suds recommended by leading makers of automatics and preferred by 8 out of 10 women who own agitator automatics.

took two of these bolts to the U.S. Testing Laboratory. One bolt was composed of cheap acetate, rayon and Nylon; the second lacked even Nylon.

Oklahoma City, Okla.: In the fall of 1947, police seized an Isaac Williamson and a John W. Johnston, accused them of offering "minks and sables" that actually were rabbit. Williamson and Johnston were released in $40 bail; needless to say, they didn't show up for trial.

El Paso, Tex.: Last spring the good householders of this city were besieged by offers to have their houses painted quickly and cheaply. The offers came from men in fancy new cars who called themselves the Joe Williamson Company, said they had paint left over after doing a job "down the road." For $20 to $75 they did a complete house-spraying job. Only hitch: the paint, homeowners found later, was crankcase oil mixed with green and red pigment.

Sonoma County, Calif.: Last summer five men received $150 for coating a roof with a "special plastic process." The five — Alexander and Robert Williamson and Isaac, George and John McMillan — were indicted for conspiracy to defraud after the "plastic" was found to be asphalt and aluminum mixed with gasoline; it washed off during rains, also disintegrated asphalt paper roofing.

state," or as representatives of reputable companies, the Williamsons claimed their rods would insulate buildings against electrical storms and cyclones by "detouring the electricity for miles around your property." They offered to install the rods for a very low price. The rods were bona fide, acquired through devious channels — but installed so sloppily (sometimes without all the parts) that they soon proved defective, even dangerous.

Lately the Williamson rods have been made less dangerous —by being made even more phony. According to a recent letter from "Charles Williamson" — one mystery correspondent to Better Business Bureaus — the family has "a cheap rope that they dip in a steel fluid [making it look] like real steel lightning rod cables. A $250 to $350 job costs [the Williamsons] about $8."

Scarsdale, N.Y.: A Davina McDonald, speaking in a bristling Scottish burr, visited the home of Mrs. Bette E. Barber. "She pulled out four rugs from a bag," says Mrs. Barber, "and said they were all wool and had been made at a famous Kentucky college by an Italian woman student now returning to Italy. Now: hospital and surgical protection for people 60 to 70 years old guaranteed continuable *for life

The Prudential Insurance Company announces an event of major importance in insurance history. A new hospital and surgical plan exclusively designed for men and women ages 60 to 70 inclusive.

You can own this policy with complete confidence because the Company guarantees that it will be continuable during your *entire lifetime.

After age 80, no further premiums need be paid. Also, if you use up the aggregate hospital expense benefits before age 80, you stop paying premiums but your surgical protection continues for the rest of your life.

The captions below the pictures on this page describe in more detail some of the outstanding features of this significant contribution to the social as well as the individual welfare of our older citizens. Trained agency and claim representatives are located throughout the United States and Canada.

Guaranteed continuable at the premium rate in effect on each due date. Any necessary rate change could be made on a class basis, and not because of physical impairments or claims of any individual insured. Hospital benefits are subject to the limits set out in policy.* (Forms SA OHA-555 and SA HA-555)

1 GUARANTEED FOR LIFE.* Remember—The Company cannot cancel your policy no matter how many claims you have. Even if you use up all of the hospital expense benefits the policy allows, your surgical protection remains in effect for life.

2 NO FURTHER PREMIUMS AFTER AGE 80—Under this Prudential Protection Plan, you pay no further premiums after age 80. Also, if you use up all your hospital benefits before age 80, you stop paying premiums but your surgical protection continues for the rest of your life.

3 NO RESTRICTIONS CAN BE ADDED—It's a real comfort to know that as long as your policy remains in force no restrictions on your coverage can be added by the Company.

4 HELPS PAY HOSPITAL BILLS—The plan will help pay your hospital room and board. It will also help pay many important extras...operating room, laboratory, X-ray, and fluoroscope, anesthetics, medicines, drugs, surgical dressings, oxygen, ambulance, and other hospital services.

5 HELPS PAY SURGEON'S FEES—This plan pays for surgical operations according to a liberal schedule, depending on the nature of the operation. Operations need not be performed in hospital.

continued

They roll merrily on, with the police almost helpless to stop them

Daily News—I thought a story on students making rugs would be interesting. I told Mrs. McDonald I'd love to take a picture of her to go with the story; she turned all colors and was about to leave, but finally let me take the picture [left]. I gave her a check for $245 for the rugs." Later the rugs were found as shy of wool as the con-girl's story had been shy of truth.

The Williamsons have been working these rackets for decades. (The first complaint about them to the Better Business Bureau is dated 1915.) Yet they roll merrily on, making crime pay.

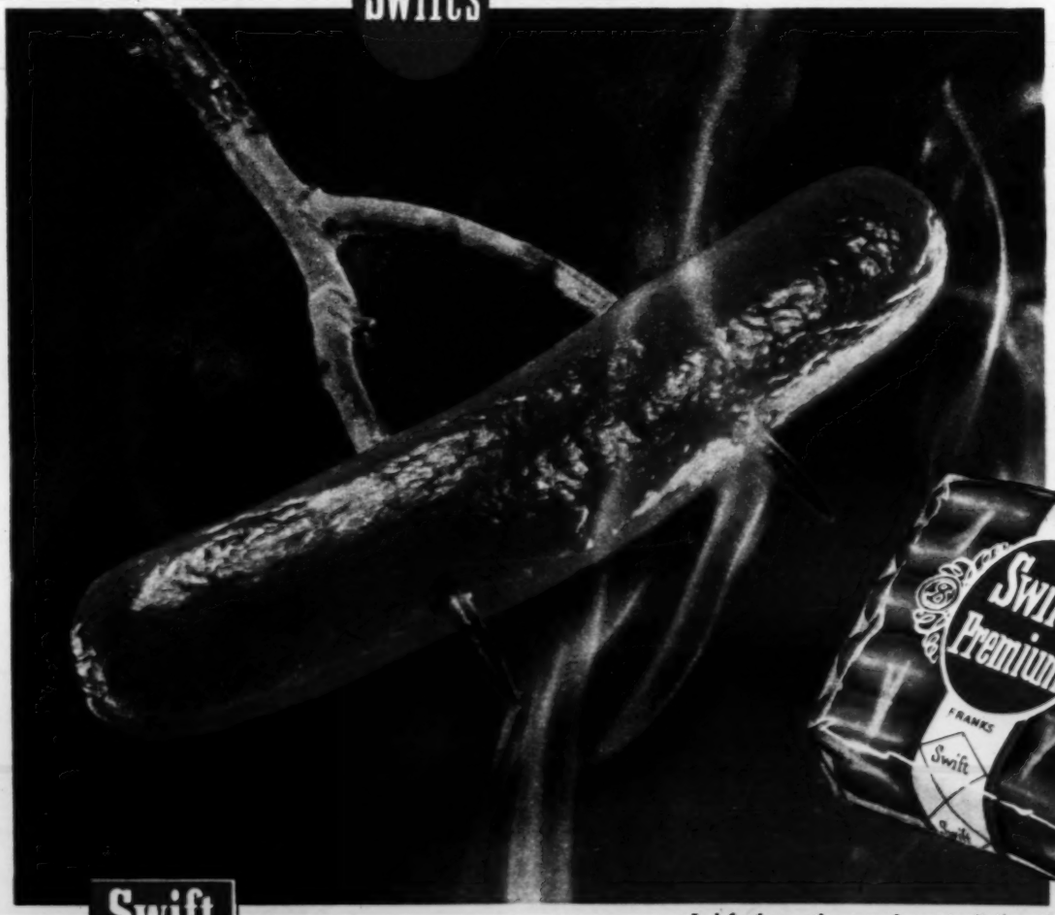

Why? The fault lies with victims, police, judges, law makers.

The victims, for instance, are mostly respected, middle-class members of the community. (The Williamsons pick their targets carefully.) These people usually don't complain because 1) their pride is hurt at being played for a sucker and 2) they're ashamed to admit they've been willing to buy goods at a cheap price from starving Irishwomen or law-evading wool salesmen.

Judges and police share in the general censure because, too often, their only concern is to get the Williamsons out of town. They set a low bail, knowing the gang will jump it rather than face trial. And by chasing out the gang — plus pinching a bit of its profits for the city — they feel justice is done.

On higher levels there has been much tripping of feet on red tape. The American Wool Council (which used to offer $100 for the apprehension of any Williamson gang member) has long urged the Federal Trade Commission to crack down. But the FTC claims it's powerless. "They [the Williamsons] do not cross state lines with their misbranded goods," says a spokesman. "The goods are shipped to them by Railway Express, with the illegal trademarks or brands put on after the goods are picked up by the gang at the Express office."

PARADE, however, found this not always so. In its talks with police, it was told that cartons of phony wool had been opened before the Williamsons received them, and found already marked with phony "all wool" labels.

The Williamsons' success also is due to their close-mouthedness. Their intermarriages keep family secrets from outside ears. And they get their supplies from just a few channels — mostly New York City woolen firms (one of which the FTC ordered, only last March, to cease labeling merchandise so as to "create the deception of foreign make").

FRISKING by Miami Beach police follows Williamson family battle on New Year's Eve, 1952. Battlers went free.

An Ohio textile firm, once a large Williamson supplier, points out that it sold cheap Chinese fabric to the Williamsons as just that — and can't be blamed if the gang mislabeled it.

The Williamsons, however, were apparently on unusually close terms with this supplier. In 1952 police found in the latter's basement some 200 trunks and cases being kept for touring Williamsons. And an official admitted the Williamsons had used the firm's office as a mailing address.

Today — with the supply of cotton from Red China cut off — the firm in question does little business with the Williamsons. But a spokesman says it stands ready to resume if Chinese cotton becomes available.

Not all of Cincinnati's businessmen care for the gang. One motel owner banned them, but admitted he'd been impressed. "Once," he recalled, "a batch of them brought seven new Cadillacs at one swoop. They'd load up the cars with material, generally leave on Monday and return Friday after traveling within a 500-mile radius."

All the Williamsons flock to Cincinnati every spring to honor their dead. "On Memorial Day," says an official of the cemetery they use, "they throng here from all over the country. Some of their funerals are said to have cost $25,000." The Protestant and Catholic Williamsons used to feud regularly; but now they only compete in lavish funerals.

Blood Over Miami

When feuds have erupted among the Williamsons, blood flowed. In Oklahoma City in 1937 a George Williamson, 31, was convicted of murdering another clan member; the sentence was changed to manslaughter and he served only two years. The most recent battle was in Miami Beach late in 1952. Williamsons, McGavins, McMillans, Stewarts and Johnstons got involved in a Donnybrook that ended with Matthew Carroll having an eye gouged out and 31 members of the clan in jail.

But nobody would complain and the Williamsons were again free to keep on cheating Americans. They've found that not only is there a sucker born every minute, but the last thing a sucker will do is admit he's been fooled. ■

PROTECT YOURSELF against the Williamson gang. Says Kenneth Willson, National Better Business Bureau head: Avoid vendors who 1) give unusual personal reasons for bargains; 2) have a low price because goods are illicit; 3) offer "secret hurry-up" deals; 4) sell mainly by sympathy appeals.

LAST STOP for many of the wandering Williamsons is this well-shrubbed Ohio cemetery. Most family graves here are marked with imported red-granite stones.

THE LONGER HAIRDO.....

"MANET COIFFURE" with bangs and "upward movement" was created by Lilly Dache. Inspiration: 19th-century ladies painted by Edouard Manet.

by GRACE DE MUN

How to keep it under your hat

TWO NEW HAIRDOS by Michel of Helena Rubinstein: "DeepWave" (l.), in which the hair is set, then brushed into waves that meet in a soft cluster at the back, and "Feathery Fringe," in which the hair is soft, waved and swirled around the head.

This season the hairdo and the hat at last are coming to terms. Fall hats are "more hat" and almost always shaped to the head, many with forward or backward tilts. This leaves no room for a mass of Medusa curls or a flowing Italian mane.

What it does call for is sleekness — plus a simplified styling that leaves the crown free for its hat, and soft, graceful shaping that looks well when you're unhatted. Hair lengths will definitely be longer, many styles taking up the length in new back-and-up-swept arrangements.

One of the great ladies of the millinery industry, Lilly Dache, understands how important the right hairdo is to the hat. She has opened her own hair salon where she is creating styles like that at left — the "Manet coiffure," inspired by the elegant ladies in the paintings of France's Edouard Manet. The hair is twisted up and back smoothly, to break into a cluster of curls or a puff — ideal for a hat that must be worn well forward, or for a chignon hat.

Michel of Helena Rubinstein has some new ideas for hair that's growing in. He pulls it back into a tight, sleek cloche coif (right) that has length in back, smoothness in front and softness in either its deeply waved or wisp-banged version. This is perfect for a cloche or any other deep hat that is shaped to the head.

One thing all hair stylists agree on is that this season's hairdo must be well cared-for. And there are many things you can do yourself to keep it well-groomed. First of all, brush it until it gleams. Then give it a good permanent — the right kind for your hair and its fashion. The new home permanents make it easier than ever to do your own. There are special lotions for normal, easy and hard-to-wave hair, and new curlers that will give your wave a softer, looser curl.

Setting and grooming are simple with the new hair sprays. Set your pin curls and give them a quick spray. Your hair dries in a few minutes; comb it out and it's set. Another quick spray and it will stay beautifully in place without sticky, lacquery hardness.

Last but not least, keep your hair sparkling clean. No matter how becoming the coif, hair is truly pretty only when it shines! ■

by LLOYD SHEARER PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

HOLLYWOOD.

NOT TOO LONG ago, the freshman comedy "finds" of television included such names as Alan Young, Red Buttons, Jack Carter, Dennis Day, Imogene Coca and Wally Cox. Today, as the saying goes, some of them can't make enough commotion to get themselves arrested.

Why? What makes a red-hot freshman cool off in his sophomore year (or a little later)? If he was funny to start with, why didn't he stay funny?

The answer lies in the frightening nature of television itself. TV is the one entertainment medium that frequently consumes a lifetime of comedy material in one season while simultaneously overexposing its practitioner to the fickle mass audience.

The bugaboo of every successful video comedian is that next week's audience will find neither him nor his material amusing, that he will have overlooked the right moment to change his act.

Thus it is that George Gobel, winner of 23 awards as the TV comedy discovery of 1954-55, enters his second year in big-time video filled with wonder and worry.

"When you've hit it pretty good," he explains in his gentle, diffident voice, "the way I did last season [approximately $325,000], it's very easy to become smug and self-satisfied. But I'm not kidding myself. After all, I've been in this business on and off since I was 12 years old. What combination of circumstances made me so acceptable to the public last year?

"That's what I keep asking myself, that's what I keep asking Mr. O. [David O'Malley, Gobel's personal manager]. There's always the element of luck, and that's one thing you can't do anything about. But there are other things a comedian can control.

THE BON VIVANT: The lady is his wife, Alice.

"I wonder, for example, if the public appetite for me has changed. Should I do something different? Should I alter the format of the program? Or will the TV audience be satisfied with the same George Gobel? These are a few of the questions I've been mulling around in my mind."

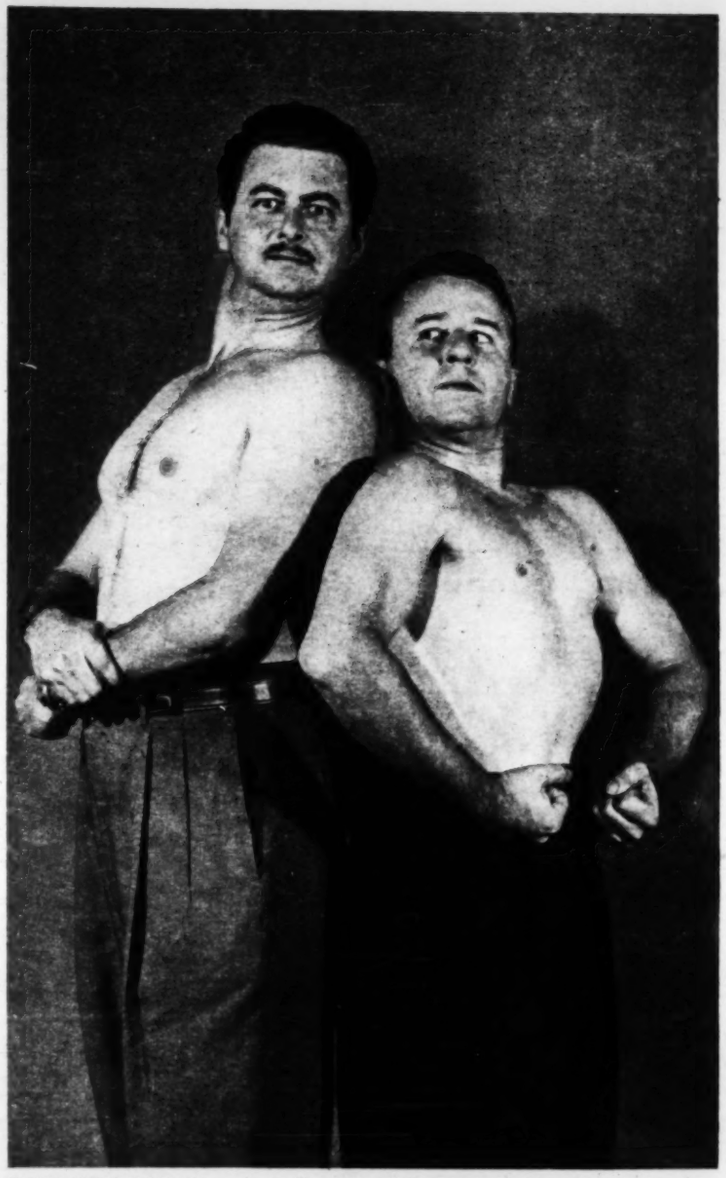

The answer as evolved by Gobel and O'Malley: leave well enough alone.

As a result, the Gobel show will begin its second year on October 8 over NBC-TV with the same, relaxed type of comedy as last year. For $8,000 a week, George will continue to deliver hilarious deadpan monologues salted with new and old Grape-Nuts is a registered trade-mark of General Foods Corp.

Facing a fickle public, can TV's freshman flash keep it up in his sophomore year?

THE MUSCLE MAN: The rather taller citizen is his astute director-writer, Hal Kanter.

Gobelisms. He will strum his guitar, joke with band-leader John Scott Trotter, perform sketches with guest stars and play comedy skits opposite an actress cast as George's wife, Alice. He will stick to the simple premise that there is plenty of humor in everyday situations.

Furthermore — unlike the average successful comedian, who hires and fires writers with arrogant disdain — Gobel will stay with Hal Kanter and other inventive minds who have helped put him where he is.

The show will be done "live," although if he gets the time, Gobel adds, "I would like to do one or two on film. This would give me the rare pleasure of getting sick once in a while and still having a program."

George speaks this way because he's dead-tired. In addition to his TV show this past year, he's played hotel dates and benefits and done a series of one-night stands. Instead of the sorely-needed summer vacation he'd planned to spend with his family, he devoted July and August to his first full-length motion picture, a remake of Preston Sturges' 1940 comedy hit, The Lady Eve.

For starring in the picture Gobel received no salary. Instead, Gomalco Productions, the company he owns jointly with O'Malley, will receive 50 per cent of the net profits.

The Stars Look On

During the production of Eve, the professional interest in Gobel was surprising. Stars who practically never visit on sound stages made it a point to watch him at work opposite Mitzi Gaynor.

Cary Grant did so, then summed up his impression of George: "One of the nicest and most unassuming little fellows I've ever met." Jerry Lewis called him "very funny without pressing. And very talented, too." For one comic to say this about another in Hollywood is downright miraculous.

Right now the demand for Gobel appearances, Gobel endorsements, Gobel comic books, Gobel anything is so overwhelming that sustained rest for George is out of the question. During one recent two-hour period the Beverly Hills office of Gomalco Productions received one offer for George to write a daily syndicated newspaper column, one offer to pen his autobiography, two offers to make recordings (one of which he accepted), eight requests for benefit appearances, a long-distance call offering him 100,000 shares in a uranium venture (only catch: the company wanted to advertise that George Gobel owned stock in it) and a message from an agent telling him: "Jack Warner sure is mad that you picked Paramount to make your first motion picture. He would've given you, he says, just as good a deal."

There also was a call offering Gobel the chairmanship of the Permanent Charities Division of the motion-picture industry, an honor he declined. "I've only made one picture," he pointed out. "I have no right to represent the industry."

George resists such pressures because, unlike most comedians, he is not possessed by the "get-rich-quick" demon. As a boy in Chicago he was never poor, thanks to his father, an industrious grocer and property-owner. Today, more than anything else, he is determined to resist the temptation of "overexposure."

"When George accepts money to entertain people," O'Malley explains, "he wants those people to be entertained. And most of all he doesn't want people to get tired of him. 'I'm in this business,' he's said over and over again, 'for the long pull.' And I agree with him. The television program, one movie a year, a few outside dates — that's more than enough. George doesn't want to conquer the whole world."

The world, to Gobel, centers around a modest three-bedroom home in San Fernando Valley. Despite his sudden rise in weath, he has no intention of moving to a larger place. His wife still drives a 1952 Ford (Gobel has a 1954 Oldsmobile), runs the home on $150 per week (Gobel gets $100 a week to spend), does all the housework except for a girl who comes once a week to help with the heavy cleaning.

Unspoiled by success, uncorrupted by money, Gobel goes into his sophomore year armored by a truly Gobelesque philosophy. "All I want out of life," he says, "is love and peace and a little work." ■

ODD HUES (edible dyes) don't affect taste of these foods: green steak, purple pota

, purple potatoes, red peas and such. Best way to eat them: blindfolded.

How would you like GREEN STEAK?

It would taste right — but you wouldn't like it. Here's why

NEW YORK.

Do the pictures of food shown on these pages make you hungry — or do they take away your appetite altogether?

Would green steak and purple potatoes taste just as good to you as the same food in conventional colors? Probably not. All of which proves, science points out, that you taste with your eyes just as much as you do with your tongue.

The fact is that anyone with a normal healthy digestive system could eat the steak dinner shown above. But it is probable that you would enjoy it only if you were blindfolded or eating in complete darkness. The sight of a circus-poster meal would do strange things to your appetite. But don't worry. It isn't likely that a rainbow diet will become a part of atomic-age living.

As part of a research project, the foods shown were colored with edible dyes by flavor chemists of a New York essential-oil firm, Dodge and Olcott, one of the oldest in America. The project was connected with a series of remarkable ex-

FLAVOR CHEMIST Frank Mainer measures certified powdered color for a beverage. Half-ounce tints about 60 gallons of orange soda.

Flavor rules taste preferences, but color can trick you periments just completed by young Dr. Joseph L. Kanig, of Columbia University's College of Pharmacy here. In this experiment, 200 pharmacy students sipped variously colored and flavored sirups to find out exactly what the relation is between color and taste.

Probably no group of people was ever confronted with so dazzling an array of "snifters." There was black cherry colored like orange, grape the shade of lemon, raspberry with the inviting green of peppermint, anise that had the yellow coloring of pineapple juice.

The students were asked to sample the solutions like wine tasters, identify them if possible, then state their preferences. Their reactions were mixed. For the most part, when a flavor was presented in colorless sirup, the tasters were completely lost. When the entire test group was given black cherry in clear-sirup form, for example, only a very few were able to guess the actual flavor. Most of the tasters described it as some sort of citrus fruit; a few volunteered names of specific citrus fruits.

With addition of the correct color to a flavored sirup, the taster's preference decreased or increased, depending on his liking for that particular flavor. However, when the solutions had the wrong "complementary" color, the percentage of those who could identify the flavors correctly was markedly reduced.

Actually, you and everybody else — except the color-blind — are "color thinkers" when it comes to food. That is the reason you reject the idea of green steak and purple potatoes. But by the same token you accept artificial coloring in such foods as margarine, candy, desserts, cake icing, ice cream, sherbets, soft drinks, cordials and caramel pudding. In fact, you probably wouldn't buy any of them if they were offered in their natural colors.

Take maraschino cherries, for example. In their natural state they neither look nor taste like the maraschino cherries you buy in a glass jar. When they are processed for marketing the cherries are chemically bleached. Then the familiar red color and maraschino flavor are added.

Of all the colors food comes in, green seems to be the most agreeable (for suitable foods, that is). Blue and violet are generally in the "inedible" class, though tints of those colors are more palatable than their pure hues. Blue is the real gastronomic taboo. Dr. Kanig suggests that people generally associate blue with poisonous compounds like mercury bichloride. It must be blue according to law. As a matter of fact, there are no blue-liquid medicaments for internal use.

Tots turn tasters to test child medicines

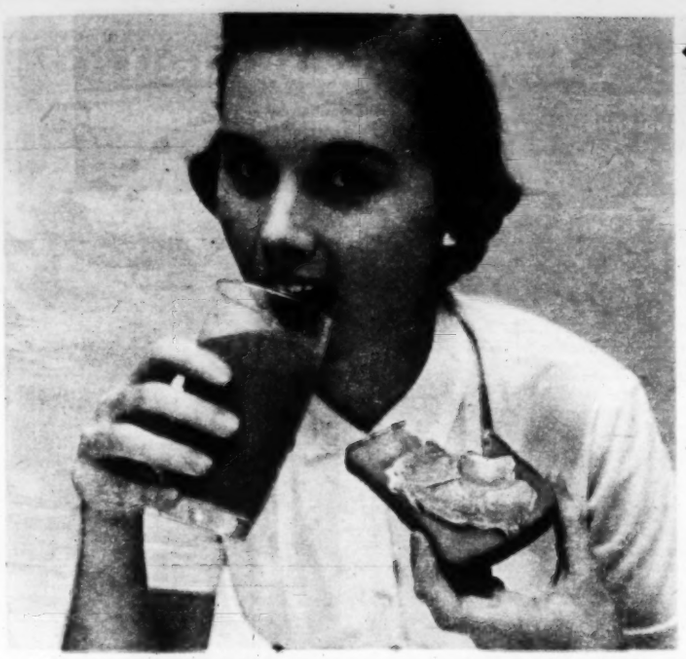

"JUROR": At the Eli Lilly pharmaceutical laboratory in Indianapolis, a youthful "taste panelist" is about to make a momentous decision on medicine he has tasted.

"M-m-m . . . that tastes just like a lollipop."

"Ugh! That's horrible. It must be medicine."

PURPLE MILK finds taster prepared to like it — on the assumption that it is a grape-flavored drink. When she found it was milk, the shock was too much. She couldn't drink it.

Colors are so deceptive and side-tracking in their effects, when it comes to determining the intrinsic qualities of a product, that they often have to be masked in testing techniques. For example, certain pharmaceutical companies test new medicines (mostly pediatric and vitamin preparations) by giving them to "taste panels" made up of young children. They, of course, are strongly influenced by color — and they particularly like red. New medicines, therefore, are put in identical red containers. In addition, the tests are made under red or blue lights to remove the influence of the color factor. If the kids like what they taste, the medicine goes on the market the way they like it.

Where food is concerned, the palate can often convert the eye, particularly in the case of rare or exotic foods. Colorwise, for instance, there is little to commend such foods as caviar, black olives, figs or truffles. Yet they are accepted as delicacies by persons whose palates have been trained sufficiently.

With rare foods, of course, the eater doesn't have to reckon with the influence of habit. You expect a steak to be brown. But caviar isn't liked or disliked simply because it is black. If, however, you had been accustomed to eating green caviar all your life, you might find black caviar quite distasteful — unless you were blindfolded while you ate it.

Once a food-color association is established, you can't take liberties with it. A Midwestern baker once learned this the hard way when he tried to market tomato-colored and -flavored bread. People looked and wondered — and then bought bread that looked like bread.

For reasons that are still a mystery, color preferences vary according to localities. In Boston, brown eggs are preferred and bring the best prices. In New York, nine out of 10 housewives buy nothing but white eggs. Deep-yellow butter is more acceptable in the Midwest than it is in the East. Diners in San Francisco like their scrambled eggs a solid yellow; New Yorkers like them paler.

Oddly enough, no other food seems to be as sensitive to color effects as eggs. The classic illustration of this is what happened when restaurants first installed blue fluorescent lights. Customers simply stopped ordering eggs because under the lights perfectly respectable fried eggs looked a sickly green.

One restaurateur's discovery about his lighting mistake led him to another important gastronomic finding: even sound has its effect on taste. Although he had changed his lighting, he was still losing business. One day he noticed that a fork striking one of his plastic plates, or a plastic cup being set on a plastic saucer, produced distinctly "non-edible" sounds. He promptly chucked out all his plastic ware and replaced it with china.

Now, he says, the lighting is right, the noises are "edible," his customers are happy and business is booming. So long as he stays off green steaks . . . ■

What they think of American men

Miss Universe of 1955 contestants gave these answers when PARADE asked them to describe American males. It adds up to "wonderful"

HILLEVI ROMBIN, SWEDEN, 21:

"I haven't met too many American men yet, but those I have met look like wonderful husband material to me. The climate here is better than in Sweden. Probably that makes for easy-going men."

ELENA FANCERA, ITALY, 20:

"I don't speak English, so it is hard for me to talk to your men. I talk with my eyes and my hands and they talk with theirs. I am surprised that they can make their desires known so easily to me."

MARGARET HINGART, CEYLON, 18:

"So far, I haven't met an American who wasn't nice. The men are tall and dashing and it so happens that I like tall men. Also, I think all Americans smile more than the people of other countries."

KEIKO TAKAHASHI, JAPAN, 20:

"I have known Americans in Japan, but here they are more polite. I should not say it but I like them because they are kind to women. In my country, the man is a lord. Here, women are equals."

MARIA CHACON, GUATEMALA, 18:

"Very gallant, these Americans! So many compliments! How does a girl know if they are speaking the truth? Before I got married to one, I first would have to learn how to tell when they are serious."

MARGARET ROWE, ENGLAND, 19:

"I would love to marry an American. They seem to have plenty of charm and a little-boy quality all of their own. They are not jaded or disillusioned. They seem to do everything with enthusiasm."

DOCTORS FIND EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR

Broken, Splitting Fingernails

Medical journal reports 7 out of 10 women improved fragile "impossible to manicure" nails by adding KNOX Gelatine to their daily diet!

At last, here is help for the many women who are ashamed of their hands because of unattractive, fragile fingernails! Read these important findings reported in a leading medical journal:

In a recent research project, doctors gave Knox Gelatine to a group of housewives who for some time (in many cases, years) had been annoyed with broken, splitting, chipping nails.

In all cases definite improvement occurred in one month. In three months 7 out of 10 of the women noted that their nails had stopped splitting and could be manicured to a full point!

Fingernails like those referred to above often reflect underlying health conditions such as a lack of some of the important food elements in your diet. Research has proved that Knox Gelatine contains the necessary elements to keep fingernails strong and healthy. Do as many people do who take Knox every day . . . simply mix an envelope of Knox Unflavored Gelatine in water, your favorite fruit juice or bouillon. Complete directions in every package. Advice to Teenagers

A group of girls from Kent, Ohio, has started a "Good Grooming Club" — a fine thing — and has sent me the following questions:

Q. 1) How do you accept a corsage from a boy? 2) Should you wear it on your coat until you arrive at your destination? 3) Does the boy pin it on? — N.C.

A. 1) Admire the flowers and thank him warmly for remembering. 2) You may carry them in the box or pin them on your coat until you get to your destination. 3) You pin a corsage on yourself or ask your mother or one of the girls to do it for you.

Q. What can I do about being self-conscious when eating lunch with a boy? — L.S.

A. Just remember that everyone must eat. The notion that it is indelicate for a girl to show interest in food is old-fashioned. If you know your table manners, you should not be concerned about how you look eating; sharing a meal with a friend should be fun.

Here are some questions from other teen-age readers (And by the way, how about some more mail from the boys?):

Q. Is it correct to applaud in Sunday school for speeches and musical numbers? — B.M., Macomb, Ill.

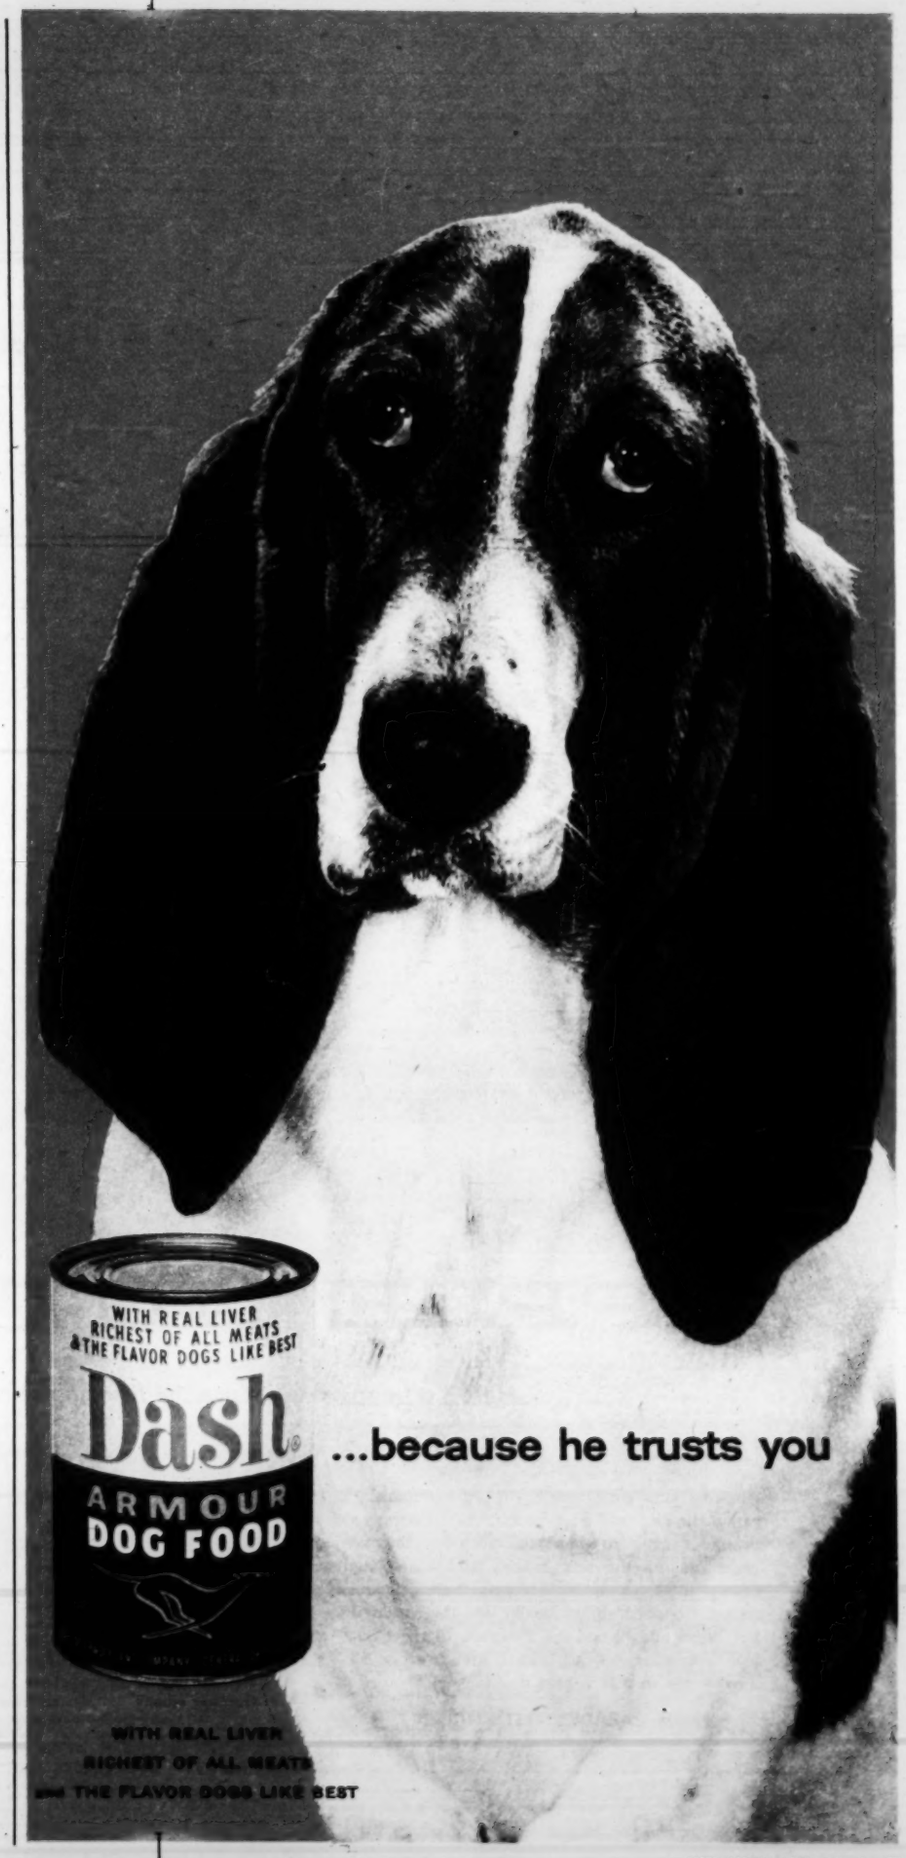

A. Yes, it is not unusual.

Q. I am too fat. I am 12½ years old and weigh 120 pounds. Could you suggest a diet? Also, how can I get my mother to let me have my hair cut right and buy the kind of clothes that suit me? I look awful in what she picks out. I pay for these things myself with money I earn baby-sitting. — B.R., Lakewood, Calif.

A. You don't give your height so it is hard to know whether you are really too fat or just overly self-critical (which is quite normal in a girl your age). You should talk to your doctor about your desire for a better figure; I am sure he will tell you to eat more meat, fish, cottage cheese and eggs and less starches and sweets. You should increase your intake of green vegetables and salads and decrease the fats (but remember that some fat in the diet every day is needed to help you absorb the vitamins in other foods — so don't go on any freakish diets).

As for clothes, I think you should be allowed to make your own mistakes (if any) in choosing them. Point out to your mother that, since you are paying for them with your own earnings, you are likely to give extra-careful thought to what is becoming, good quality and good taste. I also think you should have greater freedom in the selection of how you do your hair. In both matters, you and your mother should work together — not fighting each other.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered as space permits. (Miss Vanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.) Address: Amy Vanderbilt, PARADE, 285 Madison Avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

APPLE NUT BREAD

Here's a happy way to use the first apples from the autumn harvest

Apple pickers are thronging into the orchards to gather the first crop of early autumn varieties: red beauties for the fruit bowl, the lunch box, the midnight raid on the refrigerator. And for cooked dishes, too — as in today's easy, and delicious, recipe. Chopped apples stirred into the batter for nut bread add flavor and freshness to the baked loaf. And they help to keep it moist for several days — just in case it lasts that long!

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

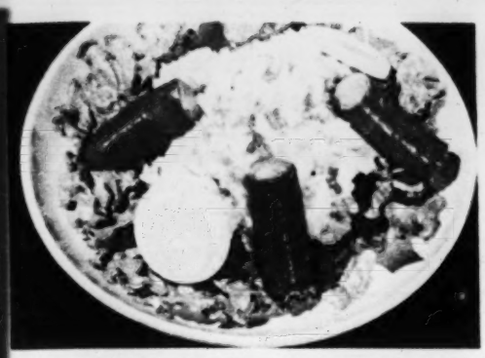

APPLE WALNUT BREAD

- 1½ cups sifted enriched flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice
- 1½ cups crushed ready-to-serve wheat cereal flakes
- 1 cup broken walnut meats
- ¾ cup chopped apple
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- ¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1½ cups buttermilk
- 2 tablespoons shortening

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and spices. Add cereal flakes; walnuts and apple. Combine egg, brown sugar, buttermilk and shortening; add; mix just enough to moisten dry ingredients. Do not beat. Turn into well-greased loaf pan 9" x 5" x 3". Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 1 hour.

KITCHEN HINT:
Bottled lemon juice on the pantry shelf has many uses. Example: Poured over cut fruit, it keeps it from discoloring.

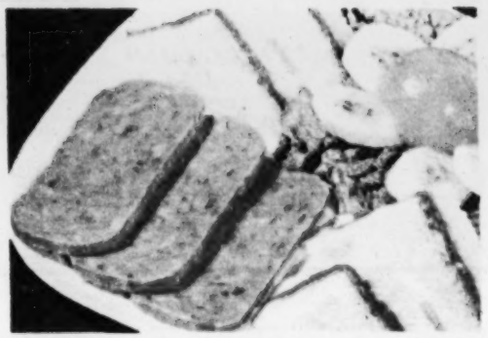

Armour Star Vienna Sausage—Little franks that look so different, it's easy to make an attractive luncheon plate with them. And they're all meat—all Armour meat—lean beef and flavorful pork. Serve hot or cold.

Armour Star Corned Beef Hash—Lots of lean Armour corned beef makes it America's favorite hash. Fun to heat in the oven in individual casseroles, top with slice of hard-cooked egg and few spoonfuls of pickle relish.

Armour Star Treet—A pretty luncheon plate, so easy a child could fix it. Generous slices of Armour Star Treet—all ham and pork, cooked and ready to eat. Serve with peanut butter sandwiches and salad.

10 quick delicious meat lunches to satisfy a child's appetite

Nutritious and economical, too— with Armour Star Meats-in-a-Tin

ARMOUR
The Armour Star label is one of the world's great guarantees!

Quick because they're made with ready-to-serve Armour Star Meats-in-a-Tin. Nourishing because they're high in protein. And delicious because Armour puts in lots of fine meat, and cooks it slowly at moderate temperatures. Get several Armour Star Meats-in-a-Tin, and try these appetizing ways to serve them to your children.

Armour Star Chili—A real pick-up lunch. Mildly seasoned—not too spicy for older children. And you'll be glad to know: nearly half-a-pound of tender beef goes into making every tin! Serve with crackers 'n' butter.

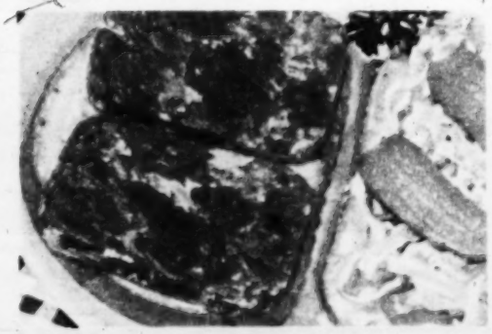

Armour Star Beef Stew—All the meat is braised Armour beef chuck—like you'd choose yourself. Plus sweet tender carrots and firm white potatoes, all in a rich beef gravy. Serve piping hot in little individual casseroles.

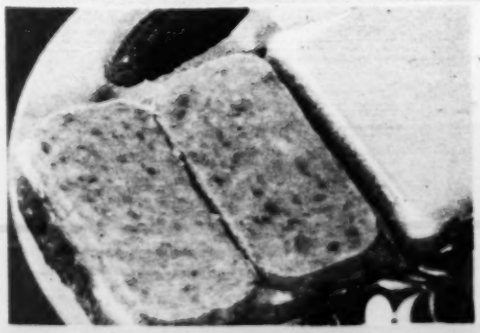

Armour Star Deviled Ham—Cute "funny-face" snacks. Spread Armour Star Deviled Ham on bread. Use plenty—it comes in a generous 3¼-oz. tin. Use stuffed olives for eyes and nose—celery for mouth and eyebrows.

Armour Star Corned Beef—A wonderful sandwich: lean, tender, Armour corned beef—and cabbage!—cabbage as cole slaw. And Armour Star Corned Beef is mild and sweet—yet has a zesty flavor all its own.

Armour Star Chopped Ham—The all-American favorite, ham 'n' cheese, at its best! Because Armour Star Chopped Ham is all sugar-cured Armour ham. No bone, no waste—cooked and ready to eat. Delicious with cheese.

Armour Star Spaghetti With Meat—Tender but firm spaghetti with lots of braised lean Armour beef in a rich tomato sauce. Sprinkled with grated cheese, it's a "deluxe" dish for the young teenage crowd.

Armour Star Chopped Beef—new!—lean, tender Armour beef, cooked and ready to eat. Make barbecued-beef-on-a-bun in 5 minutes. Just brush slices with barbecue sauce, broil 5 minutes and serve. Yummy!

Gun-Barrel Vision: Here, the eye sees only what is straight ahead. The normal field of vision, 180 degrees off to the sides, has been affected by

How poor eyesight distorts the

The camera's sensitive eye (aided by some dark-room gimmicks) records a series of everyday

To PARADE photographer Ben Ross a challenge was issued not long ago. Could his camera "eye" record the things that weak and diseased human eyes actually see?

Besides being rare and unusual, such pictures would carry a vital message — for detection and treatment of vision defects often can prevent people from entering the eerie and distorted world of poor eyesight.

Ross took up the challenge. For more than a month he worked under the supervision of the American Foundation for the Blind, New York City. The Foundation demanded strict authenticity, so Ross took pictures — and then more.

On these three pages are the fruits of his labors: photos of 10 eye ailments — from ordinary near-sightedness to cataracts — which cause faulty vision. Through these photos, you are in that strange world of the partly-blind.

To achieve the results you see here, Ross began with a Rolleiflex camera, a Leica and a Linhof — all standard equipment. Then he improvised. To show how eyesight is impaired by cataracts, Ross shot through a vaseline-smeared pane of glass. To show vitreous opacities — hardening of the vitreous, the jelly-like material that gives the eye its shape — Ross shot through glass dotted with black paint. His photographs of detachment of the retina, gun-barrel vision and astigmatism primarily are the result of trial and error in dark-room developing.

All the photos prove once again that the camera eye and the human eye function in much the same way. In the outer layer of the human eye, light rays enter through the cornea, or window. From that point the rays are regulated and focused by the pupil and lens, which is stationed right behind the iris. (The latter contains the color in the eyes.)

disease. Side objects are seen hazily.

human vision defects

The human eye's "film" is the retina. What you see is recorded there. And that "film record" is transmitted to the brain (the "developer") via the optic nerve.

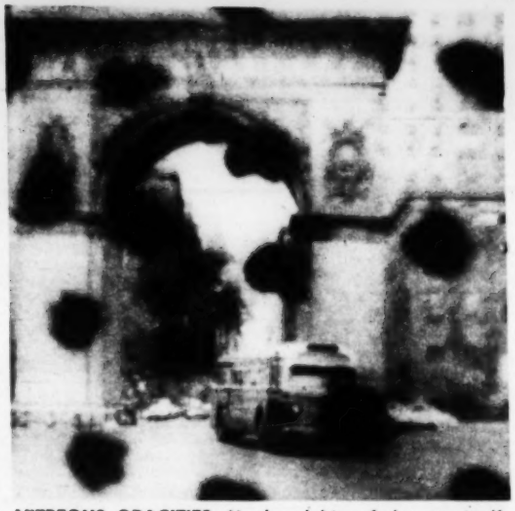

Thus, in the common problem of near-sightedness, light rays focus in front of the retina. You see clearly only what is close to you. Corrective eyeglasses help direct the image so it falls on the retina, permitting you to see far-off objects.

In far-sightedness, the image falls behind the retina. Glasses cause the light rays to converge and focus on the retina.

DETACHED RETINA: Sight is broken by a blank area when layers of the retina separate. This can be caused by injury.

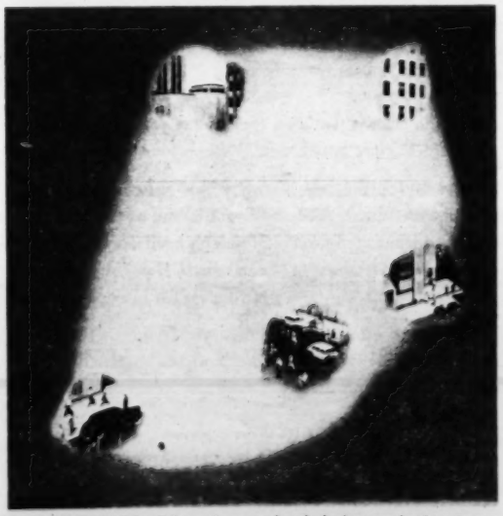

VITREOUS OPACITIES: Hardened bits of the eye itself, these can complicate vision even more by moving about.

ASTIGMATISM: Sufferers see an image like that of a trick carnival mirror. Very often this defect can be corrected.

LIGHT PERCEPTION: Only the vague outlines of light and dark are perceived. This is a rare result of serious disease.

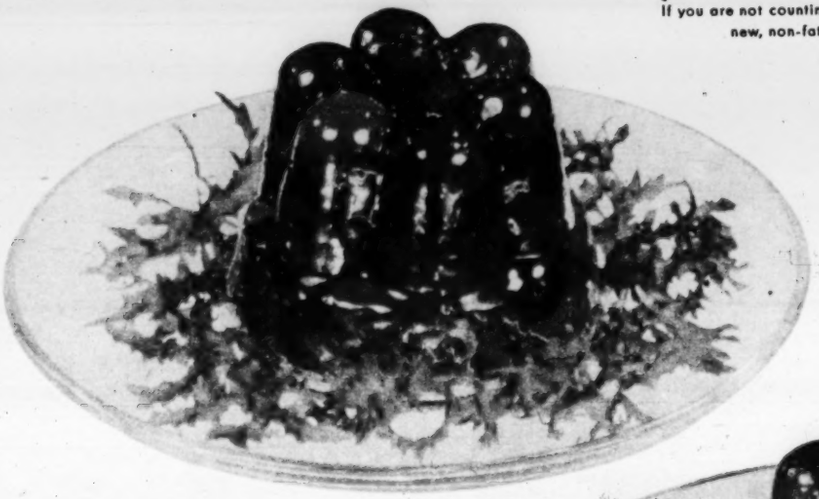

RETINA SCARS: Often the result of diabetes, leukemia or other disorders, these scars prevent light from registering.

FAR-SIGHTEDNESS: A normal view to the far-sighted; girls up front appear blurred but the Ferris wheel (rear) is clear.

If you are not counting calories, you don't need this new, non-fattening sweetener. If you are, you do.

99 calories if you sweeten with sugar

22 calories if sweetened with non-caloric Sucaryl

You save a lot of calories by using Sucaryl

. . . and you can't taste the difference

Now, from Abbott Laboratories, a completely new kind of sweetener for weight-watchers. Improved Sucaryl sweetens to any normal level without fear of bitterness or aftertaste.

Sucaryl offers no calories . . . just true, sugar-like sweetness. Completely satisfies your sweet tooth when you're on a restricted, low-calorie diet. It's the first synthetic sweetener that lets you sweeten to any normal level without risking bitterness or aftertaste.

Sucaryl can be used anywhere sugar can. Keep it on the table for use in coffee or tea, on fruits or cereals. In your kitchen, Sucaryl can be used to give any food . . . whether boiled, baked or frozen . . . a true, sugar-like sweetness. The amount of Sucaryl to be used varies with each recipe, so you'd better pick up the recipe book offered at right. When you're shopping for dietetic foods, the Sucaryl name on the label is your guarantee of complete taste satisfaction.

Sucaryl is for dieters; if you're not watching your weight, you don't need it. Sugar is one of the most highly concentrated sources of quickly available energy, and should be retained in normal diets. If you're in any doubt about dieting, ask your doctor for his opinion.

If you are diabetic, Sucaryl lets you enjoy a much more varied menu, and still keep within the rigid requirements of your diet.

CRANBERRY JEL (Makes 10 servings)

Sucaryl®

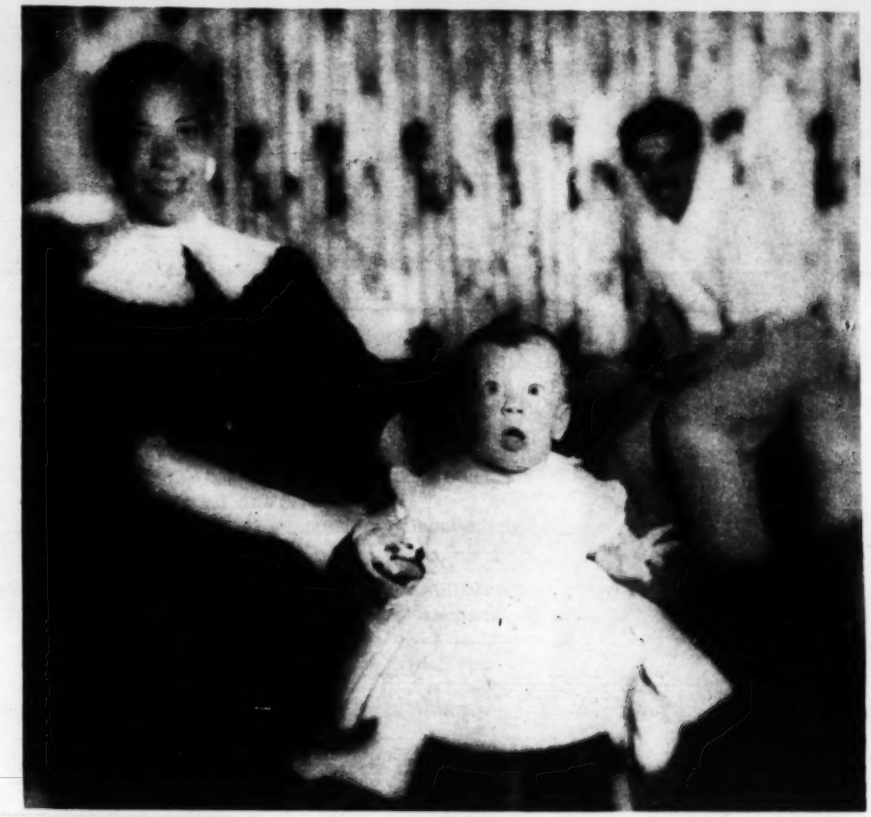

THE NEW, NON-FATTENING SWEETENER THAT TASTES JUST LIKE SUGAR

LIGHT PROJECTION: To the person who sees only this much, a tall man may look like a stick; certain larger objects may be barely recognizable by their shape. This condition cannot be corrected.

CATARACT: Fogging of the eye's lens, cataract produces "dead spots." Often, surgery and glasses can restore better ability to see.

NEAR-SIGHTEDNESS: The baby up close is clear, but everything beyond falls away to a blur.

Your own actions in the future may determine whether you can see better than the camera's eye

According to Charles G. Ritter, consultant to the American Foundation for the Blind, 320,000 people in the U. S. are "legally blind." (With glasses, they see at 20 feet what a person with normal vision would see at 200.) However, he points out, uncounted others need visual aids ranging from high-powered magnification devices to ordinary spectacles. Without such aids, they realize only part of their potential for satisfaction in day-to-day living.

Ritter cites the case of a man — call him Jones — who took his little daughter on a sightseeing tour of New York City.

"Look how tall and straight the buildings stick into the sky," she exclaimed. But to Jones the buildings were not tall and straight. His untreated astigmatism made him see the buildings as blurred and slanted.

With sound advice from the Foundation staff, Jones came to understand his problem, got proper glasses — and graduated from the class of imperfect sight pictured here.

What should you do to guard against needless eye trouble? New York ophthalmologist Dr. Dan M. Gordon, past chairman of the scientific advisory board, National Council to Combat Blindness, suggests:

1) Visit your doctor if you have pain in your eyes, redness, blurred vision, frequent headaches; "see" halos around lights, or experience the sensation of a curtain being drawn across your field of vision.

2) Test your eyesight from time to time. Cover one eye at a time and look around. You may be surprised to learn that one eye gives you better vision than the other. If that's the case, see your doctor. An important tip: if you find yourself poking your nose into the telephone book to make out the fine print, it's time for an eye examination.

3) Don't procrastinate about taking a small child to the doctor if you notice that he has a crossed eye. The longer parents delay, the greater the danger to the child's future ability to see. Uncomplicated surgery, other treatment or glasses can correct most crossed eyes.

The last goes for some other eye ailments as well. Cataract surgery has improved greatly in the past few years. Such surgery involves removal of the lens, after which strong glasses often permit the patient to see reasonably well.

Even glaucoma, feared as a blinding disease, can be controlled if it is detected early enough.

The difference between good eyesight and poor eyesight is often determined by you, the individual. If you really care about your eyesight, you stand a good chance of not seeing what photographer Ross's camera saw. ■

'55 FOOTBALL FORECAST

A nation-wide board of 48 experts names the top teams—and the players who'll be Saturday heroes

Michigan, Notre Dame, UCLA, Georgia Tech.

Those four teams will dominate the 1955 football scene, closely followed by Ohio State, Southern California, Auburn, Iowa, Navy, Oklahoma, Maryland, Army, Mississippi, Texas Tech and Boston College.

Such, summed up, is the opinion of the men who know football best — the sports editors and writers of the 48 Sunday newspapers across the nation in which PARADE appears.

Participating in a special poll conducted by PARADE, the editors and writers picked the teams most likely to succeed, also took a flyer at choosing in advance a 1955 All-America team. Their selections were based on watching the players last season and in 1955 spring practice — at schools which permitted it — as well as on their considered judgment of this year's prospects.

The experts' top choice for '55 player honors: Howard "Hopalong" Cassady, Ohio State's whirlwind scatback who led the Buckeyes to an unbeaten season last fall, then on to the Rose Bowl and a victory over Southern California on New Year's Day.

The newsmen's choice for the important quarterback slot was Len Dawson, whip-smart Purdue field general whose passes last year licked Notre Dame, Michigan State and Illinois. Most mentioned linemen: guards Calvin Jones of Iowa and Franklin Brooks of Georgia Tech, end Ron Kramer of Michigan. Filling out the backfield of the mythical 11 were Jon Arnett, a brilliant broken-field runner from the University of Southern California, at halfback, and Joe Childress, a bone-crushing fullback from Auburn. (The complete All-America team, as predicted by the writers and editors, is listed in the box at right.)

As for the teams to watch this fall, the newspapermen selected these as 1955's powerhouses:

EAST: Maryland, which boasts a rock-ribbed line anchored by Bill Walker at end;

HOPALONG CASSADY of Ohio State runs for yardage. Experts pick him for All-America laurels.

Navy, maneuvered by quarterback George Welsh; Army, ready to roll under the impetus of halfback Bob Kyasky; Boston College, its defense shored up by guard Vin St. Pierre and tackle John Miller.

MIDWEST: Michigan, armed with a crushing fullback in Lou Baldacci and probably the country's best end in Kramer; Notre Dame, set with Paul Hornung to replace All-American Ralph Guglielmi at quarterback; Ohio State, still tough as long as Cassady can put on a uniform; Iowa, strong defensively and offensively too with Calvin Jones at guard.

SOUTH: Mississippi, buttressed by a good forward wall and hard-hitting Bobby McCool at fullback; Georgia Tech, loaded with a fleet backfield and touchdown-resistant line sparked by Brooks at guard; Auburn with fullback Childress the big gun.

SOUTHWEST: Oklahoma, still powerful despite graduation losses; Texas Tech, with passing wizard Jack Kirkpatrick at quarterback; Arizona, spearheaded by last year's rushing champion, Art Luppino.

FAR WEST: UCLA, strong through the line with guard Hardiman Cureton the main bastion, and a powerful fullback in Bob Davenport; Southern California, with slippery halfback Arnett and speedy end Leon Clarke.

Those teams should rule their regions, say the editors, but football wouldn't be football if some — and maybe all — were not upset along the way. When the season starts the editors will be looking to these teams to do the upsetting:

Stanford, no easy mark any year but a definite Rose Bowl candidate in '55 with end John Stewart the star on the line and Bill Tarr a terror at fullback; Florida, a threat in the South with Steve de la Torre at center; Pittsburgh, long a pygmy in football but now flashing signs of its former greatness; Purdue, always dangerous when Dawson is tossing; California, with Jerry Drew at fullback; Brown, a menace to the Ivy League with Jim McGuinness at tackle; Penn State, if halfback Len Moore is eligible to play.

That's the way the 1955 football season looks to the men who've been watching it shape up. Whether it will end the way it looks depends on King Upset — and the world knows no monarch with tighter lips. ■

A NEW HOME PLAN FOR $5

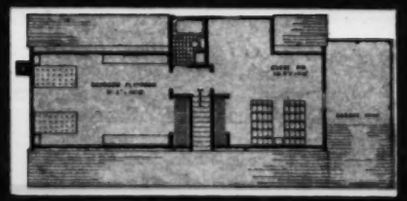

Because of reader response to PARADE'S two previous plans, here is a new home: the Stuart

OUTSIDE VIEW (above) shows the Stuart's compact lines. Note private sundeck over the garage. Below: Simplified inside floor plans.

FIRST FLOOR

SECOND FLOOR

CLIP THIS COUPON ▶

Families seeking an economical plan and maximum comfort will find today's home, the Stuart, ideal.

The front entrance opens into a foyer off the living room, which is highlighted by a charming picture window. The dining room, with windows extending around one corner, forms an ell off the living room.

Kitchen efficiency is assured by the closeness of range to sink, with counter space in between. Overhead cabinets line the sink-range wall and overhang the refrigerator, which is placed in a recessed area off the kitchen.

Note the abundance of closets — including two for linen, one for brooms.

Absolute privacy is the keynote of the Stuart plan. The three good-sized bedrooms are separated from the living area by a hallway; so is the bath. And two extra bedrooms and a second bath are possible on the second floor. ■

INITIALS ON GLASS: If you'd like to frost your initials permanently on drinking glasses or other glassware, there's a kit to simplify the job. It includes tube of glass-etching cream, lettering stencils and instructions. $1.98. GLASS TRENDS, Dept. PP, 17 E. 48th St., New York, N.Y.

TAPE HOLSTER: Tired of toting a steel rule in your pocket on do-it-yourself jobs? Now you can carry the rule, ready for use in a cowhide holster. It slips on belt, holds rule snugly and out of the way. In two sizes — for 8', ½" wide or 10', ¾" wide tapes. 50c. BAUER-LEE, Dept. PP, 140 E. Montecito, Sierra Madre, Calif.

TEST YOUR TUBES: With a little portable tester, you can check radio tubes and all TV tubes — including main picture tube. Just place tube in proper tester socket; pilot bulb lights if tube filament is in working order. Once a bad tube is located, you can replace it yourself. The tester operates on flashlight batteries, weighs only 8 ounces, measures 3½" x 4" x 2". $4.95. BAVA CO., 3655 E. Canfield St., Detroit 7, Mich.

INDOOR-OUTDOOR COOKER: Here's a versatile cooker for year-round use. Its expanding vertical post fits any fireplace — or pushes into ground for cookouts or picnics. A fire pan, grill and rotisserie mount on the post, adjust to any height, and each swings in and out of fireplace for easier cooking and fire tending. Pan and griddle also swivel for better heat control. Grill and rotisserie can be used together or separately. Rotisserie runs 24 hours on two flashlight batteries. You can use wood fire in fireplace or charcoal in fire pan. For details, write: YIELD HOUSE, Dept. PP, North Conway, N.H.

ROLL ON THE EDGE: Here's a quick and neat way to paint straight edges around ceilings, baseboards, door and window frames. It's a padded applicator that works on the same principle as a roller — but is flat. It gets right up to edges and corners, and has serrated wheels to avoid smudging. $1. —JACKIE GLEASON GUEST CARTOON EDITOR

Starting today, top television and movie comedians will be PARADE's guest cartoon editors. Each week one of them will select drawings from the best published work of a leading cartoonist. The Jerry Marcus sketches on this page were chosen by Jackie Gleason, star of TV's The Honeymooners (CBS, Saturday nights), which will return to your video screen October 1.

Marcus, a 31-year-old Brooklynite, began drawing for military publications while serving as a Seabee during World War II, since has sold cartoons to all the big U. S. magazines. He now lives with his wife and 2-month-old son Gary in a new split-level home at Ridgefield, Conn.

says Harry Kohler of Philadelphia

"Be sure your Insurance Policy pays LIFETIME BENEFITS!"

"From the first minute I saw the doctor over 10 years ago Mutual of Omaha has paid me cash benefits. To date my payments amount to almost $14,000."

Harry Kohler learned the hard way. On July 8, 1944, only six months after buying a sickness and accident policy from Mutual of Omaha, he was stricken over-night with a spinal ailment that caused paralysis of his legs. Mr. Kohler's policy provides hospital benefits and monthly payments of $100 for loss of income. Since the day of his illness he has collected nearly $14,000 from Mutual of Omaha. He will continue to get his monthly payments promptly from the local Philadelphia office as long as he is so disabled, Even For Life!

Another True Mutual of Omaha Story
(ONE OF THOUSANDS)

What happened to Harry Kohler could happen to YOU!

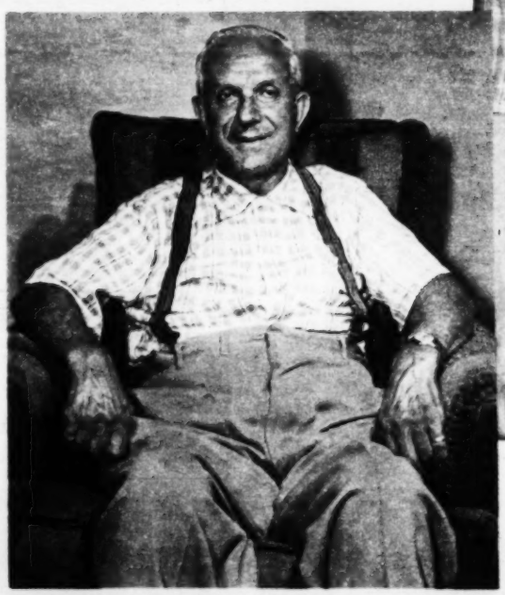

Sneak attacks of serious illness, or crippling by sudden accident, play no favorites. Anybody can be a victim. Fortunately there is something you can do to protect yourself and the members of your family. Mutual of Omaha, with its huge resources and reputation for dependable service, can provide you with protection that pays and pays. Its low cost insurance plan for individuals or families can save you the financial misery that millions of unprepared people suffer every year from sudden illness or accident.

Think of Harry Kohler. He had a good business, a fine home and a lovely family when tragic illness hit him without warning. Thanks to Mutual of Omaha's Lifetime Benefits he will never become a penniless burden to others. His wife can be at his side instead of out trying to earn a living for two.

"I urge all women who read this story not to risk the security of their family by delay. Mail The Coupon TODAY!"

Mrs. Harry D. Kohler

"Thank God the Mutual of Omaha agent kept me from delaying the application for my policy. My wife and I would be destitute without this wonderful Lifetime Protection. My lifetime sickness benefits represent the only money I have coming in. While I hope you never suffer my fate, I can't make this too strong! Write Mutual of Omaha now while you're in good health."

Ask yourself now: "Do I have proper protection?" Even though you carry some group insurance, chances are you should have additional coverage.

Mutual of Omaha is Famous for Personal Service

Mutual of Omaha has over 325 convenient local offices, and is licensed by government authorities to serve you in all 48 states, D. C., Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, Canal Zone and Puerto Rico. Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT, CHARTING THE RIVER AHEAD OF HIS TWO SHIPS, MEETS STRANGERS ON A PORTAGE, AND BOTH SIDES DRAW WEAPONS. "I AM PRINCE VALIANT, RETURNING TO THULE FROM FAR WANDERINGS. WE COME IN PEACE."

"WE ARE SWEDES FROM GOTLAND ON A TRADING VENTURE. WE WILL TRADE THE PEACE YOU WANT FOR THAT FINE SWORD AND GOLDEN NECKLACE!"

"COME AND TAKE THEM IF YOU BE MAN ENOUGH!" ANSWERS VAL. THEN, TURNING TO YOUNG BJORNE: "WE ARE OUTNUMBERED TEN TO ONE..... RUN FOR OUR BOAT, FIND THE SHIPS AND TELL THEM TO HURRY!"

VAL AND HIS WELL-TRAINED VETERANS MEET THE ONSLAUGHT WITH DEADLY EFFECT, BUT THEY ARE IN DANGER OF BEING SURROUNDED. AT A SHARP COMMAND FROM VAL THEY TURN AND RUN!

WITH A SHOUT OF TRIUMPH THE GOTLANDERS RACE IN PURSUIT. SOON THEY ARE STRUNG OUT ALONG THE TRAIL, AND VAL AND HIS MEN TURN.

THE SWIFTEST PURSUERS HAVE THE SHORTEST LIVES. THIS IS AN OLD TRICK TO MAKE AN ENEMY BREAK RANKS, AND VAL USES IT MANY TIMES.....

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1955

By WALTER QUERMANN

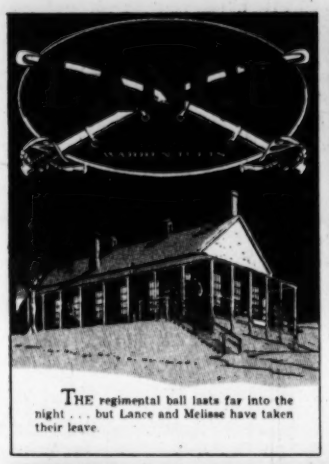

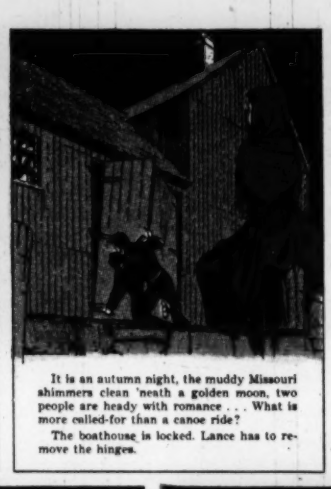

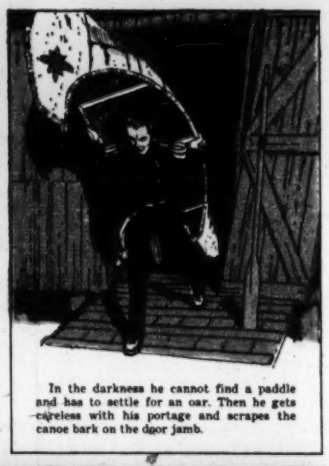

THE regimental ball lasts far into the night . . . but Lance and Melisse have taken their leave.

It is an autumn night, the muddy Missouri shimmers clean 'neath a golden moon, two people are heady with romance . . . What is more called-for than a canoe ride?

The boathouse is locked. Lance has to remove the hinges.

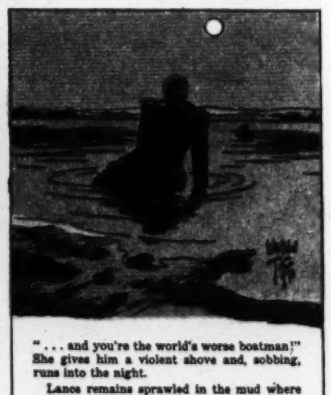

In the darkness he cannot find a paddle and has to settle for an oar. Then he gets careless with his portage and scrapes the canoe bark on the door jamb.

"We're off, fair maiden!" the eager boatman announces, and he digs deep. Too deep. The blade sticks in the mud.

Lance goes down with a thunderous splash! He recovers in time to see his girl sinking ingloriously amid a swirl of bubbles!

. . . Even in wetness, Lance knows the girl in his arms to be all glory. He kisses her . . . and for the moment it seems she accepts.

But when he releases her, Melisse's eyes are all blurry and she is choked by a sensation that frightens her. For a long time she gazes into the eyes of this painfully handsome young man and then says, weakly: "You . . . tricked me!"

". . . and you're the world's worse boatman!" She gives him a violent shove and, sobbing, runs into the night.

Lance remains sprawled in the mud where he fell. For ten minutes he doesn't move a muscle. He is dazed, bewildered . . . and in love.

Pintail decoy is removed from molding machine, which turns out an accurately formed fiber duck every 45 seconds.

Pulp is agitated in 3500-gallon tank to break up wood fibers.

Ballast of molten pitch is injected into hollow decoy forms, giving them proper buoyancy, making them self-righting.

Life-like tableau is created by decoys floating on reed-bordered, algae-covered pond. Five duck species are represented in the flotilla, along with a Canadian goose, whose demountable head is fixed in feeding position.

DECOY ASSEMBLY LINE

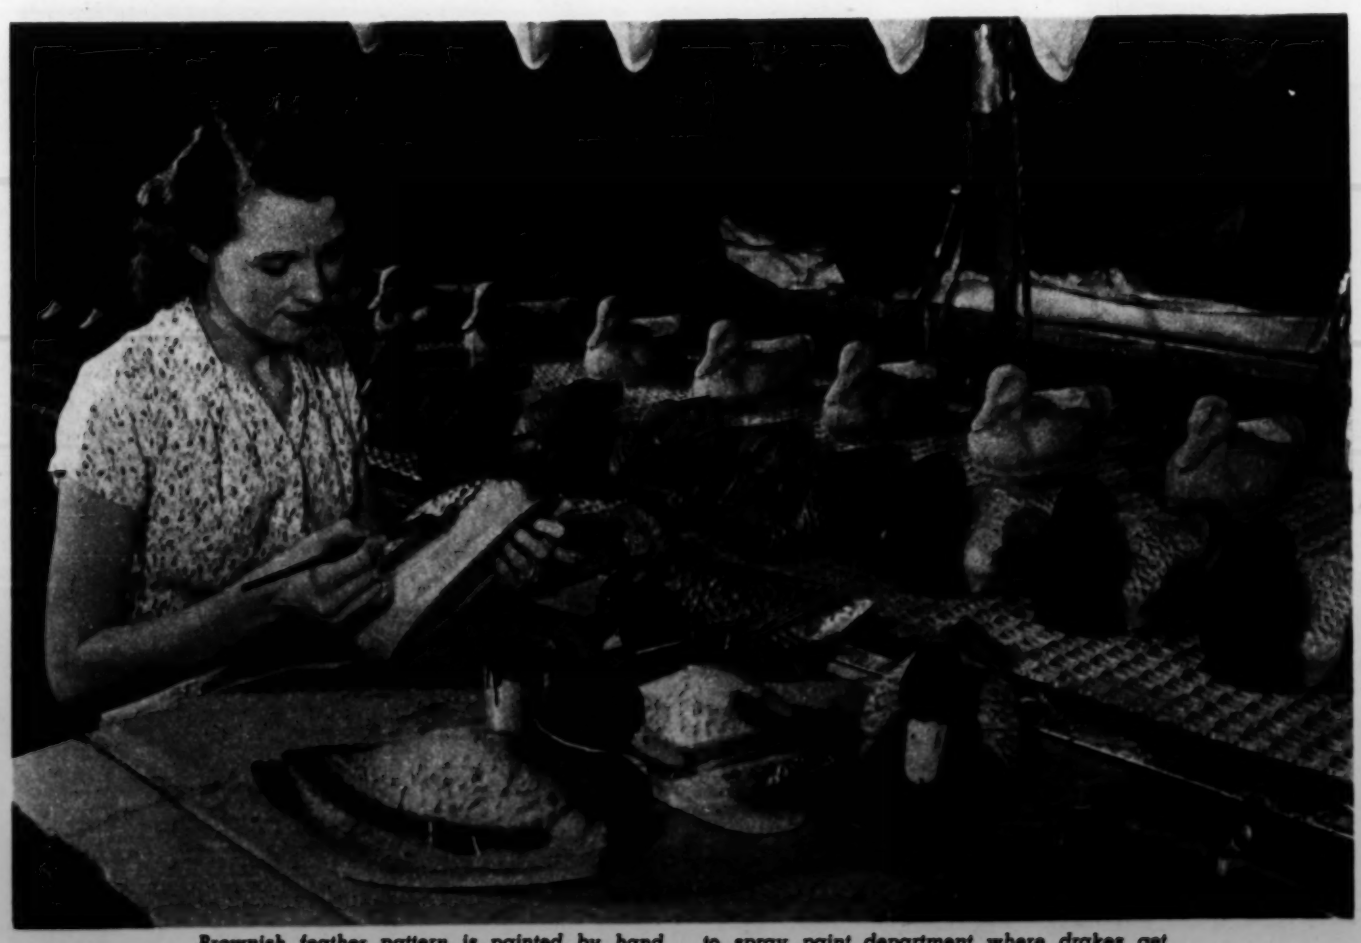

Hunters' Bird Lures Turned Out by St. Louis Plant at Rate of 4000 a Day

SITUATED AMID the noise and bustle of downtown St. Louis, but not far from Mississippi Flyway hunting grounds, is one of the country's largest duck decoy hatcheries. During the March-to-September producing season, 4000 decoys a day are turned out on an assembly line in a seven-story building at 1723 Locust street. The fowl factory is operated by the General Fibre Company, makers of fiber products.

The plant produces five species of imitation ducks—mallards, pintails, bluebills, canvasbacks and black ducks. Two drakes are made for every hen; while both come from the same mold, they assume their distinctive sex in the paint department. (The more colorful males seem to be preferred by hunters because they show up better on water.) Made of a wood pulp mixture, the decoys are formed in automatic molding machines, baked, waterproofed, ballasted and painted as they move through the plant on conveyor belts.

Because they are lighter, cheaper and more realistic, the hollow fiber birds have largely replaced solid wooden floaters. The St. Louis firm got into the decoy business when it turned to peacetime production after making helmet liners during the war. Now its dummy ducks carry on their hunting season deception all over the world.

Photos by JACK GOULD of the PICTURES Staff

Brownish feather pattern is painted by hand on male mallard decoys. Fresh from baking oven, ducks on far side of conveyor are on way to spray paint department where drakes get light base coat, hens a bronze one. On return trip color details are applied, glass eyes added.

Blue-green head is sprayed on mallard drake. Decoys are exact size and shape of real ducks; molds were made from sculptures of live wild ducks. Colors also are faithfully duplicated.

As applause and shouts thunder up to him following his balcony announcement by loudspeaker and radio that he would remain in office, a complacent-looking President Juan Peron lights a cigarette. Woman at left is Senora Delia Degliuomini de Parodi, president of the women's Peronista party.

PERON STRIKES BACK

Argentine Dictator Tries to Block Opposition With Offer to "Resign" and a Mass Display of Support

IN AN OBVIOUS EFFORT to shore up his shaky dictatorship, Argentina's President Juan Domingo Peron has resorted to one of his most dependable strategems—showmanship. The performance began with a dramatic offer to resign. It was made, not to the Argentine Congress, which alone could act on such an offer, but to the thoroughly-Peronist General Confederation of Labor (CGT). The CGT "rejected" the offer, called a one-day work stoppage. Scarcely had the offer been read on the state-controlled radio than a mass loyalty demonstration started. Nine and a half hours later Peron, his position bolstered by the well-staged show of public support, withdrew his offer.

Like everyone else, CGT leaders were fully aware that if Peron seriously intended to step down he would have sent his formal resignation to Congress. The mass demonstrations seemed well arranged in advance. Government-controlled newspapers appeared with banners proclaiming such slogans as "Peron, yes. Another, no." Antiaircraft guns and machine guns were swung into position around Casa Rosada, the President's residence in Buenos Aires. Gun crews were alerted and soldiers patrolled the streets. International air travel was halted.

By afternoon of the same day, thousands of the CGT's descamisados (shirtless ones)—a Peron bulwark ever since he became President in 1946—had been hauled into Buenos Aires by trains, busses and trucks. Then, when the mass of cheering men and women had converged in Plaza de Mayo outside Government House, the dictator stepped out onto the balcony he frequently uses as a rostrum. In retracting his offer, he laid down his policy: "He who in any place tries to disturb order in opposition to the constituted authorities or constitution may be slain by any Argentine."

International News Photos except as noted

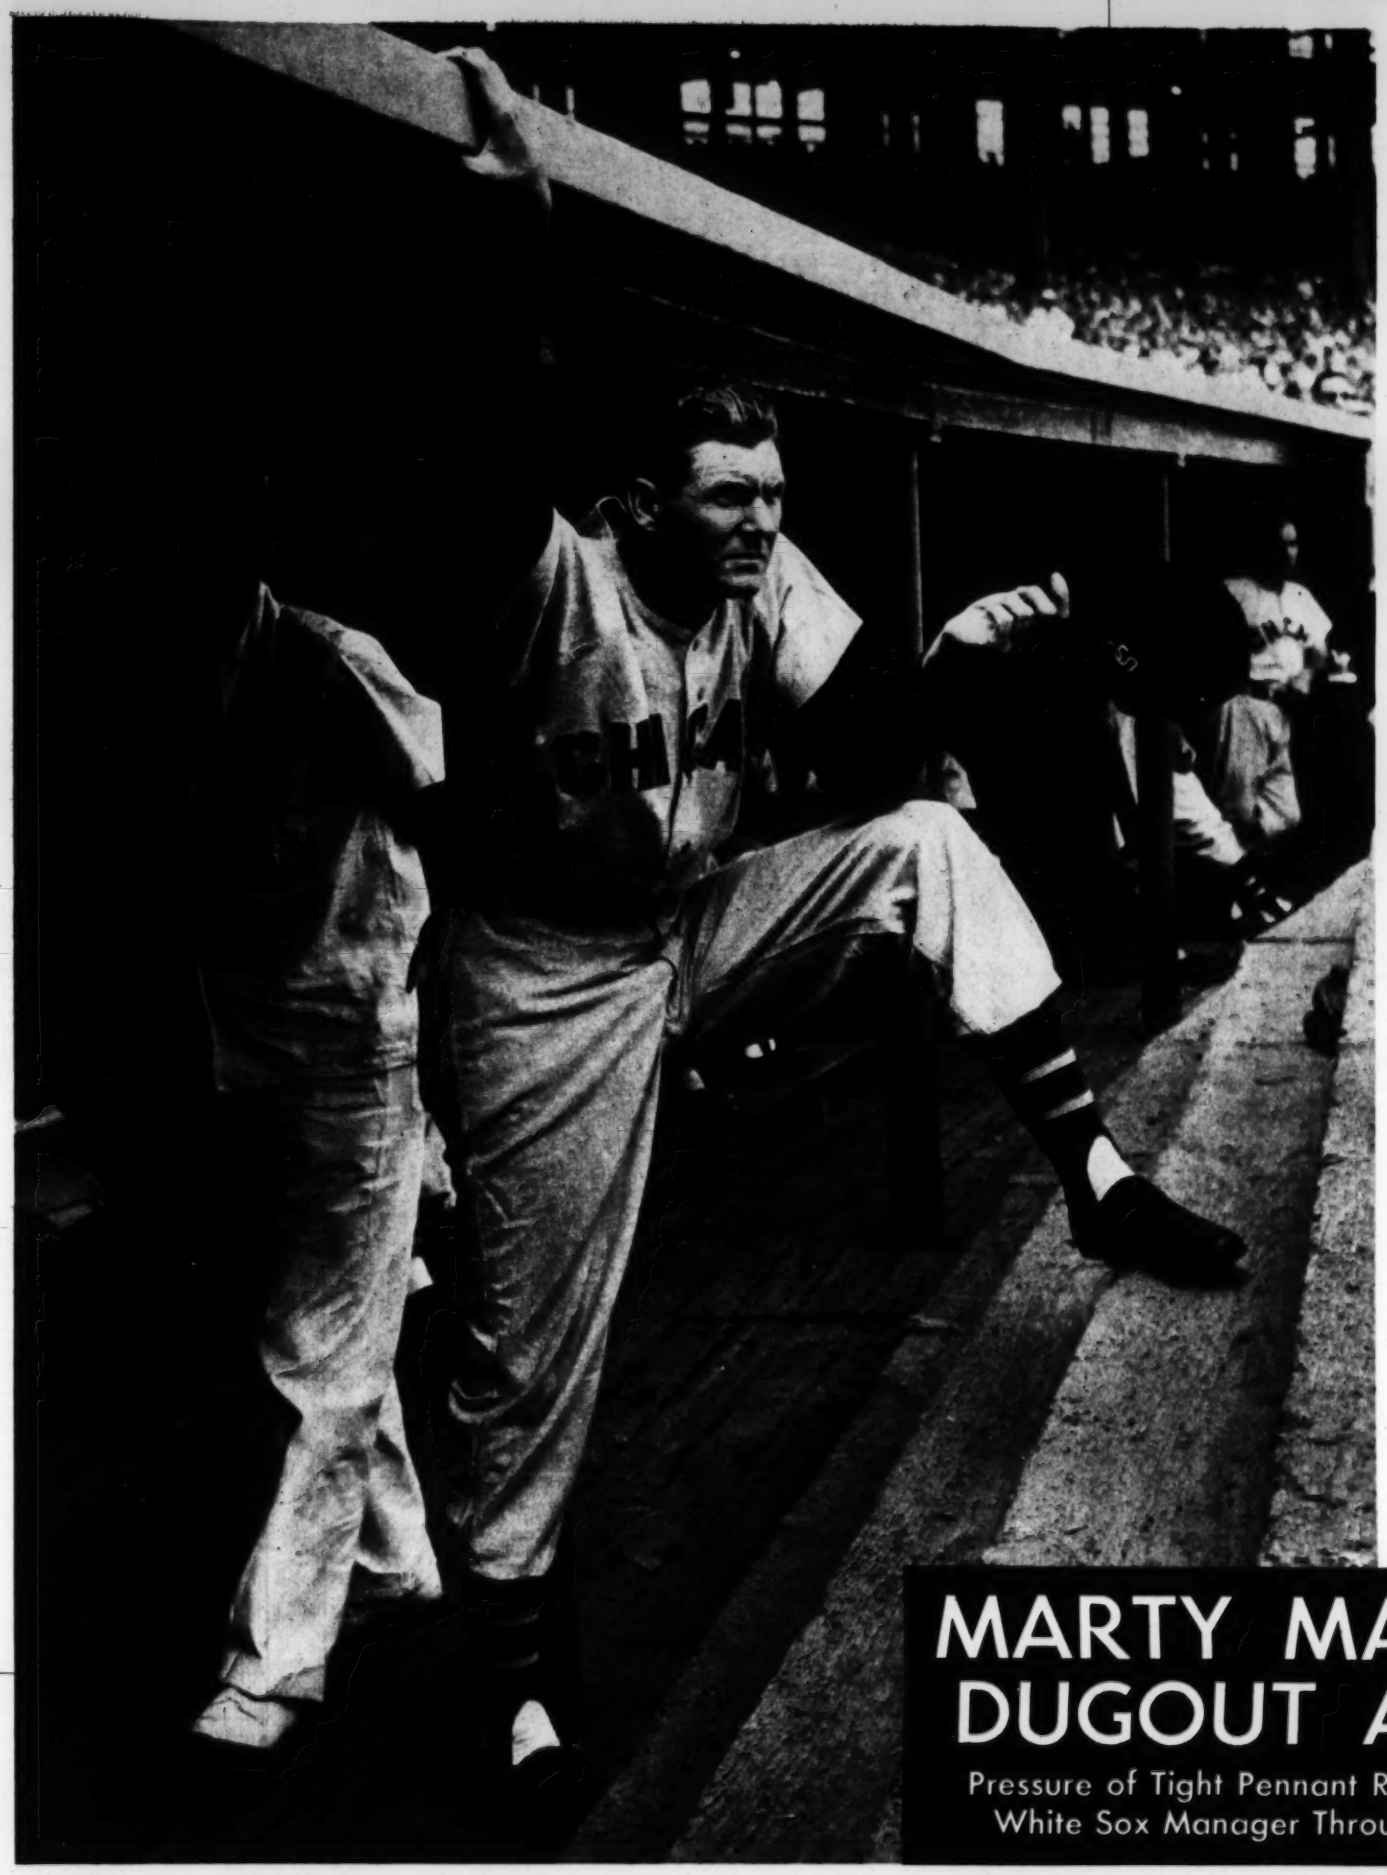

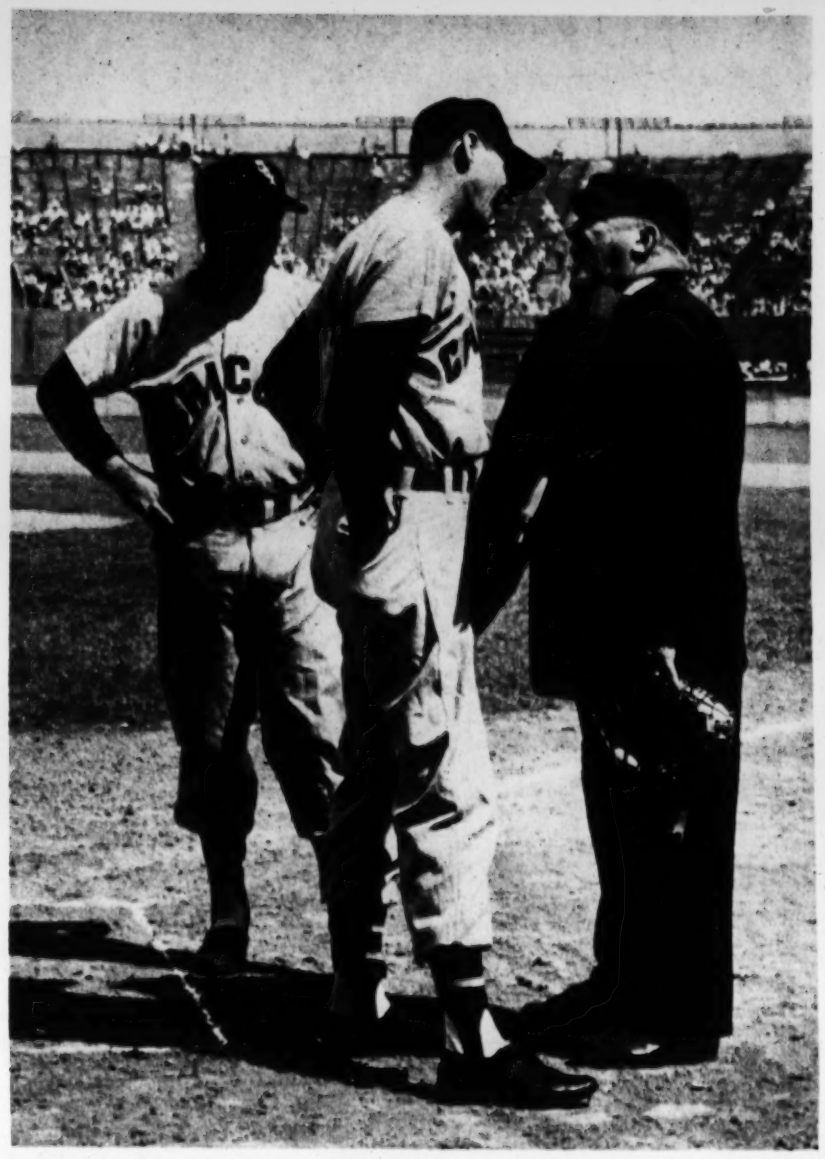

Trucks loaded with shouting workers head for the Plaza de Mayo. The day after the demonstration the Argentine Congress swiftly passed legislation to put Buenos Aires once again in a state of siege, which is comparable to martial law in the United States. The entire country also had been decreed in a state of siege, for 13 days, after the Navy revolt against the government last June 16.

United Press Photo

Plaza de Mayo jammed with demonstrators. Government House, from a balcony of which Peron spoke, is at right. Workers were directed to remain in plaza until Peron agreed to remain in office. Opposition to the 60-year-old dictator has recently been the strongest since he first came into power. He is still bulwarked, on the surface at least, by the descamisados and the army hierarchy. Reported growing in number and disaffection, however, are four principal groups: The Radical party, which heads purely political opposition; the Roman Catholic clergy and communicants; dissident young officers in the navy, army and air force; a miscellaneous citizenry that includes business men, bankers, landowners, university students, intellectuals and workers who want a free and genuine labor movement.

Despite his usually genial manner, Marty can bawl out a player or take issue with an umpire with cutting effectiveness. Here he exchanges a few unpleasantries with Umpire Bill Summers after Summers banished White Sox First Baseman Walt Dropo from game for arguing about a called third strike. Coach George Myatt stands by backing up his boss. Marty rarely gets kicked out of a game.

Under stress, Marty reverts to his old pebble-picking habit, familiar to Cardinal fans.

MARTY MARION'S DUGOUT AGONY

Pressure of Tight Pennant Race Puts Nervous White Sox Manager Through the Wringer

Glowering as though inflicting the double whammy on an opposing batter, Manager Marty Marion of the Chicago White Sox holds cap in one hand, grips edge of dugout roof with other during tense moment in game against Cleveland Indians in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium.

By ROBERT E. HANNON of the PICTURES Staff

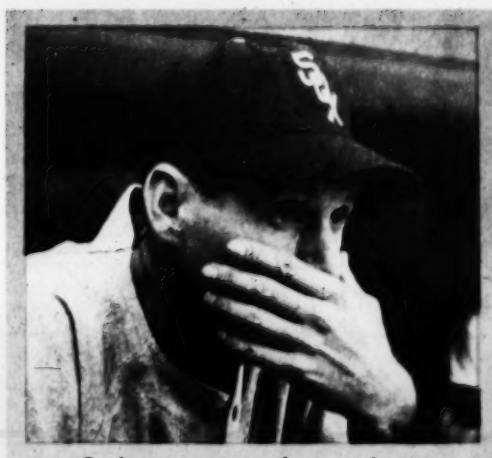

BASEBALL FANS remember Marty Marion as the mild-mannered, highly nervous shortstop who covered a lot of ground and picked up a lot of pebbles for the St. Louis Cardinals a few years ago. Now that he's managing a pennant-contending team rather than playing for one, Marty doesn't go in for pebble picking as much as he used to. Instead, he just dies a thousand deaths in the dugout during a game.

Considering his temperament and the situation he's in, this is quite understandable. With his Chicago White Sox locked in a four-way battle for the American League pennant and the season's end only two weeks away, Marty undergoes extreme torture as he sweats out every minute of every inning. Not that he's under any greater pressure than his rival managers—Cleveland's Al Lopez, New York's Casey Stengel, or Boston's Pinky Higgins—but Marty seems to suffer more.

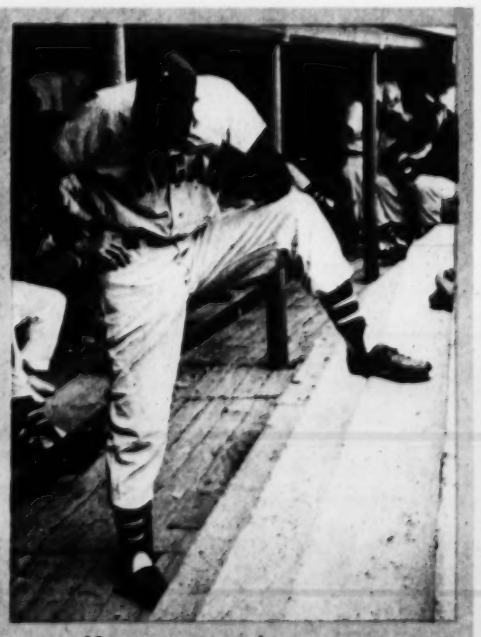

To Manager Marion, each decision is of monumental significance, each play of shattering consequence. An enemy home run may leave him mesmerized. A bobble by one of his own men may set him furiously dusting off the dugout steps with his cap. Whether to hit, steal, bunt, change pitchers or stroll to the water cooler can assume the aspects of an international problem. This is not to say Marty is slow on the trigger in making decisions; it's just that he feels the recoil more.

Some managers are pacers, or sitters, or shouters, but not Marion. He's a leaner. At the beginning of a game he takes up a stance against a dugout post, where, like a man tied to the stake, he endures his torment to the end. His performance, such as this one during a crucial doubleheader against Cleveland, is as entertaining as the action on the field.

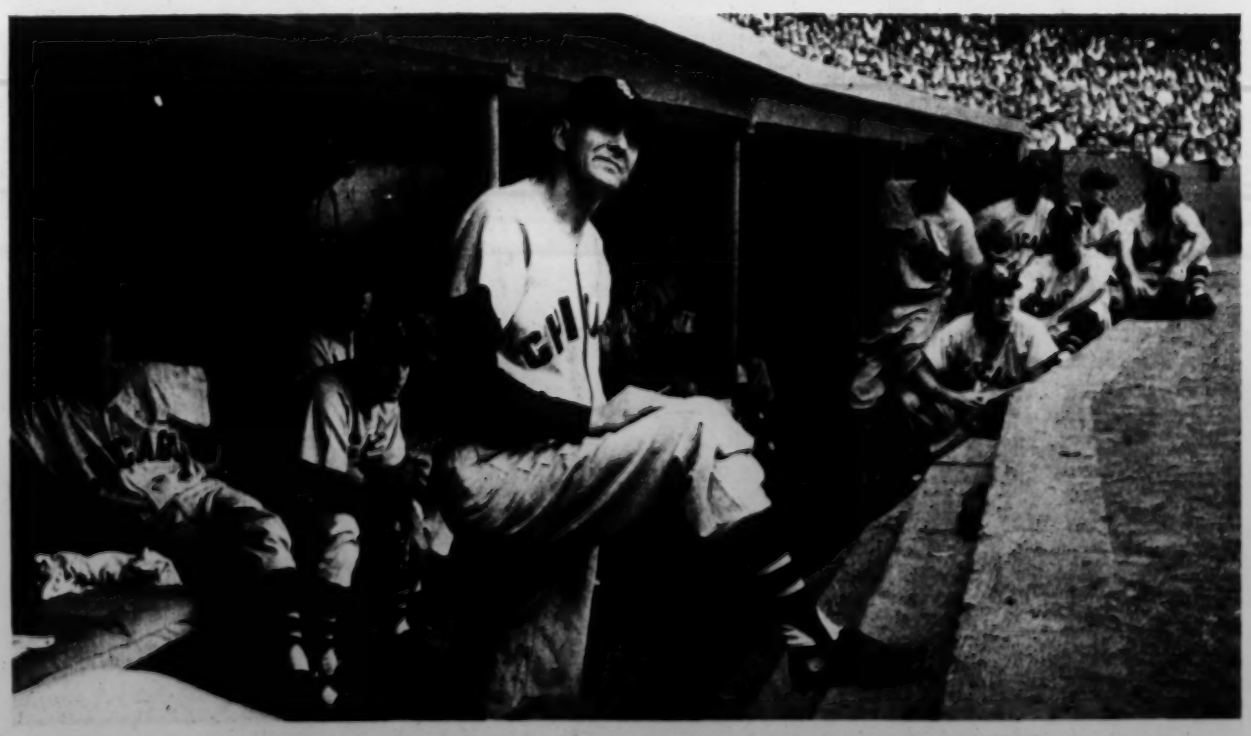

Photos by SAM CALDWELL of the PICTURES Staff

Study of man in deep study as Marty considers jerking his pitcher.

Manager averts his gaze as one of his batters strikes out.

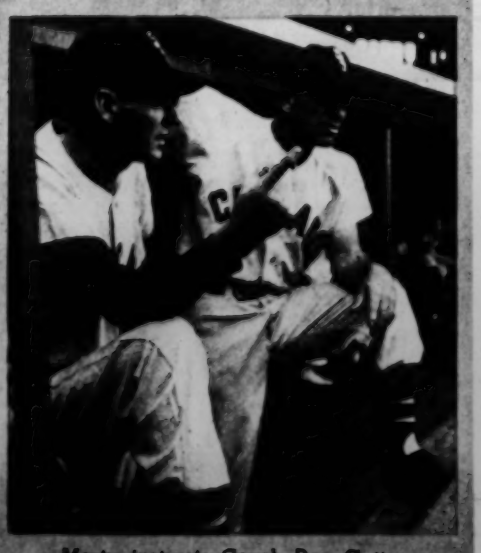

Long after he was stunned by Al Rosen's home-run blow, Marion remains in trance-like state. Cleveland had two out and two men on when Rosen broke the scoreless tie.

Third out was made, teams changed sides, first Sox batter was at plate before Marty came out of coma. He doesn't fraternize with players in dugout but praises good plays.

He bangs cap on step in disgust after Cleveland turns double play.

Marty instructs Coach Don Gutteridge. Sox lost both games, 5-3.

Advocates of cession of the British Crown colony of Cyprus to Greece parade in Nicosia, seat of the Cyprus governor. The demonstrators, described as Communists, carry Greek flags. Greek demands that Cyprus, a majority of whose people are of Greek origin, be given to Greece has involved Greece, Britain and Turkey in a bitter dispute over the future of the island. There have been demonstrations, sometimes violent, in Cyprus, Greece and Turkey. Turkey held the island from 1571 until its annexation by Britain in 1914; one-fourth of the Cypriots are Turkish. Last week Britain, hoping to break the stalemate in the dispute, offered Cyprus a new constitution with more self-rule and a prospect of future self-determination.

Following a clash between Israeli and Egyptian troops in the Gaza area, wreckage of the home of the mayor is piled high in the settlement of Beni Sehila, south of the city of Gaza. For the past three weeks a series of raids and counterraids by Israelis and Egyptians has broken the uneasy peace in the Palestine Gaza area—a narrow strip, five miles wide and 25 miles long south of Israel on the Mediterranean, that is held by Egypt. Last Sunday, with Western powers and a United Nations armistice commission seeking a means to settle the long-standing Arab-Israeli differences, Israel and Egypt renewed a cease-fire pledge.

MOST SENSATIONAL DISCOVERY IN 40 YEARS FOR BETTER BAKING AND FRYING!

FIRST ALL-NEW SHORTENING!

It's RICH! It's YELLOW!

Procter & Gamble's Golden Fluffo

What a cake it makes!

RICHER-LOOKING...
BETTER-TASTING...
MORE APPETIZING!

Yes, Fluffo cakes are the highest, lightest, most delicious golden-rich cakes you can possibly bake!

Why? Because fabulous, new, easy-to-mix Fluffo blends into smooth, rich batter never possible before with any other shortening! Glorifies yellow and chocolate cakes—gives delicate moist richness to your white cakes . . . yet leaves them white!

THIS BAKING CHAMPION OF ALL ALABAMA FAIR,
Mrs. J. T. Portera, says:—

"You should see the white cake I made with this rich yellow shortening! Used my same old recipe—but changed from white shortening to Fluffo. My cake was absolutely wonderful—had such fine texture—tasted so rich! And still it was nice and white.
"And I used Fluffo in my icing. Talk about rich! This was the richest, easiest-spreading frosting I ever made!"

"No white shortening ever gave me a cake like this!"

says this expert Southern cook who won prize blue ribbon for her baking.

Like cooking champions, you'll be truly excited about golden Fluffo! It gives you high, light, delicate cakes such as you've never been able to bake before . . . richer-looking and better-tasting, by far, than any you can get from white shortening!

That's because Fluffo is different! Even its color is different—yellow from pure carotene.

And Fluffo is such fun to work with! Use it in all your recipes that call for shortening—and see what happens! Without changing a single measurement, you'll get the flakiest, tenderest golden-brown piecrust possible . . . wonderfully tender-crisp golden-brown fries that are so digestible!

Yet Fluffo costs no more than leading white shortenings! It's available in most areas. Get a can and use it for richer-looking, better-tasting cooking!

New Dwellings Completed at Rate of Six a Day by Mass Construction Method

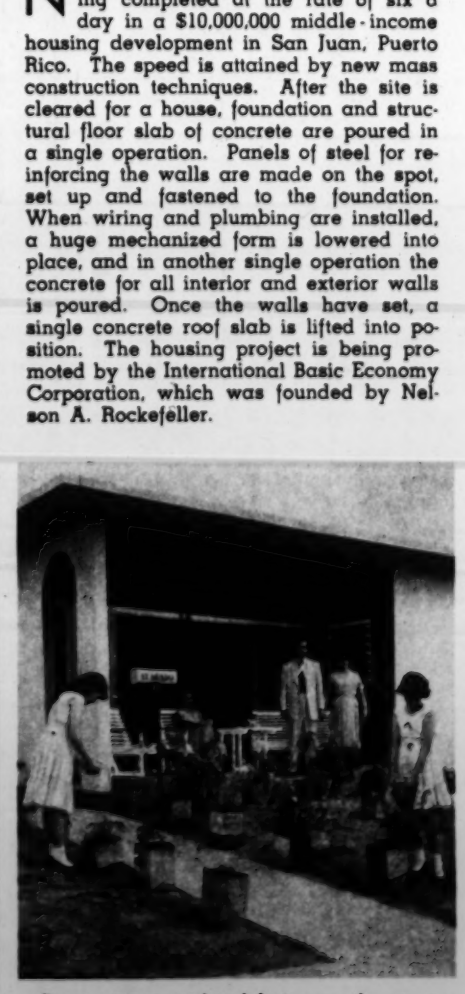

View of the Las Lomas housing project in San Juan, showing mass-produced homes in various stages of completion. In right foreground two of the huge wall forms are in place, another is being lowered by derrick onto foundation. A total of 1625 of the identical houses is being built on the 200-acre site. I.B.E.C. has also announced plans for a second housing project of more than 3000 houses and involving $20,000,000.

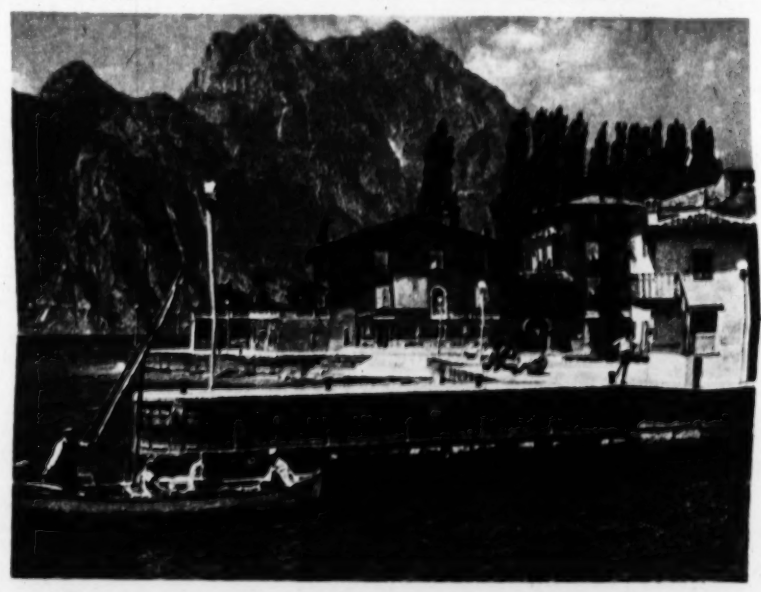

A concrete roof slab is lifted into place on finished walls.

NEW THREE-BEDROOM HOMES are being completed at the rate of six a day in a $10,000,000 middle-income housing development in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The speed is attained by new mass construction techniques. After the site is cleared for a house, foundation and structural floor slab of concrete are poured in a single operation. Panels of steel for reinforcing the walls are made on the spot, set up and fastened to the foundation. When wiring and plumbing are installed, a huge mechanized form is lowered into place, and in another single operation the concrete for all interior and exterior walls is poured. Once the walls have set, a single concrete roof slab is lifted into position. The housing project is being promoted by the International Basic Economy Corporation, which was founded by Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Front of a completed home as the occupants, the Daniel Badillo family, get a garden started. First houses were occupied in July, but the project will not be completed until next year. Houses are sold for $6000, can be financed with $300 down and $46 monthly payments.

What makes Potato Salad taste its creamy best?

Hellmann's WHOLE-EGG MAYONNAISE!

It's so easy to give your potato salad that old time flavor goodness. Just be sure you blend it with Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise. It's the smoother, creamier mayonnaise because whole eggs—whites, yolks, even extra yolks—are whipped in. It blends so easily, flatters the natural good flavor of everything you use with it. Try this real potato salad—and see.

REAL POTATO SALAD

Boil 8 medium-size potatoes until tender. Peel, slice or dice while hot. Add small onion, chopped, 2 tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, dash chervil (optional).

Combine 2 tbs. vinegar, 2 tbs. hot water, ⅓ cup real whole-egg mayonnaise. Combine with warm potatoes. Let cool.

Mix in ½ cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup chopped pimiento, ½ cup diced celery, ½ cup smoother, richer real whole-egg mayonnaise. Chill. Serves 6... deliciously!

P.S. A perfect salad to make in advance... it keeps so fresh and moist.

To bring out the Whole Flavor use Real Whole-Egg Mayonnaise... creamy smooth

For more than an hour police of Cincinnati checked on reports of a "green man" at large in the streets. An off-duty police lieutenant, unaware of the reports, arrested a 15-year-old boy wearing his old Halloween costume made up of green underwear and a weird mask. The boy denied he was the "green man," insisted he had not been more than 50 feet from his home in the getup.

SIDEWALK SUPERINTENDENTS

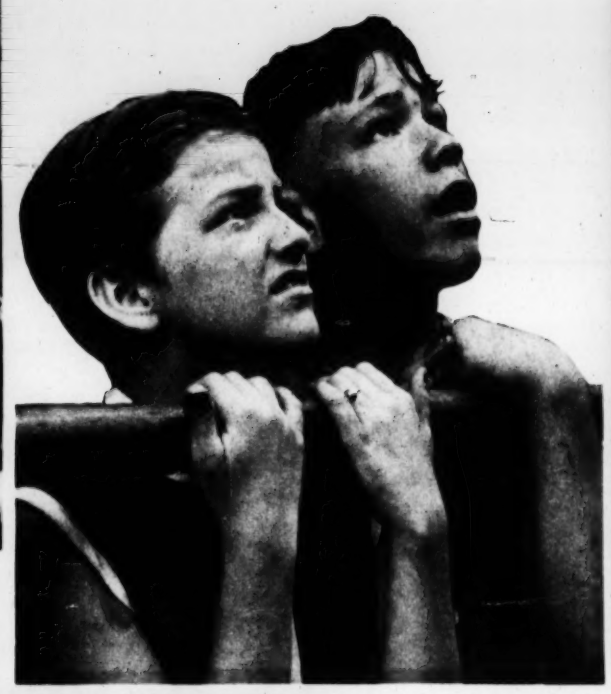

From Positions at Sixth and Locust, They Appreciatively Watch Building's Demolition

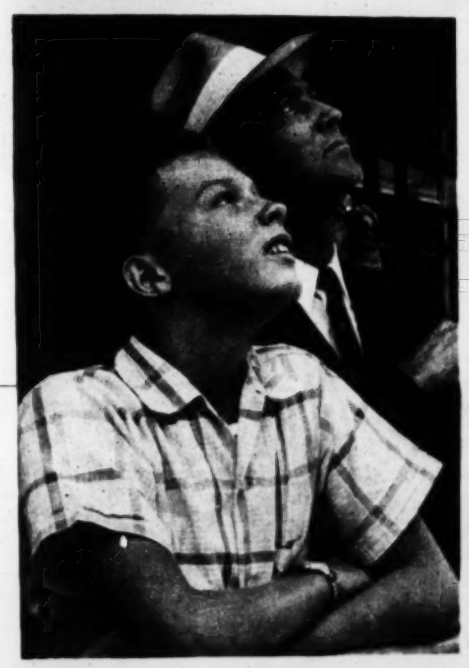

THE NECK-CRANERS shown on this page are engaging in the old American custom of sidewalk superintending. They are watching the demolition of the 11-story Equitable Building at Sixth and Locust streets in downtown St. Louis. It is a project that compels attention, for besides the sight of men working at hazardous heights, there is something that is fascinating about the demise of an old structure.

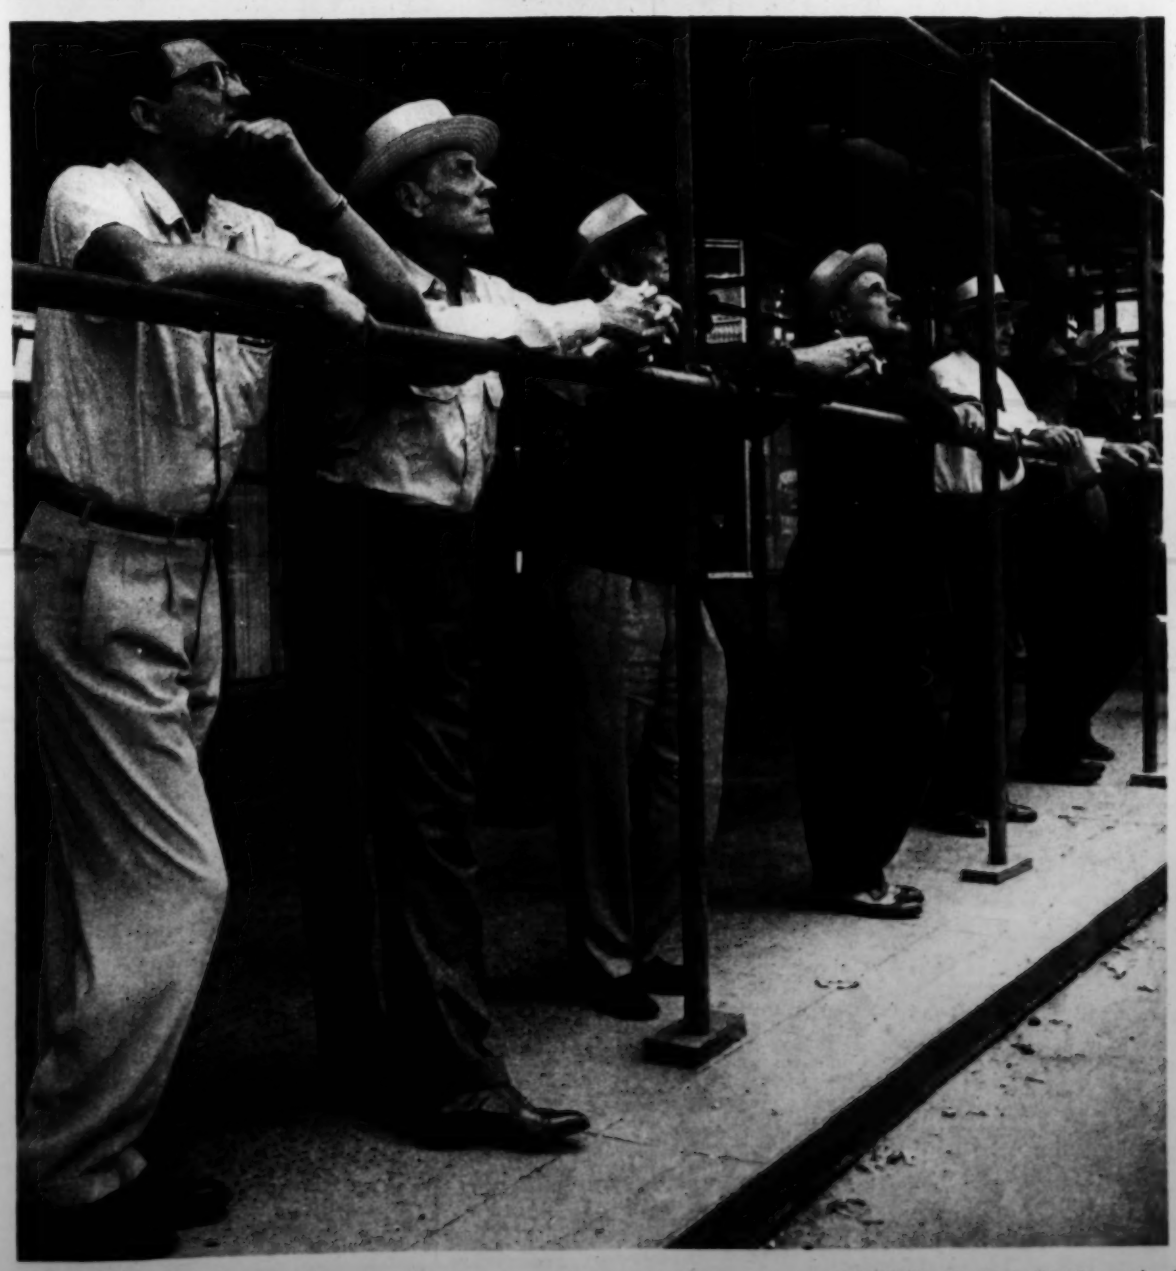

Because the building is located at a busy intersection, it cannot be battered down with a "headache" ball. It must be torn down floor by floor and brick by brick. Workmen balanced precariously on masonry crags and exposed beams attack the walls and floors with crowbars, picks, pneumatic hammers and acetylene torches—and their performance never lacks an audience.

Some spectators stand for long periods watching the razing, others pause for only a few moments. A few are full-time kibitzers who, having seen the Memorial Plaza clearance through, are on hand day after day. Best vantage point is across Sixth street, where scaffolding for an exterior remodeling job provides shade and a fine lounging rail.

The Equitable Building was a downtown landmark. It was constructed in 1869 as a six-story office structure. About 1900, five additional stories were added. It will be replaced by a contemporary styled three-story building. The wrecking operation began last June, is scheduled for completion by October 1.

Photos by JACK GOULD of the PICTURES Staff

High up on the partly wrecked building, where doors open onto nothing and old cast iron floor beams span voids, workmen hold the attention of curbstone kibitzers. Heavy Victorian facade of sandstone made razing job difficult and hazardous. Wooden water tanks are on an adjoining building.

So safe—to cream off facial hair

"Nothing should touch your skin that fails to leave it lovelier. So I have developed for my salons everywhere a depilatory that is both safe, and in itself a balanced beauty preparation."

Elizabeth Arden's SLEEK

Not only creams off hair from face, arms and legs in minutes . . . but leaves skin soft, satiny, younger looking. What's more, Sleek smells delightful! Salon-proved, a surgically safe depilatory, Sleek is as easy and pleasant to use as the finest face cream. And Sleek actually discourages hair regrowth.

PARIS

Gleaming gold silk gauze is the fabric of this figure-wrapping sheath that gets added glitter from topaz and rhinestones. The material is tightly shirred toward the back where it meets a semi-flowing train. Bodice is supported by wide, jeweled straps that extend over the shoulder to a low-cut back. Jean Desses of Paris is the designer.

NEW YORK

A Spanish influence is reflected in this gown with stiff bell-shaped skirt and tulip neckline. Rich red velvet of skirt and bodice is set off by black velvet midriff edged in white satin cording. The Oleg Cassini gown was modeled in New York.

HAYMAKING IN OLIVETTE

Joseph Zalesak and his wife, both originally from Czechoslovakia, make hay the Old World way at Stacy Park, city water reservoir at Olive Street and Warson roads in Olivette. They are stacking their latest cutting on the 1928 truck that serves as a haywagon. For the last several years the couple has been granted permission to gather the hay in the reservoir after it has been mowed by city employes. The Zalesaks harvest two crops each summer, take the hay to their home at 9959 Olive Street road, Creve Coeur.

With wooden rakes of the type they used in their native country—and which they made themselves—the Zalesaks rake the hay into windrows and piles before loading it on truck. They get hay from about four of the tract's 50 acres. Zalesak can put in a full day at haymaking despite his age—he is 70. He came to this country in 1912.

Sinking more than knee-deep in the load, Mrs. Zalesak expertly uses pitchfork to stack hay evenly on truck so it will not spill. The hay is cured at the Zalesak home, is then used in feeding their four cows.

Poppy Seed White Cake, Custard Glaze

1. Mrs. Cotton creams butter and sugar together very thoroughly. The poppy seeds have been soaking in milk for several hours.

2. Soaked poppy seeds are blended into the butter-sugar mixture. Vanilla is added.

3. Flour and baking powder sifted together are added to mixture, then stiffly whipped egg whites are folded in. It is poured into greased and floured pans, and baked until golden brown.

By MERNA LAZIER

SNOWY WHITE CAKE flecked with black poppy seeds, and its layers heavily glazed with a rich rum custard, is a popular dessert at the Herman Husch household in Clayton, where it is prepared by Mrs. Lillian Cotton.

Mrs. Cotton puts the poppy seeds to soak in the evaporated milk diluted with water for several hours. They are then added to the butter and sugar which have been beaten together until light and creamy. Flavoring is put in, followed by the flour which has been sifted before measuring and three times more with the baking powder added. Stiffly beaten egg whites are folded into mixture; it is put in two square cake pans (about nine inches) that have been greased and floured, and baked in hot oven—375 degrees—for about 20 minutes.

Custard-like glaze is made by cooking together cornstarch, sugar, egg yolks and fresh milk until thick and then flavoring it with rum. A light sprinkling of dry poppy seeds gives an inkling of what may be expected when cake is cut. Cake must be kept under refrigeration because of the custard glaze. Will cut into 16 to 20 pieces.

INGREDIENTS: For the cake—two and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup salted butter, one and one-half cups sugar, three-fourths cup evaporated milk diluted with one-fourth cup water, one-half cup poppy seeds, one teaspoon vanilla, four egg whites. For the glaze—four egg yolks, one cup sugar, three tablespoons cornstarch, two cups fresh milk, one-fourth cup rum.

4. The custard glaze is made by combining cornstarch, sugar, egg yolks and milk, and cooking it until thickened. Rum is added. Cakes are cooled on racks.

5. Glaze is spread generously between layers and over top and sides, then sprinkled lightly with dry poppy seeds. It is kept refrigerated until served.

SAILORS CREATE ROPE WORK ART

Navy Men Weave to Pass Time at Sea

Working at the sailor's art of fancy rope work, Boatswain's Mate C. H. Lampkin makes MacNamara lace to while away time aboard the U.S.S. Salem, a heavy cruiser on duty in the Mediterranean Sea. His material is a piece of canvas from which horizontal threads are stripped, and the vertical ones woven into patterns. On United States ships, the tradition is kept alive by veteran seamen who hand down the skill to younger bluejackets.

Elaborate tasseled rope work that decorates the Salem captain's gig is displayed by Boatswain's Mate Donald F. Noel, coxswain of the small boat. Such ornamentation usually is painted white for preservation and appearance.

Vent pipe gets the fancy treatment from Seaman B. L. Hamilton, who applies a rope covering in a 48-strand crosspoint pattern. Aboard ship the term "rope" is used when ornamentation is involved; however, for utility purposes the proper term is "line."

BREAKING A THOROUGHBRED

St. Louis County Farm Schools Colts for the Track

Pat Dolan, riding a 19-year-old pinto, "ponies" a colt. Thoroughbred, with a capital "T," is a distinctive breed of horses, bred only for racing, whose records of ancestry date back in America to the 1750s. Ponying—leading by a shank while riding another horse—is done from the time young horse is halter-broken, even after it has learned to carry a rider. Trainer Whitworth rides as whipper-in to accustom colt to noise of other horses, also to urge it on.

Photos by ARTHUR WITMAN of the PICTURES Staff

First step in gentling process is teaching colt to wear halter and to lead. This yearling, having learned to wear bridle and take bit, now also wears a light-colored surcingle to condition it for feel of a saddle girth.

BETWEEN CAREFREE FRISKING in the pasture and the run for money on the track, Thoroughbred colts and fillies must be schooled. Some breakers of Thoroughbreds use a "rodeo" method. A western saddle is put on the young horse and any bucking inclinations are ridden out. Subjugation is done with a heavy hand. But with the yearling of sizable value, Thoroughbred owners usually have their horses broken by velvet glove treatment. They are gentled almost slyly, eased into accepting of tack first, and then a rider.

For the trainer, patient persistence and the understanding of horses are required in bringing along race horses from first feel of halter to first appearance in the starting gate. Since she can remember, Pat Dolan, a 19-year-old sophomore of Maryville College, has ridden and cared for horses. For three summers, she has worked on Woodlands Farm in Hazelwood, in St. Louis County, owned by her uncle, E. E. Pershall. Her job there is readying Thoroughbreds for the only role they were foaled to play—making speed and money on an oval track. This summer, along with Trainer Russ Whitworth, Pat has broken six yearling Thoroughbreds, is still working with a seventh. As Pat returns to college, the schooling of the colts is complete except for further conditioning and learning to break fast at the starter's bell.

After a colt has been saddled for the first time, it is lead around with stirrups flopping. No human weight is put on the horse until it becomes used to carrying leather and finds saddle is harmless.

Pat does a belly-bust as colt is indoctrinated into bearing weight. Trainer starts by merely resting an arm on the saddle, and only after several days does she actually sit astride. Breaking time runs from two to three months, depending on nature of the animal.

Riding with a modified jockey seat, Pat holds a colt down while galloping around training track. Thoroughbreds are usually not named until just before being raced as two-year-olds. Colts, in Thoroughbred jargon, are ungelded males less than five years old. Colts which Pat worked with this summer will probably be raced as two-year-olds next summer.

A SCHEME MISFIRES

Stewart Granger and Jean Simmons in Suspense Film With London Setting, "Footsteps in the Fog"

1. Ostensibly heartbroken by his wife's death, Stephen Lowry (Stewart Granger) returns from the funeral to his lonely house in Edwardian London. He is comforted by the lovely Elizabeth Travers (Belinda Lee), daughter of his elderly business partner.

2. After Elizabeth leaves, Stephen is confronted by his pert Cockney serving girl, Lily Watkins (Jean Simmons), who brazenly suggests that he fire the other servants. When he demands an explanation, she tells him she knows he murdered his wife by carefully administered doses of poison.

3. Lily settles easily into her new-won position, assuming a mature beauty with the aid of the late Mrs. Lowry's clothes and jewels. She even demands Stephen stop seeing Elizabeth Travers, threatening him with exposure if he persists. Realizing her weak spot, he tells Lily he loves her. Actually, he plans to murder her.

4. In a dense fog, Stephen clubs a woman to death with his walking stick at a mailbox, mistaking her for Lily. He returns home to find Lily there. She discovers blood on his coat as she puts it away, later covers up for Stephen by telling police that his walking stick had been missing a month when they call to inquire about it.

5. Stephen evolves a diabolical plot to rid himself of Lily. He takes small doses of the poison he used on his wife, enough to establish in the minds of his friends that he is ill. At what he conceives to be the right moment, he takes a lethal dose, sends Lily for the doctor. According to his plan, she should be able to return in time to save him, then he will accuse her of attempted murder.

6. But Stephen's plan fails. Lily had been stopped and questioned by the police in connection with the woman's death at the mailbox. When she finally arrives with the doctor and the police, Stephen is near death. With his last breath, he accuses her of poisoning him. Lily is led away by the police.

LITTLE LILIES FOR SMALL POOLS

Three New Hybrids Developed at Shaw's Garden for Home Fanciers

Pygmy lotus from Africa, a tropical water lily used by Pring in developing small night bloomers, was introduced into cultivation for first time at Shaw's Garden.

Photos by ARTHUR WITMAN of the PICTURES Staff

St. Louis Gold, one of the new little hybrids, has yellow flower four to five inches across. One of its parents was an African pygmy, other was large-flowered yellow hybrid.

LITTLE WATER LILIES suitable for small home pools, long desired by lily fanciers, have been produced successfully through hybridization by Superintendent George H. Pring of Shaw's Garden. Through years of painstaking effort, he developed three new varieties by crossing pygmy lilies from Africa with some of his older hybrids. The new types have flowers from four to eight inches across, as compared with flowers of up to 12 inches borne by the larger hybrids. Two of the small-size lilies are yellow, the other is pale blue.

Pring found that working with pygmy lilies was extremely exacting labor as the seeds of the little plants are no larger than a pinhead. He considered himself lucky when he obtained 15 or 20 good seeds from a single pod containing 200 or more. Pring's new creations bring to 35 the number of hybrid lilies he has developed in his 50 years at Shaw's Garden. Specimens of almost every one of them are included in the garden's tropical water lily collection, rated the finest in the world.

Another of the new lilies is Aviator Pring. It was named for Pring's son, Robert, an Air Force pilot who was killed in a plane crash in 1948.

Night-blooming red hybrid, Mrs. George Hitchcock, has a 10-inch flower.

Bluet, smallest of new hybrids, is only three inches across. One parent was white, other pale blue.

Outstanding violet hybrid produced here, Dr. George T. Moore, is a day bloomer of medium size.
